We Noticed

....That tiered lines are seen in lots of spring things. Those of us who are inclined to slenderness will welcome these horizontal effects. Incidentally, the tiers are sometimes placed to achieve a similarity to the tunic effect. Perhaps the tunic is staging a comeback, too.

....Aprons, not for housewear, but for a formal dressing up of your basic dress, are promoted by several of the dress houses for spring wear. Bright colored fringe ones go over simple navy or black crepe dresses. Printed chintz and linen ones are worn over solid colored dresses of the same fabric. Sometimes, these go all the way around sometimes they are only three-quarter the size of the skirt proper, thus allowing the latter to show through. For town wear, they're slim; for cruising about they're quite bouffant.

✧ ✧ ✧

....."Sheer and shine"—a combination of fabric—is an exciting new evening thought. Adorable dresses made with infinitesimal bodices of sleek slipper satin have enormous skirts of net froth over more slipper satin. Gold dust, sprayed into your coiffure, is another suggestion for evening. To accomplish this, it is best to spray the hair first with brilliantine, then dust it with the gold metal powder made for that purpose.

Teen-Age Girls Hold Cooking Sale In Parish Hall

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 16.—A most successful afternoon tea and sale of home-made cooking, candy and novelties was held in the Parish Hall here on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Teen-age Girls' Branch of the W.A. of St. John's Anglican church. The sale was novel, in that the cost of each item was fixed at ten cents.

A booth of home cooking, candy and hand-made articles—the work of the girls of the group—was decorated in blue and white, and that color scheme was carried out throughout the hall. A lighted candle burned on each table.

A fish-pond, which was extremely popular with the kiddies, was supervised by Betty Lake, and Isobel Millar. Dorothy Crawford and Elsie Chappell were in charge of the sale of candy, and Elizabeth Twist was responsible for the home cooking. Lillian Reid and Jean Orr sold novelties.

Assisting with the afternoon tea were Doris Jackman, Myrtle Hampton, Irene Comber, Mabel Hopkins, Mary, Lily and Rosie Wong, Ethel Millar, Jacqueline Morin, Maxine Hunter, Minta Pearson, Gwennie Crawford, and Marion Twist.

Miss Hazel Crawford, leader of the group, was assisted by Mrs. (Rev.) Howden and Miss Elizabeth Twist.

The girls are to be congratulated on the splendid success of the sale, the result of their keen interest and co-operation. Proceeds amounted to $10.83.

Add egg beaten light and butter — beat 2 minutes using rotary beater. Turn into hissing-hot iron gem pans and bake 35 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr. Iron gem pans for popovers can be purchased at good hardwares.

Book Learning Doesn't Go Far in Helping Girls Get Husbands; Their Heels And Looks Need Education As Well As Their Brains

THE trouble with educating a girl is that she needs not only the higher education, but the middle education, and also the lowdown on how to catch a husband. For what does it avail a maiden to be able to speak the dead languages if she cannot chatter in modernese with the Boy Friend; or to be able to write M.A. after her name if she is never called MA?

The education of a boy is a comparatively simple thing. You train him to be a lawyer, or a doctor, or a bond salesman, or a carpenter, and, if his schooling takes there he is. Sitting pretty on top of the world. Nobody expects him to be Robert Taylor, or an exemplar of what the best-dressed men are wearing, or to make his own clothes, or do his own plumbing.

But with a girl it is different. Book larnin' doesn't take the place of looks with her. College degrees get her no dates. Phi Beta keys don't unlock the doors of good times. Higher mathematics do not teach her how to attract men. Skill in the fine art of being a woman is no part of her formal education, yet she needs to have that at her fingertips just as much as she knows how to read and write.

Indeed, for some inexplicable reason, feminine intelligence and charm have been popularly believed to be incompatible. We have even coined a phrase to express it and we speak of the beautiful but dumb. We never expect blue-stocking ladies to have the seams of their stockings straight in the back, or to look like anything except a bundle that Mother tied up. While we deplore that poor dear Susie, who took all the prizes at school, never learned how to comb her hair, or to dance without stepping on her partner's feet, we have felt that it was just because, somehow, feminine brains and the social amenities did not mix. And that nothing could be done about it.

But it appears that something can be done about it. Glory be! The president of Stephens College, one of the largest girls' schools in the country, sat down and took stock of what the average woman needs in her profession of being a woman, and he decided that it was just as important for her to cultivate her looks and personality as it was her mind. He couldn't see that there was any percentages in a girl being a wallflower when she might just as well be a stepper-out if she only knew how to do it. So he began educating his girls' heels as well as their heads.

In addition to his staff of highbrowed teachers he hired experts who taught the girls how to be beautiful though homely; how to acquire stringbean figures and improve their complexions by diet and exercise; how to dress so as to make the best of their good points and camouflage their defects; how to put on make-up so it would look glamorous instead of like painted-up barn doors; how to walk and sit and stand and dance.

And the result has been to transform a horde of nondescript, ignorant girls into sophisticates, and to save many of them from a fate as cruel as death to a woman—that of being doomed to always sit on the sidelines and being overlooked, while other girls get all the fun and snare all the husbands.

Now that is my idea of a real college for girls. Give them all of the classical education they crave, but teach them also some of the things that women really need to know and on which their happiness and success in life depends. Teach them how to be easy on the eyes and to make the most of such pulchritude as they possess. Teach them how to dress, how to dance, how to play games so they will not be misfits in any company. Teach them how to carry on an easy and gay conversation and how to show interest and enthusiasm in people and things whether they are really crazy about them or not.

Teach them how to be gracious and charming in their manners so that they may make friends for themselves and their husbands wherever they go. Teach them how to cook and make a comfortable home and how to run a budget so they can get the most out of the money they spend. Teach them how to be good mothers and, above all, teach them how to handle the men to whom they are married with tact and discretion and tenderness and humor so that they can avoid messy divorces and scandal.

Women sin oftener through ignorance than through intent. It is stupidity that makes wives nag and slump and get so absorbed in their children they let other women steal their husbands away from them. And the remedy for this is schools such as the one I have described, where women are taught some of the things they ought to know, and don't.

DEAR MISS DIX—I went to a fortune-teller last night and she told me that within a year both my father and mother would die. Do you think I should put any belief in her predictions? Father is in fine health and the more I look at him I cannot believe that he is about to pass away, but I am a nervous wreck after hearing such news.

MAE.

ANSWER:

Nobody can foresee the future, and you are foolish to waste your money on fortune-tellers, or put any faith in their predictions. For proof of this consider the fact that nearly all of these fake seers are poor, while if they had any of the powers they claim of telling what is going to happen they could make a fortune any day in the stock market.

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.

St. Paul's W.M.S. Hears Fine New Year Message

St. Paul's Women's Missionary Society held its first meeting of the year on Friday afternoon with Mrs. T. Carley, president, in the chair. In a brief message to the members, Mrs. Carley urged that they consider the mistakes of the past not as a chain but a guide — as "stepping stones to higher things." "It is our duty," she said, "to go forward in this new year and be ready for service. As Christian people happiness is not the highest purpose in life. God would have us pass on to others the message of the new life we have received. The risen Christ's first message to Mary was "Go and tell, this have I done for thee, what hast thou done for me?" This year is the twenty-fifth anniversary of our Society, and on each member depends its success. Considering conditions in other lands, we should feel grateful and ready for service to others less fortunate.'" In conclusion, a short poem was quoted, exhorting each to see "God's wil lto know; God's will to do; God's will to love."

A new year's message was given by the second vice-president, Mrs. Barr, appropriately entitled "Put It First." Passages from the New Testament were quoted to show why missionary work should come first. The message of the angels to the shepherds at the birth of Christ was missionary "To all people"; the first prayer Jesus taught was missionary, "Thy will be Done on Earth"; the first missionary Andrew first found his own brother, Simon Peter; the first message of the risen Christ was "Go to my Brethren"; the first apostolic sermon by Peter on the day of Pentecost was a missionary sermon; the reason of Christ's coming was missionary, and His last command missionary, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations." Like the mercy of the famous speech of Portia, the missionary work is twice blessed—it blesses the one who does it and the one who accepts it. The message concluded with a short poem, "Put It First," and a prayer for a blessing on the work of the church and the Women's Missionary Society at home and abroad.

The meeting was opened with the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past." As a result of a conference held recently of all the missionary groups within the church a committee of three ladies, Mrs. E. Howson, Mrs. D. T. Diplock, and Mrs. J. John was formed to deal with any problems which might arise in the girls' groups during the year; also a library is to be started with books for the study of missionary work, with Mrs. O. M. Steer in charge.

The treasurer, Miss N. Davidson, reported the total of last year's givings, which were entirely free-will offerings, amounting to $900, which has since been augmented by a gift of $100, thus bringing it up to the allocation of $1,000.

A solo, "Beside Still Waters" was sung by Mrs. L. Mitchell, with accompaniment by Mrs. Diplock. The meeting closed with the singing of "O, God of Bethel" and the Benediction.

Do You Know?

When you are feeling limp and tired and it is necessary to tone up the tints for a dance or party, salt will be found most beneficial? Wash the face in water to which has been added a pinch of salt, dry gently, and then dip the fingers in cold water in which a half teaspoon of salt is dissolved. Tap the cheeks with the finger tips, using a sort of firm staccato motion.

✧ ✧ ✧

A good remedy for a harsh skin can be prepared from barley? One tablespoon barley is placed in a jug and three pints boiling water poured over it and left to stand for five hours, when the water should be strained off through fine what muslin. This water may be used frequently to bathe the skin.

✧ ✧ ✧

An excellent toilet water can be prepared with honey? It is made by putting two tablespoons honey and one teaspoon glycerine in a china vessel placed in a pan of hot water. When the honey is melted it must be well stirred with the glycerine, and then about one-half cup water gradually added, stirring well all the time. Finally the preparation must be made up to one pint. This water may be used at any time to bathe the skin.

Family Heirlooms Are Used During Ceremony

During an interesting ceremony on Friday afternoon, January 13, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Mason, Lakefield, their small daughter Yvonne and her little cousin, Thomas, son of Mrs. Mason's sister, Mrs. George Fredericks, were christened by Rev. G Kelly of Regent Street United Church from a high glass vessel 150 years old. The vessel has been used for the same purpose for four generations, and has been handed down to the eldest daughter of each generation.

Following the christening, tea was served from a tea set given to a great-grandmother on her golden wedding anniversary, and the glass plate on which sandwiches were served is also an heirloom now used by the third generation, and has the year 1837 stamped in the glass. The dishes are in the home of Mrs. W. D. Ruttle, and will continue to be handed down through the years.

Would Hitler Help Him?

If Premier Chamberlain did not secure much by reason of his visit with Mussolini in Rome it is certain Mussolini is in the same position.

It has not been openly stated but it is quite correct that Mussolini was left standing on the side-lines during the recent meeting at Munich. It was Hitler who gained there because it was Hitler who was asked for the most. The man from Italy was merely used as one who would second the Hitler motion.

When Chamberlain went to Rome he was not making a last-effort trip such as he was when he arrived at Munich. A good deal has happened since Munich and although Premier Chamberlain remains the same peace-loving Englishman, he had nothing in his bag to give away. On his way to Rome the British premier stopped at Paris and there he was informed that the French people had no desire to have Chamberlain act as mediator for them with Mussolini. They would attend to that affair for themselves.

So the conversations at Rome might have been rather guarded and a trifle strained. Chamberlain knew well enough that Mussolini would report everything which was said to Hitler, and Mussolini would be aware that Chamberlain would very likely tell Daladier of France all that passed at the Italian capital.

So France and Italy are left where they were and are to settle their differences about colonial possessions, and we doubt very much whether Hitler is at all keen to go to the assistance of Mussolini. He has plenty on his hands at home and farther east, and it is also a fact which the German people have not forgotten that Italy deserted them in the last war when they needed help. That trip to Rome leaves little settled. But one might probably hazard the guess that Mussolini might have been more outspoken in his demands if he were at all certain he was going to have the support of Hitler in securing them.

It Is Rather Overdone

The session of parliament is at the moment a young thing, but already there have been questions advanced asking for information on a number of subjects. A member is quite within his rights in so doing but it is very plain that much of the information could be secured if the member simply took the trouble to go and ask for it at the proper place.

During the last session of parliament Hon. R. B. Bennett made a request for the production of all contracts of $5,000 and over entered into by the National Defence Department since April 1 of 1937. That information is now ready but Mr. Bennett is not on hand to receive it. In the gathering together of this array we read that department officials were kept busy for many months, and thousands of typewritten sheets and blue prints are included in the assortment.

If all that time—many months—was used in gathering together this information, we take it that the cost must have been considerable. Perhaps answering questions and digging up information keeps people busy at Ottawa and provides employment. But it is also plain enough that the privilege of asking for information is grossly overdone, and it is also apparent that many questions are asked in the hope that the answer will be such that it can be turned to some advantage by the individual who asked the question.

In Kingston On Sunday

Kingston is included in the list of places where the King and Queen will stop. The members of parliament for the riding was bright and early with his request for consideration, and it appears he was successful. Only one thing to bother the city now—the visit there is on May 21, and that is Sunday. There is also another little sore spot, and that is because the provincial secretary has written telling the folk how they had better attend to the Sunday visit. Their Majesties can attend church service at the Royal Military College; they cannot be expected to enter the city hall and the day must be free from official engagements. So the provincial secretary appears to have settled affairs, and the Kingston officials are inclined to believe they have some right to say how they shall attend to matters in their own bailiwick.

One might take it for granted that officials in Kingston could be well trusted to look after the visitors on a Sunday visit, and to have the program partly laid out for them in advance is not much help. A bit confusing unless one preferred to use that other word—ambiguous.

He Sounds Bored

Permanent members of the Press Gallery at Ottawa are not disturbed by all the frills attached to the opening of a session of parliament. They have seen it so often that the novelty has worn off. Which may have been the reason why one of them wrote: "There was the familiar bowing and scraping. The same scale of brilliancy was maintained as it always is regardless of whether times are good or bad or the weather fine or strong."

It is quite correct to say that an opening of parliament does not reflect what is going on in the rest of the country. If the people were hard up generally that condition would not be reflected at our federal capital on the day of the state opening. The Windsor uniform would still be the Windsor uniform and the silk breeches would continue to be made at that material.

And yet in all the formality there is possibly some good purpose being served. Public money is not being spent to any great extent for all the show. The ladies go there well gowned indeed—and expensively—and that puts money in circulation. It would not do to open parliament by having some person strike a gavel on a table and call the meeting to order. It would cease to be parliament. Certain of the events of opening day show in their own way the supremacy of the elected representatives of the people and so on. But it is easy to understand how one who has seen the same thing done at the opening of a good many parliaments might be inclined to write that once again there was the familiar bowing and scraping and a brilliancy which is maintained regardless of good times or poor seasons in the country outside Ottawa.

Governments Take Most

Colonel Jacob Ruppert is dead, and possibly he was known to most people as owner of the New York Yankees, winner of three consecutive world's baseball series. He made money out of sport, out of buildings and beer. A great deal of it.

This is a world of dollars and cents, and the same day that the Colonel's death was announced other writers were filling up space with calculations of what the various governments would take out of the fortune before the heirs were allowed to lay hands on the balance.

There seems to be agreement that Col. Ruppert was worth at least $70,000,000, and some even go beyond that figure. But the 70 is the basis of present calculations. The Federal Treasury department will collect 32 of the first 50 millions, net, and 70 per cent. of all over that amount, or a total of approximately $46,000,000.

The State inheritance tax laws provide, after comparatively small exemptions, for a tax of 20 per cent. of the amount by which the estate exceeds $10,100,000, which would mean a tax of $11,980,000.

So basing the estate on $70,000,000, the total which Federal and State taxing departments will take from it amounts to $57,980,000, and the amount which will be available for distribution to heirs will be $12,020,000.

That system has become quite general in many countries. The late Col. Ruppert would undoubtedly have paid an enormous sum annually by way of income and other taxes, and then when he is through with his days here the governments are taking exactly 82.8 per cent. of the total amount. It is one certain way of doing two things, (1) providing revenue for a government by taking it from a place where there is much of it, and (2) dissipating hereditary wealth of great volume which is one way of helping to keep the world on an even keel.

Not Sufficient Reason

George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail, was informed he could not deliver a radio address over the Canadian Broadcasting all-Canada chain. An alternative course was taken by which electrical transcription is used over 19 stations while Mr. McCullagh speaks personally over but one. The Toronto publisher some weeks ago was advocating the disciplining of democracy in the editorial columns of his paper, and now that such discipline has been applied he does not like it. And we can see no good reason why he should.

The reason advanced from Ottawa is that Mr. McCullagh in his series of addresses was going to express opinions. Well, one can listen to the radio on a Sunday and hear expressions of opinion about floor wax, coffee, tooth paste and what not in the way of advertising, so that weakens the claim for ruling out the opinions of a responsible Canadian citizen. The copy of the McCullagh address was prepared in advance and was ready for submission to the Broadcasting Corporation for censorship or approval, so if there was anything wrong with the opinions it would have been known in advance.

Another reason advanced is that "it is impossible to permit everyone to broadcast and we cannot confine such a privilege to the wealthy. We can't let a man with $10,000 buy up time to attack "a man who has nothing." That kind of argument hardly holds water. The censorship rights of the Broadcasting Corporation would have dealt with any attack on "a man who has nothing," and there is little weight in the talk about a man with money being able to buy up time. If any man desires to present his views to the public he has to spend money to do so. He can go and hire a hall, but he would have to pay for it; he can get out pamphlets and mail them around, but he would have to pay for the printing and postage; he could buy a page in a newspaper or many newspapers, but he would have to pay for that. And yet all these avenues of expression would be open to him as long as he recognized the legal and reasonable rights of free speech.

The known fact that a man desires to express opinions is not a sufficient barrier to radio addresses, neither is the fact that he is able and willing to pay for them.

Have We Lost Interest?

Professor K. W. Taylor of McMaster University said something about the East and the West of Canada which is worth more than a passing thought. He believes thoroughly in the national idea for the Dominion, but his fear about it being a difficult thing to maintain was all placed in the claim that Ontario and Quebec were beginning to "lose interest" in the West.

These two provinces had proceeded on a way of their own which had little in common with the West. They were depending more on pulpwood and minerals for their wealth, and the fact that people in the West were depending largely on grain had little interest for the East.

That's fair enough question — is Ontario for instance as much interested in the West as it was 25 or 35 years ago? Our own feeling is that it is not. Time was when many of the townships of the older portions of Ontario were sending out many of their young men to take up land in the West, and many others were wondering if they should not do the same thing. Then there were the annual harvest excursions and hundreds of young men went to the West. All that East to West movement created an interest in the country, but it has stopped dead still and we have nothing else to take its place. Our young farmers are no longer seeking land there and our young men are no longer going out to help with the harvest. So contact that way has been eliminated. In Ontario we are looking for our wealth in one direction, and in the West they go at it another way. The McMaster man touched on something which is real and not at all desirable.

NOTE AND COMMENT

People don't seem to mind getting killed by motor cars, but they dislike the idea of going off to war.

Several gangsters have been shot in recent weeks because it was claimed they knew too much, but we are certain the general danger list from that cause will not be extensive.

William Akins was appointed constable, town hall caretaker, assessor, sanitary inspector and weed inspector of Havelock, and at the same meeting the new appointee was granted a month's leave of absence. Perhaps that will give him time to draw up a working schedule showing how best to apportion a certain time each day to his respective duties.

CONCESSION TEN

(By A.R.K.)

¶ When I lived on Concession Ten, there were no beauty parlors then, like what there are today; and those who were decreed by fate, to have their hair grow very straight, they let it stay that way.

¶ And if upon a lady's head, the hair was planted thick and red, that's just how it was made; no matter then how old she grew, or what she might be passing through, it turned no other shade.

¶ And when the ladies then got dressed, desiring too to look their best, in presence of the throngs; they piled their own abundant hair, looked after stray bits here and there, and used the curling tons.

¶ Nor did they change their color then, when I lived on Concession Ten, nor had tints by the scores; at morning they'd a healthy bloom, they had it too at night and noon, they got it out-of-doors.

¶ The finger nails weren't painted then, when I lived on Concession Ten, they were not red or blue; they weren't much sold on stylish laws. I guess perhaps it was because—they'd other things to do.

Recent Facts About Canada

It is a far cry from the cocoon which the tiny silkworm so carefully spins in the trays of the Japanese farmer to the stocking bag of the Canadian miss, but still further is the trip these delicate strands of silk must take when they go through mills in Canada and are sent to delight the fastidious in England, South Africa, or New zealand, for example.

Fifteen years ago there were few in Canada who could afford the luxury of silk stockings at $3.00 a pair. Canadian mills started to make them then, and the growth of this new branch of the textile industry is a romance of the application of the inborn skill and dexterity of Canadian textile workers to the making of a better stocking within the reach of all. What was then a luxury, produced in small quantity at a high price, has now been made an adornment which Canadian women buy at 75 cents or less and insist is a necessity. When it is remembered that in 1926 Canada made only about 200,000 dozens of silk stockings the present output is amazing. The Canadian production in 1936 was 2,347,000 dozen pairs which is over 56 million stockings.

No one has yet found a stocking which will take the place of the real silk product made from the infinitely fine strands which the silkworm believes are to be his own comfortable little nest. Canadian mills turn these tiny filaments into a flattering sheath for the most shapely limb, and do it so well that their products are known and appreciated the world over. Last year Canadian silk stockings were sold to over 30 countries, the list of which reads like a Cook's Tour of every continent. Exports in 1937 were 487,000 dozen pairs (over 11 million stockings), which means that the stocking purchased in every corner of the globe helped to provide employment for the concentrated ability of Canadian textile craftsmen in turning out stockings to please not only the discriminating "la Canadienne" but the dusky miss of India or Egypt.

KING'S PRIVY COUNCIL

WHEN KING GEORGE of Canada visits his North America domain next summer, we are told that he will preside over the first full meeting of the Privy Council ever held in Ottawa. Conservatives and Liberals, bearded old men and active young Cabinet ministers will sit down together to take counsel, but the issues discussed will be non-controversial.

Privy Councillors are entitled to the prefix "Honourable." There are ninety at present and the senior member is the distinguished Sir William Mulock who recently retired from the Ontario bench. He was a Cabinet minister in the Laurier administration; he became a Privy Councillor in 1896, forty-two years ago. He will be 95 years of age on January 19.

Following him in seniority is Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, who is 85. He also was a member of the Laurier Cabinet, but he was not appointed until 1902. Others of the elder statesmen by seniority are: Sir Allen Aylesworth, 1905; RT. Hon. George P. Graham, 1907; Senator Raoul Dandurand, 1909; RT. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, 1909.

SCHOOLING COUNTS

For the first time in the Canadian Census, an inquiry on the number of years at school appeared on the Population Schedule of the 1936 Census of the Prairie Provinces. Interest in the educational status of the gainfully occupied population has resulted in the publication of a census bulletin giving the occupations of the people in the provinces according to the number of years at school, by sex and broad age groups.

The figure show that persons with less than a high school education are found chiefly in agricultural pursuits and in semi-skilled and unskilled occupations. Clerical and kindred workers and skilled artisans represent a larger proportion of persons having attended school from nine to twelve years, or roughly with a high school education. Those with thirteen years or more of schooling, or, in the main, a college education, are engaged largely in professional, commercial and clerical pursuits, though the numbers in agricultural and in semi-skilled and unskilled occupations are appreciable.

For males almost two-thirds reported less than nine-years' schooling or generally less than a high school education. Only about two-fifths of the females fell in the same educational class. The chief reason for this difference is the large number of males in primary occupations, especially agricultural, with short periods of school life. Age seems to be also a factor, the length of school life being longer for both sexes in the younger age groups than in the older.

DESERVED TO LOSE.

Oshawa, the scene of the somewhat inglorious strike inaugurated by the Committee for Industrial Organization a year or so ago, administered an emphatic defeat to the attempt of Labor candidates to dominate the City Council and the Board of Education. The representatives of Labor have just as much right to offer themselves for public office as any other class of citizens, but they should do so as citizens, and not as representatives of a class.

SPORT VS. CRIME.

Juvenile crime in Lethbridge has diminished perceptibly. This year there have been only 20 juveniles in court so far as against 58 last year. This, we have no hesitation in saying, is greatly due to the encouragement given boys by the facilities provided by community play-grounds and skating rinks and the interest taken in junior hockey by the Junior Hockey Association, the executive of which is composed of adults.—Lethbridge Herald.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S MISSION

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Mr. Chamberlain's mission to the various rulers of Europe is one of the greatest ever undertaken by a prime-minister of Britain. Instead of standing off and talking at long range, a policy almost sure to make "confusion worse confounded" a heart-to-heart talk clears up the danger problems if anything can do so. It is not to be expected that Britain will gain everything that the most ardent and often the most unreasoning Briton hopes for.

All life, especially international life, is made up of give-and-take not all give and certainly not all take. If Mr. Chamberlain establishes a reasonabe compromise and both Mussolini and Hitler have committed themselves to that policy, he will have accomplished something of the first magnitude and something that will form a basis for compromise instead of war, for the future which is surely what the world needs.

ALSO PUZZLED

Editor Examiner:

Sir,— After reading "Puzzled's" ideas on the working man's situation, I would like to voice mine.

My husband is a first class carpenter. Yet instead of being able to obtain a job, the Globe Construction Co. has been allowed to bring in outside carpenters, even to dismissing local help. Now just why local workers are forced to lose their self respect and have to ask for relief, instead of securing work is beyond my idea of fair play. This Construction Co. can even hire outside laborers, while our own single men must walk around, doing nothing. Most assuredly local monies will be spent to keep this theatre going, thus paying an outside contractor. They in turn take the money elsewhere.

Why does our Council not concern itself with "Charity begining at home". See to it that our own men get the chance they deserve. Ninety-nine out of one hundred hates relief, yet because the outsider gets what we should have, we must pay for it.

See that something is done toward fair play.

YOUTH'S PROBLEMS

Editor Examiner:

Sir:—I wonder what is to become of the young men and women of today? It seems that there is no place left in the employment field at all. Every door seems closed to them when they try to improve themselves. Some of our people have never worked since they left school. The parents do their part in bringing them up, and when the time comes for the older folks to take life a bit easy, they still have to keep the young people, because this generation is denied the right to make a decent living. When the unemployed protest and demonstrate they are called agitators and reds. Well I always give credit to the ones that kick for trying to improve themselves. Make the rounds of most of the factories and you see droves of young people turned away with the same old answer "No help wanted", and our present government is not doing a single thing to help it. Nobody wants this relief at all; what they want is work at decent wages.

We need a government like New Zealand which is the best country in the world to-day for social legislation and the most prosperous and because they have a labor government.

It will take a while but there are definite signs that the people in this country are getting more and more labor-minded, but these are people who are working, who are indifferent because they think their jobs are secure, but they might be the ones who will be out of work to-morrow.

I noticed in the paper the complaints of men, about outside men working on a local construction job. Well that situation is not new in Peterborough. I know that there are all kinds of outside men in our factories working while our own young folks are out of work. I think our own people come first. It's up to the city officials to investigate these conditions and correct them, because it would help to lighten the relief load.

GETTING A START

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I read some days ago an article in your paper about a young man who considered he was not being fairly dealt with when he was offered $8 per week to go to work at something where he had not had any previous training or experience. I noticed too that several correspondents had dealt with this same thing and for the most part they do not seem to agree that your reasoning was right.

For my part I agree with you although it is difficult to get some of out young people to see it that way. I am under the impression that the amount of schooling which some of our boys have been receiving in recent years has made them see things in a wrong light. They are staying at school longer than they used to because there has not been much opportunity for many of them starting to work in factories or places of business, and the farther they go in school gives them a sort of assurance that they should be able to start farther up the ladder than the boys who had not so much education. I know that is the case because I have sons and daughters of my own.

The trouble with a good deal of our secondary education is that it fools those who depend on it too much. It seems to produce in them the feeling that they know a good deal. In some ways they may, and many of them have received a far better education than their parents. But what their failure is comes when they do not realize that what they know may have little enough bearing on the work or business of the firm or individual for whom they go to work. When they go into a business it may be the boy who had only a year or so in high school is as useful to the employer as the one who has honor matriculation because the person starting to work there has got to start learning things he was never taught at school if he is going to be useful to the person engaging him.

I think that young man who had a chance at $8 a week to learn something was wrong in deciding the pay was too little. The big point was that he had before him a chance to work, a chance to learn something and a chance to earn $8 per week and when he had learned the business or trade then he would make more. Getting a start is not to be laughed at these days. I am not excusing low wages where higher ones are being earned, but I am saying that a young man who has a chance to "get going" right now ought to take it. There are plenty of young fellows "on the road" who would jump at a chance like that.

• How Guerilla Warfare Goes On

SIAN, China — My first sample of guerilla power came at Paoting, 90 miles south of peiping. I arrived there at the zero hour of a guerilla attack. For two days, says an Associated Press writer, I took refuge inside the locked city gates while Chinese farmers kept up a sporadic fire at the Japanese guards on the medieval walls. At night Chinese burrowed under the city gate, emerged behind the Japanese sentries and killed a score of guards sleeping in the gate tower.

Day and night the Japanese fired machine-guns and artillery blindly at apparently empty wheat fields where the guerillas were hidden. But the garrison was terrorized, and no Japanese ventured from the city. Airplanes came from Tientsin, but found no visible targets to bomb. Railroad tracks to the city had been torn up and one military train derailed. Japan's modern weapons were useless against so intangible a foe.

THE GUERILLAS cannot recapture the large cities, but by relentless attrition they hope to wear down Japanese power in a prolonged war. Their man power is practically unlimited, for the population of their territory exceeds 45 million. Local guerilla headquarters are linked by telephone or radio with a central headquarters. Local food supplies are more than ample. Village arsenals are producing broadswords, grenades and rifle ammunition sufficient for constant sniping and surprise attacks.

Shortly after the attack on Paoting, I slipped out through the Japanese lines on a bicycle flying the American flag. I had not gone more than five miles when a squad of Chinese leaped from their hiding place and blocked the way. They were clad in cotton uniforms, light green to match the summer crops, and were armed with home-made hand grenades. Satisfied that I was an American newspaper man, they took me to their headquarters 45 miles away. Crowds of farmers greeted us at every village. Every man, woman and child was wearing an arm band to indicate membership in a mass organization which feeds and clothes the guerillas. Twice we passed guerilla units of 200 to 300 men, singing as they moved up to the railroads for raids on Japanese garrisons. The majority of them seemed to be of the age of American high school and college students, thin but wiry, poorly dressed and poorly armed, but with one insuperable asset, their reckless enthusiasm.

GERMANS ARE COWED.

MANY PEOPLE appear to think that Germany stands as a unit behind Herr Hitler. It does not. Any person who will exercise a little common sense will see that it could not. One-third of the German people are Catholics—does anyone suppose that the Catholics of Germany stand behind the Fuehrer? Does anyone suppose that the Free Masons, whose lodges have been dissolved, are not resentful, or that the members of the trades unions, which have also been dissolved, are filled with a spirit of sweet contentment and peace? Or that the millions of German socialists and democrats have changed their creeds? Or that the Lutherans who see their pastors in jail cry "Heil Hitler!" from their hearts? The truth unquestionably is that Germany is seething with a discontent that it dare not manifest. It is known now that over 1,700 lives were taken in the famous Hitler Blood Purge, and that nearly all of these belonged to Germans moving in the highest circles of society.

Germany is cowed, just as Russia is cowed, and just as many a nation of the past has been cowed, because the dictator has the whip hand. It is not an easy thing to get rid of a dictator who has bayonets behind him to enforce his will. But Herr Hitler would do well to bear in mind what Talleyrand told Napoleon in regard to this weapon. "Sire," said Talleyrand, "a man can do everything with bayonets except sit on them." Herr Hitler is virtually asking the people whom he rules to sit on bayonets.—(The Argonaut)

WHO WAS GRANT?

——The custodian of Grant's tomb says he has visitors from Canada and Europe who come because the monument is one of the sights but who have never heard of General Grant. The surprise is that it is not the other way about. Foreign tourists as a rule have a guide book or listen to a guide, but there should be by now a good many Americans educated in the new history, to whom the name of U. S. Grant means little or nothing.

We have in mind the new history in which economics is everything and names and dates are nothing.

Younger generations still may carry around the notion that the tomb on Riverside Drive is a monument to the man who finances most of the W.P.A. projects. They read every day in the headlines about U. S. Grant for Postoffice or Swimming Pool built by U. S. Grant.—New York Times.

Millbrook Horticulturalists Planted 600 Trees In 1938

MILLBROOK, Jan. 16—Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke, president of the local Horticultural Society for the past year, took the chair for the opening business period at the annual meeting held in the town hall on Thursday evening with a fair representation of members in attendance.

Covering the year's activities, the president reported that twelve red maples had been purchased and planted at suitable points; evergreens placed at the cenotaph; two dozen boxes of annuals set out in beds on the main street; 600 trees secured from the Government Reforestation Station at Orono, and distributed to rural schools for cultivation; one of these trees was also given to each member for individual planting along with their premiums.

The society took a junior team to the flower show at Newcastle, on August 12, the young folk bringing home the handsome trophy, while individual members of senior standing won a number of the prizes offered.

The secretary read a letter from J. F. Clarke, of the Horticultural Department, Toronto, announcing he will come here in April to lecture on "Trees and Roses." The secretary also noted that the society had 95 members in 1938, and through the year had paid out $191.62, of which $116.00 had been spent for seeds and plants; the balance on hand is $44.93.

H. A. Kerr presided for the election of officers, the list including: President, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke; vice-presidents, Miss Josie Sutton and P. I. Bentley; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. G. F. Harrington; directors, Mrs. Ross Edmunds, T. W. McCamus, Mrs. J. H. McKnight, J. M. Armstrong and Miss M. E. Needham.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid knocked at the door of the little nut-shell cottage, and the next minute a tiny head looked out at the window. It was their friend, Tom Thumb.

"Oh! how do you do!" Tom exclaimed brightly to the two shadows. "Come into my house." He hurried to open the door. But the shadows hesitated.

"Your house is so tiny," Hanid said.

"It will be awfully crowded if we come in," added her brother.

"Nonsense," said Tom. "My house is big enough for everyone. Just come in and you'll see. Of course," he put in the next moment, "it would be a good idea if you made yourself a bit smaller first. Pull yourselves together a little."

Easy for Them.

So the shadows pulled themselves together a little (which shadows can easily do) and then walked inside Tom Thumb's house. They were about half the size of your little finger.

They found themselves in Tom Thumb's parlor. It had an arched ceiling, but the walls were straight. For Tom had separated the two parts of the nut-shell with the straight sides of a matchbox in between. There were little windows with bits of a blue handkerchief for curtains, a table made of a piece of smooth bark and three stools made of little daisies standing on their stems. But the most interesting thing was the fireplace, which was a very small clay-pipe with the bowl part at the bottom for the fire and the stem sticking up through the roof of the chimney.

"Your house is so tiny," Hanid said.

It's Comfortable.

"Why! It's a very comfortable house!" Hanid exclaimed in surprise.

"Of course it is," said Tom, very pleased with the compliment. "Lots of folks in Mother Goose-town, and in other towns as well, call me 'poor Tom Thumb.' They're sorry for me because I have to live in a nut-shell. But I'm not unhappy at all. You see," he added with a twinkle in his eye, "it doesn't matter how little the things are around you as long as you know how to enjoy them. I'm very proud of my little house. In fact, as far as I can see, it's a very big house to me."

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, is on her way to the Manor, the luxurious home of the wealthy Witherspoon family. She has agreed to take the place of her friend, Kitty, for a week, running the private salon of old Mrs. Witherspoon, an eccentric semi-invalid. The witherpsoons' chauffeur takes her to the Manor, where she meets the housekeeper and then the parlor maid.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER THREE

FARTHER DOWN the hall in the direction from which that weird laugh had come, a man was closing a door. He came toward us and passed by without noticing our presence. I caught a glimpse of a dark, lean face, fierce and frowning. The laughter, now short and staccato, followed him as he disappeared down the wide front stairs that led to the main part of the house. Again, I shivered. There was no mirth in that laughter—none at all!

"Old lady is in a tear again, I reckon!" Minnie covered her mouth with the back of her hand. She tittered foolishy. "Her an' Mr. Richard, they don't get along nohow!"

"Mr. Richard!" That would be Daphine Witherspoon's young brother. "Happy-Go-Lucky Rich," I had heard him called. But he had not looked happy-go-lucky there in the pale glow of the hall chandelier. I felt strangely apprehensive, remembering his fierce, frowning face.

"What? Oh—oh, sure I'm coming in." I came out of my trance. The room, Kitty's "suit," beckoned me warmly. There was a fire dancing on the hearth. I shrugged my shoulders. It was no business of mine, the family squabbles of the Witherspoons. No business of mine!

My first evening at the Manor began uneventfully enough. Hawkins, who looked exactly like Hollywood's conception of the perception of the perfect butler, served my supper promptly at seven. I ate heartily, notwithstanding such unaccustomed attention. When I had finished and he had gone away, closing the door gently behind him, I unpacked, distributed my few belongings, and examined in detail my new quarters.

Mrs. Witherspoon, as they say, had "done Kitty proud." The combined sitting-bedroom was elegantly decorated in pale blue and cream and boasted an adjoining bath in matching colors. The bath was delightful with its mirrored walls and sunken tub and its multi-colored tile floor. I remembered what Polly had said about "breaking into society," and I wondered how I was ever going to look Mrs. Rankin's two-by-four cubbyhole in the face after this place.

There is something about a bathroom like this that demoralizes the most virtuous of females. Before I knew what I was doing I had stripped and stepped into the tub. I am ashamed to admit it to this day, but I ran the water to my neck and added a half bottle of geranium bath salts and soaked myself for one solid hour. Perhaps I would be there yet, dreaming I was a Park avenue lady of leisure, if someone had not knocked loudly on the outer door. It was Mrs. Greely and she never batted an eye at my dripping, towel-clad figure.

"All settled I see," she said smiling through her teeth.

"Yes, thanks," I replied, feeling like a guilty schoolgirl before a governing board. "Will you come in?"

"For a moment, if you don't mind." She swished importantly past me. "If you wish to dress," she suggested delicately, "I shall be pleased to wait."

"Thanks," I repeated and grabbed my clothes from the bed.

"You had better get into your uniform, Miss Ritter. Mrs. Witherspoon will require your attention before retiring."

"Attention" I wondered if she thought I were a nurse or something.

"Mrs. Witherspoon always has a facial and night treatments before retiring." The housekeeper's tone rebuked me. Obviously it was my duty to perform the expected without comment.

"I see." I took a freshly starched apron from the top dresser drawer. "If you'll excuse me—" And I darted into the bathroom. When I reappeared Mrs. Greely's manner thawed slightly, though never in the seven days I was at the Manor did her dignity wholly desert her. The disturbance of household routine alone could agitate Mrs. Greely. She loved her spotless carpets, her shining windows and her gleaming, polished woodwork as a mother loves a child—this passion, maybe commendable, was irrational to one of my disorderly habits.

"I have here a list of tomorrow's appointments," she began as I approached and sat opposite her. "I thought it wise to explain the salon procedure beforehand, as tomorrow will be an exceptionally busy day."

"Will it?" Her stilted diction reduced me to syllables.

"Yes, indeed! Tomorrow night is the night of the grand ball!"

"Really?" I tried to appear properly impressed.

"It is a shame," she continued wagging her head, "a shame that Miss Wilson found it necessary to absent herself at this of all times. However," she eyed me doubtfully, "she insisted that you could be trusted."

"Let us hope so." She was not committing herself. "Now let me see—" She consulted a black leather notebook that lay open in her ample lap. "The salon opens at nine o'clock, sharp You will breakfast at eight in the housekeeper's dining room and be prepared to start the day's work at nine. Your first appointment tomorrow is with Miss Daphne Witherspoon, who requires a shampoo and a manicure. The other follows at regular intervals until one. At that time you may lunch below stairs or in your room. The appointments are resumed promptly at two and continued until five. Dinner is served at seven. Is that quite clear?".

"Quite."

"Very well. Your evenings, Miss Ritter, aside from the bedtime hour with Mrs. Witherspoon are free. She will require your presence from ten until eleven." She closed the notebook and returned it to a cunningly concealed pocket cut into her skirt. "If you like I will show you to the salon."

I said I would like, and we left the room and walked to the far end of the house. From behind closed doors came the faint murmur of voices and the sound of muffled laughter. They were cheering sounds. There was, after all, nothing alarming about the Manor. Men and women were dressing for the evening festivities, whatever they might be, and laughing and chattering with invisible companions as they did so.

"One moment, please!" Mrs. Greely came to an unexpected stop before a door at our left. "Mrs. Witherspoon expressed a desire to meet you." She rapped boldly.

Presently the door swung backward.

"Yes?" a voice said softly, and a tall, gaunt female with tight drawn hair and deep, sunken eyes stepped into the hallway and closed the door behind her.

"Yes?" she repeated and regarded me unblinkingly until I experienced the unpleasant sensation of stark nakedness though fully clothed. My fears returned fourfold. I felt my flesh literally crawling.

"Miss Ritter to see Mrs. Witherspoon," bluntly announced the housekeeper, and at her matter-of-fact and somewhat impatient tone I regained my normal perspective.

"Miss Ritter?" The woman moved so close to me that I could feel her hot, quick breath on my cheek. About her person was an odor of musk and dampness as though she had been put away for a long, long time in a dark and unused cellar.

"Yes—yes!" Mrs. Greely was becoming provoked. "This is Miss Ritter! She is to take Miss Wilson's place in the salon."

"Oh!" The woman glided backward. Without another word she reopened the door and closed it again behind her.

I glanced at my companion. She was staring blankly into space, her expression strangely baffling. I conquered my desire to speak and waited dumbly for the woman's return.

"Come, please!" and now the door was held for us to enter. We stepped into a room of utter blackness. For a moment panic gripped my being; then light flooded the blackness and a sitting room, richly furnished, sprang into view. It was empty save for ourselves and the somber-clad figure of the gaunt female.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, January 17

A FAIRLY active and progressive day is the augury based on the lunar transits. There are indictions of heightened energies and initiative, which are quite likely to arrest the attention of employers, superiors or others ready and willing to lend support for promotion of sound enterprises. However, there may be a minor change or disturbance and it would be well to keep a sharp lookout for treacherous, crafty or sinister schemes or designing persons.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very enterprising and productive year, with new matters under high initiative and arresting the interest of superiors, employers or others who may be found ready to assist in the promotion of meritorious propositions. However, there are hints of double dealing or other fraudulent or malific contacts, and there may be an unwelcome upset of plans or unlooked for disturbance. Keep a vigilant eye on all pitfalls.

A child born on this day will be enterprising, creative and practical and its sound talents may enlist the support of those in power, who may assist to success and position in life, possibly in politics or diplomacy.

First Locomotive Built in Canada West

In April, 1853, the first railway locomotive built in "Canada West" rolled spick and span out of the shops of James Goode in Toronto. Stage-coach days were numbered. The air was charged with the thrill of railroad enterprise.*

In 1847, six years earlier, the Canada Life issued its first policy. The Canada Life was then the only Canadian life insurance company—a distinction it held for almost 20 years.

For ninety-two years, through war and epidemic, through twelve major depressions, the Canada Life has met its obligations promptly and in full. Among the strongest of co-operative organizations, today its policyholders have well over $800,000,000 of insurance.

Clever Marmora Student Display Features Annual Parents' Night

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 16.— The annual parents' night was held by Marmora High school in the rooms of Marmora public school on Saturday evening, the invitation to parents and others interested being accepted by a large number of village and township residents.

Mr. E. A. Benny of the High school staff, assisted by students displayed various student projects, as well as an interesting assembly of physical experiments. Miss Mary Murray had the arrangement of Miss G. Quigley's work in art and construction work. Miss Murray succeeded Miss Quigley on the staff following the Christmas vacation.

The upper school, under the direction of Principal E. J. Gale, M.A., arranged a thirty foot pendulum which they suspended from the peak of the public school and let down through a carefully machined ring gear in a manhole in the ceiling. The pendulum wire in touching the interior surface of the ring gear picked up electrical energy and thereby the rotation of the earth was shown. The lower end of the pendulum was provided with a needle which traced a course across two sand ridges.

George Rice of the second form, gave an exhibition of "touch typing in twelve hours." He began his practices on the principal's typewriter on January 2 and spent one hour daily until the arrival of parents' night.

Third form pupils under Miss Pearl Wilson, B.A., very cleverly executed some sketches from Disraeli.

Boy students under direction of Mr. Gale, assisted by Miss Murray, held an interesting mock trial in which the killing of a beaver constituted the alleged crime.

Prior to the serving of lunch by the staff and High School Board, Joseph O'Neill, chairman of the Board, presented graduation diplomas to the following: Robert J. Gray, Ewart M. Haacke (Coronation student 1937), Marjorie B. Loveless, Wilfred McKeown, Mary O'Neill, Anne W. Paquet, Grace Prentice, Ronald M. Regan, Joyce L. Smith, Marion G. Vincent.

Opening Card Party.

The first card party of the New Year under auspices of the Sacred Heart congregation, was held in the Separate school on Friday evening with a good attendance. The prize winners at euchre were Joseph O'Neill and Mrs. J. Brawley, while the bridge prize went to Mr. E. D. O'Connor.

After cards, bingo and dancing were enjoyed. Music was furnished by Kay Doyle and Charlie Campion. Refreshments were served by the ladies in charge.

"I WAS SILLY TO TRUST ORDINARY SOAPS TO STOP 'B.O.'"

says Mildred Burns (Letter on our files)

DON'T wait for an embarrassing personal experience to teach you that no ordinary soap stops "B.O." as Lifebuoy does! . . . Make Lifebuoy bathing a habit! . . . Be confident you're safe from any likelihood of offending. Lifebuoy contains an exclusive purifying ingredient not in any other bath or toilet soap . . . It really stops "B.O." . . . That's one big "reason why" Lifebuoy is Canada's and America's favourite bath soap—with women, with men and children. Lifebuoy is a favourite for complexion care, too . . . Try it!

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, included the following 'This is life eternal,' says Jesus,—is, not shall be; and then he defines everlasting life as a present knowledge of his Father and of himself,—the knowledge of Love, Truth, and Life...The Scriptures say, 'Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God,' showing that Truth is the actual life of man; but mankind objects to making this teaching practical."

As A Man Drives So Does He live Declares W. G. Robertson, General Manager Of Motor League

Good driving is an instinctive expression of good living, and as a man drives so does he live, W. G. Robertson of Toronto, general manager of the Ontario Motor League told an audience at George Street United Church Open Forum on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Robertson took as his topic, "This Motor Age" and one of the highlights of his speech was an earnest appeal to everyone to unite in a campaign of accident prevention so that the annual staggering traffic toll may be reduced "The direct responsibility of safety lies with the individual, a motorist must remember at all times that human values come first and concentrate on his driving. In three quarters of the traffic fatalities pedestrians have died, and the evidence has shown the auto driver had little chance of preventing the accident in the majority of the tragedies."'

Controls The Driver

It is more difficult to restrain the negligent pedestrian because the law does not provide a penalty, but the Highway Traffic Act controls the car driver, he said, and explained that while it is a safety measure and the usual practise for pedestrians to walk facing oncoming traffic, nevertheless this is not a law in Ontario.

He urged that a campaign of accident prevention be continued and suggested that the education work should start in every home and school, because at some time or other everybody uses the highway. The publicity campaign waged by the metropolitan newspapers in Toronto during the last Yuletide season produced remarkable results, said the speaker, and he added similar efforts throughout the province would have the same worthwhile results.

In tracing the evolution of the motor vehicle from early times to its present advanced state, he began at the invention of the wheel which he described as one of the earliest and greatest of man's inventions. "Wheeled vehicles were travelling on paved roads when the early Roman Empire was in its heyday and in early times Rome, Assyria and Persia built beautiful highways of stone remains of which exist even today."

Little Progress For 2,000 Years.

Mr. Robertson said that 2000 years little progress was made in improving vehicles but in 1801 an inventor built a steam carriage and leading scientists of the day said he deserved hanging for bringing into existence the first high pressure steam engine. About this time Dr. Camuel Johnson forecast that aeroplanes would become a reality.

Two thousand years ago, Rome had one-way streets, sections where parking was regulated and laws forbidding furious driving of chariots on the thoroughfares.

In 1907 when the Ontario Motor League was formed, there were about 500 motor vehicles in Ontario; now ther are 707,000 and 8,000 of these are in Peterborough county. In quoting statistics of the motor industry he said 6,000,000 people are gainfully employed in the United States and Canada in the motor transport business, including taxi and bus drivers. There are over 45,000,000 automobiles in the world, and Canada stands fourth in the number of its people owning cars, being headed by the United States, Great Britain and France.

Canada and the United States interchange annually more motor travelling tourists than any other two countries in the world. There are approximately four and one half million United States cars which cross the international boundary line into Canada and about three quarter of a million Canadian motor cars visit the States. Twenty-six million car owners are within one day's drive of the Canadian border.

He described the car as a boon to mankind having ushered in an era of prosperity and comfort, but the only regrettable feature was the annual traffic toll of human lives, he said.

Alex Sollitt, president of the Peterborough Auto Club introduced Mr. Robertson to the audience and Charles Elliott was chairman of the meeting.

Sidley Risks Loss Of Estate Share

RACINE, Wis., Jan. 16.—(AP)—William Horlick Sidley risks loss of his share in the $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 estate of his mother, the late Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, in his contest of her last will.

County Judge J. Allan Simpson will open the hearing into the son's objections here next Tuesday and among the matters on which the judge must rule is a provision in the will nullifying the bequest to any beneficiary who attacks the document.

Young Sidley shares equally in the estate with W. Perkins Bull, Toronto barrister at whose home Mrs. Sidley died last July. Each is bequeathed $250,000 in cash and a third of the residuary estate.

The will was drawn less than three months before Mrs. Sidley's death.

Sidley objects to its probate on charges his mother was on unsound mind and influenced unduly when she signed the document.

Judge Simpson estimated the hearing would require four to six weeks, much of which time will be devoted to reading into the record depositions taken in Canada.

Truck Strikes Apsley Store

Duncan Brown, Apsley storekeeper thought his place had been hit by a tank at 7.30 o'clock this morning when a truck that skidded on the curve just outside the Brown dwelling and store ploughed right into the wall of the living quarters and shoved the piano that was there across the room, almost upsetting a stove.

Fortunately there was no one in the room at the time.

The truck, driven by Ashley Yates of Port Hope, went out of control on the curve, crashing through the steps of the Brown building and continuing its devastating career until it had penetrated the living room.

Yates escaped unhurt and his truck was not badly damaged. Most of the damage caused by the impact was sustained by the building so unceremoniously invaded.

Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton made the trip out to Apsley this morning to investigate the crash.

Two Are Charged With Theft Of Flour

As a result of complaints from the Dominion Stores and E. F. Mason that goods had been stolen from their stores in the market block, Officers Archie Menzies and C. J. McGillen arrested a number of men on the market square Saturday night and two of them were charged with theft before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning.

They were Joseph Johnston and Ivan Bolton of Buckhorn and they were charged with stealing a case of matches and 100 pounds of flour from the Dominion Stores and 200 pounds of sugar from E. F. Mason.

Both elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty and as neither one was ready to go on they were remanded until next Monday, with the understanding that there would be another remand then as W. J. Arthur would not be able to act for them on Monday.

Bail in each case was fixed at $500.

Two Dinner Dates On Same Day Will Give Rural Men Plenty Of After-Dinner Thought

They are not exactly complaining about it, but several farmers who have two dinner dates for Thursday this week were objecting to-day "that it never rains but it pours."

If these two prandial engagements had been spaced apart it would have been a highly satisfactory sequence, but to bang head on together, one at noon and the other in the evening, suggests an approaching fulness that is not to be sidestepped, although it could have spread out to serve for a couple of occasions.

The Thursday noon hour item is the annual dinner of the Holstein-Friesian Association who will have with them the cheese patrons of the county and another dairy organization or two. The dinner will be in the basement of Mark Street United church. Then in the evening the directors of the Peterboro Exhibition are foregathering around the festive board at the Empress Hotel to start the new year on the right foot for wiping out the last of that note at the bank. They have got it down from $8,500 to $3,500, and with another good solid August whack at it they believe they'll unload the debt entirely, and then start building up a surplus, maybe.

That period of increasing indebtedness was a testing time for the directors. Some of them began to worry a bit about the bank calling for payment, but they didn't back up from the obligation they had taken on And then when things were looking the worst they had been in years, with the depression aggravating the slump, the directors hit upon a new idea or two, and right there they turned the corner toward brighter prospects.

Now they are returning their thoughts to next August and that is mainly what the Thursday evening dinner is about.

600 Skaters Out On Open Air Rink

It is estimated that 600 people both young and old made use of the new skating rink at Jackson Park on Sunday afternoon, and the majority of the skaters were adults, many veterans who have not skated for years.

Noticed among the crowd were members of the City Council, bank managers, business executives and leaders in every walk of life with their wives. The crowd was not as large as a few weeks ago when the rink was first used and the skaters made a pretty picture in the woodland setting of the park.

Between 11 and 12 on Sunday morning, Orlie DeGraw and his wife had the rink all to themselves, but the crowd started to come before one o'clock and by two there were over 300 swinging around the large ice surface.

The unusual popularity of the Jackson Park rink on Sunday afternoon has given rise to speculation on whether or not the City Council will consider throwing open the eight free rinks in the city during Sunday afternoon from one to five.

Out For The Seaway

CANTON, N.Y., Jan 16—(AP).—The northern New York federation of chambers of commerce Saturday urged the state legislature to "repudiate" any proposal seeking to delay development of the St. Lawrence seaway. The group, representing a score of chambers of commerce in four counties along the Canadian frontier, met at St. Lawrence University.

Man Given 20 Days For Disturbing Peace

"This man just got out of jail a few days ago and he went back to the same place and started breaking up things again," Chief Constable Samuel Newhall explained in police court this morning after Bruce Sloan had pleaded guilty to creating a disturbance on Water street, the second time he has similarly pleaded.

"I don't know what is the matter with him," Chief Newhall stated.

Sloan told the magistrate in answer to the usual question that he had absolutely nothing to say.

Magistrate Langley sentenced Sloan to twenty days imprisonment, warning him that if he came back again on a similar charge he would receive a stiff sentence.

New Racket Is Being Successfully Worked On The Owners Of Vacuum Cleaners

A free service on vacuum cleaners racket is being successfully worked in this city it was reliably reported today, and many housewives have paid a house to house repair man as high as seven dollars for having their machine partially dismantled and polished up.

The man is said to approach the housewife without proper credentials and says his company has instituted a service plan, whereby the vacuum cleaner is inspected free, and if no new parts are required no charge is made. He has a kit of tools, and a few parts for cleaners in his kit. He does not offer to take the machine away and return it in good shape but does the work right in the house. Invariably he finds something wrong, and always makes a pretense of putting some new part in the machine. Actually all he does in clean the machine, polish it here and there and does not disturb any part of the mechanism that would interfere with it running properly.

Several eastern towns and villages have been covered by this glib salesman and an estimate by one well informed on how this man works indicates at least ninety per cent of those who permitted the mechanic to inspect their machines got nothing for their money. The other ten per cent had their machines given a hit or miss cleaning that the machines did not need.

Diamond Wedding Anniversary Observed By Omemee Couple

(By Staff Reporter).

OMEMEE, Jan. 16. — Believed by many residents to be the longest-married couple in all the history of Omemee, and certainly the longest at the present time, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Grandy on Sunday marked the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding. They have been residents of Omemee ever since their marriage.

Mrs. Grandy was born Maria Webster, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Webster of Mariposa. She married Samuel Grandy, a native of Omemee, in Oakwood in 1879. She is in her 80th year now; he is in his 83rd year.

Mr. Grandy was a grain merchant in the village for 45 years, retiring some 17 years ago. He can remember the time when Omemee was a much more flourishing community than it now is. Rapid means of transportation and smaller families have both taken their toll, and Omemee in consequence is not nearly the business place it used to be, nor is its population as large. When he started in business, and through most of his career, it was a centre of shopping for a large and good farming area. The method of carrying out the grain business did not change greatly during his near half century of work, Mr. Grandy said. "In those days we had no elevators of course," he said. "We used flat warehouses. The one here now was put up after I quit."

Mr. and Mrs. Grandy have earned an enviable reputation in the village. They are held in high regard by their fellow citizens and yesterday many of their neighbors came to their home to congratulate them and wish them many more years together. They have one daughter, Mrs. H. Fee of Peterborough.

Charged With Being Drunk Men Request Magistrate To Give Week's Adjournment

"Men who want to go into the beverage rooms and get drunk had better have enough money ready to pay their fines," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., said in police court this morning when the first of a number of individuals charged with being drunk pleaded not guilty and asked for an adjournment.

"I have been issuing warnings for months that these liquor cases must go ahead," continued the magistrate. "You will stand until the foot of the list until I see what these other men propose to do about it."

Number 2 in the list also pleaded not guilty and asked for an adjournment so he too was asked to wait.

The next man charged with drunkenness tried other tactics. He promptly pleaded guilty.

"This man was all ready to go ahead so I am going to give him the benefit of it," said the magistrate as he imposed a fine of $10 but reduced the costs to 75 cents and the alternative jail term to seven days.

The next offender who also pleaded guilty to a drunk charge got the same preferred treatment.

Finally the first two who had caused the warning from the bench were given adjournments until next Monday. One of them was on remand until that date on another case, anyway.

Third Offender Given 3 Months

Three months' imprisonment in the county jail was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning upon Frank Currie who pleaded guilty on a third offence charge of being drunk.

Currie who had pleaded not guilty on Saturday changed his plea this morning and admitted that he was drunk as charged on Friday, January 13, and also that he had been previously convicted on the same offence on December 14

"I am asking you for clemency, "I am asknig you for clemency, I want to have an operation," was all that he had to say to the Magistrate before sentence was imposed.

Pointing out that the penalty was not less than three months and not more than six months, Magistrate Langley gave Currie the minimum, asking him that if he needed an operation he should inform the jail physician of his condition.

Sharecroppers Shifted Into Tenting Camp

NEW MADRID, Mo., Jan. 16 (AP)—As highways were cleared of demonstrating sharecroppers, authorities turned today to a newly-established camp inside a spillway which was inundated during the floods two years ago.

Only one of the 13 large camps set up seven days ago along two major southeast Missouri highways in protest against a low economic status remained. State highway patrolmen expected to have the rest of the men, women and children moved by nightfall.

Nearly 500 Negroes were taken to the 40-acre spillway tract yesterday in state trucks and lost no time in setting up a new camp. Tents, mostly of quilts and blankets or old canvas, were pitched in rows, resembling the orderliness of an army camp.

Some of the sharecroppers, mostly white persons, returned to the farms where they previously had lived after landowners agreed to take them back.

1938 Fire Loss In Lakefield Said To Be $315

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 16.—Fire Chief Alan H. Clark, in presenting his annual report to the Lakefield Municipal Council, stated that during the year 1938 the Lakefield Volunteer Fire Brigade answered twenty-three silent alarms and four genera lalarms, making a total of twenty-seven calls. Of these, Truck No. 1 responded on twenty-six occasions, and Truck No. 2 five times only. There were 2,950 feet of hose laid; 450 feet of chemical hose laid; 294 feet of ladders raised; 90 gallons of chemical used and seven packages of kilsoot. Neither Foam nor Pyrene were used in 1938. The water pump was used 26 times. The total estimated fire loss was $315.

13th Annual Report.

"In presenting the 13th report of the Fire Department since I assumed command, I am pleased to show another small fire loss record," Fire Chief Clark stated.

"Fire prevention has been onstantly practised by the citizens, and the department has preached this subject through the press, the clergy and the schools. Inspections have been conducted in many cases with a view to eliminating hazardous conditions and many remedies have been applied. Regular inspections have been made of public buildings, schools, churches, Grove school, House of Refuge and the water tanks,"' Mr. Clark's report continued.

Prevention Patrols.

"Prevention patrols have been conducted at different periods and while this prase of our activities has received some adverse criticism, I firmly believe it to be one of the main factors in maintaining our low fire loss.

"Systematic training of the members of the department has been carried on each month," Mr. Clark continued, "and the results of these school sessions are readily apparent in the efficiency of the men on the line of duty. This is one of the most important of my duties as head of the department, and Lakefield has the reputation among fire officials and insurance officers, of maintaining one of the best trained volunteer departments in the province."

The alarm system has functioned in a satisfactory manner, with prompt and careful attention being given this part of the service.

"The question of fire insurance premiums was brought before your body last year, and to assist in furthering that objective, I prepared a report covering the past twelve years and showing all the facts and figures. I would strongly exhort you to take this matter up with the Canadian Fire Underwriters, because I firmly believe that with our fire record and efficient fighting services, Lakefield should receive special consideration from the underwriters. I would be happy to render any asisstance in my power in this matter."

In conclusion Fire Chief Clark expressed thanks to the Council, Press, Clergy, School Staffs, Merchants, Chief of Police and citizens in general for their support and cooperation and to the members of the Brigade for their loyalty and obedience.

A Ghastly Confession.

(By J. H. Burnham)

"The New Outlook," the organ of the United church, in its latest issue says: "It is an easy thing to say that the church has failed . . . but the significant thing is that the church admits the fact." This is the ghastly result of trying to found a church on "human reason" instead of God. Think of the damage it has done to the youth of Canada.

QUAKERS AND DOMINIONS IN FIRST-PLACE CITY CAGE TIE

St. Paul's Crew Beat Hecla For First Win

Quakers and Dominions fought their way to their second consecutive wins, to move into a first place dead-lock, while St. Paul's broke into the win column with a victory over Hecla 25-20 in Saturday night's Senior City League Basketball games at the Y.M.C.A. gym. Quakers fought neck and neck with C.G.E. through the first half and then out-scored their rivals in the last half to win out in the lowest scoring game of the year, while Dominions dropped in three points in the last three minutes of play to beat out St. John's.

St. Paul's had a slight margin in scoring in each half and lead at the midway mark 14-11. St. Paul's rallied near halftime and dropped in two baskets to give them a three point margin at the half, that they held to the end of the game. It was hard and fast all the way with numerous scoring chances, but few baskets. McArthur, McPherson and McIntyre were the winners' standouts, McArthur having 5 points, McPherson notching 8 and McIntyre starring defensively. Dougherty with 7 points and West with 5 were best for Hecla. The teams:

St. Paul's (25)—Centre, McArthur (5); forwards, Gemmel, Pulkinghorn; guards, McIntyre (2), Marsh (4); subs, McPherson (8), Thorburn (5).

QUAKERS COP IT

C.G.E. fought on even terms with Quakers in the low-scoring first half 4-all but Quakers had an 8-3 margin in the fast second half to win out 12-7. Edmondson and Broadley made two pointers for C.G.E. and Jakafby had a basket and Ward and Kingdon a free throw each in the initial half to account for the scoring. In the last 20 minutes, Ellis, Patterson and Gadd, coming into the game for the first time made 7 points to give Quakers their winning margin. It was a close, hard fought game from start to finish. Gunsolus, Ward and Kingdon starred for Quakers and Loucks and Cameron were best for the losers. The teams:

Quakers (12) — Centre, Jakafby (2); forwards Ward (1), Kingdon (1); guards, Gunsolus (1), Thomas; subs, Patterson (2), Ash, Ellis (3), Gadd (2), Galley.

DOMINIONS WIN

A basket and a free throw gave Dominions their second triumph in the dying moments of their game with St. John's. The losers had fought on almost even terms with Dominions through the first half and had pulled up even at 20-all with three minutes to play. Dyer and Csumrik were banished for fighting, and the last seconds of the game were wild and woolly. Csumrik made his free throw and Holmes and Dundas dropped in two-pointers for the winners, Gillespie scored for St. John's but it was not enough and Dominions clung to their margin to win out. Holmes, Dundas and Grose starred for the winners and Gillespie and Ascott were best for St. John's. The teams:

St. John's (22)—Craig (6); forwards, Taylor (3), Dyer (3); guards, Gillespie (6), Ascott; subs, Amys (2), Marshall (1), Clarke (1).

Dominions (25)—Centre, Hamil (5); forwards, Dundas (5), Holmes (5); guards, Grose (3), Rennie; subs, Wolstenholme (4); Csumrik (3), Weese, Hunter.

Referee—Curly Krug, umpire—Walter Ferris.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Lindsay Midgets are here tonight to play the Colts an O.H.A. junior joust in the Brock St. auditorium. Now it is a well-known fact from Lansdowne St. and points south to just above the ex-Auburn, and east from Lovers' Lane near the Liftlock to the boundary road, that Lindsay and local puck squads have been strong rivals since Hans und Fritz first appeared on the comic scene—and they haven't grown much since, eh? Oldtimers will chuckle when recalling the times they and the Petes had to dash from the rink (the old rink that met its just desserts in flames) and duck in the aisles of the train as hostile home citizens of Lindsay-on-the-Scugog playfully tossed boulders and things through the windows. And Lindsay teams fared little better here in the old days.

* * * * * *

Of course those days are gone forever, puck riots being out—forgetting for a moment the fans' riot on the ice here 'gainst the Fliers last year, two real riots in London this season, and a few minor outbreaks. But the old rivalry persists, and the Colts still smart—or maybe smarten up—when they recall the Lindsay win over 'em last year. The Midgets were outclassed and had no biz doing that, and Colts claim the memory will be wiped out halfway through tonight's tilt. We hope so, but can't forget that the packed Scugog squad this year will be in top form about now and maybe tougher to take than castor oil. It'll be a hard game, folks, and don't look for a soft win or a game of puss in the corner.

* * * * * *

Two Good Outfits

Bill Jackson is doub;tful if Dutch Pammett will be ready to return to the Colts before Friday. His lineup will be: Goal, Cournyea; defence, Wade and Ward; centre, Craig; wings, Foster and Stewart; subs, Howden, King, Parnell, McDonald and Williams. A right good squad of husky battlers. Lindsay lads are husky too, and full of bumpers. Red Creighton may referee, and Red can have no love for Lindsay—though no dislike for the hockey-minded folks there—when he recalls the last lacrosse tilt he played in that town. Dashing up the floor on a rush, Red felt a draft and slowed down—and found his pants following the inexorable law of gravity! The matter was rectified with no casualties. Yeah, we look for fun and fury and maybe a local win.

* * * * * *

Trenton Fliers are here Wednesday in a senior scrap. Not much is known of that gang this year, apart from the fact that they lost some good 1938 players, even as we did, and that they imported some good ones, even as we did, too. They dropped a 2-1 tilt early in the season to Belleville—but we lost 3-1 fairly recently—and then went on to win the VanHorne Cup in the Kingston serial later. They must have something, and fans can bank on a dandy battle when these two senior "B" ice outfits tangle on the local sheet. The R.C.A.F. bunch are a cocky crew—and most especially now with war talk common—and they love a puck reverse like a punch in the nose. The Petes plan to punch their noses plenty!

Col. Jake Ruppert

En passant, the late Col. Jake Ruppert, multi-millionaire brewer and owner of N'Yawk Yankees, was a decidedly hard loser. He would never watch the Yanks when they were trailing and finally had to give up going to games, owing to excitement. He bought a great championship team, purchased a strong farm system to feed it, and definitely declined to weaken the club in any way—in order to balance the loop up. In one of his memorable pre-season salary fights with Babe Ruth, when Babe demanded $80,000 for the season, Ruppert stuttered: "What! $80,000. Why, you must think I'm a millionaire!" And he was worth barely $70,000,000 then! Quite a gent, it would seem.

C.G.E. Shop Hockey League opened Saturday aft in the Brock before a fair-sized gathering of fans, three tilts being run off right smartly. Wiremen copped a 4-1 win over Refrig. Cabinets, Switchgear easily took an 8-1 chuckle over Test Dept., and Machinists mauled Fractionals to the tune of 7-4. Before the first fray, C. A. Salmonsen welcomed fans to the openers and expressed the hope of clean hockey in the league with no serious injuries. He officially opened the season, with Ian McRae and H. A. Cranfield doing a faceoff, and E. G. Hardie as ceremonial referee. The loop will run three games each Saturday.

The Crying Towels

Quinte crew went home crying about rough play after Friday's fracas here, with Eddie Thomas saying any team that roughs the Redmen will get its share before the schedule ends. They are, says the Quinte scribe (who was not here), "firmly convinced that the high sticks of Tompkins and Kingdon resulted in Bentley getting a broken nose and Clayt Jackson being the victim of a shoulder injury, possibly a torn ligament. While others hobbled home followfng the worst double beating the Redmen have taken in years!" They pan the Petes and Referee Armstrong and speak of "fights, general bedlam and whatnots" as being the order of the eve. Wow! Guess we didn't see the same game. We might say the game was not extra rough at all, that Bentley—who was not off 50 minutes—started to rough it himself, and that the Petes can take care of themselves anywhere.

Three lively men's Senior City Cage Loop contests up at the "Y" on Saturday e'en as a gang in the gallery whooped it up. Quakers nosed out C.G.E. by a 12-7 beak, St. Paul's grabbed off a 25-20 number ovah the Hecla huskies, and Dominions edged out St. John's by a 25-22 score in the final few minutes. Good, live-wire jousts, marked by a fight in the third betwixt Dyer and Csumrik in the Dominion-St. John's tussle. A lot of interest being created in this cage circuit now, with well-matched outfits and a flock of experienced players aboard.

Machinists Win C.G.E. Contest

Machine Shop defeated Fractionals by a 7-4 count in their C.G.E. Shop Hockey League opener Saturday in the Brock St. rink, the third tilt of a triple header. The winners piled up a 3-0 lead in the initial inning and had a 4-2 margin as the second ended. The fastest game of the day, there was plenty of stiff bumping on the rearguard in this joust but the only penalties racked up were by Coursey, Crowe and Clifford. A fine net chore was turned in by Jones of the winners, he, Starr and Creighton being outstanding for Machinists; as McDougall, Coursey and Crowe starred for the losers. Starr got four goals, Jones Charlton and Creighton notching one apiece. For the losers, Johnston, Crowe, Coursey and McDougall were the snipers. The teams:

HOW TO SKI

By FRITZ LOOSLI
Instructor Toronto Ski Club

STEM CHRISTIANIA

It is surprising how many skiers do not know how to start a Stem Christiana properly, but instead begin their turn with what I would call a Snow Plough Christiania. The mistake is, that the Stem Christiania is started with a direct Stem with the outer ski, instead of beginning the turn by an Up Stem of the inner ski. The Up Stem, that is, stemming in the direction opposite to the intended turn, which at first seems illogical, is meant to give your spine a quarter turn, more of a swing when the outer ski starts the turn in the wanted direction.

The Stem Christiania, considered about the most useful of all turns, combines the steadiness of the Snow Plough, with the brevity of the pure Christiania. For a Stem Christiania to the left, the run is made in a traverse slightly across the slope to the right. Upstem the left ski, bringing left shoulder forward. Follow by stemming right ski, and unweighing both skis for an instant by a screw-like twist; weight transferred to the right ski brings the left ski parallel to it. Now the weight is again evenly distributed on both feet, with left ski slightly ahead. Gradually apply edges to end the turn in a good running position. Knees well bent and weight forward.

When running a slalom the skier will find that the Stem Christiania started with an Up Stem will give a far greater angle in the turn and much less skidding. It also makes it necessary to start the turn before the flags. At high speed and on rough ground, no turn is surer than the Stem Christiania.

Pure Christiania

The difference between the Stem Christiania and the pure Christiania is that the latter is executed with skis remaining parallel during the turn.

For a pure Christiania to the right advance inner right ski slightly forward, keeping it in parallel position. From a slight crouch, spring up unweighing both skis for a short instant. Begin the turn by edging the right ski a trifle, keeping the weight mostly on the left. Then drop down powerfully, twist the body to the right, and, with heavy heel pressure, the skis will skid on the tail end.

To assure sharpness edge the skis a little more and to secure more stability widen the skis slightly. With the twist of the body the left shoulder and arm are swung forward, and hips are kept outside while the skier is still in low position. To avoid bouncing, which frequently occurs when completing the pure Christiania turn, do not hug the hill, but release edging, and keep the body riding the outside ski. The more the forward lean is marked the smoother the turn will proceed and skidding will be negligible.

Wiremen Winners As Loop Opened

Following official ceremonies by Messrs. Salmonsen, McRae, Cranfield and Hardie, the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League opened its season in the Brock St. rink Saturday afternoon when Wire Dept. took a 4-1 win over Refrig. Cabinets before a fair-sized crowd of fans. It was a good game with plenty of heavy checking. The losers got their only goal in the first, as they blanked the other side, Earle tallying. The Wiremen came to life in the second to score thrice, White, Mason and Heal bulging the hemp. Heal got another in the third to clinch matters. Williams, Heal and Hawks looked best for the winners; with Nicholls, McDougall and Brown outstanding for the losers. Heal got one goal on a penalty shot. The teams:

Wiremen: Goal, Harding; defence, Broadley, Williams; centre, Heal; wings, White, Yade; alternates, Akers, Mason, Hawks, Millard.

Cabinets: Goal, Fleming; defence, F. Spencely, Heard; centre, E. Spencely; wings, Nicholls, MacDougall; alternates, Flint, Griffin, Brown, Earle.

Referee, Red Creighton.

Test Crew Lose One-Sided Fray

Switchgear grabbed off an 8-1 decision iver the Test Dept. in the Brock on Saturday, it being the second game of a C.G.E. Shop Hockey League triple-header to open the season. The winners had too much punch for their rivals in a fast, clean game with lots of good hockey and hard bodychecks dished up. Tompkins was brilliant going both ways. The winners had a 1-0 edge in the first and were in front 4-0 going into the third. Tompkins got four goals for them with Jobe and Leggitt having two each, this trio starring. Archibald got the losers' counter, he, Gray and Primeau looking best. No penalties marred the tilt. The teams:

Switchgears: Goal, McNabb; defence, Weir, Mowry; centre, Tompkins; wings, Jobe, Leggitt; alternates, Abraham, MacDonald, Bruce, Mackey.

Test: Goal, Hales; defence, Gray, Boyle; centre, Primeau; wings, Archibald, Pryde; alternates, Hendrie, Krug, Blanchard.

Referee, Red Creighton.

Miss E. Brooks of the same league with 554 topped the ladies' scores, Miss P. Patterson had 512. A good single of 224 was knocked off by Mrs. Ferguson.

625 for Bill Meagher was high in the City Hall League, while Miss J. Burgess toppled over 466, including a 224 single. In the Examiner group George Johnston's 613 was high for the men and Mrs. Hamilton's 442 was best for the ladies.

From ten full teams of Outboard Motor bowlers, F. Collins tossed off the highest score, 710; R. Partridge 692 (305); H. Mesley, 699; N. Daniamo 638, and C. Clarke 618; for the ladies, Miss B. Castle rolled a good score, 507; Miss G. Payne 504; Miss M. Whaley 466.

Old Boys Prove Superiority In Hockey Game

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 16.—The Lakefield prep school old boys' ice warriors gave the Grove's present hockey squad a strenuous trouncing when they met in the Lakefield rink on Saturday for their annual hockey game.

During sixty minutes of hard playing the Grove lads were gradually worn down by their opponents who had the advantage in both weight and experience. The senior team rang up a four-point lead to show a final score of 7 to 3.

Youngsters Lead Early

The Grove made a nice beginning and finished the preliminary round with a one-point advantage. The Old Boys drew their first score when Simpson tallied on a pass from Herring. But Harris and Langmuir rallied for the Garnet and Green and each tallied a counter to end the first period 2 to 1 for the youngsters.

In the second stanza the Old Boys made a drive for goals which netted them three counters and a two-point lead. But Harris reduced the lead when he scored for the Grove unassisted, making the count 4-3 at the end of the second. The counting for the Old Boys was done by Stewart (from Morley), by Morley (from Passy) and by Robertson unassisted.

Veterans Finish Strong

In the last period the youngsters slowed their pace considerably and the Old Boys took advantage of them to the tune of three point. Robertson tallied twice and is credited with an assist to Passy, who scored the first goal and brought the count to 7-3 for the Old Boys.

It was a hard-fought game and the spectators were given plenty of thrills and a real show of hockey. The line-ups are:

Lakefield Prep School Old Boys—Morley I, goal; Simpson and Passy, defence; Roberston, Morley II, and Stewart, forwards; Dench, Tippett and Herring, subs.

Lakefield Preparatory School—Pease, goal; McLaren and Rose, defence; Crickmore, Roberts and Harris, forwards; Foster, Lanauze, Langmuir and Carson, subs.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

The quartette skipped by President Jimmy Richmond was successful in walking off with first prize and the chickens on Saturday afternoon, Walter Oke second, E. Thomas third.

Every available sheet of ice was occupied and the "standing room only" sign was once again hung out on No. 8.

The interest shown by the boys in these week-end tournaments is so keen that all games were under way by 2 o'clock.

We could have iced a couple of more rinks, but the no room sign was hung out early.

In the evening another tournament was staged, only this time it was mixed. This is a series of tournaments that will be run off during the season and individual prizes will then be given to the curlers with the highest scores.

To-night we have another double-header at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Skips are asked to see that their rinks are out on time.

PENALTIES AGGREGATE 92 MINUTES IN LEAFS-HAWKS GAME

Leafs Defeat Hawks, But Go Down 1-0 Before Tiny Thompson; Amerks, Canadiens Tie 1-1 Twice

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Any day now, the way things are shaping up, Jack Adams can start clipping the coupons from the gilt-edged investment Detroit Red Wings made when they purchased Cecil (Tiny) Thompson from Boston Bruins.

Adams used quite a slice of change—$15,000 and a player to be exact—to get the starry veteran net-minder from the Bruins to bolster his fading team, but the move definitely had paid dividends in the battle the Wings have waged with Montreal Canadians for the sixth and last play-off berth in the National Hockey League.

True enough, the Wings have yet to show the finely balanced form that brought them two N.H.L. and world championships in the seasons of 1935-36 and 1936-37. They lack the terrific scoring punch and smashing defensive play of those great machines. But they have displayed good enough form in the past few weeks to pull away to a four point lead over the last place Canadiens.

Toronto On the Fence.

With Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and New York Americans setting a pace that almost assures them of finishing up near the top much of the interest was centred in the battle for the lower positions waged by the Wings, Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks. Toronto Maple Leafs, remaining team in the league, are astride the two "divisions."

There were many who thought Adams was making a stab in the dark when he paid the heavy price for Thompson, an all-time goaling great, for the stocky netminder has been around the N.H.L. scene for a long time. But Tiny justified Adams' judgment when he turned back the Maple Leafs 1-0 last night for his second straight shutout. Six days ago the Wings Blanked Canadians 3-0 at Detroit.

The Leafs, however, picked up two points Saturday night at Toronto with a 3-1 victory over the Hawks. The Hawks did better last night, holding Rangers to a 1-1 draw. Completing the five-game week-end schedule the Americans and Canadiens battled to two straight 1-1 ties, first at Montreal on Saturday and then at New York last night.

The major share of the honors in Detroit's victory over the Leafs undoubtedly belonged to Thompson, for the Leafs had a margin in the play until late in the second period when rookie Gus Giesebrecht brought up only recently from Pittsburgh Hornets in the International-American league, provided the goal that gave Wings victory. The Wings now are only two points away from Chicago with a game in hand.

Begin Shaping Up

Leafs, rapidly rounding into top shape with the recent return of injured Gord Drillon, ace sniper in the league last year, gained victory over Hawks on goals by Drillon, Murph Chamberlain and Pep Kelly. The lone Chicago marker was obtained by Bill Thoms, traded only a short time ago to the Hawks by the Leafs.

Herbie Cain scored for Canadiens and Johnny Sorrell for Americans in the Saturday clash between the teams, while in their return engagement last night Toe Blake notched the Montreal goal and Lorne Carr evened matters for Red Dutton's New Yorkers.

The two games provided sidelights for Manager Cecil Hart said he would protest the contest in New York on grounds that Carr's goal was offside. In the Montreal game Burly Babe Siebert fired a goal on a penalty shot in overtime but the tally was called back because the Canadien defenceman had skated over the firing line before letting go the puck.

In the same game the Americans claimed Dave Schriner scored a goal on a breakaway in the last minute of play but the goal judge claimed the puck had not entered the net.

Rangers used their draw with Chicago to move to within a game of the league-leading Boston outfit. Rangers went ahead in the fifth minute of the second period on a goal by Bryan Hextall but less than four minutes later the Hawks evened matters with Mush March supplying the goal.

SPORT SPICE
By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Washington State College alumni have decided something has got to be done about it and have resolved to give their athletes "better compensation"...Sam Snead, Canadian open golf champion, likes to tell about the time he used up three pencils and two notebooks giving a golf lesson to a deaf mute...The who's who of sports will attend the rites for Colonel Jake Ruppert today...Duke University will use the $100,000 it took out of the Rose Bowl to apply on its new gym.

Coach Tom Stidham of Oklahoma didn't get around to shaking the hand of every Tennessee player after the Orange Bowl game, but every time the Sooner Special stopped on the way home from Miami, Stidham made a speech praising the Tennesseans...Which was something...California is burning because New York gets the Baer-Nova bout.

Before he bought the Yanks, Colonel Ruppert had a chance to get the Cubs...The betting along Broadway is that the New York Boxing Commission will stand behind its officials and not reverse the Farr-Burman verdict...Pat Comiskey, Jersey heavyweight, now is the highest pair preliminary fighter in the business...Already he gets considerably more than the usual $100 fee for four rounders...Mike Jacobs predicts Pat will be collecting $2,500 for four rounds of toil before he is old enough to be matched in longer bouts...

Correction: Some time back President Ford Frick of the National Baseball League made a speech in Montreal. He told his audience that of the 23,242 players who have gone in and out of the majors in the 63 years of their history, only a handful have turned out to be bad 'uns. Mr. Frick was slightly off key in his computation. As a matter of fact there have been only 6,767 players in the majors from the time they organized through the 1938 season...The record still stands out, at that, and we hope Mr. Frick doesn't mind the sharpshooting.

Tennis and Vocal Swing Exponents "Admirers"

Mutual admiration society in action. On the LEFT we have Don Budge, world's No. 1 amateur tennis player until he moved over to the pro side of the fence recently. Don thinks that Edythe Wright, who happens to be the young lady on the RIGHT, is the grandest singer and the swellest girl in the world, while, oddly enough, Edythe thinks Don is the best tennis player and the greatest man within the same territory. If you're a swing fan you've undoubtedly heard the lady in question adding the vocal touch to the efforts of Tommy Dorsey's orchestra. Rumor has it that dashing Donald and edifying Edythe will play a love set in doubles shortly, but both deny they are anything more than a couple of admirers. Anyway, here they are admiring and playing light-the-straw...or something.

Colonel Ruppert Is Borne To Grave

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP).—With the fate of his mighty baseball empire still uncertain, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, millionaire brewer, sportsman and most distinguished of baseball magnates, will be buried today. He died Friday after a long illness. A requiem mass will be celebrated in St. Patrick's Cathedral, followed by private burial in Kensico cemetery in Westchester County.

It is expected that an announcement will be made Tuesday or Wednesday as to what arrangements Col. Ruppert made for the continuance of his baseball holdings, notably the world-champion New York Yankees. While at present no one is at liberty to reveal the Colonel's will regarding the Yankees and their extensive "farm" system, it is believed unofficially trustees have been designated to administer the affairs of the club pending its ultimate disposition.

JOCKEY WENT ON

WINDSOR, England—(CP)—Abington decided to stop at the open ditch in the Rays Steeplechase here but didn't tell his jockey, J. Farrell, who took the jump alone. Farrell picked himself up, remounted, but finished in the also rans.

Remember When—

Babe Ruth took a $17,000 salary cut to play with New York Yankees five years ago to-day. He received $35,000 for a one-year contract and retierd a year later. Including his 1934 salary his aggregate income from the Yankees over a 15-year stretch was $842,000.

Central School Wins Puck Tilt

Central walloped Queen Alex by a 9-1 count in their School Hockey League opening fray on Saturday at All Saints' rink. The classy Central crew had too much punch for their young rivals, blanking them by 3-0 in the first and 1-0 in the second, while having a 5-1 edge in the third. Millen notched four goals, Lee getting three, and Batten and Morrow one each for Central. Coones scored the losers' lone counter in the final heat. It was a clean tussle, with some neat hockey shown in spots, but too one-sided. The teams:

Central—Goal, Parsons; defence, Kiff, Batten; centre, Millen; wings, Burns, Lee; subs, Morrow, Smith, Craig, Jordan, Griffin, Cooney, Wise.

Referee—H. Fisher.

Bisons Place Hopes On Kowalik And Ash

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Steve O'Neill, manager of Buffalo Bisons in the International Baseball League will pin his main pitching hopes on a pair of veterans this season, he said today.

O'Neill said Fabian Kowalik, 28, and Ken Ash, 38, would be the nucleus of his 1939 hurling corps. Ash won 15 and lost eight last season, while Kowalik was piling up the same number of victories and 13 defeats.

Prince Of Wales Cops 3-2 Victory

Prince of Wales pulled out a 3-2 School Hockey League win over King Edward in their opening clash of the season on Saturday at All Saints' Rink. It was a fine puck tilt between well-matched young outfits with some good hockey shown by the boys. Doughty and Henry scored for the Wales' gang in the first period as Close counted for King Edward. It was tied up in the second when Anderson netted the disc, but Maudsley shot in the winning marker in the third. Riel, Anderson, Doughty, and Henry looked especially good in the clean joust. The teams:

King Edward—Goal, Welch; defence, McGregor, Lawson; centre, Anderson; wings, Riel, Jamieson; subs, Close, Brown, Harris, Blackwell.

Referee—A. Jay.

BAN FOREIGN PLAYERS

PARIS—(CP).—The ministry of national education states in future no foreign footballers will be granted permisison to stay in France. The ruling conforms with general measures affecting all classes of foreign workers.

One Of the Eldest and Best

Hec Kilrea, a grand old veteran of the National League hockey wars, rests by the boards during a Detroit practice. Hec began his major league career with the old Ottawa Senators and spent a couple of years with Toronto Maple Leafs before joining the Red Wings, with whom he is now a utility man...and a good one! Whenever one of the other Wings (his position doesn't matter a great deal) gets tired or mussed up a trifle too much, over the boards climbs Hector to carry on. Noted in years past as one of the league's fastest men, he still moves around faster than most of the other players on the ice and with considerably less effort.

Ramblers Whip Both Reds And Eagles

(By the Canadian Press.)

It looks like clear sailing from here in for Philadelphia Ramblers, presently atop the Eastern Division in the International - American Hockey League by 10 points over the second-place Providence Reds.

The Ramblers turned on the heat to rack up a double victory during the week-end, scoring 3-2 over the Reds Saturday and whipping New Haven Eagles 8-3 last night.

The Eagles lost twice in the two days, bowing 6-1 to Springfield Indians Saturday night. The Indians were edged out 3-2 the night after by Syracuse Stars, who also scored a victory by the same score over Pittsburgh Hornets. The Reds and Hershey Bears tied 1-1 Sunday, while the Bears topped Cleveland Barons 1-0 Saturday and the Barons lost 4-3 to the Hornets last night.

Kilby McDonald and Babe Tapin led the Ramblers against the Eagles with two goals apiece, while other Ramblers scorers were Lude Wareing, Joe Krol, Butch Keeling and Bill Carse.

Pete Lepine scored two and McCully one for the Eagles. Krol, Lloyd Roubell and Keeling were the scorers against the Reds, held to tallies by Art Giroux and Hub Wilson.

Hard Shooter

NELS FOSTER

When the local Colts tangle here tonight with the Lindsay Midgets in an O.H.A. junior contest, lanky Nels Foster—also a grid star—will be on the firing line for the homesters. He is a fine junior puckist with a bullet shot.

(Examiner Staff Photo.)

Junior Joust Here Tonight

Lindsay Midgets meet the Peterborough Colts at 8.30 this evening (Monday) in the Brock Street Rink. It is a scheduled Junior O.H.A. game, the first clash of these teams this year. The Midgets were here several weeks ago and battled to an overtime tie with the Monarchs. They claim to have improved considerably since then and feel cocky about their chances of taking the Colts—the Midgets beat Port Hope 7-1 on Friday. They defeated the Colts last year and the latter squad has been smarting over it since. This tilt to-night should be a typical Lindsay-Peterborough puck fray, full of action, close and exciting. It ought to draw a good crowd of fans.

Coach Bill Jackson and Manager Hap Wilgar have been experimenting lately with the local Juniors, and they believe they have the strongest possible squad lined up now. Dutch Pammett, out with an injured hand, may be in the line-up to-night. The Colts have speed, size and hockey savvy, so they will be hard to knock off. To-night's game may see a lot of hard bumping on defence, the Lindsay rearguard being noted for its bouncing bodychecks — and the husky locals being good bumpers, too. With good ice, fans can bank o na nifty hockey match this evening here.

Yanks Beatable Says Mack Optimistically

FORT MYERS, Fla., Jan. 16—(AP).—Connie Mack, who has just turned 76, sat on a hard bench in the living room of his winter home here today and declared, without apologies "those Yankees can be beaten."

The dean of managers, whose Philadelphia Athletics in olden years presented him with pennants in bunches, then elucidated:—

"There were five teams in the American league last year besides the Yankees who were all pennant contenders. I don't say that St. Louis and the Athletics were in the fight, but they may be this year. And this year you're likely to see any of those five teams giving the Yankees something to think about. They can be beaten, those Yankees."

It's not beyond the realm of possibility "that either the Indians or the Tigers or the Red Sox," if they fought like they did in 1938, "could give those Yankees a run for their money," he said.

30 Rookie Pitchers

Regarding the A's:—

"They'll be better than last year. Some of our veterans didn't hit their stride until mid-season. If they get going early this year, it'll be different. Besides, I've got a fine gang of youngsters and we're going to make trouble for those teams which think the first division belongs to them. Why," he added, "I've got 30 rookie pitchers to pick from."

Mack said he wasn't thinking of disposing Bill Werber. He might have been once, he added, but dropped the idea when he found he couldn't get what he wanted for him.

For a number of years, Mack's Athletics trained in Fort Myers, including his best teams in the early 30's. Though the Athletics have since trained in Texas, Mexico and Louisiana, the veteran pilot continues to spend his winters here.

DOUGHTY.—In loving memory of our daughter, Melba Doris, who was buried 9 years ago to-day, January 16, 1930.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile
As in the days that used to be.

—Ever remembered by F. J. Doughty and Family.

Suggest Duke Of Windsor Possible New Governor For Canada

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(CP). — The possibility the British government may get around in the near future "to doing something to end the exile of the Duke of Windsor." is discussed in a special despatch printed in the New York Herald Tribune yesterday.

"Those who specialize in anticipating news" are said to be suggesting the former King Edward VIII might be received to act as "Deputy Speaker and Cornerstone Layer" for King George VI, sent to Canada as Governor-General, or to Washington as ambassador.

The Duke is said to be chafing at idleness along the Riviera. It is recalled a recent poll taken by the British Institute of Public Opinion showed 61 per cent of those questioned were in favor of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor returning to England to make their home. Sixteen per cent were against such a proposal and 23 per cent declined to express an opinion. The present ambassador to the United States, Sir Ronald Lindsay, who is 61, is understood to have wanted to retire after signing of the Anglo-American reciprocal trade agreement. He was persuaded to remain at the post at least until conclusion of the visit King George and Queen Elizabeth are to pay to Canada and the United States, starting in May.

Never To White House.

"There are a number of reasons why the Duke will never go to the White House as British ambassador," say the Herald Tribune's cable. "There first and foremost is tradition.

"Tradition would be less upset if the Duke were dispatched to Canada. After all, his grand uncle, the Duke of Connaught, served as Governor-General of Canada, and the Duke of Kent is to be Governor-General of Australia."

The fact that the Duke of Kent is to leave in November for Canberra is said by the Herald Tribune correspondent to be a strong argument for the return of the Duke of Windsor to England. The Duke of Kent has filled in for King George on numerous occasions in laying cornerstones, opening expositions and other such engagements. It is in this role as "deputy and filler-in" the Duke of Windsor best could do his bit, the despatch adds.

Japan Ready To Smash U.S. Fleet If Guam, Wake Fortified

TOKYO, Jan. 16—(AP). — The newspaper Kokumin said editorially today that "the Japanese people are determined to smash the American fleet" if the United States intends "to get a political foothold in China" by fortifying the Guam and Wake Islands.

The article, which caused a sensation in Tokyo, demanded to know "the real intentions of the American people in the western Pacific, not those of the president or the state department."

(Washington reports last week listed among proposals for new naval bases the long demilitarized island of Guam, 1,500 miles from Japan, and said an air and submarine base there would outflank any Japanese advance to the south or west but would call for a basic decision on national policy in view of the resentment likely to be aroused in Tokyo. Plans have been drawn for improving the lagoon at Wake Island for surface craft of tonnage under cruisers.)

Stand No Interference

The newspaper, which has considerable circulation in military circles, said that if the United States wants only to increase trade with China, then Japan will assist, but if America seeks to interfere with Japanese policy, even resorting to arms, then Japan must be ready to smash the American fleet.

"This is the view not of the army and navy but the determination of the Japanese people," Kokumin said, since they realized such fortification "would menace Japan's mandated islands and naturally the Japanese are gravely concerned."

The fortification of Guam and Wake is justifiable, it continued, "only if the American people object to Japan's policies in China and intend to interfere with them."

The article asked: "Does America intend to destroy Japan's policies in the Far East by mobilizing her great fleet? Is the intention that of Roosevelt, the state department or the American people? Do American Military experts think the fortification of Guam and Wake is necessary to protect the United States.

Detroit Looking Up

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—(CP).— All industrial activity barometers today showed Detroit plants are operating at a level far above production levels of a year ago, the Detroit Board of Commerce reported to-day. Paced by the autmotive industry, with production 50 per cent higher than this time last year, primary industry plants here worked at near capacity peak.

Industrial power sales were up, steel plants were working at capacity, street railway receipts were higher and industrial employment was up 113 per cent over last July.

KEEP YOUR TEMPER

MAYBE YOUR partner was in a position to know more about the opponents' hands than you knew. His own holding may have made it clear to him that they were very likely to make their contract, despite your strong bidding and business double. Hold your criticism of him for taking out your double until you see how it works out. Maybe he has saved you a lot of points by his action.

Deals with a lot of long suits in them usually produce plenty of bidding, and this one was no exception. South began it with 1-Club, West overcalled with 1-Spade, North passed and, the none-fitting black suits having started the ball a-rolling, the well-fitting red suits now got called. East introduced one of them with 2-Diamonds and South the other with 2-Hearts.

West hopped to 4-Diamonds, North showed his fit with 4-Hearts, East called 5-Diamonds, South 5-Hearts and West 6-Diamonds, which passed around to South, who doubled. North reckoned carefully. His hand was worthless defensively, but splendid in support of hearts. He calculated that East was surely short in spades because he himself had so many and West had bid them. He had so many hearts, he was sure the opponents were short in one hand or the other. Probably one opponent could stop the clubs, with either a ruff or an honor. So he took out the double into 6-Hearts, which East doubled.

South was very miffed when West took his spade A, East ruffed a spade and the club A was cashed for a two-trick set. But when the post-mortem showed that East could have made his diamond small slam, losing only the trump ace, South was appeased.

With the snow melting on the sunny side of the fence on Saturday, weather conditions were agreeable for January, and the farmers' market showed an appreciable gain in attendance, fewer blank spaces along the counters, more buyers, and a general disposition to settle down to routine business after the passing of the holiday season.

Potatoes were firmer in price and eggs were weaker. Potatoes were comparatively scarce, Dooleys selling at $1.25 a bag and according to one grower his Katadins were worth $1.40. That was the price he quoted to the Examiner. It was the highest price for potatoes this season. There were only two or three lots of potatoes for sale. In fact, the supply was the lightest noticed in many weeks.

Eggs were plentiful at 20 to 25 cents a dozen, and it is likely that quite a number of them sold under 20 cents. One woman said she paid 75 cents for four dozen, and another said she got her supply at 18 cents a dozen. Those are sample quotations from buyers indicating the influence of increased production during the favorable weather of the last three weeks. Prices mentioned on the vending side of the boards averaged 22 cents.

Chickens seemed plentiful enough for the morning's demand at 20 to 22 cents a pound, some at 18c, and butter was 22 and 23 cents. A few turkeys were quoted at 25 cents a pound. Geese and ducks were completely out of the picture, and the bulk of the poultry business centred on the ample supply of chickens.

Readers of last week's market report may have noticed a criticism of the unfavorable appearance of the stairs under a sprinkling of shavings that had been mucked to a dirty appearance by traffic. From both the market clerk and sanitary inspector it was subsequently learned that the Market Hall had been thoroughly cleaned prior to that Saturday, and also the stairs. The shavings were laid to prevent street mud from being tracked up into the Market Hall. That explanation is overdue on behalf of the authorities. On Saturday sawdust was used.

More Meat Men.

Sales of fresh meat have been increasing on the market during the last month. Prices were uniform. H. R. Gill quoted 13 and 15 cents for beef, 18 and 20 cents for lamb, and 10 cents for mutton. George Mullen's prices were also 10 and 12 for beef, and 13 and 15 cents for pork. There have been more farmers selling meat the last two Saturdays, and apparently they are disposing of quite a quantity of it.

The W. L. Snowdon apple prices were: Greenings 30c, Spies 30c and 40c, Tolmans 40c, Russets 35c.

B. Isaac was up from Norham with a load of Spies quoted at $1.25 to $1.75 a hamper. N. Moncrief was asking 45c for Spies and McIntosh Reds. The Bowmanville cider was labelled 35c a gallon.

Arthur Stinson's prices were probably the standard for the garden vegetables that vary but little from week to week: Turnips 3 for 10c or 50c a peck, carrots and parsnips 20c a basket or 60c a peck, beets 20c a basket. Onions 30c and $1.00, cabbages 5c each.

English Actress To Play O'Hara

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16—(AP)—Vivien Leigh, young English actress who will play the part of the southern lass, Scarlett O'Hara, in the screen dramatization of "Gone With the Wind" was "terribly nervous" today, but at the same time "grateful beyond words."

She was signed to the role last night for which a host of actresses have been mentioned. Today she was still a little bewildered, but full of determination to make a success of the most-discussed feminine part in motion pictures in years.

Miss Leigh, who pronounces it Lee, confided she had looked forward to sitting in an audience and watch "Gone With the Wind" unfold on the screen.

"I came over here on a holiday, little dreaming I would be so terribly lucky," she smiled. "I am grateful beyond words at the tremendous confidence placed in me and my fondest ambition is to make good. If I can it will be the greatest satisfaction of my life."

Producer David O. Selznick, announcing the choice, said he had kept his original promise "to cast a girl who was not identified in the minds of the public with other roles, and who was a physical counterpart of the original Scarlett."

Scouts Combed Country.

Scores of non-professionals as well as actresses were considered for the part, talent scouts searching in all parts of the country. Even early this week Paulette Goddard and Jean Arthur were considered strong contenders.

Selnick said when Miss Leigh appeared at the studio he was immediately impressed by her physical resemblance to the Scarlett of Margaret Mitchell's best seller.

Clark Gable will be Rhett Butler, with whom Scarlett constantly clashes, Leslie Howard will be Ashley Wilkes, her first great love, and Olivia de Havilland will play Melanie.

Miss Leigh has had leads in English stage plays, among them "Henry VIII" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and has played in the British films "Fire Over England," "Storm In A Teacup" and "A Yank At Oxford." She was born in Darjeeling, India, Nov. 5, 1913.

LAKEFIELD

Leaders Are Named For Mission Band

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 16—Mrs. W. J. Charlton and Mrs. J. A. Porter will head the Mission Band here for 1939, it was decided when Mrs. Yale, president of the W.M.S. of Lakefield United church, was hostess to her executive at a business meeting held on Wednesday evening.

A good attendance and hearty cooperation soon disposed of the business items left over from the initial meeting at the parsonage. Word was received that owing to poor health, Mrs. Jacob Reid wished to resign as strangers' secretary, a position she has filled with distinction for many years. The executive was loathe to accept her resignation and elected Mrs. S. Pearson and Mrs. Reid as secretaries of community friendship to take the place of strangers' secretary.

Mrs. Bullock presented an excellent report of the work of the Mission Band. She stated that the children had done good work and had reached their allocation for 1938, which was $60.00.

A hearty vote of appreciation was tendered Mrs. Bullock for her untiring efforts as leader of the Mission Band for the past four years. She asked to be relieved of her duties and Mrs. W. J. Charlton and Mrs. J. A. Porter consented to supervise the band for the coming year.

The programs for the year for the W.M.S. were mapped out at this meeting with the different members assuming responsibility, three members for each meeting.

The February meeting of the Missionary Society will be held at Mrs. D. H. Charlton's home the first Tuesday of the month, with Mrs. McKerchar, Mrs. D. H. Charlton and Mrs. George Spence in charge.

Docks, Power Plants Also Watched As Bombings Go On

LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP)—A new bomb explosion today partly damaged a Birmingham power line pylon as emergency squads in many of England were called out to guard public services from outrages attributed to the illegal Irish republican army.

The I.R.A., extremist organization, is opposed to the northern Ireland government and Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's government in Eire. It wants an independent all-Ireland republic.

Police continued rounding up Irishmen living in England as they search for four unnamed men wanted as the ringleaders. Guards were stationed at the Prime Minister's residence in Downing street, and at all dockyards, power, water and gas plants, and other vital points. Yesterday there were 10 explosions, in London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham and other cities.

Reeve Milby Is New Warden

The Wardenship of Peterborough County returned to North Monaghan township with the election of Reeve James Milby by 10 votes to 6 in a contest with Reeve Wallace Shearer at the opening of the statutory sessions of the county council this afternoon.

Reeve Milby was proposed by Deputy-Reeve Harry Read of Otonabee and Deputy-Reeve M. H. Johnston of North Monaghan.

Reeve Wallace Shearer of Harvey township was nominated by Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore and Reeve E. W. Seeney of Havelock.

Miss Jennie Batten, county clerk and treasurer, presided during the preliminary period of organization. She called for nominations for the wardenship, and recorded the division as follows: For Milby—Reeves Gordon Scriver of Lakefield; W. A. Anderson, Otonabee; Norman Lean, Burleigh-Anstruther; Allan Caldwell, Chandos; J. Russell Thompson, Norwood; John McColl, Asphodel; Milby, North Monaghan; and Deputy-reeves Johnston, North Monaghan; Harry Fowler of Smith, and Read, Otonabee, (10).

Reeve Shearer moved that the election of Warden Milby be made unanimous. Peterborough's new Warden was first elected to the North Monaghan council in 1933, and was promoted to deputy-reeve in the following year. He won the reeveship in the 1936 elections and for the last three years was returned by acclamation.

Native of Scotland.

Milby, a native of Scotland, and a war veteran, has lived in thirteen countries, and in the words of his colleague, Deputy-Reeve Melville Johnson, "has found Canada the best of all."

Harry Read, Deputy-Reeve of Otonabee, described Milby as a tireless worker, and deserving of the wardenship by virtue of his continuous service in the council for the past six years.

Deputy-Reeve Melville Johnston in nominating Reeve Milby, "Mr. Milby had shown unusual ability during his terms of office as Reeve and had introduced a sound policy of financing that had greatly improved the township affairs.

Reeve Gifford of Ennismore, in moving Reeve Wallace Shearer's name, said "Reeve Shearer has been a member of the council for three years and it is 24 years since the wardenship went to Harvey Township."

Farmer-Lumberman 88, Has $5000 That Says He Can Outspell Anyone In Ontario

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 17 (CP)—James W. Howey, 88, at various times a farmer, lumberman, hotel owner, horse trader, and real estate dealer, still active at farmering and lumbering in Bayham township, is set for a $10,000 or $25,000 spelling match any time.

Mr. Howey says he has a standing challenge to spell against anyone in Ontario for $5,000 a side. He is also ready to meet any four high school graduates who will put up $5,000 each to match his money, the winner to take $25,000. A condition is the exclusion of medical and scientific words.

"I've too much sense to retire," he said as he received birthday visitors yesterday on his 200-acre farm.

New R. A. F. Aerial Bomb Casings Are Found Scattered About Gananoque Room, Ash Pile

GANANOQUE, Ont., Jan. 17. —(CP).— Provincial police, investigating theft of bomb casings from a foundry here, found another casing to-day in an ash pile close to the main business block.

The number of casings now recovered by the police was not revealed. Some were alleged to have been found in the room of Edward Pink, 20, Ottawa, employed by the Parmenter and Bulloch foundry here, and one was discovered near the new International bridge at Ivy Lea, Ont.

The bomb casings were said to be of a new secret design made for the Department of National Defence.

Although the casing contained no explosive ,officers said it was possible that knowledge of their construction might be welcomed in some quarters.

Police advanced the theory that the casing thrown away near the bridge had been discarded by a thief who feared it might be found on him by customs authorities.

Order for the bombs was placed months ago, although they were to be used for bombing practice it was reported they could carry service loads of high explosive.

Bases of the shells are made of steel and then brought here for finishing. Police said they believed the casing found in Pink's room had no connection with the one picked up at Ivy Lea.

An official said the completed projectiles, manufactured for the Defence Department, are non-explosive and intended for use by Royal Canadian Air Force fliers in practice. He added there was no secrecy concerning the design of the 11-pound bombs or casings as far as the Department here was aware.

Considerable concern was expressed concerning the disappearance of the casings and the inquiry being made will seek to ascertain "just what did happen to them." While it will not be a formal probe with a special board of inquiry set up, an official of the Department likely will go to Gananoque to investigate the matter on the spot.

The bombs of which the casings are a component part are dropped from fighting planes and when they hit the ground emit a puff of smoke to indicate to the pilot the accuracy of his aim. The powder in the projectile would not make a larger explosion than a small firecracker, it was stated.

60 Days In Jail For Madam X

TORONTO, Jan. 17—(CP).—Eta Marguerite Botas, whose identity baffled Toronto police for 48 hours and earned her the name of Mrs. X, was sentenced today to 60 days in jail when she pleaded guilty to personation at the polls in the recent civic elections.

Last week the mystery woman failed to appear in court and a warrant was ordered issued against her. Subsequently her lawyer indicated that she was ill.

When arrested Eta Botas refused to give her name, and when she finally did, it was first thought to be an alias. In court today she said she attempted to vote in place of another person.

Plan To Probe Radio Setup

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—(CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons last night the government would welcome the appointment of a radio broadcasting committee again this year to review policies and regulations of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"Opportunity will be given the committee to call the general manager, the governors and others connected with the Corporation and they may go very fully into all the rules and regulations they have drawn up," the Prime Minister said. Members of the Opposition would have an opportunity to name their members of the committee, too.

The Prime Minister's statement came in reply to criticism by Conservative Leader Manion of the C. B.C.'s refusal to allow George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, to buy time on a national network for an address on current political events.

Dr. Manion objected to any one man having power to say who should or should not speak. 'I think any man who is law abiding and not advocating a revolution, should not be forbidden use of the radio,'" he said.

The Conservative leader urged the government to set up a Parliamentary committee at once to deal with censorship and other aspects of radio broadcasting.

1938 Report Accepted.

Mr. Mackenzie King recalled the House had had a standing committee on radio broadcasting for the past two sessions and that the report of that committee had been accepted unanimously by the House after reviewing the policies of the Corporation last year.

"All members of this House had the opportunity last year of considering the policies of the Radio

King Regime One Of Inaction So Manion Charges In 5-Hr. Tilt With Premier

Government Leader Has No Apology, He Says For Failure To Tour Canada Believes His Place To Be At The Helm

OTTAWA, Jan. 17 (CP).—Like the captain of a ship in a storm, Prime Minister Mackenzie King believes his place to be at the helm, not "wandering among the passengers." And he has no apology to make for his failure to tour Canada since the 1935 general elections.

Replying to three hours of criticism from Conservative Leader Manion in the House of Commons last night, during debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, the Prime Minister declared he intended to remain "at the helm of this ship of state just so long as I have the confidence of the people."

Mr. Mackenzie King made a comparatively short speech, taking less than two hours for his reply to the attack on his administration delivered by the new leader of the official Opposition.

Dr. Manion concluded his speech with an amendment to the address expressing regret that the government had failed to deal adequately with unemployment and agricultural problems or to properly appreciate the needs of the people.

In his remarks on travelling about Canada the Prime Minister was answering Dr. Manion's criticism of his failure to visit the various provinces to learn the viewpoint of the people and study their problems.

Mr. Mackenzie King recalled his necessity of going to the League of Nations in the summer of 1936, to the Coronation and Imperial Conference in 1937 and his illness through fatigue last year.

The Better Way?

Of his journeys to Europe and to Washington he declared he was serving Canada and his constituents in Prince Albert more valuably than by going about the country making speeches.

He had been preoccupied with worry over affairs in Europe and had stated last year in parliament his fears that "we we coming dangerously near to a crisis in world history.

"I ask this house tonight—was I right or wrong in believing that the nations were nearing a stage where another world war was about to take place? I wish all of us in this house tonight could feel secure as to what is likely to take place in the course of this very year."

The prime minister made several announcements of interest in the course of his speech with reference to the forthcoming royal visit.

King George is expected to make public addresses in Quebec, Ottawa, Vancouver or Victoria and Halifax, and an Empire Day address in Winnipeg.

Queen Elizabeth will lay the cornerstone of the new Supreme Court building in Ottawa and probably make a short speech. All the king's speeches are to be broadcast.

If parliament has completed its work when the King reaches Ottawa, he will be asked to prorogue it. Otherwise there will be an adjourn-

No Spanish War For Britain

LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP).—Informed British sources said to-day that Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax told Foreign Minister George Bonnet of France at Geneva that Great Britain would not intervene in the Spanish war "regardless of the fate of Barcelona" or of any French desire to aid the Spanish Government.

It was stated reliably that Prime Minister Chamberlain has drafted a memorandum for his cabient recommending that Great Britain follow the policy of non-intervention in Spain 'to the letter."

At the same time it was understood he would convey to the cabinet in to-morrow's meeting a promise newly given by Premier Mussolini in their Rome talks to maintain the status quo in the Mediterranean and to take Italian troops out of Spain as soon as the Spanish insurgents win.

Gold mined in the Philippines in the first half of 1938 was valued at $15,087,002.

Bennett Calls For End Of Prejudices

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—(CP)—Preservation of democracy through character-building and working out of Canada's destiny within the orbit of the British Empire are R. B. Bennett's prescription for this country's future health.

Mr. Bennett outlined the remedy last night to a banquet audience, 10 days before the date set for his sailing to England, where he will live in a Surrey mansion after 40 years of public life in his native Canada. He had diagnosed the Dominion's ills—primarily, the crippling of the best in democracy by prejudice and self-interest, these developing the secondary symptoms of over-taxation, sectional dissension, and the railway problem.

"The answer to your problems is in yourselves," he told his 1,700 listeners, gathered from all parts of Ontario to say farewell. "Look in the glass and you will know who is responsible. For instance, who was it that voted we should have three transcontinental railways? You!"

He called for a return to the homely virtues of thrift and economy. "It is time we made known to the world that liberty, the result of restraint and discipline, must be retained. We can't have freedom as we understand it unless we have democracy. But we must purge it of local prejudice, national jealousies, parochial politics."

Deploring sectional dissension Mr. Bennett declared his conviction Canada will not be broken up. "That is piffle. We have no such differences as those which led to civil war in the United States."

Case of The League.

As an instance of the short-comings of democracy—for all its faults, better than dictatorship except in the realm of administration—Mr. Bennett cited the United States Senate's failure to ratify that country's entrance into the League of Nations, "because of appeals of that time to the democracy of that day—even the dead hand of Washington was invoked—the net result was that the league fell by the wayside."

"The British Empire is the United States to which this country should belong," he said at another point, questioning the wisdom of trade treatries with nations competing with Canada in the markets of the world's buying nations. The test of every trade relationship should be its effect on Canadian employment. He advocated a considered policy of immigration to develop natural resources as a possible solution to the railway and taxation problems.

Senator Meighen instanced the Ottawa agreements of 1932 and the St. Lawrence Treaty—defeated by the United States Senate—as great achievements of Mr. Bennett's

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Jan. 17. —(AP)—Although no planes have been reported missing five employees of the Wright Hargreaves Mine are convinced it was an airplane they saw break out in smoke and fall northwest here yesterday.

A plane, owned by L. E. Hornick Flying Club, made an aerial survey of the district over a radius of about 25 miles but was unable to discover any traces of a wrecked plane. Provincial and Mounted Police also investigated reports without success.

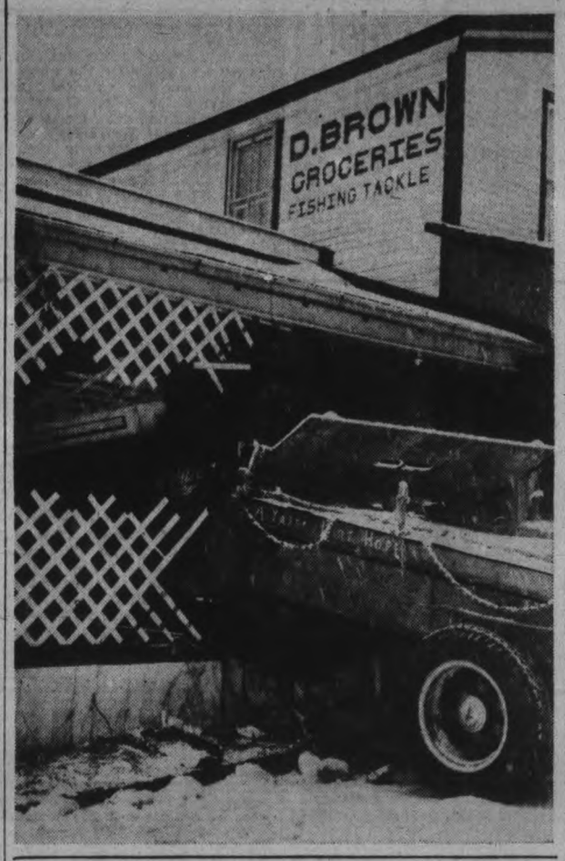
Crashes Into Home

An unexpected visitor announced his presence in the living room of Duncan Brown at Apsley Monday by knocking down the front of his house, upsetting his piano, and strewing live coals from the stove all about the floor. It was no ordinary visitor, Mr. Brown found, but a big wood-hauling truck, driven by a Port Hope driver, who said his steering wheel had seized, and prevented him from negotiating a right-angle turn.



Four Holdups, Shooting, Stabbing Enliven Toronto Over Night

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP). — Twentieth victim of armed robbers in Toronto since the New Year, a 20-year-old Bible student will be questioned futher by police today in an effort to obtain clues that might link the four holdup men with the slayers of James Windsor, bookmaker killed in his North Toronto home.

The holdup was one of four last night as a current crime wave in Toronto district continued. A shooting and stabbing added to the crime list and three Toronto men were arrested for questioning into armed robberies and "shakedowns."

The student, Gordon Steadman Smith, who came here from Marysville, N.B., a week ago, was robbed of $22 shortly before midnight outside his Spadina avenue rooming house by four armed men who escaped in a green-colored car. Smith, son of a Baptist minister, said the men "looked like Italians."

Five witnesses of the Windsor shooting said the killers appeared to be Italians. A few days later a coal-truck driver said he saw four men of foreign appearance in a green auto, one of them holding a gun.

Smith said two of the men grabbed him while another ransacked his pockets. They fled in the car driven by a fourth man. Smith said the money was a portion of the fees he intended to pay today on his entrance into the Toronto Bible College.

Gas Station Invaded

Clarence Martin, 22, service station attendant in west-central Toronto was robbed of $12 by two youths who grabbed him in the darkness of the garage boiler-room and locked him in as they fled. Earlier, two youths climbed on the truck of Russell Daniels, driver for a Toronto department store, as he sorted parcels, and ransacked his pocket of $75. One of the two carried a gun.

Gordon Brown, life insurance agent, was robbed of $15 by two men

Three Londoners Near Death By Gas

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 17.—(CP)—Overcome by furnace fumes, three persons were found unconscous in a bedroom at their home at 623 Emery street today. Firemen, doctors and others used inhalators and artificial respiration for an hour to save the lives of the three, who later believed out of danger.

The three were:

In the same building, two-year-old June Teeple was overcome by the fumes and collapsed. However she was quickly revived. Others in the house suffered dizzy spells but were not overcome.

At first it was thought the two Dicys and McKee were dead. They were so far gone that a call was sent to Dr. A. R. Routledge, London's chief coroner. He helped save them.

If the three had been exposed to the fumes for another five minutes they would have been dead, officials said.

Seven Lives Are Lost As R.A.F. Bomber Crashes Into House

Crowborough, Eng., Jan. 17. (CP-Havas)

SEVEN PERSONS were believed killed today when a Royal Air Force bombing plane carrying explosives crashed into a house here.

Fire at first prevented rescuers from approaching the building, but the bodies of the pilot and of a woman employed in the house were recovered. Although the exact number of victims was not known, the plane was believed to have carried six persons.

'Second Munich' Due After Barcelona

PARIS, Jan. 17 — (AP). — Henri de Kerillis, parliamentary deputy, told Paris in a newspaper satire today that Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler have prepared a "second Munich" to occur when the Spanish insurgents enter Barcelona.

An imaginary telephone conversation between the two dictators was published in the deputy's newspaper L'Epoque. It went like this:

Hitler: As soon as Franco enters Barcelona, we'll pull a second Munich coup.

Mussolini: Without wasting a minute, Adolf.

Hitler: And here's how you do it —You mass 500 planes behind the Pyrenees, 500 seaplanes and 30 submarines in the Balearics, 500 seaplanes in Spanish Morocco. After that you tell Daladier you want Djibouti.

Mussolini, breaking: And Tunisia?

Hitler, apparently irritated: No, I've told you a hundred times that you must go slowly at the beginning. It's the principle of the thing that counts.

Mussolini: Okay, Adolf. But let's look at the dark side. If war breaks out are we going to be all right?

Hitler, confidently: My dear Benito, if war starts we would be a thousand times better off than at Munich. I wouldn't have anybody in my rear because I've just made a deal with Beck (Polish Foreign Minister). My food supplies toward the East would be assured because I've got Czecho-Slovakia under lock and key. I wouldn't be afraid of Russian airplanes from the Czech airfields. And on top of all, you would have a handful of trumps against France from Spain.

Mussolini: How careful you are Adolf.

Hitler: But we must go easy.

Mussolini: I'll follow your instructions to the letter, Adolf.

They hang up.

Lad 17, Loses Nerve In Holdup

Caught In Stolen Car After Flight From Toronto Bank

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP). — A quick-witted customer who ran for the police foiled the alleged attempt of a 17-year-old boy with a toy gun to rob the Dominion Bank branch at Danforth and Leyton Avenues to-day.

Captured after a wild chase, the boy was identified as Owen McNeill who arrived in Toronto only two days ago. Police described him as a floater.

John Bell was in the bank when McNeill is alleged to have walked in. A few minutes later a woman customer arrived and diverted attention. Bell seized the opportunity to run to the street and shout: "Police holdup!"

Manager Fires 3 Shots.

Apparently frightened by the alarm, the bandit ran from the bank, jumped into a motor car, allegedly stolen an hour before, and drove west. Bank Manager W. L. Hargreaves fired three shots after the car.

McNeill was caught by police 10 minutes later. Constable George Dawson saw the speeding car and, without knowing of the attempted holdup, commandeered the car of a passing motorist and gave chase.The pursued car outdistanced him and Dawson 'phoned police headquarters.

The police radio cruiser system went into action and closed off an area in which the stolen car was believed to be. McNeill was taken into custody as he attempted to run from the car.

"I had to eat and I was hungry," Constable Thompson quoted the boy as saying. He told police he was an orphan with no home.

Manager Hargreaves said the robber seemed to him to be an amateur, but nevertheless "threatened to kill us all." The bandit wore a blue cloth, pierced with two holes, over his eyes. Cap and mask were dropped in the flight from the bank.

Hargreaves said the bandit stood at the bank's main door where he could keep everybody covered. After a minute or two, he came forward and demanded the door to the teller's cage be opened. The teller told him he couldn't open it. The key was outside.

The woman customer then entered and bell rang out to give the alarm.

On April 20, 1938, the same branch bank was robbed of $4,000 by two young gunmen. No convictions have resulted.

Girl, Boy Skater Drown In N.S.

YARMOUTH, N.S., Jan. 17 (CP). —Two deaths in the first skating tragedy of the season in Western Nova Scotia were counted today after searchers recovered the bodies of Catherine Doucette, 18, and Victor Hubbard, 16, from the waters of Lake Milo near here.

A party of skaters plunged through thin ice in the middle of the lake last night. William Nelson and Anita Leblanc struggled to safety but Miss Doucette and Hubbard sank.

Nelson helped his companion out of the water but he was unable to reach Miss Doucette. He said afterward the girl could swim a little but Hubbard "must have gone down like a stone."

Dr. S. W. Williamson, coroner, decided no inquest would be held.

PARIS.—Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet said today the question of reopening France's frontiers to help for the Spanish government depends on the attitude of Great Britain.

Nightshirt Goes Delicate, Sash, Short Sleeves To Offset Nightmare Of Pyjama Colors

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (AP) — A sportive application of the graphic arts to men's sleeping garments touched off one of the gayest motifs in masculine styles for 1939 today.

The smart slumberer this year will resemble nothing so much as an uninhibited piece of offset lithography.

Described as an extreme novelty, the "cocktail hour" pajamas picture various drinks, together with mixing instructions, appealing, as one fashion authority put it, "to those who are young in spirit and who want their pajamas as plenty hot." He left unsaid, however, the effect on the hangover victim.

Less mercurial, but even more pictorial, was a garment labelled "coast to coast," which encases the male physique in a map of the United States.

Another flashy number was a bedtime "trailer" of the forthcoming world's fair, embodying pictures of principal buildings and exhibits at the exposition.

The old-fashioned night-shirt has been thoroughly modernized with its delicate hues, sash and short sleeves.

Venturesome Ecuador Lass Flies Off For Cuba Pops Plane On Sea, Takes Ship To Boston

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP) — Miss Hermilinda Briones, Ecuadorean girl pilot who overlooked a few regulations to make a cherished flight to Cuba, was en route to Boston by steamship to-day, her airplane resting on the bottom of the sea.

She and her mechanic, A. M. Alfonso, were rescued yesterday when, far off her course and out of fuel, she alighted at sea alongside the Lykes Steamship Liberty Bell, Boston bound.

Alfonso was taken off the ship by a coast guard boat and landed early to-day at Fort Lauderdale. He said the darke-eyed South American girl decided she would go on to Boston.

The mechanic, once a pilot in his own right and now a relief worker, shook his head as he described the difficulties of the trip. He said Miss Briones handed him a note:

"We're lost. We've got to land."

They sighted the Liberty Bell a few minutes later, and plopped into the water alongside.

Rebel Guns Now Only 40 Miles From Barcelona

HENDAYE, France, Jan. 17—(AP)—General Franco took personal command of the insurgent drive on Barcelona today as Europe's big powers closely watched the offensive which may end the 2½-year-old civil war.

The general led the main insurgent column moving eastward along the Lerida-Barcelona highway toward Igualda, believed to be the northern end of the government's new lines.

Pushing forward from Cervera, captured yesterday, Franco's column was reported to have advanced about 10 miles, placing it about 40 miles from Barcelona and abreast of another insurgent column moving southeastward from Cervera to the village of Bellprat.

Almost as close to the capital were the insurgent armies advancing up the Mediterranean coast from Tarragona. While Moroccan and Navarprese troops cleaned up the area around Tarragona and Reus, one contingent moved northward to take the village of Catllar, six miles north of Tarragona and about 44 miles from Barcelona.

Victory in 3 Weeks

Travellers reaching the border from Barcelona said the insurgent advance, which began Dec. 23, was a full week ahead of the very best government general staff thought Franco's men could do. Some said the city might fall within three weeks.

Roads of central and southern Catalonia were jammed with refugees from the zone in which the government's new lines of "secret defences" has been built in the mountains along the border of Barcelona province.

Military reports declared Franco had more than 800 warplanes in the Catalonian campaign "while the government has almost none with which to put up a fight." The ratio between insurgent and government artillery was said in government military circles to be about 6 to 1.

Swansea Chief Is Suspended

SWANSEA, Ont., Jan. 17—(CP)—B. B. Martin, chief constable of this suburban Toronto village the past three years, was suspended by the municipal council last night after investigation of charges that Martin knew months ago of activities of an alleged bookmaking establishment raided Thursday by Toronto and provincial police.

Following a five-hour hearing under the chairmanship of Reeve C. C. Downey, a statement was released which said that "after hearing the information furnished and Chief Martin's explanation, council has suspended the chief pending further investigation and report. Constable Alvin Bennett will be acting chief."

It was learned that information against the alleged bookmaking gang was first sent to Martin by the criminal investigation department. The information was repeated, it was charged, in a later letter sent Martin by provincial police.

"Chief Martin's explanation for his delay after receiving the second letter was not satisfactory," said George Gerring, chairman of the council police committee.

Reeve Downey said that "we believe the present campaign being waged in Toronto is driving the criminal element to suburban areas."

Gerring, in reference to the fact that provincial and Toronto police acted in the raid Thursday said that "from the information it would appear that outside police were justified in coming into our municipality to conduct this raid. No resentment is felt."

Seven men and one woman were arrested in the raid and charged with operating a common gaming house. Alleged betting slips totalling $20,000 were seized.

City Will Get $3,500 Utilities Refund

The Utilities Commission will return to the city council $3,500 from their surplus account in the water division, it was announced at today's meeting of the commission. This is the first time in several years such a move has been made.

Gordon S. Matthews was re-elected chairman of the commission for 1939. This is his 12th year as chairman, his 14th as a member of the commission.

The city's rate for fire protection was set at $20,000 for the coming year, the same figure as last year. In renewing the rate, Chairman Matthews pointed out in conjunction with Manager Ross Dobbin that the renewal was really a better figure than last year in view of the fact the council is now using an additional 40,000 gallons of water each day the streets are flooded. This water was not used prior to purchase of the city's motorized street flusher.

Fleet To Cruise Mediterranean

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP). — The home fleet assembled at Portland today for the annual spring cruise that will take it into the Mediterranean to join the regular Mediterranean patrol.

The cruise is a regular one but it coincides with manoeuvres by the French Atlantic and Mediterranean fleets off the African coast and thus arouses more than usual interest.

The Italian-French dispute centering about Mediterranean colonial prestnge and the Spanish insurgent drive along the coast, with some Italian troops in the insurgent armies, has given added significance to the movements of the two fleets.

The home fleet has been distributed around the British Isles, especially in the North Sea off Scotland, since the Czecho-Slovak crisis last September.

Some of the ships are leaving Portland today for Gibraltar. Others leave later in the wek. They join the Mediterranean fleet at Gibraltar next Monday.

Quietly Getting Ready.

Italy frequently has stated she intended to maintain the status quo in the Mediterranean, in accordance with the Italian-British understanding. This has not removed fears in some military circles here that Germany and Italy are entrenching themselves quietly in Spain and in the Canary and Balearic Islands.

Usually reliable quarters insist Germany already has mapped naval bases along the Spanish Bay of Biscay coast. British naval circles believe Germany could cripple the flow of war materials to Great Britain and France, if the Nazis could use Spanish ports for their projected new fleet of "minnow submarines."

Britain was said to be trying to counter this potential disadvantage by solidifying her relations with Portugal who is her "oldest ally."

Drew Demands Mackenzie Quit

Scheduled to speak in Kirkland Lake today, Col. Drew, in an address here last night, charged Mr. Mackenzie with "gross betrayal of public trust" in connection with the Bren gun contract.

Col. Drew urged Canadians—Liberals or Conservatives—to demand Prime Minister Mackenzie King "to restore faith in Canada's democratic system of government" by demanding Mr. Mackenzie resign "next week."

"Those whose responsibility it is to arm Canada have shown the aptitude of Rip Van Winkles" said Col. Drew, charging that recent air force contracts awarded by the department for war-planes were for ships outdated by three or four years.

He said that he doubted if in the history of Canada, press dispatches had been circulated "so deliberately false as those released by the department of national defence on the Bren gun inquiry."

"Mr. Mackenzie's publicity man would have you believe that the government has been exonerated by the inquiry. There is not one word dealing with exoneration in any of the 52 pages of the report."

Institute Plans To Send Help To Large Family

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 17. — Mrs. R. J. McKnight, president of the local branch of the Women's Institute, had charge of the opening business period of the meeting held on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke kindly extending the hospitality of her home for the gathering.

The treasurer, Mrs. Melville Ball, reported bills paid, leaving a balance of $22.57 in the bank. It was decided to have a "country store" in the new Community Waiting Room on Saturday, January 28, the group leaders, Mrs. G. O. Fallis, Mrs D. Olan, Mrs. E. C. Richards, and Mrs. B. B. Dawson, being responsible for canvassing their members for donations.

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong read a letter of thanks from Mrs. E. Tripp of Harcourt, Ontario, for a box of clothing, yarn, etc., sent her recently, and another appeal came from a young-mother, Mrs. Allen Gill of Torey Hill, who has seven children and is in need of help. It was decided to ask each member for contributions to be left with Mrs. E. C. Richards, the box to be packed within the next two weeks. The children range from fourteen years to a baby of six months, and a coat for the oldest girl was particularly mentioned, though any good second-hand clothing will be welcomed.

Letters of thanks for baskets of Christmas cheer were read from Miss Nellie Finnimore and Mrs. J. McBride.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Olan and her group, opening with "O Canada," followed by a talk on "Canadian Industries" by Mrs. W. E. Ball, the making of cellophane, for which the factory is at Shawinigan Falls, Quebec, and the many uses to which this remarkable modern product is put; also the romantic story of the bringing of gums and resins from the far corners of the north for the making of varnishes and shellacs, being the two industries studied.

Miss Ruth Thorndyke gave a reading, describing a Canadian-made rug, in blue, rose and beige, which will go toward the furnishing the room in Rideau Hall, Ottawa, which will be occupied by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth when she visits this country, in company with King George next May.

The rug was made by the rural women of Cape Breton, and was purchased by Lady Tweedsmuir when she visited the Royal Winter Fair last November.

The usual vote of thanks was extended to the hostess, and the meeting dismissed, the place for the February gathering to be announced later.

who approached his car as he backed it from a suburban York township driveway. The men seized him before he handed over the money, he told police. He said he believed one of the men carried a gun.

Madeline Benson, hosiery shop attendant, handed over $20 to a man who gave her a note telling her to hand over the cash. She did not see a gun, she told police.

Buckle Saves Life

A metal belt buckle was credited with possibly saving the life of Leon Bury, 38, Montreal, yesterday. His 27-year-old wife faces two charges of attempted murder.

It is alleged that Mrs. Bury, who arrived here Saturday from Montreal, fired four shots from a revolver during an argument in a room here occupied by Bury.

One of the bullets was deflected by the buckle. Two others struck Marie Witwicka, 21, in the hip. Marie is said to be a niece of Mrs. Bury. She is in hospital where her condition is not considered serious. The fourth shot went over Mrs. Bury's shoulder into the wall of the room. Bury is held as a material witness.

Police said Peter Andrews, 33, would be charged with wounding after Julie Borys, 27, was found lying on the floor of a Toronto rooming house last night in a pool of blood. She had been stabbed four times in the chest, arms and legs but her condition is not serious.

Michael Zap, a roomer, found the girl when he investigated screams. He told police that Andrews was standing in the room near the girl with a long knife protruding from his chest. Andrews condition is not serious.

Three Arrests made

A special squad of city police, formed since the Windsor murder, to investigate "shakedowns" of handbook operators and bootleggers, arrested three Toronto men in their homes last night.

Richard Luckock, 22, is held on charges of armed robbery and robbery with violence. Albert Follett, 21, is charged with Luckock on the robbery with violence count. The third man, whose name was withheld, was charged with vagrancy.

Follett and Luckock are charged with robbery with violence of Fred Tansley, Toronto, through entering his premises and stealing beer Jan. 11. Police also believe Luckock is one of four men who forced their way into the home of William Wittingham Jan. 12 and robbed him of $5 at gun-point.

Mayor Ralph Day announced last night he would ask Chief Constable D. C. Draper for an explanation of several police chases by automobile of a gang of thieves early yesterday in which none was apprehended.

The thieves broke into six dry cleaning shops in the north and east end of the city within 77 minutes. Earlier, assisted by five accomplices in another car, the gang attempted to rob three other stores.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Jan. 17 — (C.P.). — Lack of export interest and presence of light offerings pushed futures fractionally lower to-day on Winnipeg Wheat Market in dull trading. Closing prices were ¼ to ⅛ cent lower, with May at 61⅞, July 62⅛ and October 62⅞ cents.

Bulk of the business was made up of routine operations and some spreading involving sales of May wheat against purchases of July. A suggestion of minor mill buying also was noted. Unconfirmed Canadian wheat export business was placed around 100,000 bushels.

Liverpool prices closed ¼d lower to ⅛d higher.

Girls Of Bible Class Honor Their Teacher

In a beautiful and impressive service held at the close of the Sunday School Sunday Afternoon, Mrs. L. H. Deyman, teacher of St. John's Girls' Bible Class, conducted the installation of officers for the year 1939 as follows: Honorary President, Mrs. L. H. Deyman; president, Miss Doris Davis; vice-president, Miss Aileen Sisson; secretary, Miss Gwen Record; treasurer, Miss Eva Clarke.

A jolly sing-song and supper followed, when twenty girls sat down to a banquet prepared by the girls of the class under the direction of Miss Norma Pammett, refreshment convener. A pleasant event took place at the close, when Miss Aileen Sisson, retiring president, presented the class teacher, Mrs. Deyman, with a cameo necklace as a mark of appreciation from the members.

Miss Gladys McNevin Presented At Drawing-Room

Miss Gladys McNevin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McNevin, M.P., Omemee, and Miss Jean Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gordon, Lindsay, were among those presented to Their Excellencies, Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, at the Drawing Room on Friday evening in Ottawa.

Miss McNevin's blonde loveliness was enhanced by a pink sheer chiffon gown, a bouffant creation with beautiful, intricate beading at the waist, and fashionable low decolletage. Miss Gordon was stunning in bouffant white taffeta, with a low, finely pleated neckline and narrow shoulder straps. A rhinestone clip at the neckline and rhinestone bands trimming pockets at the waist made a very lovely gown. Tiny buttons fastened the shirred effect at the back.

Both young ladies wore the traditional feathers and veil, and carried Colonial bouquets of sweetheart roses, lily of the valley, and forget-me-nots.

At the Opening of Parliament Miss McNevin was gowned in mauve taffeta, with matching bolero jacket and frilled skirt, and Miss Gordon wore mauve shot taffeta, with skirt banding of deep mauve velvet.

We Noticed

...Here is good news girls...new fashion forecasts tell of the wimple, which is a type of scarf attached to a doll hat. The wimple ties under the chin and covers the ears—a wonderful thing for this weather, say we.

✧ ✧ ✧

...Local girls are going them one better by wearing the wimple without the hat—many of them are wearing woolly hoods that were created for skiing only, and one ingenious young lady we know fashioned a smart skating hood, perky, fringed scarf attached for extra cosiness, from a discarded muffler of warm and popular Scotch plaid—looks like a mutiny against the ridiculous little hats that are no warmer than a hair ribbon, doesn't it?

✧ ✧ ✧

...We are also told by advance fashion bits that Victorian sailors, real turbans and bicornes have replaced "doll" sailors, turbans and tricornes, and for late spring and early summer picture hats will be popular. All of which makes up think that there is going to be a mild revolution in the fashion world, since sailors do call for something a little less "bewitchingly feminine" in the clothes line, don't you think?

The Crow of Croup Worries the Mother

When the child wakes up in the night with a croupy cough, spasmodic croup, it strikes terror to the mother's heart.

The child can scarcely speak, can hardly breathe, and seems to be choking.

There is no time for delay; apply hot poultices to the throat and upper part of the chest, and give Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. We know of nothing better to give prompt relief. It is absolutely safe, does not contain any habit forming drugs, and will help to soothe the infected membranes, stop the irritation and subdue the inflammation.

DOROTHY DIX

Don't Acquire The Self-Pity Habit—Often You May Have a Priceless Jewel In The Way Of a Husband And Not Appreciate Your Possession Until Too Late.

DEAR MISS DIX—I lost my husband several months ago and the bitterest drop in my cup of grief is that I did not appreciate him until he was gone. Like so many other wives, I was given to self-pity. I felt myself neglected if my husband did not come home bringing me candy or flowers, or if he forgot my birthday. It never occurred to me to remember that he had never spoken a cross word to me and that he was always kind and thoughtful and loyal. I write this in the hope that some other woman married to a good man will appreciate her blessing before it is too late.—LONELY.

ANSWER:

I hope so, too, for it always seems to me that one of the greatest tragedies in the world is that so few people ever appreciate the blessings they have, or know that they are happy when they are happy. It is only after sorrow comes to them that they realize that they once held a priceless jewel in their hands and that they never noticed it or enjoyed it while it was in their possession.

I know a woman who had a splendid and devoted husband who was kindness and tenderness itself to her. She had fine children, a beautiful home and enough money to supply her with every comfort, but she was always unhappy, discontented and fretful. She found continual fault with her husband. He didn't like to go to parties. He liked to read of evenings. He wasn't romantic. He was too much interested in his business.

She was always wailing over being tied down by the children; about their being noisy and mischievous; the way they wore out their shoes and outgrew their clothes. Her house wasn't as handsome as some other woman's and was on the wrong street, etc., etc. Life was just one gloom and disappointment after another to her.

Then the husband died and she lost her children in a terrible automobile accident. Her property was swept away from her by the depression. Now she is a lonely and forlorn old woman who spends her time talking about how happy she used to be, how good her husband was, how she adored her children and what a fine home she used to live in. But she valued none of them at the time.

A lot of women are like my friend. They acquire the self-pity habit, which is every whit as demoralizing as the dope habit. They get drunk on their own tears and they get a sadistic pleasure in torturing themselves over imaginary wrongs.

I am continually appalled over the little things which women let ruin their lives and the way in which they can conjure up bogey men with which to scare themselves. A woman will break her heart, for instance, over her husband having ceased to love her because he doesn't act like Clark Gable in the movies instead of an overworked business man in real life. She will consider herself a poor, neglected creature if he forgets her birthday, and she will think of divorce and that life with him is impossible if he turns on the light when she has a yen for the dimness of candles.

Certainly it is the irony of fate that we so often never realize how much we loved our husbands or wives, or how kind they were to us until they are gone where our remorse and our grief cannot follow them, and when we pour into deaf ears the appreciation and the admiration that would have made them so happy while they were living.

DEAR MISS DIX — We are the parents of a grown family, all of whom are married and have homes of their own, except one son, who lost his job during the depression and who came to live with us with his wife and two children, as they had nowhere else to go. The arrangement has been most unpleasant, as our daughter-in-law is very inconsiderate of us, uses the house as if it were her own and almost pushes us out of it. She has a great deal of company and never introduces us to any of her friends, and monopolizes the dining room so much that we often have to eat in our own room. The children are spoiled and noisy and impudent. One of them said to me the other day that she wished I would go away as when I died THEY were going to have the house. I am not well and all this confusion is making me very nervous. Our other children want us to sell the house and build a small bungalow. My son has got a job now, but he is badly in debt and wants to stay with us, as it is so much cheaper and they have no rent to pay. What should we do? — MOTHER OF SIX.

ANSWER:

That's easy. If you have the backbone of a fishing worm, you will make your son take his disagreeable brood and leave and get a home of his own. There is no reason why he should run you out of your own house, and you are very foolish and weak to let him do it.

One of the most depressing things about the whole depression was the lack of appreciation and gratitude that so many young people showed when their parents took them in with their wives or husbands and children when they lost their jobs and would have been in the bread line except that Mother and Father divided their homes and their food with them.

In many cases the parents had a scant living for themselves, their houses were small, but they never shut their doors in their children's faces. They crowded up closer together and sliced the bread thinner, and so long as the old people had a cent it went for milk for the grandbabies.

But instead of being down on their knees in gratitude to their parents, oftener than not Tom and Sally and Tom's wife and Sally's husband vented their rebellion at the hard luck they were having and the sacrifices they were having to make on the poor old folk, and did everything they could to make things even more unpleasant than they were.

Evidently that is your case, and you should have spirit enough not to stand for it.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Has a girl the right to ask her boy friend who comes to see her every night in the week if he loves her?—A. B.

ANSWER:

She should ask him a much more searching question than that. She should ask him his views about marriage and when he is going to set the wedding day. A girl is very silly if she lets a boy monopolize her time and attention and shut her off from some suitor who means business when his attentions have no intention.

Grooming From Ground Up Most Important

Regardles sof her makeup and the way she wears the rest of her clothes, the woman whose shoes and stockings aren't neat and trim just isn't perfectly groomed. Crooked seams, run-over heels, un-brushed suede or unpolished kidskin will spoil the appearance of any other smart costume.

Gone are the days when every other woman had a perfect right to say, "I never can get stockings the right length or find sheer ones which will give fair service."

Now, if you are diligent in your search, it's possible to find sheer stockings that will wear and wear and wear. That is, if you ask for the right size in the first place. And, of course, several of the hosiery manufacturers put out, long, medium and short lengths in each shade they feature. By all mean ask for a special length. If your stockings are too short, your garters will stretch and pull and weaken the threads. If they're too long, they'll wrinkle easily.

Naturally, it's a mistake to wear ultra sheer, one or two-thread stockings to the office or on a hike through the fields, or even on a strenuous shopping tour. Such fragile hose are for dancing and dressup. Buy three-thread ones for ordinary, day in and day out wear, and four-thread types for golf, the country, riding and the like.

Always remember to wash stockings immediately after each wearing. Don't wait until the next morning. If you want the stockings to wear well, wash them before going to bed. New ones ought to be rinsed in lukewarm water and allowed to dry thoroughly before being worn even once.

Keeping toenails short and smooth and backs of heels free from callouses will add days to the life of your stockings. Putting them on correctly—that is, rolling them down, smoothing them over feet, then rolling instead of pulling them upward —is a help, too.

Millbrook Cadets Sponsor Dance

MILLBROOK, Jan. 17. — The Cadet Corps sponsored a successful dance in the Armouries, with evidently no fear of the jinx date, Friday the thirteenth, the attendance being large and the event characterized as "the best for several years."

Music was furnished by Jack Grant and his Aces of Havelock, and the lucky spot dance was won by Ross Armstrong and Eleanor Bigelow. The Cadets had a booth where hot dogs, sandwiches, and coffee could be purchased at the supper hour, and financially the Corps benefited to a substantial extent. The money is being raised to help in sending the local rifle team for the annual competition at Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, next summer.

Warsaw Personals

The dance in aid of the hockey fund on Friday evening was a huge success. Leahy brothers provided the music and a feature of the evening was the draw for a bag of flour for which tickets had been sold. Garfield Crowe was the winner. Supper was served by Mrs. Ruby Payne and the party broke up about 1.30 a.m.

The social evening sponsored by the Women's Institute on Thursday night was a very pleasant affair. Games of all kinds from bingo to chess were supplied and all took part. Several selections were rendered by Miss Jean Payne. The members served supper at eleven o'clock and games then continued until about one.

Some men are having to quit cutting wood as there is not sufficient snow in the woods.

Winter's sleet storms have always been a terror to telephone men—damage to telephone lines has often run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. But today sleet is less of a menace than it used to be. This is due to improved methods of construction—a greater proportion of line (local and long distance) in aerial cable, replacing open wire.

Of one thing you may be sure—your telephone service will be restored in the shortest possible time in the event of damage—whether by sleet or from any other cause. "The call must go through" is the long-time slogan of telephone people everywhere.

The Magistrate Is Right

Magistrate O. A. Langley had something to say to those who appeared before him in local court on the charge of being drunk, and what he said is something which needed saying.

He is growing tired of the old custom of a person facing a drunk charge asking that his case be remanded. The magistrate knows the reasons for the request and suggests it would be well for the one who deliberately goes out and drinks himself into the condition of drunkenness should see there is sufficient money left in the pocket to pay the fine.

The absence of such currency is often enough the reason why the remand is asked for. The accused figures that if he can secure a few days by remand he may be able to raise enough to pay the fine which he has reason — and good reason—to believe will be imposed. In that way he is able to escape the alternative of going to jail for not being able to pay.

The custom is old but a nuisance as well. When a man becomes intoxicated that is his own doing, and if he is made to realize that he will have to pay a fine when appearing in court he might see the light. Asking for a remand keeps the court cluttered up with old cases and the magistrate is on the right set of rails when he gives warning that he intends to have drunk cases dealt with when they first appear.

He Did His Work Well

Dan Douglas, superintendent of the Employment Service in Peterborough, has been transferred to Toronto. Reporters know Mr. Douglas because they frequently call at his office, and one of them made this remark: "The people who will miss him most are those whom he has been trying to help."

It is not an easy task nor yet a comfortable one to be in a place month after month dealing with people who come looking for work, especially when there is often nothing to which they can turn a hand. If there was anything Dan Douglas could find for a man to do he would get it, but he would have to listen many times a day to the troubles of those who came to him; listen too while they abused employers and society in general. But Dan Douglas never lost his patience; to use a more common phrase, he never became "hard-boiled." We believe it is true to say that he was sympathetic always with the men to whom he had too often to give the answer that he had nothing for them.

A man in that position hears more hard-luck stories than the most of people, and it is right enough to say that many a man went away from the employment office feeling perhaps less bitter after talking to Dan Douglas. If there was work to be given out it was always the Douglas policy to place it with the man best qualified to fill the position. In that way he believed he could create the greatest amount of confidence in the ability of his office to provide the man needed for a position.

Moving Mr. Douglas to Toronto probably means promotion for him, but he was a good man to have in the community, sincere and helpful, and it is rather a neat tribute the reporter paid when he said "The people who will miss him most are those whom he has been trying to help."

The Gun Is To Blame

London, Ont., is regarded as a good city, a normal and sensible sort of place, but it had two hold-ups on a recent afternoon and evening, and two men with guns are blamed for both.

In the first place these men entered a grocery store well out from the centre of the city at 6.30. They would go in then because business is not brisk at that time of day, and the only person in the store was the daughter of the man who owned the place. The guns were brought into display and money was secured from the till. When it came to getting away there was trouble and it is recorded the thugs shot their way to freedom.

A short time after the same men undertook to hold up Jack McEllister who was driving a truck. Again they had their revolvers, but the truck driver apparently did not mind as he tackled the man closest to him and punched him in the face, after which the two men with two guns started to run and made their escape to their car.

Does that mean much or anything at all? Apparently the mugs were bold enough when pointing guns at a defenceless girl in a store; they were great fellows and unafraid then, but when they tackled a man who had some fight in him and some fists to show that he had they turned tail and ran away.

The possession of a gun gave to them a feeling of superiority until that feeling was actually challenged by a braver and more fearless man. If there were no guns there would be mighty few hold-ups.

Make It Definite

Attorney-General Conant claims that in almost every case where provincial police have been planning for a raid on gambling and bookmaking establishments the plans have been frustrated. Some person has tipped off the establishment that the police are likely to arrive, so when the officers get there all evidence has been removed.

That seems to be about as far as the Attorney-General went in making his charge, and it does seem that in coming to such an abrupt ending he has either said too much or too little.

It would indicate that the tip off was furnished by some person who had inside knowledge of what the police were going to do, and such information would be known to the police and to no other individuals. So as the matter stands the charge is that the police themselves in some instances are guilty of double-crossing.

A matter of that kind is much better attended to right out in the open. There are police—plenty of them—who would not countenance anything of that kind, and yet they come under the Conant charge just as surely as do the police who have been guilty of tipping off the gamblers. A general and a veiled charge is not desirable. Much better to point the finger in a definite direction.

Il Duce Looks Both Ways

There is one reason why Italy dropped out of the Triple Alliance during the world war. That alliance was composed of Germany, Italy and Austria-Hungary. In that agreement Italy had inserted a clause saying that if it came to a matter of war with Great Britain then Italy was to be counted out. Of course the present Mussolini had nothing to do with that, but the clause can hardly be pushed to one side as insignificant. At the same time Il Duce has shown that back of all his moves he has one interest only—trying to find the best for Italy. Nor is one inclined to blame him for that as all the other nations are doing the same thing.

This here-and-there trait is readily traced. In 1934 Mussolini was courting Hitler, whom he regarded as his pupil. In the following year he was not quite so certain and made friendly gestures toward M. Laval of France; in 1936 there were negotiations with Britain, and later a swing toward Berlin which was to last through Munich. The Italian dictator is a shrewd observer, and those close to him are certain he had decided before Munich that there was not going to be a war. Why? Because it takes two to make a quarrel or a war, and in this case Hitler was taking a strong stand while France and Britain were not approaching the situation in a spirit of pugnacity. That was the reason for the Mussolini speech shortly after in which he abused the democracies. He could get off the fence and have his say knowing there would be no lumps on the Italian skin as a result.

Mussolini has not yet collected from Hitler and it is not likely he will. There was a time when Italy sent an army north to keep Austria secure as a buffer state between the countries of the two dictators, but Hitler now has taken squatter's rights on the land so zealously guarded by Italy in other years. Mussolini may tolerate it, but he cannot admire it. Mussolini's real problem is the boot-shape of southern Italy where it has such a long coast line in an easily closed sea, and he is well aware what Britain could do there in case of war. Many rather shrewd observers do not place much weight in what is known as the Berlin-Rome axis; it is a union of convenience, and as long as Britain remains a power in the Mediterranean the astute Mussolini is very likely to see that the road to Downing Street in London is not allowed to become closed.

Much In a Few Words

It frequently happens when a man passes away newspapers run a number of tributes from those who knew him and appreciated his worth. Such tributes are sincere and the custom is a good one. If there is any fault to be found with it then it comes in saying fitting things about a person when he can no longer hear them.

Rev. G. R. Finch died in Toronto the other day, and he had been superintendent of Toronto City Mission for sixteen years. Prior to that he had been pastor of churches in several places, but for the most part they were small. We never heard him spoken of as one of the great preachers.

When he died there was mention in the papers of the work he had been doing and there were these words in the announcement:

It would take a great many prepared statements and dictated tributes to equal all that is contained within the scope of those few words. We dare say if Mr. Finch himself could look back and see those few words he would be satisfied that his work had not been in vain.

Personal Journalism

It has been stated several times that the days of personal journalism have passed. We have always hesitated to believe that is the case and today our faith has been made stronger by the rural correspondent who records in a weekly paper this item:

"The folks can always tell by seeing George how the roads are on the 8th line. If he takes the car then the roads are open but if he hitches up in the cutter then the 8th isn't so good. It would take more than a blizzard to keep George away from the 8th."

Now if that isn't personal journalism in a robust way we do not know what to call it, and there's something to be said for it. We don't know George and we have no idea where the 8th line is, but even at this distance we can gather a fairly accurate picture of the whole field. George has a young lady on the 8th and he is in the habit of calling, and apparently his visits are quite frequent. And we gather he is no trifler. When the neighbors see him going past they know for certain where he is going to land; he is not seeking to spread his attentions or his affections over the whole township. For that reason we like George. He is of good old stock.

What's more he is giving tangible evidence that he is not to be easily turned aside when he feels the urge to go and call upon the young lady in whom his affections are centred. If he can't make it through the drifts in the car, then the good old horse and cutter can get through on the young lady will understand just what the visit has cost in way of effort and determination to get there. And she'll appreciate that too.

Probably some more erudite writers would class this form of recording events in a rural community as something which should never be done; they would frown upon it with a great frown. But it comes as something fresh; we feel from reading it that we know George as a desirable young man and we are inclined to wish him well.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The debate on the Speech from the Throne is under way at Ottawa. And it is known in advance that any amendments will be defeated because the Government has sufficient voting power. The debate might as well be eliminated.

Toronto building commissioner says no more large office buildings or apartments should be erected unless provision is made for adequate off-street parking space. The rule so far has been to build and then put in parking regulations telling people where not to leave their cars.

St. Catharines Standard says standing room was at a premium when the inaugural meeting of the 1939 City Council took place, and remarks also that in Peterborough two attendants were in the gallery. Civic loyalty should prompt us to say something rugged in reply to that mild impeachment, but the plain truth is that what the St. Catharines paper says is quite true. We elect men, trust they will do their best with our business, and then do not go out to see them start on the year's run. No use mincing words about it. We are guilty on that count.

WEE ANGUS

¶ Wee Angus' record's full of woes, for he is hard upon his clothes, he has a lot of fun; but nearly every day it means, there's work to do upon his jeans, more patching to be done.

¶ When he plays hockey up the lane, he comes in limping like and lame, he's lost a piece of skin; he gets some bruises here and there, but if he up and scored a pair, it seems all right with him.

¶ It's when he slides upon the hill, he seems to get the greatest thrill, he goes most every day; I notice though when he gets back, I never see a new-made track, he doesn't use his sleigh.

¶ And yesterday he told me twice, the hill is covered now with ice, the greatest place in town; much better than to use a sleigh, is sliding in the newer way, by sitting right flat down.

¶ Each night I see him coming in, his trousers look alarming thin, and they are hard to match; yet there is needed something strong, for what he has won't last too long, it needs a rugged patch.

¶ If he slides down like that much more, he'll have his pants worn out and tore, cold winds will strike on him; I'll have to get my tinsmith friend, to see if he can cut and bend—a seat made out of tin.

WHAT OF MOSCOW?

Hitler's strategy is to ensure non-interference by the western democracies whilst he completes his eastern ambitions. These would ensure him all the material and food supplies, including oil, needed for his already overwhelming military manpower.

When he has securely built up his self-supporting Central European citadel, and not before, Hitler will deal with the question of Germany's demand for colonies, and maybe turn to settle that dateless vendetta with France.

The vital question is what will be Moscow's reactions to any Ukrainian aggression. The belief in well-informed quarters is that Russia will fight, and that it has been a clear perception of Germany's plan that has kept Moscow from embroiling itself with Japan over China.

Apparently Berlin thinks that Russia will either be left to fight a lone hand, or that, if France comes in, Germany will be strong enough, with her western fortress line, to hold the west while she demolishes Russia in the east.—London Cor. Ottawa Journal.

DON'T GO NEAR WATER.

If you got one of the popular electric razors for a Christmas present, keep your mind on your work when you are shaving. Don't forget you have an electric razor. It is bad form to dip the electric gadget in the water, as though it were a brush and soap.

Not only is it bad form, but if you stick the electric razor in the water, bang, bang, bang, and out go the lights, to say nothing of scaring you out of a week's growth of beard. —Windsor Star.

• It Looks Like A Year Of Peace

THE DECISION of a "draw" in regard to the talks between the British and Italian premiers at Rome seems to fit the situation. It appears to have been a nice, friendly bout, neither man giving nor taking heavy punishment and none of the spectators getting very excited about it, except one reporter says, the Duce's son-in-law and Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, who was vocal from the bleachers. If reports be true, and there is no reason to doubt it, it was the invisible influence of Chancellor Hitler of Germany that was most felt at the meeting, having, it is said, previously advised Mussolini not to be dictatorial toward Chamberlain and demand this and that, but to accept the present situation for a year at any rate. After that—?

We stated a few days ago, says St. Thomas Times Journal, that we saw no reason why Premier Chamberlain should go to Rome as he was not authorized to act as mediator between Italy and France and there was nothing he could offer himself. If he had done so it would have meant a breach in the agreement already concluded by Britain and Italy. All he could do, and apparently did do, was to hear at first hand what Mussolini wants and perhaps elucidate things a little further, then tell him why those wants could not be satisfied. He could listen much and say little, and he could pass on to the French statesmen what transpired. But of action there was none and could be none. In a way it was a meeting of an irresistible body and an immovable object, and fortunately it was held without a head-on collision because both probably foresaw the trend of the conference before they met. However, the discussions will have accomplished good if they have led to a better understanding of each other's aims and difficulties. One satisfactory factor is that any fears that Mr. Chamberlain would give anything away in "the spirit of Munich" have been dissipated.

Premier Mussolini was credited with exercising a restraining hand at Munich; Chancellor Hitler appears to have performed the same office at Rome. It was believed Mussolini was unwilling to be dragged into a fight in order to gain something for Germany. There is no doubt Hitler is unwilling to be a war partner of Il Duce in order to gain something for Italy. If Mussolini had decided to fight for Germany the war would have been very unpopular in Italy; if Hitler decided to fight for Italy the war would be very unpopular in Germany. The conference at Rome is fresh and encouraging evidence that the danger of war is receding and is less likely than it was a few months ago. There is the possibility that Hitler may start a conflagration over the Ukranians, but if he does, Chamberlain is not the man to fight over a drive to the East. Mussolini will still feel that there is something coming to him by way of recompense for his support of Germany at Munich, and in the event of Hitler making a spring the Fascist chief, encouraged by his bellicose son-in-law, might be inspired to attempt a Mediterranean coup. Meantime, however, Great Britain is apparently assured a substantial period of preparation, during which time Italy is still pouring men, money and munitions into the Spainish and Ethiopian ventures. Six months or a year from now the British rearmament and defence programs should be so far advanced as to cause Mussolini to ponder very seriously whether Italy had better remain, as he publicly declared after the collapse of Ethiopia, a satisfied country.

• Jews Out; Now Short Of Doctors

IT is announced that the period of training for doctors at the universities has been cut by a year. Previously seven years were needed by the medical student before he could qualify fully as a practitioneer.

He studied 12 terms of six months, taking his final examinations in the last term. From then followed two more terms, during which he practised unofficially, as it were, before receiving his final diploma and being entitled to set up as a registered medical practitioner. The period of study has now been reduced to 10 six-month terms, but the two terms of practical work have been retained.

There is a general shortage of men in the profession, including school teachers, but the shortage in the medical profession is particularly acute because of the recent removal of Jews.

The medical profession was one in which the Jews were particularly strongly represented. In 1935 there were 4,800 "non-Aryan" doctors in Germany, not including Austria. When a few weeks ago Jews were debarred altogether from the medical profession it is calculated that somewhere between 3,000 and 4,000 doctors were removed from the register in Germany alone.

Since the removal of the Jews the work of "Ayran" doctors has been greatly increased, probably out of proportion to the actual number of Jews removed, for Jewish doctors were especially popular among the poorer classes.

• Long Time To See The Light

LAST JULY the eastern railroads, hard pressed for revenue, obtained permission of the ICC to increase passenger fares. By raising the basic rate for coach travel from 2 to 2.5 cents a mile, and with slightly increasing Pullman charges, they hoped to obtain larger receipts. They didn't. Instead, says The Cleveland Plain Dealer, they lost more trade to busses and private autos.

The road's passenger business continued sour in spite of the general improvement of conditions in the summer and fall. At Christmas time lower rates were again put into effect for holiday travel. Immediately the traffic jumped far beyond the passenger agents' expectations. Apparently the public is eager to buy rail transportation at moderate rates, but will not go by train when it deems fares too high.

This is what the Baltimore and Ohio, alone among the major eastern lines, has long argued. Its insistence upon lower fares helped bring about the ICC order of 1936 which set the 2-cent base rate. Reluctantly it joined its competitors last year in seeking the 25 per cent. increase.

Now other leading eastern roads are privately admitting that B. and O. was right all the time. A committee of presidents is expected to report this month in favor of a lower-fare policy. It has taken some railroad managements a long time to realize that their lines no longer have a monopoly on land transportation.

OBEYING THE LAW.

WORKMEN in a Chicago power house celebrated the advent of the New Year by turning a wheel.

It was a notable occasion, though Chicago may not think so. The turning of the wheel marked the end of Chicago's stealing of her Great Lakes neighbors' water, the ultimate and reluctant obedience to the Supreme Court decree which limits her diversion of Lake Michigan into the Chicago River to 1,500 cubic feet a second.

Hereafter 1,500, and no more, will wash away Chicago wastes. No longer will the big city on the windy corner of Lake Michigan play the selfish neighbor to all the rest of the Great Lakes basin. Long ago the courts reproved her bad manners and told her to mend her ways. Now she obeys the law—at last.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

COSTER'S REPROOF.

A few months before F. Donald Coster committed suicide, he conferred with the head of his liquor department regarding the purchase of another company which had been offered to McKesson, Robbins. "I studied those reports and advise against it," Coster was told. "The officials of that company came to me and offered me $50,000 to approve the deal. So I told them it's all off." "You shouldn't have done that," Coster declared. "What you should've done is approve the deal, take the $50,000—and turn it over to our company."—(Leonard Lyons, in New York Post.)

GERMAN RETRIBUTION.

Bad as it is, it (the world boycott) is not the only and perhaps not the most important blow in the Reich's economic fabric resulting from the anti-Jewish mania. Of all racial groups, the Jews are conspicuous for their genius in commerical enterprise. The Nazis have had the stupid notion that by driving the Jews from business and confiscating their property they were merely placing the trade under Aryan auspices, where it would flourish equally. But while the transfer of capital is within the power of a human dictator, the transfer of the genius which put it to profitable work is not. Hence Germany suffers today not only from a want of foreign exchange but from a scarcity of first-class middlemen in her domestic commerce.—(New York Herald Tribune)

CONTROL NECESSARY.

Mayor Bone, of Belleville, is very critical of government restrictions on civic financing. But events have proved that control over civic borrowing by some higher authority —in Ontario by its Municipal Board —is most essential. If such close supervision had been practised in pre-depression days we should have had fewer Ontario municipalities defaulting on their bond payments. Mayor Bone's idea of dipping into sinking funds for current expenditures seems to indicate the kind of financier he is.—(Ottawa Journal)

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Is there an appointed time to man upon earth? are not his days also like the days of an hireling? . . . My days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle, and are spent without hope. O remember that my life is wind; mine eye shall no more see good. . . .

For we are but of yesterday, and know nothing, because our days upon earth are a shadow.—Job vii, 1, 6, 7; viii, 9.

To The Editor

TOO SIMPLE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Joseph Corbett of London, general chairman, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, C.N.R. System, has recently written to several Canadian newspapers, expounding an ingenious plan for the solution of Canada's railway problem. While it is encouraging to find representatives of railway labor giving serious thought to a subject that is of vital concern to them, it is questionable whether Mr. Corbett's plan, if it could be put into effect, would do more than hasten national bankruptcy.

The gist of Mr. Corbett's plan is contained in the following recommendation: "The Government, through the Bank of Canada, to recall all C.N.R. bonds, giving the bondholders credit in the Bank of Canada for the face value of their bonds. The security for the bank credit to be durable wealth represented by the railway property—the same security as at present for the bonds. The C.N.R. operating surplus to be used to cancel the capital investment."

What such a procedure would amount to is simply inflation. The Government would print paper money to replace the bonds and a few revolutions of the printing presses would wipe out our liabilities on that account. But why stop there? Why not redeem all the national debt in the same manner? Why not carry the process a step further, and instead of raising money for our national requirements through taxes, always unpopular, why not simply print paper money each year to the extent that it may be needed? There must be a catch somewhere.

The catch, of course, is in the diminishing value of the proposed paper dollars. As the new money appeared, there would be a wild scramble to exchange it for goods. Within a few months, what is now a comfortable monthly income in terms of dollars might be sufficient to buy a new toothbrush. Wages and salaries would have to be continually adjusted upwards to keep pace with the soaring cost of commodities. Mortgages would be paid off in the worthless currency and mortgage and insurance companies would be wiped out. The whole dismal process was carried out in Germany. Hitler and his Nazis are a by-product.

The railway problem will not be solved by repudiation and inflation. No responsible government would venture to advocate such a policy, for it would be political suicide.

Italians Resort To Face-Spitting As France Jibes At Duce's Navy

ROME, Jan. 17 — (AP).—Italian veterans to-day sent back French medals they won in the Great War and some newspapers spoke of a "spit in the face" for France as bitterness against the neighbor across the Alps reached a new peak.

The Fascist Extremist newspaper Il Tevere declared 44,000,000 Italians "spit in the face of the third Republic" which "patiently is wiping its face with sheets of its newspapers."

Brig.-General Silvio Musino, retired officer of Turin, started the movement to return the medals by sending his Croix de Guerre to a Rome newspaper.

He proposed that Italian veterans send in all their French decorations to be returned to the President of France. The medals promptly began to pour in with letters of disgust at having "defended swinish France."

Resent Any Aid to Spain.

French disparagement of the Italian army and navy and a Fascist belief that Paris was considering send ing aid to the government side in the Spanish Civil War stirred the resentment.

Il Messaggero attacked a statement attributed to the Paris Midi that "only imperious necessity can make Italian sailors lose sight of their native shore," which was published in all papers beneath indignant headlines.

"The 'imperious necessity' is about to become apparent," Il Messaggero said. "If provocations continue, other shores will be visited soon by sailors of His Italian Majesty."

Il Popolo di Roma demanded to know whether France desired to "push an already red-hot situation toward the irrevocable." If it should, the newspaper said, "the Italian people would be found 're ' as if for a feast day.' "

The "ignoble language of the French press," Il Popolo added, "constitutes, insofar as it expresses the state of mind of all France, an insurmountable barrier to world pacification.

The Spit In The Face

"When such ignoble depths are reached, the pen must give way to the whip applied to the back-sides which are accustomed to German boots; or better yet, as already has been very well said, to a spit in the face."

The Italian government already has warned that Italy would "reassume full liberty of action if foreign assistance went to the Spanish government on a vast scale. An official announcement disclosed Italian soldiers were among the first Spanish Insurgent troops to enter Tarragona, Spanish seaport which fell to the Insurgents Sunday.

Il Messaggero, in its thrust at the Paris press, said that "if a campaign were necessary, which it is not, to inflame minds for war against France, it would be entrusted to the language of the French press better than to us."

In the next war, the paper said, the Italian navy would possess "power—and preparation which the French will be in a position to experience and apreciate to a proper degree."

John E. Houck Will Address Fair Board

John E. Houck of Toronto will be the guest speaker at the annual dinner of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition to be held in the Empress Hotel on Thursday next, the 19th instant, at 6.15 p.m.

Until Mr. Houck resigned to engage in a dairy business of his own in February of 1938 he was chairman of the Ontario Milk Control Board and chairman of the Farm Products Board of this province.

Mr. Houck was always considered to be a representative of the producers as prior to his appointment as chairman of the Ontario Milk Control Board he and his brother operated a 1,100-acre farm in the Niagara Peninsula, and were extensively interested in the dairy business as producers.

Mr. Houck is a graduate of Cornell University and a brother of the Hon. William Houck, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

The mayor and the alderman of the City of Peterborough and the members of the county council among other representative executive heads of local and district organizations will be guests at the dinner.

PORTSMOUTH, England, Jan. 17 — (CP Cable). — The battlecruiser Repulse, at present in dry dock for alterations in preparation for the royal visit to Canada, will be manned with a full crew tomorrow.

The crew will include many men who served in the battleship Royal Oak and have been paid off. About a third of the complement joined the Repulse a fortnight ago.

Fascism Nation's Worst Danger

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—(CP).—Canadian democracy is endangered by both Fascism and Communism but the greater danger is from Fascism, Right Rev. John W. Woodside, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, said in a sermon at his church, Chalmers United, here on Sunday.

Expressing "general agreement" with the statement of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett in Calgary recently that the church has failed in Canada, Dr. Woodside added that democracy has failed also.

Fascism would come unless Canadians did some hard thinking and intelligent planning. Communism was a real danger. 'Here the propagandists of Communism had a very fine soil in which to plant their seed —the mass of unemployed, the homeless," he said.

"I believe the greater danger is Fascism. It gains an entrance and finds a place in a very industrious way. We live in an age when the government and states are asked to do all kinds of things. Men are looking everywhere to the government to care for them. The government looks back, says 'if we are going to accept authority for all the sundry we are going to regulate your life.' The more we push on, the more the government will regulate. Soon the state becomes supreme and that is Fascism."

Mentioning Mr. Bennett's Calgary statement, Dr. Woodside said the church "has failed to do and accomplished much that we have desired. That is not to minimize her great achievements. The man who made that statement knows of her great achievents. But he was right in the sense in which he spoke, that the church has failed."

Car Cracks Lake Ice Two Girls Drown

TICONDEROGA, N.Y., Jan. 17.—(AP).—Dr. L. H. Gaus, Essex county coroner, directed to-day a search of the ice-filled waters of Lake Champlain for the bodies of two persons who drowned there yesterday.

The dead, Marie Bezio, three-year-old daughter of Henry Bezio, and Miss Katherine Snow, 20, both of Ticonderoga, drowned when the car in which they were riding crashed through the ice into 40 feet of water.

Dr. Gaus said Bezio, owne rof the car, was driving across the lake from Fort Ticoneroga to Larabee, Vt. Midway between the two villages the automobile crashed through the ice. Bezio managed to rescue four of his children.

Two Windsor Murder Suspects Are Let Go

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP). — Frank Pallante alias "Dago Kelly," and Albert Adams appeared in Police Court to-day on vagrancy charges and were remanded to January 23 at the Crown's request.

"These men were brought in for questioning in connection with the Jimmy Windsor murder case and I am sure the police are now satisfied they had nothing to do with it," said counsel W. B. Horkins.

Peter Yurik, Steve Yurik, and Melville Silk, arrested on Sunday by detectives investigating the murder of James Windsor, Toronto bookmaker, also appeared on vagrancy charges and were remanded with bail set at $2,000 apiece. The men were questioned for six hours before the charges were laid.

While Chief Constable Draper and Chief Inspector Chisholm questioned the trio on Sunday, witnesses to the Windsor murder were brought to headquarters.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

There was a loud chirping from the window sill. Knarf and Hanid recognized the voice at once. It was their friend Sparrow. They hurried across the room.

"Ah! good-morning. Are my breakfast crumbs ready?" the snarrow greeted them.

"No," said Hanid. 'Not yet. The children are still asleep. But just look at you, Sparrow! You're soaking wet."

"I fell in a very big puddle of water."

"What do you mean?"

"Well! this is what happened. Last night, about dusk, just as I was getting ready to go to sleep in a warm corner of the clock tower at the other end of the town, I met a friend of mine. He was another bird, but he wasn't a sparrow. He was a sea gull. 'Are you hungry?' I asked him. 'I know where you can get los of bread crumbs'."

Never Ate 'Em.

"And what did your friend the sea gull, say?"

"He said he never ate bread crumbs. 'Come along with me in the morning,' he told me. 'I'll show you where to get lots of food.' So," said Sparrow, "I went to sleep very happily. And early this morning, just as the sun was rising, I followed my friend. We flew straight to the bridge over the river, then down the river until it grew very wide. 'This is the bay. It's full of food,' said my friend. 'I don't see any food,' I answered. My friend laughed. 'It swims just under the water. You have to dive for it. Here, watch me!' "

"And did he dive?"

Got a Fish.

"Oh, yes! He dived right down, straight into the water, like a duck. He didn't really go under, though. He came right up again swallowing something. 'Ah! a delicious fish,' he said. 'I've left lots of them there for you. Just dive for them.' So," said the sparrow, "I dived for them." He paused.

"And did you catch a fish?" Hanid asked.

"No, I didn't."

"You mean, you just got a soaking for your trouble?" Knarf put in.

"That's right — just a soaking. No, a sparrow can't be a sea gull. I guess I'll just have to go on eating bread crumbs off window sills."

And that's what Sparrow did, the moment they were put out for him.

Avoided at Dances? Perfect Steps at Home

Jane would learn to keep her hips firmly under her body, her weight forward over the balls of her feet. She'd be relaxed — but not a burden on her partner. And Jane would take long, backward steps so the men wouldn't tramp on her toes.

Easy to zip into the smart dance steps when posture's correct—and you've footprint diagrams showing how to place your feet.

Our 32-page booklet gives step-by-step instructions and diagrams for the lovely waltz, popular tango and rhumba, the smart Westchester, fox-trot and shag. Shows you how to be a popular partner

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, is on her way to the Manor, the luxurious home of the wealthy Witherspoon family. She has agreed to take the place of her friend, kitty, for a week, running the private salon of old Mrs. Witherspoon, an eccentric semi-invalid. The Witherspoon chauffeur takes her to the Manor, where she meets the housekeeper and then the parlor maid. Before retiring Elsie is told to change into her uniform to give Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., her nightly facial. She meets her maid, Eliza.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER FOUR

"COME!" The housekeeper and I were motioned forward. A second door so heavy it permitted no light to shine through, barred our progress. This the other woman opened and we passed into a dimly lit apartment that on first glance seemed as empty as the one we had left. But as my eyes became accustomed to the gloom I saw that the bed, which occupied most of the room's floor space, held the small, shriveled figure of an old, old lady. Mrs. Horace T. Witherspoon, Sr., in the flesh—or rather what was left of it. A good gust of wind, I thought, would blow her away.

"Well? Well?" and her voice was surprisingly strong for the rest of her. "Eliza, turn up the lights!" The lights came on and she crooked a bony finger in my direction. "Step up! Step up! I shan't bite you!"

I moved to the bedside, my heart in my mouth.

There was something horrible about the emaciated bag of bones that lay so helplessly before me. Something pitiful, too, and not quite healthy. Something repellent, like the feel of grape pulp or a long-dead jellyfish in one's hand. Perhaps it was the shock of her hair, bright orange and elaborately curled, or perhaps it was the sight of her white, enameled cheeks and scarlet lips, or perhaps it was my own imagination that led me to see death and destruction in the black, beady eyes that stared so unwinkingly into my own.

"Think I'm an old hag, eh?" she cackled. And as I stood silent she burst into laughter — the hollow, mirthless laughter I had heard earlier in the evening as it followed in the footsteps of the young man with the fierce, frowning face. "Well, maybe I am, but it isn't from lack of trying!" She sat up. "I'm a silly, vain old woman, and it pleases me to be so!"

"I'm sure that it does!" I was startled into speech.

"You are, eh?" She glared at me. "Well, I'll have no back chat from you, my girl!" She slumped downward among the pillows. "Get out! And come back at ten o'clock!" Her voice dwindled into fretfulness. "Eliza, send her away!"

"Come!" The guant female touched my arm. I was astonished to see that there were tears in her eyes. "It is bad for her to become excited," she said. "You must leave at once."

"All right, Miss Ritter." Mrs. Greely, who had taken no part in this strange interview, propelled me outward. In the corridor I took a deep breath like a swimmer emerging from a deep-water dive.

"Mrs. Witherspoon suffers from a heart ailment," stated the housekeeped, who seemed to think some explanation was in order.

"Is she under a physician's care?" I put the question disinterestedly, simply for something to say, and was more than a little surprised when the good Mrs. Greely showed herself almost human and sniffed audibly as she replied:

"She is under Eliza's care. Eliza does not approve of the medical profession. She's healing her mistress through faith! Some sort of new religion it is, I believe." And she sniffed again. (Mrs. Greely, I later learned, was a dyed-in-the-wool Presbyterian, with no use at all for new religions.)

"And who is Eliza to have such authority?"

"Eliza is Mrs. Witherspoon's maid." In time the housekeeper remembered that a good servant is a silent servant. We retraced our steps forward to the salon.

The salon forme dthe left wing of the second story. It had a single main entrance at the head of the front stairs; but admittance also could be gained by means of doors that opened from the lobby into the adjoining bedrooms. These private entrances, Mrs. Greely informed me, had been cut into the walls so that the occupants of the bedrooms might conveniently enter the salon without the bother of going into the corridor and around through the main eatrance.

The salon, at night, was a spooky place, with the moon shining in through the window walls and casting queer shadows on the floor and ceiling. The silver curtains which separated the anteroom from the lobby resembled ghostly shrouds in the semi-darkness. Lighted, however, it became merely another, although extraordinarily attractive, beauty parlor. The motif was essentially moderne, the color scheme was black and silver.

There were black and silver chairs of diverse shapes and varying design; there were black and silver divans, and squat silver tables. No equipment was visible to mar the elegant simplicity of the lobby whose walls were wide panels of mirrors—the paraphernalia of beauty was shut from sight in the curtained anterooms.

There were four anterooms, and, properly speaking, they were not rooms at all, but similarly curtained compartments that could be thrown into a single chamber should one so desire. The first of these compartments was devoted to the care of the hands. The second, slightly larger, boasted a long dressing table of the type seen in theatrical dressing rooms, with a row of unshaded bulbs outlining its flawless glass. Above this was stretched a stout shelf that held dozens and dozens of jars and bottles in assorted shapes and sizes—skin creams, tonics and the like.

The third booth, largest of the four, was given over to treatment of the hair and scalp. There were twin washbowls, with connecting hose for the shampoo and twin-mirrored tables at which milady would sit for the setting of her wave. A permanent waving machine, with its weird, dangling attachments, occupied one corner of the compartment, and a row of driers attached to a metal pole filled the remaining space. These latter I examined with interest.

They were of a design new to me and resembled the fantastic headgear worn by deep-sea divers. These odd-looking contraptions, fastened at spaced intervals to the metal pole, were the size and shape of a large inverted crock with square glass windows for the eyes and minute perforations punched here and there to permit the air to get through.

At the base, or where the neck fitted into the crock, a heavy cloth strip several inches in width was glued to the rim of the helmet.

There were four driers and between each two and its accompanying chair there stood a square metal cabinet which furnished the hot air compressure used in drying the hair. Admiration for the genius who had contrived this machinery consumed me.

"The very newest thing!" Mrs. Greely proudly informed me as though she herself were that genius. "They completely envelop the head and face; the cloth strip ties at the throat to prevent the hot air from escaping the helmet. Thus the hair is dried in double-quick time."

"So?" I mummured, and we passed into the fourth, and last, anteroom. This contained the steam cabinet, the mechanical horse and the various other instruments of torture designed to bake, bail and beat excess flesh from the body. All in all, the salon was, as I suspected, an operator's dream.

"I shall turn over the keys to you, Miss Ritter," said Mrs. Greely, and she did so. "A duplicate set is in my possession should you at any time mislay them. The book of appointments," she added, extracting the black notebook from her pocket, "is kept upon the telephone table in the lobby. I shall place it there now."

"Yes?"

"The last door at the rear of the lobby connects with Mrs. Witherspoon's suit. When you go in to her this evening you will take from the shelf in the second compartment the required creams and lotions and enter her bedroom directly from the salon."

"I understand," I said. "Just what creams do I take?"

"Eliza will give you the list—you must see her beforehand. The treatment, I am told, differs slightly each night."

"Very well." I am afraid I did not sound at all enthusiastic. The prospect of the bedtime ritual was not alluring!

"Are there any other questions?"

I shook my head. I had plenty of questions, but I was positive that Mrs. Greely would not answer any inquiries I might put. "I think I understand everything."

"Splendid! I will leave you then. You may re-enter your bedroom by the connecting door. Good night."

Rebels Right In R.C. Eyes

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 17 (AP).—L'Osservator Romano, Vatican City newspaper, said to-day Roman Catholics could favor only the insurgent side in the Spanish Civil War.

The newspaper condemned a lecture delivered in France by a Spanish professor, Alfredo Mendizabal, who was quoted as saying Catholics were "free to give their 'preference and sympathy to one side or the other," in Spain.

Advocate U.S. Copy British Air Guard

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 17—(AP).—Suggestion that the United States establish something similar to Great Britain's "civil air guard" as a buttress to national defence and to catch up with Europes' dictator states in the air was made today before a national aviation conference.

Private fliers, constituting an air reserve force, said Moss Patterson of Oklahoma City, a delegate to the annual convention of the National Aeronautic Association, can be made the backbone of an expanded air defence proposed by the United States government.

"If America is to make up for lost time and bring its air power to a par with the dictator countries — and particularly with Germany's," said William Enyart of Washington, D.C., association secretary, "We must devise some scheme for air education."

To the government's proposal to train 20,000 college students yearly to fly, Enyart added a plan, modeled roughly after Germany's, of offering air education courses in the public schools to youngsters between the ages of 10 and 18.

The association's 3-day meeting, which opened yesterday, concerns spreading the gospel of flying. Its military aspects are emphasized by the presence of army and navy men on the program.

Pistol Registration Proving Valuable

OTTAWA, Jan. 17—(CP).—Voluntary registration of revolvers and pistols is proving of increasing value, "far beyond expectation," in the tracking down of criminals, according to the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

During the year ended March 31, 1938, registrations of 7,214 revolvers and pistols were made with various police forces throughout the Dominion, the particulars being filed at R.C.M.P. headquarters here, where 168,389 such weapons are recorded.

"In many instances men have been arrested in possession of weapons and, as a result of a search being made of our central files, we have been in a position to give the name of the original owner. In this way the possessor of the weapon is connected with the original crime, or with the persons responsible for the commission of same and it is of interest to note that weapons have been recovered a distance of 1,000 miles from the scene of th original offence," the report states.

Farmer Braves Flames To Save Horse

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 17.—A spectacular rescue of a terrified horse from the blazing barns of Edward Miller, Prince Edward county, on Sunday morning, by S. H. Brant, a neighboring farmer, resulted in slight burns to the rescuer, who dashed into the flaming building, cut the halter, and succeeded in extricating the frightened animal.

Two large barns, a quantity of hay, grain and straw, twelve hens, and a number of ducks were destroyed by the blaze. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Of unknown origin, the fire is said to have broken out in the upper part of one of the L-shaped buildings. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shepherd, tenants of Miller, were away delivering milk at the time and knew nothing of the fire until clouds of flame and smoke were noticed shooting up in the air.

Neighbors fought a losing fight in an effort to save the buildings, but the flames had made such headway that success was impossible. Concentrating their eforts on the house, situated but a short distance from the flaming barns, they succeeded in saving the Shepherd home. News that a horse was in the stable resulted in Brant making his fine successful effort to save the animal.

MORE ABOUT—

Radio Committee

Broadcasting Corporation," the prime minister said, "and I wish to read just one or two paragraphs from the report of the radio broadcasting committee which was submitted to this House and carried unanimously, which report approved these very policies designed to see that radio broadcasting, as carried on by this corporation, should be so conducted that there would be equal opportunity for all concerned, regardless of their particular circumstances one way or the other."

Among the regulations laid down by the board of governors which had been in force for the past few years was one prohibiting the buying up of the national network by any individual or corporation for the purpose of giving his or its views to the nation at large over the national network, the Prime Minister said.

The Interpretation.

Denton Massey (Con. Toronto-Greenwood) interrupted to say it was not the regulations but their interpretation which was causing the difficulty. Mr. Mackenzie King King then declared the government's agreement to re-appointment of the radio committee this session, to review the whole radio situation.

"What I want to point out, Mr. Speaker, is that as far as radio broadcasting in Canada is concerned, when this parliament has put the whole business into the hands of a broadcasting corporation, it seems to me that we as members of this House in our public capacity ought to support the corporation in seeking to make rules which will cause radio broadcasting throughout this country to show favors to none but equal privileges and opportunity to all," the prime minister said.

"I believe it was in that spirit that the regulations at present in existence were laid down.

No Unnecessary Censoring.

"I hope I am making it clear that as far as censorship is concerned, this government has no desire whatever to effect any censorship with respect to anything excepting what may be distinctly contrary to the public interest; but that so far as the Broadcasting Corporation is concerned, such censorship as is exercised there is not the censorship of the government but of the corporation which parliament itself has established and to which has been given certain rights and powers."

No member of the government had any knowledge of the application being made for use of a national network by Mr. McCullagh and no member of the government knew anything about an application being refused until they saw it in the press, he said.

"May we have the assurance the government will stand behind the corporation?" asked J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, when the prime minister made a statement on the issue before the Conservative Leader began his address.

"Yes, I think so," Mr. Mackenzie King said.

King Regime

The Prime Minister also announced that a radio committee would be set up by the House of Commons with al lofficials of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation available for questioning.

The address in reply to the Speech from the Throne was moved by J. E. Matthews, newly elected Liberal member for Brandon and seconded by Lionel Chevrier (Lib. Stormont) who spoke in both English and French.

No Profiteering.

Dr. Manion found himself in agreement with the Government on the need for defence, but expressed the hope that there would be no profiteering in munitions contracts and that the proposed defence purchases board would not be a political body.

Mr. Mackenzie King said the board, when set up, would be such as to commend itself to everybody in parliament and in the country. He said the government was determined there would be no profiteering.

Mr. Manion assailed the government on its failure to implement pre-election promises. He charged the government with publishing propaganda and with failure to produce anything but inaction and reaction.

Considerable time was devoted by Dr. Manion to failure of the government to bring about the unity between federal and provincial governments forecast in the campaign speeches of 1935, referring particularly to the split between Ontario and Federal Liberal administrations.

Dr. Manion criticized the new Canada-United States trade agreement and concessions made by Canada in the Canada-United Kingdom agreement. These had "sounded the death knell of British preferences," he said.

Concessions to War Makers.

He scored the granting of the same concessions as those given United States to Japan, Italy and Germany. 'What do they give us in return more than we already have been getting, including threats to disturb the peace of the world?" he asked.

Industries had been hestitant in criticizing the Canada-United States trade agreement because of fear of being called unpatrotic, Dr. Manion suggested. The government was trying to say the United States would be more friendly to England because of the agreement — "that they would be much more ready to jump i nand fight for the British Empire."

The United States had a trade agreement with Czecho-Slovakia before the crisis last year, he said, but "Did anybody see the United States donning armor to go and fight for Czechoslovakia? The only thing I heard from the United States was a lot of abuse heaped on Neville Chamberlain."

Dr. Manion read numerous extracts from a book containing speeches of Mr. Mackenzie King in 1935 and claimed he had failed to carry out the promises contained in those campagn utterances.

The Royal Visit.

Mr. Mackenzie King, in the course of his opening remarks dealing with the royal visit, told of the difficulties in arranging the itinerary and said efforts would be made to extend it to include more place if it could be done without putting too great a strain on their majesties.

Of the trade agreement the prime minister said there was not a section of Canada that did not benefit from the agreement negotiated with United States in 1935 and he expected more benefits from the new agreement. He was confident the vote on the agreement would reveal the same approval in the House as that which existed throughout the country.

Measures adopted by the present administration had been such that had they not been adopted unemployment would be four or five times greater than at present because they had provided a wider market for primary products.

The present administration believed trade among nations with a means of avoiding war. The Conservatives evidently adhered to a policy of economic nationalism which created the tendency to war.

Assailing the remarks of Dr. Manion about United States with respect to that country's attitude toward the Czechoslovakia crisis, the prime minister declared "nothing could be less patriotic than an effort by a party leader to create prejudice between this country and United States."

Another Book

Like Dr. Manion the prime minister produced a book, this one written by the present opposition leader. He quoted passages relating to the Conservative defeat in 1935, which Dr. Manion referred to "the so-called Reconstruction party leader's frank attempt to wreck the party and the friends with whom he has been associated for a quarter of a century in the egotistical expectation that he would be at least the leader of the opposition with its emoluments of office."

This caused a loud laugh at the expense of Dr. Manion and Hon. H. H. Stevens who left the Conservative ministry in 1934 and organized the Reconstruction party of whose candidates he was the only one successful party of whose candidates successful in the 1935 elections. He is now back in the Conservative lines sitting close to Dr. Manion.

Earlier in the day Dr. Manion, referring to Mr. Stevens, said "he has seen the error of his ways sand is now back in the party to which he always belonged."

Mr. Stevens is one of the numerous members scheduled to speak in this debate which will go on for a week at least. Social Credit Leader Blackmore adjourned the debate and will lead off this afternoon.

The prime minister said the throne speech was divided into three important sections—defence, trade and unemployment.

Dr. Manion's approval, in many respects, of the government's intentions regarding defence was very pleasing.

Mr. Mackenzie King said he also appreciated the Conservative leader's attitude at the time of the September crisis because by his silence he did not embarass the government at a difficult time.

I thought Dr. Manion showed good judgment on that occasion and also great patriotism."

The government's whole attitude during the crisis will be open for full debate later on in the session, the prime minister said.

No Contact With Poverty?

Dr. Manion had suggested the prime minister had never suffered any close contact with poverty. "I don't forget," Mr. Mackenzie King said, "that my own mother was born when her father was in exile and there was not the wherewith to buy food."

He had been instrumental in building up the labor department in his early days of public service and helping it to aid the great body of workers in Canada the prime minister said.

Mr. Manion read extracts from a handbook of the Liberal party published by Mr. King before the 1935 general election. The book was written for "the delectation of the electors," Dr. Manion said, and he was reading it so that the prime minister might, before leaving office, fulfill some of his pledges.

The book had referred to "Conservative years of depression," forgetting "there might be some years of depression during his own regime." Mr. Mackenzie King had said the Liberal party would restore prosperity and with the coming of prosperity third parties would disappear.

Third parties were still in existence, Dr. Manion said, and when there was a roar of laughter, he added his "friend on my left (Hon. H. H. Stevens, former head of the Reconstruction party) has only returned to the fold of the party to which he belonged."

The book had pledged the Liberal party to bring about harmony and co-operation, create an investment control board, cure unemployment, bring back prosperity, control credit, establish proportional representation, and "continue the Liberal practice of the British preference."

British Preference Gone

'Well, the British preference ,obtained by the Conservative party, has been practically wiped out by this trade agreement with United States," Dr. Manion said.

Mr. King had said "usury once in control would wreck any nation." That was well put but there had been no practicable application.

He had promised to create an investment control board but had not done so. Nothing had been done about his advocacy of a larger share in the control of industry for workers and consumers.

The budget had not been balanced although Mr. King had said that would be the aim of a Liberal government. He had promised a reduction in expenditures and expenditures had never been so heavy as now. Reduction in taxation had been promised but there had been increases only. Nothing had been done to bring about a more equal distribution of wealth, set forth by Mr. King as Liberal objective.

"The right honorable gentleman is the greatest reformer this country has ever produced when he is out of office but he is the greatest reactionary this country has ever produced when he is in office. He is a theoretical reformer and a practical reactionary."

The Liberal party had plenty of policy but lacked the ability to put any policy into effect.

"Like the old woman in a shoe," he said, "it has so many policies it doesn't know what to do. That isn't quite accurate of course for being a bachelor the prime minister has no children. But if he had any children and he treated them as he treats his policies he would be arrested for cruelty.

Where Are The Transients?

When the Conservatives were in power they had been criticised for putting transients in camps, Dr. Manion said. "Where are they now? Many of them are in jails."

Dr. Manion said, in conclusion, it had been reported in western Canada newspapers that he would take no interest in the prairie provinces. This was not true. His interest was equally shared among all the provinces.

To the address endorsing the speech from the throne, Dr. Manion's amendment would add:

"We desire respectfully to express regret that the government has failed, since its accession to power in 1935, to show a proper realization of the serious economic conditions existing in all sections of Canada, as evidenced by unemployment and insecurity for hundreds of thousands of Canadian people, lack of opportunity for youth, and widespread distress in agriculture; and has failed to take appropriate measures to relieve such conditions."

Mother Saves Two Tots From Flaming Cabin But Dies Trying Rescue Of Third

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Jan. 17 — (CP) — Preparations were under way today for the funeral of Mrs. Hazel Cathers, 23, and her five-year-old daughter, Margaret, who died Saturday in a fire which destroyed their log cabin farm home 18 miles north of here.

The young mother died in an attempt to save her daughter. She had rescued two younger daughters from the smoke and flame-filled cabin when she returned for the third child.

A neighbor, Stanley Graver, found baby Eva, one years old, and Amy, three, alive in the snow near the blazing home. Flames and smoke frustrated his efforts to enter the burning cabin.

"Smoke and flames poured out the door and windows and the cracks in the wall," he said. "I heard no cries."

career. Of the Ottawa agreements he said the 1938 Canada-United States and United Kingdom-United States pacts could not have been achieved without the 1932 foundation.

On the Privy Council decision nullifying the "new deal" social legislation of 1935 initiated by Mr. Bennet, he laid the blame for "constitutional chaos from which we cannot merge for years."

Both Senator Meighen and Sir William Mulock, Ontario's 95-year-old chief justice, predicted the former prime minister will not be idle in England. They visioned for him a new political career.

On that angle Mr. Bennett said nothing. He leaves for Ottawa today and after a few days there will proceed to Saint John for a final address before sailing, climaxing a farewell tour that has taken him across the Dominion in recent weeks.

Lindsay Arsenal Ready To Open On February 1

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Jan. 17—It was unofficially announced Monday that the Lindsay Arsenal would open around the first of February. For the past few days shipments of machinery have been arriving at the plant, and it was stated that fully 112 men would be employed—practically all experienced workers. The sections of the plant to be operated, it is further announced, will be the rolling mill, brass foundry and carpenter shop. The Department of National Defence has maintained a sphinx-like silence relative to the operations of the plant and just what will be manufactured. A great many of the local unemployed had hoped that the opening of the plant would give them employment, but it is believed that only skilled mechanics would be taken on. Little information on the operation of the plant and the date of opening can be obtained from those close to the government, as they are as much in the dark as the man on the street.

Ross of Lindsay, into the ditch, causing considerable damage to the machine. He failed to stop after the accident. He was fined $10 and costs on each charge and made restitution for the damage done the Ross car.

Robbery Developments

It is reported that the local police are working on fresh clues in connection with the attempted theft at Ancona Point a few weeks ago when the caretaker shot a man who was seen in one of the lodges at that resort. Fresh developments, it is understood, are expected any day.

Burglars broke into the station, removed a large safe out onto the platform and blew it open with dynamite. They secured $25.00 in cash and money orders valued at $100.00.

Legion Opposes Remembrance Date Change

Opposition to a proposal that Remembrance Day be observed on the Monday nearest to November 11 is contained in a resolution passed by the local branch of the Canadian Legion at their last regular meeting.

The veterans discussed the plan which has been advanced by several Boards of Trades that all public holidays be observed on the nearest Monday to the date on which the holiday would fall, and because this suggestion would also include Remembrance Day, they took strong exception to any such change. The gist of the resolution was that Remembrance Day be observed on November 11 regardless of the weekday on which this date falls. Copies of the resolution were sent to the Prime Minister ,to Hon. R. J. Manion, to J. J. Duffus, M.P., and to the Provincial and Dominion Commands of the Canadian Legion.

Endorses Proposal.

At the Jauary meeting of the local branch held on Monday night a letter from Mr. Duffus was read in which he expresses himself as being thoroughly in accord with the veterans' proposal. The resolution was introduced by Max Sloan.

Doug. Loomis, chairman of the Pensions and Relief Committees, reported that splendid progress was being made in this work locally. He also told the meeting that veterans from other parts of the province who passed through this city often made applications for assistance and in many cases aid was given. He regretted to report, however, that investigation had revealed many of the transients were not using the money given them for the necessities of life, and he recommended that in future aid be given only in cases of exceptional merit. Every transient given aid in the past was a bona-fide war veteran and had discharge papers to prove his identity.

Profit of $250.

Fire Chief George Gimblett, president of the local branch, reported that complete returns had not been made yet on the annual draw, but he felt certain a net profit of $250 would be realized.

A spirit of optimism prevailed at the meeting as each committee chairman turned in glowing reports, and this was further promoted with the signing up of seven new members.

The veterans plan to hold a minstrel show about the middle of February in the Collegiate Auditorium, and have already started their rehearsing. Morley Plunkett, veteran trouper and former member of the Dumbells, has volunteered his services in coaching the men in their different roles.

The Rambling REPORTERS

SOME HAT

Men on George street stood and stared in admiration at a hat worn by a woman yesterday. The masterpiece of millinery was one of those ultra modern creations which in the words of one spectator "looked like an inverted flower pot with the geraniums growing through the bottom." The trimmings on this bonnet resembled flowers and were green and red and the wearer breezed up George street with the air of a conqueror or rather with that proud manner typical of the female who revels in the fact that she has a hat unmatched in the city.—McG.

Bennett Banquet Broadcast Spoiled

The Examiner received a number of complaints from indigent citizens this morning about the interference that almost spoiled the reception of the speeches at the Bennett banquet as they were broadcast over CBL Monday night. oNt only was the powerful Mexican station coming in with great volume and jamming the CBL broadcast but station WABC seemed to be spreading over CBL's waveband too and the result was chaos at times.

"What do we pay our $2.50 a year for," one man asked over the telephone this morning. "It is a poor advertisement for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation," he continued "that one of the important Canadian broadcasts of the year could not be more than half heard over the Corporation's key station in Ontario. In view of the license fee we are called upon to pay we have a right to look for better results than that.

Unusual Accident At Intersection

William Robbins, 607 Rubidge street, received a cut on his upper lip and had his shoulder bruised as the result of a somewhat unusual traffic accident at the intersection of Park and Lansdowne streets Monday night.

Robbins' car had stalled at the intersection and was out in front of the machine cranking it when another automobile driven by C. H. Hotston, Monaghan Road, came along from the north. Hotson tried to stop his car in time to avoid a crash but the road was icy and the Hotston vehicle crashed into the rear of the other automobile pushing it against Robbins.

Hotston's car had its front grill radiator, headlights and front fender damaged while the rear bumper of Robbins' machine was damaged.

Mrs. John O'Connor Dies In Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 17.—(CP).—Mrs. Catherine O'Connor, 87, died here last night after a lengthy illness. Born in Peterborough, Ont., she moved here 18 years ago after her husband, John O'Connor, died. She is survived by a son, Frank, of Lindsay, Ont., an dtwo daughters, Mrs. Isabell O'Connor of Windsor, and Mrs. Edward Mahoney.

Church Laymen To Form Organization

An inter-denominational association of laymen with a three-fold purpose will be started in the immediate future in Peterborough, was announced last night by Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's Anglican church, speaking to close to two hundred laymen at the Y.M.C.A. last night. The meeting was called under the chairmanship of Ken Kingston, president of the St. Andrew's Men's association, was attended by representatives of all the Protestant churches in the city, both clergy and laymen.

Mr. Brain's pronouncement that such an association would be formed came on the heels of suggestions to that end by Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's church and L. J. Pettit. The first object of the new organization, he said, would be to create an atmosphere that would bring about a revival of interest and concern in Christianity. Banded together, such an outcome can result, he asserted. As a second object, the association would meet at least twiec yearly, and some man of authority in a particular field of Christian knowledge would be invited to speak. Third, every now and again a city canvass would be made to bring into the church people who are not attending. The committee, he said, will take up various things that need to be regarded for the furtherance of the Christian religion.

"I make one plea," he said. "We need your help. It is an effort for God."

Before him, Rev. Canon Robertson, proposing a toast to the church, stressed a need for some such action by a body of laymen. The church is facing a more critical time now than it has ever known in its history, he asserted. "The church is not the clergy, but the people. The clergy are merely the instruments through which the church functions. Every man in the church has a service of some sort to render. The church needs people of vision." He claimed there are hundreds of pagans in Peterborough who never darken the door of a church. "They are deaf when a man in a frock coat speaks, but it might well be they would listen to laymen."

Urges City Canvass

Replying to the toast, L. J. Pettit urged a city-wide canvass by laymen of persons who do not attend church, in an attempt to bring them into Christianity. He suggested that a clerk be employed to search the records of the assessor's office to find to what denomination each citizen of Peterborough belonged. Such a search could be made by any cttizen, he said he had been told by the city assessor. With that information as a beginning, laymen could make individual calls on persons officially registered as subscribers to denomination, and attempt to bring about their regular attendance in church.

Whole-hearted support of the suggestion was given by the speaker of the evening, Rev. J. R. Muchmoor, M.A., B.D., of Toronto, secretary of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church. Laymen can reach the average man who does not attend church, much more readily than can the clergy, he said. "The church is waiting for you. You can help the church as no one else can." And after quiet evangelism "there will be a new day in this city for this Christian church of yours," he declared.

It was a church at the cross-roads that he portrayed. "We are living in a time of reaction," he said. "The church has to face that reaction and fight it in the best interests of the advancement of this world of ours."

Indifferent Too Long

Too long has the church been treated with indifference, as a thing of convenience, he claimed. He recalled that churches have recently been built with central aisles, which he claimed were for the convenience of wedding parties. In Chicago it was said of a gangster who died that "he would be given the biggest, the most expensive funeral any church ever gave." Women have brought their babies to church "to be done"—in other words, to be baptised.

"The church today is no longer being treated with indifference," he said. In Vienna it has been stoned, in Hitler's Germany it has been condemned, policemen have attended service to take evidence to be used against the clergy, arrested on charges of treason. That treatment, he said, points to the power of the church, to its ability to bring a message of reason to a bewildered world. That message is, above all, a creative message, he said.

Upon the Cross occurred the greatest crisis of all time, and from it a message came forth of forgiveness and redemption that is the only salvation of the world today from hate, he said. "There is a creative power in this love of God and there is no other solvent for the distres sof the world to-day," he asserted.

Urges Objection View

He urged a rational view of world events by his audience, urged them not to be driven to hysteria by clamouring radio and newspaper commentators. He praised the British people for their sane view of conditions, which he claimed was due to their better knowledge of world history.

Yet at the same time he admitted that "many of our ideals are sadly sunk," recalling that Lloyd George had said following the Great War "that we should build homes fit for heroes to live in." Few of those homes had been erected, he said. He recalled Presidnt Wilson's "world safe for democracy" speech, but found "democracy is having a hard time of it just now."

"We would go back far in history to find a period more difficult than this one," he said.

Urging that people take an objective view of world affairs, he said, "We are being so jazzed up by men on the radio, so misled by the special writers in the papers, that we are losing our perspective." Reason should govern; people should not allow themselves to be taken advantage of by politicians or stampeded by fanatics, he believed. In Canada, people need to regain the will to win, the spirit of the pioneers, he said, recounting the toil and sacrifice they had endured in founding this land.

Strong Will Needed

A stronger and more determined will must be brought to bear on such profound problems as unemployment, he said. Sixty-five per cent of all relief in Canada is contained in Ontario and Quebec and the solution to that difficulty "lies primarily with the people of Central Canada, not Western Canada," he pointed out. He offered no solution, except the revival of the will to win.

The Y.M.C.A. was taxed to its limit to accommodate the large gathering in attendance, a turn-out that far exceeded the expectations of the committee in charge. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist church pronounced grace. Toasts were proposed by Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United church, to the King; Rev. Canon Robertson, to the Church, replied to by L. J. Pettit. The speaker was introduced by C. H. Elliott and Alderman James Dutton moved a vote of thanks. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United church. Soloist of the evening was George Coleman, who sang two selections accompanied at the piano by George Nicholls.

Many Clergymen Are Not Even Receiving Decent Starvation Wage, Laymen Are Told

In many sections of the country clergymen "are not receiving even a decent starvation wage," was the charge made by Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson, proposing a toast to the Church at last night's inter-denominational laymen's meeting in the Y.M.C.A.

Canon Robertson was stressing the importance of financial contribution if the church is to carry on its work successfully, when he made the remark. He pointed to Western Canada for examples, said the living paid many ministers there was pitiable. "People seem to think that any little canary feed is sufficient for a minister," he said.

Former Members Are Critical Of Advancing Date Of First Instalment Of Taxes

The City Council's recent action in advancing the due date of the first instalment of taxes one month and also increasing the penalties on taxes in arrears was not approved by two former members in recent retirement.

"I don't think I would have done it," George A. Macdonald, Mayor two years ago, said, in conversation with the Examiner. "Of course I know only what I read about it, so one is not in the position of the members of the council. The change does not seem to me to be of any help to the average citizen, and he is the one who should receive first consideration.

"It is only a few weeks ago since we read with a great deal of satisfaction the financial statement of the city as published in the Examiner, and my recollection is that there was some considerable improvement in the collection of taxes last year. I don't think that condition suggested any need of increasing the penalty for non-payment of taxes. It seemed that the great majority of citizens were paying their taxes who had the money to do so, and I would be inclined to say the council might have let well enough alone.

"Then, when it came to changing the time of the instalments I think it would have been preferable to have divided the payments into four instead of three, making it that much easier for the property owners who find it hard enough to keep things going. I am not finding fault with the council, but I don't think the record of payments last year and the general conditions of this year warranted any jacking up of tax penalties."

Fred. T. Tuggey.

"I wouldn't have voted for it," Fred Tuggey, former alderman, said, "and I am surprised at a couple of the members who did vote for it. There are quite a few citizens who usually owe bills to tradesmen and others by the time spring comes, and it takes them a little while to get straightened around. When they get their tax bills in June instead of July it is not going to be so easy for them. Of course for other citizens who have the money it doesn't make any difference when they get their bills, and they don't have to worry about tax arrears.

"It looks to me as if this change was hurried through the first meeting of the year without getting proper consideration, and it was one time I would have said "no" to the executive. Last year's financing of the city did not call for any putting the screws on that I am aware of."

Practice Elsewhere

At the city hall this morning it was learned that the general practice of cities about the size of Peterborough is to make the first instalment of taxes payable as early as April or May. This information was obtained apart from the reference to the recent changes made by the city council, and was actually for the benefit of the council showing what other cities were doing.

Windsor requires its taxes to be paid in four instalments, on the first day of April, June, August and October.

Kitchener's two instalments are due in May and September.

Kingston reports three instalments in May, July and October.

Brantford has three instalments in May, July and October.

Woodstock's two instalments are payable in May and October.

Hamilton's taxes are spread over four instalments in April, June, August and October.

Replies to enquiries were received during the first week of this month. A saving in bank interest charges is the primary purpose of advancing the dates on which taxes shall be due. The incoming money is credited to the city's account, and is used as required to meet current expenditure, instead of having to obtain a loan at the bank for that purpose.

Man Is Charged Theft Poor Box

Orville McCall, Bethune street, was charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning with stealing a sum of money from St. Peter's Cathedral to the value of under $25.

McCall elected to be tried by the magistrate but asked if he could have an adjournment for a day or two before making his plea. He explained that there was something he had to attend to first.

Chief Constable Newhall explained that McCall wanted to try and recover the poor box that had been taken from the Cathedral and added that there was another man mixed up in the affair.

"It seems to have been a most miserable form of theft," commented Magistrate Langley.

"This man will come back all right," said Chief Newhall. "We can't get rid of him."

The case was finally adjourned until Saturday morning.

W. J. Thompson Named Head Cemetery Board

W. J. Thompson was named president of the Little Lake Cemetery Company at the 88th annual meeting held this week in the board room of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company. Other officers are Dr. J. E. Middleton, vice-president, Felix Brownscombe, secertary-treasurer, Edward Humpage, auditor; C. F. Kitney, supt., and Miss E. J. Saunders, assistant secretary. Board of Directors was elected as follows, Mayor James Hamilton, W. G. Morrow, Arthur Stevenson, E. A. Peck, K.C., Roland Denne, R. J. Kidd, Harold A. Morrow, W. J. Thompson and Dr. J. E. Middleton.

Beautification of the cemetery is indicated in the Directors' report tendered by R. J. Kidd, retiring president in which he says that the lake shore drive which starts at the main entrance on Crescent street and follows the lake shore around to the south entrance is almost completed. This drive has been built wider than the other roads in the cemetery to permit its use by autos, whenever the company decides to throw the road open to traffic other than when attending funerals. The drive follows the water around Cemetery Point and the natural beauty of the winding road is unsurpassed.

246 Under Perpetual Care

Twenty plots were placed under the Perpetual Care Plan for which $3,085.00 was paid to the company, and this brings the total number of plots under the plan to 246 and the total sum held by the company for this purpose amounts to $48,220.11.

Income from investments, $5,574.62, all of which was expended along with other revenue in improving the cemetery and maintaining the grounds. During the year securities held by the company amounting to $7,000.00 were paid off. This sum along with $4,400 received from sale of lots and graves and other income was used to purchase $16,000.00 worth of new bonds bringing the total par value of securities held to $129,882.28.

Superintendent Reports

C. F. Kitney, superintendent of the cemetery in his annual report shows that considerable work has been done in the past twelve months and all buildings, graves and the grounds are in an excellent state of repair. Some of the work done during the year was painting of the storehouse, fences, and outside of the greenhouse, 180 feet of rip-rapping near the front entrance was completed and considerable work done on the roads. The toolhouse was moved from its original location and placed on a foundation thus affording more storage space for tools in the basement. During the year there were 273 interments, 20 plots put under perpetual care, 21 foundations for monuments, and 28 lots sold. A survey of the unsold lots in the cemetery has been started and approximately thirty per cent of the lots are still unsold.

In the auditor's report, Mr. Humpage sets forth that, "during the year $886.17 was added to the Unsold Lots Account while lots and graves to the value of $4,400 were sold. I would recommend that the superintendent prepare a plan showing the estimated value of lots unsold, in order that a comparison can be made with the amount shown on the balance sheet, which is taken at the value shown on the books. During the year a conservative appraisal was made of land and buildings and these amounts have been adjusted to these appraised values and depreciation reserves set up as at Dec. 31, 1938, therefore no depreciation on these items will appear on the operating statement for 1938 but a proper schedule of depreciation charges will be made on subsequent years. The adjustment due to the appraised values was credited to the surplus account."

The balance sheet shows the par value of investments to be $129,882.28 and the approximate market value at $134,400.00. Total revenue for the year was $13,161.28 and expenditures totalled $12,766.53 leaving a net profit of $394.76.

Speaker's Dislike For Peterborough Canoe Very Evident By His Remarks At Banquet

A man who was put on the frying pan last night but who apparently failed to sizzle was W. A. Richardson, president and general manager of the Peterborough Canoe Company, and the cooking took place at the inter-denominational laymen meeting at the Y.M.C.A.

When the speaker of the evening, Rev. J. R. Mutchmoor of Toronto, commence his address he told of having first known of Peterborough in his youth by experience with the canoe bearing that name. "I don't know whether they are still made or not," he said, and a delighted chuckle wetn through the audience. For, unknown to the speaker, the president of the company he was speaking of was sitting directly across the head table and facing him. Mr. Richardson took it in good part, chuckled as delightedly as anyone.

That was just the beginning of the story. The fire became hotter and hotter for the president as the speaker continued. "We all had Peterborough canoes except the boss—he knew better. Ours began to ship water. Finally the stern sank and the Peterborough canoe went to the bottom." The audience roared and the speaker, still quite innocent of the real reason for their mirth, must have thought he had struck a really appreciative audience, a group of men with a real sense of humor.

Alibis open to Mr. Richardson were, of course, that the boss was an experienced canoeist and the speaker an inexperienced one, and so probably the make of canoe had nothing to do with the sinking of the craft; and that the canoe he spoke of as belonging to the boss was canvas-covered, which he presumably favored because of its lightness—and everyone, except the speaker, knows that the Peterborough Canoe Company makes canvas-covered boats, too.

BOWMANVILLE COPS CLOSE JUNIOR TILT OVER THE MONARCHS

Wild And Wooly And Packed With Arguments

Bowmanville yanked out a 6-4 O. H.A. junior verdict over the Peterborough Monarchs last night in Whitby before a fair-sized crowd of puck fans. It was a creditable performance by the visitors, who tackle the rinkless huskies here on Friday in a return fixture.

The game was packed with excitement from start to finish in the red hot number. Several fist fights broke out between the rival players, the Peterborough coach was chased off the bench for arguing with the referee and two goal judges were evicted with several counters being heatedly disputed. The Monarchs felt they had a bad deal and that they could take Bowmanville in the next contest.

Bowmanville copped a 2-1 lead in the first period, March netting both goals, with Witheridge and Wiseman assisting. Cauley counted late for the Vitarelli-coached crew. Morgan and Giardino drew majors for a lively fight. In the second, Witheridge and Rochetta drew majors for a fight, and Coach Vitarelli was tossed from the bench as he argued with Referee Lott. A goal was disputed and the Peterborough goal judge ejected. Clarke counted for the redshirts, while Morgan and Witheridge scored for the home crew, Ward and DePew rating assists. The locals tied it up early in the third, Beggs and Rochetta netted the disc on passes from Connelly and Rochetta. Another gaol judge was chased and Bowmanville went ahead on a disputed counter, having to get a new goal judge. Bird and Dilling scored the last two, Wiseman figuring in on one.

A Fine Game.

Morrison played a brilliant game in the losers' cage and robbed his rivals of half a dozen counters. Rochetta, Beggs and Giardino played an outstanding game for Peterborough, with the rest of their mates also working hard and turning in a neat performance, but getting no breaks. March, Dilling, Witheridge and Crawford stood out for the winners, as this experienced outfit was forced to hustle to gain the nod.

The teams:

Monarchs— Goal, Morrison; defence, Beggs and Giardino; centre, Rochetta; wings, Connelly and Vitarelli; alternates, Cauley, Nicholls, DeCarlo, Mortimer and Clarke.

Bowmanville — Goal, Crawford; defence, Witheridge and Ward; centre, Bird; wings, Wiseman and March; alternates, Nicholls, Mackey, DePew, Morgan and Dilling.

Nibble Hanover Is Winter Book Favorite

GOSHEN, N.Y., Jan. 17—(AP).—Nibble Hanover, the winter book favorite, heads the 45 notable three-year-old trotters still eligible for the $40,000 Hambletonian, which will have its 13th renewal over Good Time Park's triangular track here in August.

Light harness horse racing's richest stake drew one more entry than last year when the owners paid by Jan. 1, the $250 necessary to keep each trotter eligible. The payment brought the total paid to date on each horse to $460 with an additional $500 due the day before the race if the owner is to send his entry to the post.

Nibble Hanover, champion juvenile of 1938 with a record of 2:02½ established in the Kentucky Futurity, is owned by Dunbar Bostwick and his sister Mrs. Ogden Phipps of old Westbury, N.Y. Bostwick is personally supervising the conditioning of the offspring of Calumet Chuck, for which he paid $2,000 as a yearling, and probably will handle the reins himself in the big race.

Six other eligibles include Peter Astra, who hung up a record of 2:01½ against time at Pinehurst in the fall; E. Roland Harriman's Bagpiper of Arden, N.Y.; Lyrnite from Hobby Horse Farm of Hollins, Va., who beat Peter Astra; Belmont Hanover, Clay Hanover and Desperado, the latter the chief hope of Paal Bowser, Boston sportsman.

George St. Wins In Bantam Fray

George St. Bantams defeated All Saints by a 6-3 count last night in a Church Loop tilt at All Saints. Smith sparkled with four goals and could have had more had he passed. Wellwood was another individual star, and Greatrix also tallied. Lacey, Edgar and Hill countered for the Anglicans. Parr and Clapham both fanned on shots in goal. It was the second George St. win in two starts, as Carter and McDougall, 12-year-olds, looked promising in their debut. Teams:

Referee—Don Charlton.

Gottselig Holds Skimpy Lead Over Schriner

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—(CP)—In two full weeks of National Hockey League campaigning Johnny Gottselig hasn't managed to score a point. But the rest of the pack hasn't managed to catch up with the slippery Chicago Black Hawk forward yet, and last night's weekly league statistics show he's still out in front despite his slump.

The others are closing in though. Gottselig's eleven goals and thirteen assists leave him with the skimpy margin of just one over Dave (Sweeney) Schrner of New York Americans, who now has seven and sixteen for a twenty-three total.

Gottselig's eleven goals leave him in a three-way tie for leadership in actual scoring with Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens and Alex. Shibicky of New York Rangers. Schriner's assist total gives him the edge as No. 1 helper on goals, two up on Canadiens' Paul Hynes.

Biggest gain of the week was staged by Sylvanus Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs, who boosted his total to seventeen points with four goals and two assists, all except one assist in a single game against Canadiens here. Gordon Drillon, also of Toronto, climbed up into the charmed circle for the first time this season

HOW TO SKI

By FRITZ LOOSLI
Instructor Toronto Ski Club

OPEN CHRISTIANIA

When properly executed, the Open Christiania may be used where a telemark was formerly required to negotiate the turn.

In deep powder snow the Open Christiania is the most useful of all turns and extensively used by expert skiers. The deeper the snow, the wider the skis should be parted to make the turn. The bobbing motion is also les saccentuated than in the Stem or Parallel Christiania.

Opinion differs as to which ski should be weighted to execute the turn. It is a matter of individuality, but to learn to turn it is far easier to weight the outer ski right from the beginning of the turn.

Hard packed snow is preferable when learning this turn, because of the slight resistance encountered during the swing. For an Open Christiania to the left, run straight downhill and advance the left ski, obliging the tip to diverge from the other ski, just the reverse of the Stem. Shift the weight entirely to the right ski and slightly on the heel; edge the turning left ski slightly toward the slope. If the skis are properly placed and edged, it will require very little body swing to make the weighted right ski follow the left in its turning motion.

Once the turn is handled with confidence and without difficulty, it may be executed with the weight evenly distributed on both skis, with the turning executed on the balls of the feet, weight well forward, giving the turn more rhythm and less skidding.

Jump Turn

With the coming of the Tempo turn, the jump turn has lost much of its popularity and usefulness. In slalom racing, the old school Christiania would not allow the skier to take flushes on steep grades and the jump turn was the only means the skier had to negotiate such turns. Steel edges and tempo turns have eliminated the skidding which ocurred when using the Christinia with weight on the heel, and the unpleasant and jerky jump turn has been replaced by a swing and rhythmic turn.

And who can forget that memorable serial? Much gore has been spilled on various ice surfaces since that time, but local puck fans' memories are green when it comes to Fliers-Petes' frays. These teams have proven very well-matched the last two seasons and should be again. They play fast, exciting hockey with lots of the old heave-ho dished up—and the scores are generally closer than parked cars on the main stem. The big crowd that witnessed the classy contest last Friday here betwixt Belleville and the Buckland buckaroos will probably be augmented at the Brock tomorrow e'en.

* * * * * *

It strikes us that the R.C.A.F. gang can't be any weaker than a year ago, despite the loss of Lalonde, Partridge, Ernie McNeeley and a few more. They couldn't be soft touches and win the Van-Horne Cup finals in two straight, doing this little trick a week back. They've still got Lecompte, Legris, Gibson and several more of the 1938 stalwarts, plus three or four new gees—who apparently know how to solo or fly in group formation along with the Trentons. The Petes will be at top strength and ready for a real battle on Wednesday p.m.

Colts Aren't Bragging

There was an O.H.A. junior joust here last evening at the Brock, but we're not gonna brag about it. Nor are the 300 fans who saw it. On account of the local Colts dropped an 8-4 decision to the Lindsay Midgets and looked bad doing it. We don't mind a local loss when the team plays like it should—but the shinny dished up by the Colts last eve rated them a reverse. And they got it. Won't do 'em any harm, either, and the boys will get to work now and play properly as a unit before long, cutting out the individual stuff and the big ideas. They were beaten all the way last night and the Midgets clearly earned the win—yet we thought (and still think) that the Colts should be a better squad.

* * * * * *

First period was all right, both teams playing even, fast and pretty fair hockey. They became disorganized early in the second, and the locals never did snap out of it. Lindsay didn't play brilliant hockey, either, but had a good edge on the homsters. It was exciting enough at times—what with too many penalties in the first heat, not enough in the second, and a lively free-for-all in the third. And the local goalie was hurt and had to be replaced. The same squads meet in Lindsay on Friday, and it wouldn't exactly floor us if the Colts clicked and copped the duke.

The Only Stars Seen

The only stars seen on the home team were those Cournyea noticed when he was beaned! Some of the Colts looked good in spots, but spots don't payoff—except in a laundry. Pammett will be out with the team Friday and that should help. Lindsay Midgets are beefy and pretty fair, even if they tried some shinny for a time last eve. This lad Cook seemed to pop up oftener in the scoresheet than a Liberal at a Conservative rally! And Brennan and English and Jackson went oke, too, while the goalie was harder to beat than a guy at his own game. Coach Bill Jackson said afterward that the Colts looked bad, but they had learned a lot—and he had, too—and the team wouldn't play like that again. They have plenty of possibilities, but what we want is plenty of goals. We look for a return to their real form in Lindsay-on-the-Scugog come Friday.

* * * * * *

Our junior Monarchs made a better showing 'gainst the strong Bowmanville bunch in Whitby last eve, but they dropped a 6-4 decision. It was hotter than 99 in the shade, with two fights, three goal judges changed, a flock of disputed counters and arguments, and Coach Pete Vitarelli of Monarchs getting the bum's rush off the bench for arguing with Referee Lott. Monarchs had 'em tied halfway through the third till a disputed goal put the boys from Bowman Villa ahead. The same clubs clash here Friday and the locals are emphatic in their statements that they'll knock Bowmanville for a row of garbage cans. It will be quite a battle. Morrison shone last p.m. for the locals with Rochetta, Beggs and Giardino also quite effective. Giardino and Rochetta were jugged once each for fights with rival puckists.

Legionnaires Lost It

Up in Lakefield, the Legionnaires dropped an 8-5 tussle to a strong Sutton squad in an O.H.A. intermediate "B" game, whilst Lindsay Royals were squeezing out a 6-5 nod o'er Oakwood. The Lakefield rink was packed with fans, a good number from Peterborough chug-chugging up the highway to witness a lively affair, wtih a slightly shinny-ish tint at times, we're told. It's quite a grouping and anything is liable to happen before the finish. One thing sure, the fans are going for their O.H.A. team and lending lots of vocal aid. Newmarket will meet the Legionnaires on Saturday e'en in Lakefield.

Local Aces went to town in Omemee last night and won an 18-1 District Puck Loop fray from Millbrook. . Yeah, that's the right score but the Millbrook men were on ice for about the first time and lacked both condition and practice. They'll make it much closer ere long. The Aces showed 'em no mercy in the third and rained rubber into the twine for a 9-0 margin. The winners' goalie had only eight shots all evening, and blocked seven of them. Freelove was a very busy young man in the other cord cottage. This loop is now affiliated with the O.H.A., winner going into playdowns. Next game is Thursday when Aces meet the O's at home.

Warsaw Juniors Defeated 6 To 0

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 17. — Warsaw juniors suffered a 6 to 0 setback at the hands of the local outfit here in an exhibition hockey tilt before a good attendance. The visitors, short their best players, Cooper, I. Watts and B. Bell, were no match for the Hastings club in full force and displaying good form. Montgomery in the nets for the locals seemed unbeatable, but Digweed, fourteen year old net tender for Warsaw, had many more shots to stop throughout the fray and played a good game despite the score piled up against him.

The forward line of Puffer, Edwards and McCarthy were responsible for all Hastings' goals. One penalty during the entire game was given Scriver for slashing.

The teams:

Warsaw — Goal, Digweed; defence, Bryant, Drain; centre, A. Watts; wings, J. Watts, Sharpe; alternates, Bell, Hamblin, Payne.

Hastings—Goal, Montgomery; defence, Boyle, McCoy; centre, Puffer; wings, Edwards, McCarthy; alternates, Scriver, Radford, Petticrew, Phillips.

Referee—Fred Crate.

Millbrook Gang Loses To Aces In Puck Tussle

Peterborough Aces trimmed Millbrook soundly last evening in a District Hockey League game in Omemee, hanging up an 18-1 margin. The losers were short on practice and condition, and fared poorly—but should improve a great deal shortly. It was 6-0 in the first frame and 9-1 going into a one-sided third heat. R. Cournyea got four goals, with Hill, Heal, Connelly, Wright and O'Leary all prominent in the scoring. Freelove was kept busy, and Wainman went best for the losers. The teams:

Millbrook: Goal, Freelove; defence, Mercer, L. Jewison; centre, Elliott; wings, Quantrill, Jewison; subs, wainman, Raper, McCarthy.

Trenton Fliers Here Tomorrow

Trenton Fliers play the Petes here to-morrow (Wednesday) evening at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock Street Rink in an O.H.A. Senior B scheduled contest. It will be the first appearance of the Fliers here this season and the initial 1939 clash of these teams—finalists the last two winters in their group. The Fliers won group honors in '37 but the Petes emerged on top last winter. This season saw the Fliers drop a 2-1 game to Belleville before Christmas, but they came on fast after that in the Kingston loop to win the Van-Horne Cup for the third straight season. They lost a number of last year's players, but brought in several good replacements, and should be as strong as ever now.

Local fans always went for the Fliers-Petes battles in a big way, and to-morrow should see another huge home crowd at the Brock. The Petes will be at full strength and, fresh from their 5-3 win on Friday over the Belleville Redmen, they are confident of racking up their second straight victory in three starts this season. It will be a rousing fight all the way between two classy outfits, with lots of the old rivalry apparent between these Senior B teams.

Ski Notes

Due to the lack of proper snow conditions it will be impossible to hold the regular instruction class at Victoria Park this evening. This is a matter for regret as these classes, conducted by Jack Holland, are very popular and have proved to be of great value to both novice and advanced skiers.

The next regular class will be on Thursday evening at Victoria Park, snow permitting. After the class there will be a club run from the cabin in Jackson Park. If there should still be too little snow bring your skates and try out the winter sports committee's new rink at the park. Refreshments will be provided at the cabin after. Come.

Everybody is talking about the night ski jumping exhibition to be held at Nassau on Friday evening, January 20th. It will be a thrilling spectacle under floodlights and something entirely new in this section of the country. We know you'll all be there but we want you to bring your friends too.

They'll be disappointed if they miss it, so noise it abroad. The local "thrillers" will be Otto Laderach, Jack Holland, Bill Wright and Don Shiner. Out of town experts, including Karl Baadswich, Karl Oaklander, Ted Zinkan and Alf Brenner, are also expected to make you say, "Ah" as you watch them soar gracefully through the air.

Next Saturday afternoon will give you all an opportunity to entertain your parents and friends and make them better acquainted with the activities of the club. We are holding our second annual afternoon tea from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the club's Jackson Park cabin. It's "open house" for all members and friends so do drop around for a cup of tea.

The club championships will be held the week-end of January 28th, and entries must be made in writing by Saturday, Jan. 21st. Get your entry forms from the genial secretary, Miss Lahring Parsons.

Yank Talent Scout Sees Good Year Ahead For Rookies

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP) JOHNNY NEE, talent scout for the New York Yankees these 14 years, today expressed hope for a good crop of baseball rookies.

"This should be a good year," said the veteran who played 29 years in the minors before being signed to the Yankee scouting staff by the late Miller Huggins.

"They seem to run in cycles. But if one boy out of a dozen we send up makes good why that's almost batting .400 for the season."

Nee said the business of scouting was getting more complicated each year, and blamed free hitting and the baseball farm system for the complications.

All Dark Fight Brings Run To Get Tickets

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Tickets for the Joe Louis-John Henry Lewis championship fight at Madison Square Garden a week from tomorrow night are, on the word of Promoter Mike Jacobs, selling so fast he is beginning to think he should have waited and staged the thing outdoors.

If Mike is anywhere near right about it, this is a nice tribute that the customers are paying to a couple of negro boys who have been close friends and admirers of each other's boxing ability for several years. When the match first was announced there were many capable observers who thought maybe Mike at last had fumbled one.

Even if Joe and John Henry had been sworn enemies it still would have looked like a gamble, for there never before has been a heavyweight championship fight between negroes in the United States.

Joe won't talk as mean as he did before his last fight with Max Schmeling. He admitted he didn't like the German and insisted he would knock him kicking in the first round, which he did. All he'll say now is that he intends to "whup" John Henry.

Neither is John Henry doing any fancy talking. All John Henry claims is that he has an even chance of licking Louis.

Nevertheless, the fans have been buying tickets in increasing numbers for the past fortnight. There is an especially brisk demand for the $16.50 ringsides.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

With fourteen men clicking off top heavy scores, including four 300 singles and Jake Beckerman's 3240 team total, the Western Clock Men's League took the bowling honors last night. Beckerman counted 694 (303), Ross Currie 683 (310), Harry Baptie 679 (311), Jim Duffus 675 (329), F. Murray 650, E. Hotston 644, B. McFadden 640, O. Sloane 642 (297), B. Moore 628, W. Thinbeck 615, M. Starr 607, H. Benson 607, E. Fowler 606, and S. McBride 600.

The best individual score for the night went to Ray Bennett of the Post Office, his juggling act netted him 728, with 340 for his first game. Jack Legros walked out with 675, and J. Miller 627.

In the ladies' section Miss Agnes Dixon of the Westclox bowled two games for 449 (265), with Miss Alexander counting 329 for her two, Miss M. Elliott led the Quaker girls with 375 (235), followed by Miss L. Darling 370 (201), Miss M. Allison 349 (212), Miss D. Dawson 318 (205), and Miss Thelma Harris 315.

Fred Whatley, the genial manager of Duffus' Alleys is going around with a score sheet which shows a count reputed to be made by him of 15 in his first frame, followed by a string of ten strikes and a standing four-pin on his last ball. The total score is 416, but there was only one other witness present and he won't talk.

Mic-Macs Win 7 To 1 Over Stirling

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Jan. 17. — Stepping into the Stirling sextette to the tune of 7-1, the Madoc-Marmora Mic-Macs made it five straight wins, without a loss to their credit. The game was clean, only minor penalties being handed out, and until the third period was very close. The score was 1-0 for the Mic-Macs at the end of the first period, and 2-0 for them going into the third. From then on the Madoc crew couldn't be stopped.

Play opened surprisingly fast and the pace told quickly on both teams. The Madoc crew seemed better organized and held the edge throughout. Jones was chased for tripping and the Madoc team ganged up on the Stirling cage. Fox turned aside barrage after barrage of rubber. Akey picked up a loose puck at centre, dove past the defence to snipe the upper corner for the first count. With little support from his team Fox saved sure goals time after time.

Morton was chased for tripping, and the period ended in a wild scramble in front of the Stirling net.

The second period opened with Fox again stemming the tide against him. Hall counted on a pass from Loveless to put the Mic-Macs two up. Loveless was thumbed for tripping and Stirling didn't get organized before the Madoc crew were at full strength again. Fraser was chased for using his knee. Period ended 2-0 for the Mic-Macs.

Kellar scored on Leonard's passout from the corner for the first counter in third. Loveless counted again on the next play, circling the net to beat Fox from the rear.

Stirling got their first and only count from a scramble in front of the Madoc net, Morton getting the marker. The Mic-Macs came back, Alexander counting on the rebound of Akey's shot. Akey got the final count of the game, taking a pass at centre to waltz around the defence, and beating Fox from close in.

For the visitors Fox in the net was a standout and had little chance on those that beat him. Morton and Fraser on the front line did some fine work defensively. For the homesters Hall, Akey and Alexander went best, although there was little choice as the whole team swarmed in dangerously. With only two minutes to go Akey and Armstrong mixed it, but were chased to the dressing-rooms.

The game was handled by Wallace of Stirling and Watson of Madoc.

The teams:

Stirling—Goal, Fox; defence, Geraldi and Jones; centre, Morton; wings, Fraser and Reid; alternates, Potter, Kerr, and Armstrong.

Mic-Macs — Goal, Hollingsworth; defence, Hall and N. O'Neill; centre, Kellar; wings, Akey and Alexander; alternates, Leonard, Loveless, Heyworth, and Burridge.

LINDSAY MIDGETS DEFEAT COLTS IN JUNIOR SHINNY MATCH

Visitors Cop An 8-4 Victory Over Local Outfit In Wild And Woolly Tussle

In a glorified shinny game at the Brock St. rink last night; Lindsay Midgets copped an 8-4 decision over the local Colts. It was the first defeat of the junior Colts this season, and the Midgets earned the win all the way. Barely 300 fans witnessed a lively, exciting fracas with little good hockey shown. It was a wild and woolly duck-pond tussle.

The tilt was good in the first period, with Lindsay having a 1-0 edge. But both sides became disorganized in the second with a slap-happy style of play that had little system. Lindsay earning a 3-1 margin with a less sloppy type of hockey. The visitors had a 4-3 margin in a wild ganging-up third heat, breakaways piling up the count as the Colts pressed desperately and took chances. There were 13 penalties handed out, the homesters drawing five.

Goalie Cournyea was injured in the third heat when hit in the face by a puck—the injury not too serious, but requiring medical attention. Shaughnessy replaced him after a delay. A lively fight kept the fans yelling in the third, at the halfway mark, with four penalties resulting after fans came out on the ice and the police intervened to restore order when several on each side swung into action with their fists. The game was fast and fairly rough at times, with Lindsay earning the win.

No Home Stars

There were no stars on the local lineup over the entire route, though Wade and Foster went good in spots and several others showed up fair for a time. The club looked disorganized toward the end of the initial inning and failed to play its proper hockey, far below its usual form. They bunched up, missed passes, were shaky on defence and muffed many fine scoring opportunities in close. Cook was brilliant on the attack for Lindsay, with Jackson, Brennan and English also effective. The defence checked well and the goalie was hard to beat.

Early in the first frame, Brennan fired on Cook's pass for the only tally of the period. Howden was gated for elbowing and later Betts got it for tripping. The Colts held their own in this speedy stanza. Craig was chased for boarding and Foster nearly scored on a breakaway as Lindsay ganged up. Jackson and Craig were waved over the boards for roughing it and Cook followed for boarding. Just before the end of the heat, Brennan got the finger for charging.

Plain Shinny

It was fast and even at the start of the second but soon developed into plain shinny. A Wade-Foster rush nearly netted one and then Cook scored in close on a hot shot rounding defence. Lindsay kept pressing and Cook got another from an in-close faceoff. Both sides looked ragged but the Midgest had an edge in this heat and the Colts finally ganged up the last six or seven minutes, Parnell finally tallying on Wade's neat pass. Cook counted his third of the frame on a breakaway and Jackson was waved away for tripping shortly before the gong sounded.

Half a minute later the third opened, Brennan blasted one into the hemp and a minute later he got another on assists from Cook and Jackson. It was hot shinny for a space and Foster finally netted the rubber on Stewart's pass-out as the Colts swarmed in four and five at a time. They kept pressing but had no luck around the enemy cage. English scored on a breakaway but the bell had sounded and the goalie was hurt on the play—being carried off. Shaughnessy took over after a delay and the game proceeded. Brennan went off for tripping and a fight broke out shortly with plenty of excitement and fans and police on the ice before peace was restored. Craig, Jackson, Ferguson and Foster wer all penalized. Wade counted in close and then Cook scored on a breakaway. Wade, from Williams, gave the homesters another, but English scored for Lindsay before the end on a pass from Cook.

The teams:

Lindsay: Goal, Turner; defence, Ferguson and Elliott; centre, Cook; wings, Brennan and English; alternates, Betts, McDonald, Parrish, Leahy and Jackson.

Colts: Goal, Cournyea; defence, Howden and King; centre, Craig; wings, Stewart and Foster; alternates, Ward, Wade, Parnell, McDonald, Williams and Shaughnessy.

Referee—Red Creighton.

TORONTO, Jan. 17 — (CP). — Horace (lefty) Gwynne, Toronto, Olympic Games flyweight champion in 1932, took a 10-round decision over Johnny Gaudes, St. Boniface, Man., Canadian bantamweight champion, in an overweight boxing match here last night before a crowd of 5,000.

Castilloux, spotting his opponent two pounds at 133, dropped Drouillard for a nine-count with a hard right cross to the head in the first round. A hard stab to the heart and two right smashes to the head felled Drouillard for another nine-count in the second.

Tweed Blues And Campbellford Battle To Three-All Tie

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 17.—In one of the best hockey matches of the season at the local arena on Monday night the Tweed Blues and Campbellford played to a three-all overtime game.

The first period was reminiscent of the professional game in Toronto on Saturday, with fights, penalties and arguments between Airhart, the visiting referee, and the managers. Practically every penalty of the first period was argued over before the game proceeded, resulting in the first period taking nearly three quarters of an hour to complete. Campbellford jumped into a one goal lead in the first period when Robinson dented the twine for the first counter of the game. Six penalties were handed out in this period, with Meraw, Provost with two, J. Free and W. Leal and Phillips getting the game. Near the last of the period, W. Leal and Phillips went into one another in the corner, and nearly started a free for all, with the players of both teams jumping into the fray.

The First Tweed Score

In the second period, with Tweed shorthanded, Jack Tummon skated through the Campbellford team to drive an ankle high shot past Turner for the first home counter. Meraw was in the box at the time for tripping. However, Campbellford again took the lead when Atkinson tallied from a scramble in front of the Tweed nets. J. Free and J. Tummon went to the box near the end of the period for attempting to mix it up.

Coming out in the last period to fight for a win, the Blues soon tied up the score with H. Leal taking a pass from Provost from behind the nets to tie the score. Provost on that play, took the puck with lightning speed down from one end of the rink to the other, around the Campbellford nets, and passed out to Leal who made sure it went in. A temporary lead was gained by the Blues, when Courneyea on a solo play went through the visiting team to make the count three to two for the home forces. However, with five seconds remaining in the game, Robinson came through with the tying goal, on a scramble in front of the nets. E. Tummon and D. Couch went to the bench together for trying to mix it up.

The Overtime

In the overtime, both teams missed several scoring opportunities, with the home forces in time and time again only to overplay the puck. Near the end of the abbreviated period, Campbellford put on a power play, but Reeves held out the rubber successfully, although the game was in doubt to the last second of the overtime, as both teams were pressing for victory at any cost. No penalties were handed out in this frame.

For the visitors, Turner in goal, and Robinson, the tricky centre player were the standouts, while Reeves in goal, Provost and Courneyea on the forward line were the best for the home forces, although all players showed up well.

Summary:

First Period

1. Campbellford—Robinson.
Penalties—Meraw, Provost 2, W. Leal, Phillips, J. Free.

Second Period

2. Tweed—J. Tummon.
3. Campbellford—Atkinson.
Penalties—Meraw, D. Free, J. Tummon.

Goalie At Work

With candid camera shots still more or less popular, here's one of Earl Robertson, goalie with New York Americans in the National League. Earl has that "oo—this looks like a hot one!" appearance, and with just cause, because the puck happened to be right in front of him. It didn't get any farther however.

No Horseshoe For Farr He's Too Forgetful

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP).—Tommy Farr will leave tonight for Hot Springs, Ark., minus his horseshoe. An admirer sent one to the willing Welshman and despite advice to keep it and use it—in his glove—Tommy left the shoe in Mike Jacobs' office.

Baseball Ready For Its Centennial

By Drew Middleton
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Equipped with a high-powered publicity firm, gold braid and brass hats, awards, memorials and resolutions galore, baseball is ready to observe its centennial this year.

The site of this ceremonial backslapping among the magnates and their hired hands will be Cooperstown, N.Y. There, a century ago, a young West Pointer, Abner Doubleday, laid out the first square playing field, erroneously called a diamond, cut the number of players to 11 and gave form and direction to the game the British called rounders, some Americans called town ball, others "one a' cat."

There will be solemn rites dedicating baseball's hall of fame, exhibition games by the half dozen and untold speeches about the healthy influence of baseball. But, sad to relate, the goofier and more engaging aspects of the industry have been ignored.

One can find no fitting memorial to Lucius Q. Whatsnappa, the hero who first stayed up all night to hold first place in the ticket line before a world series. Nor have any medals been struck for the unsung rookie pitcher who, on the advice of his teamates, first used the hammock in a pullman berth to rest his "salary" wing.

Trying To Revive Junior E.P. League

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 17.—An effort is being made to revive last year's junior E.P.L. hockey league. Mark Lonsberry, manager of Warsaw juniors was present at a meeting of the local club here last night and is endeavoring to form a league with possibly four of last season's teams. He said it was late in the season to form a league, but added that there was yet time for a small schedule.

Stanley Stevenson suggested that the age limit be raised to 21 and under, due to a number of the local team being over twenty. This seemed favorable with both spokesmen and a number of regulations were discussed. Mr. Lonsberry offered a donation of $3 to be awarded the cleanest player of the league.

Sutton Defeats Lakefield Team 8 To 5 In Very Fast Game

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 17.—Over one hundred fans jammed the Lakefield Rink here Monday night to see the Sutton Intermediate 'B' O.H.A. team—veterans of five O.H.A. play-offs—defeat Lakefield's Intermediate 'B' team by a score of 8 to 5 in the fastest game played in Lakefield for some time.

L. Smith, Sutton's goalie is an expert at his job and Junkin for Lakefield put on no mean exhibition. He was the target all evening of a persistent barrage of well-aimed shots and kept a remarkably cool head throughout the proceedings.

The Lakefield team is strengthened this year by its combination plays and the lads showed considerable improvement in style over last year's performance. Chapell, one of the younger players, put in some real work for the Maroon and White.

In the first period, Milroy assisted by Pearsall drew first blood for Sutton after Junkin had successfully staved of a barrage of fast shots in a mass attack on the goal. Spencely counted a second time for the visitors before Jewell assisted by Blewett reached the net for Lakefield's first counter. The fans almost raised the roof. Before the bell rang, Milroy brought the puck from centre ice to score unassisted for Sutton and Carpontier (from Milroy) made a quick shot to end the period 4 to 1. Slack (playing for Lakefield) received the only penalty of this period.

In the second stanza Reg. Deeth on the alert during a mass attack by Lakefield shoved in a smart goal on a rebound shot—the homesters only counter of the period. Pearsall scored for Sutton. The Suttonites made a terrific drive for points while a penalty to Stabler left Lakefield shorthanded. But the local lads held back this attack and then fell before an unexpected offensive made by Sutton when the visitors were playing one man short due to a penalty to Spencely. Milroy was the backbone of this attack and scored unassisted.

In the first five minutes of the third Jewell scored unassisted to get a well-deserved counter for Lakefield. While Cornish was in the penalty box sitting out the first of seven penalties meted out in the third, Burkholder put on the power and scored for the visitor on an assist from Milroy. Milroy scored again almost at once with a long shot. The hopes of the local fans soared tremendously when Whitton tallied twice in quick succession and Milroy was handed two penalties. But Lakefield failed to take advantage of Sutton's frailty though they did their best to break through for a score. Brady (Sutton) and Burton (Lakefield) received concurrent penalties and Chittick (Lakefield) and Milroy (Sutton) completed the list of erring ones in the third to make a total of 10 punishments incurred during the game. The Lakefield lads gave all they had right till the last but failed to change the count which stood at 8 to 5 when the final whistle sounded.

By HERB MARTIN

During Saturday afternoon's bonspiel, while we were out collecting the usual two-bits from each player, we made this remark: "I know of no other place where it is so easy to get money."

Our remark was overheard by Tom McArthur (Scotch origin) and he came right back at us with this: "Its alright for you but tough on us."

Alex Kay, chairman of the boys' section has asked us to announce that there will be a meeting of all boys, under 21 years of age, who are interested in curling, on Thursday evening at 7.30 p.m. at the curling ring club rooms.

The ladies continued in the Gibson trophy yesterday and judging from the results its going to be a nip and tuck affair to the finish. Mrs. R. Waddell's rink being the only undefeated one up to the present.

Plan To Take Pictures Of Sunken City

DETROIT, Jan. 17—(CP)—Plans of a Detroit group for a 100-day expedition in the Caribbean, principally to make undersea pictures of St. James, the city-under-the-sea, moved materially nearer fruition with the purchase of a schooner. They will sail late in February from Miami.

St. James was the capital of St. Christopher Island when the city sank in 1630 during a volcanic eruption. It is 300 feet under the surface and just opposite the present capital of St. Thomas.

The sunken city has defied efforts of surface photographers, so the expedition of 25 people will carry two diving outfits, a professional diver and underwater cameras. Robert Hall of Detroit will head the expedition.

All Saints Win Church Contest

Murray St. Seniors last night at All Saints' rink dropped a 5-1 Church Hockey League tilt to All Saints. The latter ran in four soft goals early, Platt getting three and Rusaw one. The usual reliable McNabb looked off on these long drives. It was a tight tussle then. Johnston took Hawkes' pass for one in the second and Platt got another in the third. The latter starred with S. Seabrooke and King also effective. E. Spencely, Johnston and Watkins were best for the other squad. This gives All Saints their second nod. The teams:

Murray St.: Goal, McNabb; defence, E. Spencely, F. Spencely; centre, Johnston; wings, Watkins, Ellis; subs, Wilson, Hawkes, Crary, Cooper, Gillespie.

Referee, Honey Tompkins.

Knox Juveniles Are Defeated

George St. Juveniles copped a 7-3 church hockey win over Knox at All Saints' rink last evening, with Earl Routley scoring six of the goals in a fine showing. Ward got the other for the victors when he shot the puck into his own net. C. Stewart scored twice and Doughty once for the losers. It was 1-0, 3-1 and 7-3 by periods. The Knox defence checked well and Wilson looked good. Teams:

Knox: Goal, K. Stewart; defence, Scott, Todd; centre, C. Stewart; wings, Doughty, Ward; sub, Gash.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 — (AP). — Some pro football coaches who failed to get Davey O'Brien on the dotted line now are saying he is too small for the pro game, anyway. BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

A LESSON IN ETHICS

PLAYERS WHO are inclined to be just a little bit unethical — which of course is just as bad as being completely so, in principle— are occasionally tripped up by their own crimes. Many operatives of a particular stripe like to do such things as hesitating for long study when possessing a singleton to play on the current trick. They think this is smart practise and is calculated to fool the enemy. If their effort succeeds only in fooling their own partners, they receive their just deserts.

East opened the action here with 1-Diamond, South bid 1-Spade, North leaped to 3-Spades, East called 4-Clubs, South 4-Spades, West 5-Diamonds, North 5-Spades, East 6-Diamonds, South 6-Spades and East doubled. North had so much confidence in his partner, the great old veteran Sidney S. Lenz, that he redoubled.

West led a diamond, for some reason the deuce, which was the deuce of a thing for East to read. Mr. Lenz played low from the dummy and East was puzzled, finally deciding to play the A, which was ruffed. Mr. Lenz next led to the spade A and Q, discarded his only club on the diamond K, then led the heart 10 from dummy. East studied nearly half a minute before he played the K, Mr. Lenz taking with the A and immediately leading the heart 2.

West decided that his partner's study had been due to holding the K and J, so ducked this trick and the heart 6 won. Thus an overtrick was made, for a grand slam on a hand which could have been defeated at a small slam contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

Against a lead of the diamond 10, what is South's safest play to make a 5-Heart contract?

Lakefield W.I. Pays Visit County Old Folk

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 17.—The Lakefield branch of the Women's Institute paid their annual visit to the county old people's nome in Smith Township on Thursday afternoon.

There they staged a program of musical and dramatic selections in which they were assisted by a number of residents of the home who not only joined in the community singing but who gave of their individual talent to delight the ladies with solo and dramatic numbers.

President Officiated

Mrs. Stanley Higgins, president of the Institute, opened the program with the Institute Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. O. E. Kingdon gave a reading entitled 'Changed Times," after which the gathering joined in the popular old number, "Bring Back My Bonnie To Me," for which Mrs. T. W. Chaplin presided at the piano.

Mrs. A. E. Higgins gave a reading entitled, "My Wife," and the numbers, "Home On the Range" and "Loch Lomond" were sung by all present. Mrs. S. E. White gave a reading entitled, "At Breakfast Time" and everyone joined in singing "Lead Kindly Light. Mrs. T. W. Chaplin's reading on "How Sockery Set the Hen" was highly humorous and much enjoyed.

Mr. Murdock sang the selection, "Hard Times." Mr. Stalkwell delighted everyone when he gave the number, "Kind Christians." A selection of three hymns was then sung. Mr. Murdock sang, "Come All Ye Shanty Boys," and the program ended with the National Anthem.

A committee composed of Mrs. S. E. White and Mrs. A. Montgomery distributed home made candies and oranges to the residents of the home.

After a delightful social hour the Institute members left for their respective homes, feeling that one more visit had passed all too soon.

Girl 16, Is Bound Slain With Axe

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 17—(AP). — Ruth Scott, 16-year-old High School student, was killed with an axe early today by an intruder who broke into her home and slew her after tying her arms together and partially stripping her of clothing.

The girl's body, arms bound above her head, was found in a bedroom after her widowed mother, Mrs. James Scott, 57, fought off an attempted attack by the man and aroused tenants living in the upstairs section of their home. Mrs. Scott received a severe gash on the head as she battled with the man in the dark after he invaded her bedroom.

Detective-Lieutenant James O'Gorman said the girl had not been criminally assaulted.

With The Boy Scouts

Congratulations, All Saints'.

On an open invitation I went along to All Saints' Friday night and found quite a gathering of the clans. Rev. Canon Paterson, several mothers, the District Commissioner and Mrs. Hornsby, Assistant Commissioner E. Wolfe, my old friend Albert Hope, William Lyburn, 1st vice-president of the local association, A. Rose and H. Connolly of the troop committee.

Then about 7.35 at a given signal, the troop fell into horseshoe formation, the pack formed the parade circle with part just going into the mouth of the horseshoe. Surely here was a group welded together in bortherhood and friendship.

The pack was to receive the "Bill Coleman Memorial Totem Pole" for having won the greatest number of points in progress for the past year.

A slight break was made in the circle for Assistant Commissioner Lew Grant to enter, followed by Akela Frank Pammett with the totem pole acompanied by its guard of honor, Roland Dore and Donald Craig of the St. John's pack. Akela Pamment congratulated Akela G. Brooks on All Saints' pack coming out on top this year.

Mr. Lyburn presented the totem pole to the pack on behalf of the local association, and unveiled it.

At this point the guard of honor for St. John's saluted the totem in true cub style, and retired.

Mr. Hope, who made the totem and presented it to the local association for competition, spoke on behalf of the troop committee.

Commissioner J. T. Hornsby offered congratulations to the pack on its achievement, and also presented Akela George Brooks with his indoor course certificate and cub leader's warrant.

Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson, Mrs. Kearns, A.D.C.'s Lew Grant and E. Wolfe gave brief talks on the award.

Skipper Groombridge asked everyone present to stand in silence to the loving memory of our beloved brother Bill Coleman, and led in the silent howl to his memory; then called on Akela Brooks to lead in the grand howl, bringing to a close another page in the history of All Saints' cub work.

The totem pole that All Saints now holds, was presented to the local association in loving memory of Bill Coleman, cub leader of the St. John's pack for some years, who died shortly after returning from a cub leaders' course at Ebor Park. Bill did much for cubbing in Peterborough, and his work was the means of bringing success to the cub jamboree at Nassau.

There were 26 boys present in the troop horseshoe and after the presentation ceremony carled on another fitting investiture ceremony, when Wesley Ellis was accepted into the great brotherhood of scouts as tenderfoot.

On Saturday, 12 boys went on a hike, enjoying skiing and tobogganning, finishing with eats round the camp fire.

Next Friday night will be a council fire program, and the patrol leader of the Eagle patrol is requested to get in touch with the scouter right away.

On Tuesday night the All Saints' mothers' auxiliary are holding their monthly meeting at 8 p.m. in the parish hall. All mothers, fathers and scouts are invited to attend; the scouts in full uniform. Mr. A. R. Kennedy is the guest speaker.

At St. Andrew's.

Bridge building was the chief topic of instruction at the last meeting, each boy having to carry out some specified work.

A Father's Night is being planned for the last of January or early February. Bill Crowe has been appointed treasurer for the troop. The Bulldog patrol are leading in points this month.

With the Sacred Heart.

The troop has been enjoying a fair attendance of late, and knotting, signalling and scout laws have been the main items of instruction.

A hike was planned for Sunday and it was expected that a good turnout would be found over Greenhill way.

It is expected that a senior patrol will be commenced shortly for those boys who feel they are too old for the troop. Bill Jones has been slipping lately, and we would sure like to see him in this patrol.

In the cubs we found George Clarke receiving his first year service star. George was originally a St. Peter's cub and joined the Sacred Heart pack when the St. Peter's pack disbanded. George is also well on the way for his first star, having passed the Union Jack, time telling and cleanliness.

The older cubs are assisting Akela by taking instruction classes, thus going ahead with reasonable success. The White Six won the "Do Your Best" pennant with 68 points. In future, this pennant will be awarded on monthly progress.

Several boys paid a visit to the troop to stimulate their interest in the older brtohers with good results.

A meeting of those boys who are interested in forming a rover crew will be held in Sacred Heart headquarters on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock to discuss the question.

Gerald Grady, Peter Dominick and Jimmy Amyotte will be on hand to gather results for the troop committee.

Scouters' Club.

The scouters' club made a great step towards progress when they met last Thursday, and President George Brooks is to be congratulated upon his start. After the business the gathering was divided into four team under captains.

Miss Whalon will be captain of the Iroquois; Gordon Clegg, chief of the Mohowks; Bob Baldwin, chief of the Imperial Jitterbugs, and Bill McKenzie, laird of the McKenzie clan.

St. George's.

Just one cub was missing at roll call on Friday. Several tests were passed and more badges won. Nearly every boy has won his second star.

Owing to the Women's Guild meeting next Friday, the scouts and cubs will not meet until January 27 So keep that date in mind.

Local Association.

This Wednesday is the scheduled night for the local association meeting and any scouter who has any subject he wants brought to the attention of the association should get in touch with the representative on the executive.

Skipper Groombridge was reappointed rover representative at a meeting this week.

Seagoing Bootleggers Are Thriving Off Maritimes, R.C.M.P. Claims

OTTAWA, Jan. 17—(CP)—At the same time that rum-runners have infested the coasts of the Maritime Provinces in recent years, the eastern seaboard of the United States has been 'entirely free' of them, "due to the low price of liquor in that country," Commissioner S. T. Wood says in the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

On the Pacific Coast, liquor smuggling by way of the sea is "practically non-existent," he adds.

Cost of vessels and personnel to deal with the situation at sea off the Maritimes amounts to about $725,000 a year, the commissioner says. This does not include cost of personnel and equipment used on land in conjunction with the marine section of the force.

This preventive work is facilitated by a constant exchange of information between the Halifax divisional office and the United States coastguard authority at Boston on movements of known or suspected liquor vessels.

Little By Auto

During the report year, ended March 31, 1938, there were only isolated cases of liquor smuggling over the United States boundary into Canada by automobile, the commissioner goes on.

"It is becoming more and more evident that those interested in the distribution of illicit liquor throughout Canada, with the exception of the Maritime Provinces, prefer to rely on liquor illicitly distilled in Canada, rather than take the risk involved in transporting the contraband over the international boundary," he comments.

Particular success marked the suppression of large-capacity distilling plants, chiefly in Montreal. Some of these plants, producing in commercial quantities, were capable of turning out as much as 500 gallons of illicit liquor a day.

"In the Maritimes the proportion of cases involving illicit stills was very small," he report says. "The demand has always been met by supplies landed along the coast.

Murders Woman But Delays Report For Day So He Can Enjoy Quiet Of Sunday

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—(AP).—Police Sergeant Thomas Kelliher said Joseph Borys, 62, walked into the station today and announced: "I killed a woman."

The sergeant took Borys into custody, and dispatched squads to the Borys home. There they found the body of Mrs. Frances Piotrowski, 49, a roomer, lying beside her bed. Borys' wife, Agnes, 62, was tending the furnace. Medical examiners said Mrs. Piotrowski had been struck four times about the head, probably with a hatchet.

Policemen said Mrs. Borys related how Mrs. Piotrowski rented a room two months ago and that the trio made a signed agreement that Mrs. Piotrowski would care for the couple until they died and then take over their property.

The wife said she heard screams yesterday morning, discovered the body and urged her husband to call the police but that he said "No, I won't go today; I want a quiet Sunday."

No Dry Lectures

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 17 — (C.P.). — Michigan's Liquor Control Commission will stop engaging in temperance education work under a plan advanced by Orrin A. DeMass, a former Canadian, who is the new Liquor Control Commissioner.

DeMass pointed out the incongruity of the Commission advising the people not to drink liquor and at the same time offering it for sale. He suggested the Education Department take over temperance work and the Liquor Commission discharge its two temperance lectures. The Education Department refused but DeMass said he would proceed with his plan to stop temperance work.

Hitler Prepares To Redivide World Colonies

LONDON, Jan. 17—(CP-Havas)—The diplomatic correspondent of the Sunday Dispatch (Independent) said he learned from an authoritative source that Chancellor Hitler of Germany was preparing a plan for redistribution of colonies, principally at the expense of Great Britain.

Poland, the correspondent said, would obtain "certain satisfaction" in exchange for its agreements to German expansion in eastern Europe through creation of a great Ukraine. Italy also would receive colonial concessions.

The correspondent said the plan was discussed when Hitler conferred 10 days ago with Colonel Joseph Beck, foreign minister of Poland, but no definite decision had been reached and they would meet again in a few months.

He suggested Poland was hesitant about accepting partly because Poland wanted to remain friendly with Britain, and partly because the colonial problem was something to be settled in the more or less distant future, while the Ukraine question was of immediate interest to Poland.

The article concluded by stating Hitler's assurance to Prime Minister Chamberlain he would not bring up the colonial problem for a year or two was caused by Germany's desire to build up its aerial and submarine fleets.

Montreal's Claims Expert Is Fired

MONTREAL, Jan. 17. — (CP). — The Gazette says to-day in a front page story that Jean J. Penverne, sponsor of a report that the was being mulcted of hundreds of thousands of dollars through fake claims, has been suspended as head of the city's Claims Department my Mayor Mamillien Houde.

An appointee of former Mayor Adhemar Raynault, Penverne first came into the limelight a little more than a year ago when he was named by Raynault to conduct a vice probe here. Penverne journeyed to New York to study methods of racket buster Thomas E. Dewey and to Washington for information from J. Edgar Hoover, head of the famed G-men. However, the proposed investigation never came off.

The Gazette says that Mayor Houde "sent a terse note to Mr. Penverne informing him of the suspension, without explanation."

The Gazette says that one reason "mentioning as motivating and suspension—presumably, ultimate severance of connection—is that of economy. Mr. Penverne's salary has been $8.00 a year."

Mercy Killer

Charged with the "mercy killing" of his 17-year-old son, Jerry, who was chloroformed to death as he lay in bed, Louis Greenfield is shown in New York homicide court. The boy had the mentality of a two-year-old and suffered constant pain, according to the story given police by Greenfield. He was remanded without bail.

Favor Army, Navy Under One Man

WASHINGTON, an. 17—(AP).—A proposal to reorganize military control in the United States by placing the army and the navy under a single cambinet officer was revived in congress today in connection with President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 defence program.

A Democratic senator who declined to be quoted by name said he was drafting legislation to create a secretary of national defence. Several members of the House of Representatives have been advocating such a consolidation.

Although similar bills heretofore have met objections from army and navy leaders, the senator contended the projected strengthening of the military forces was a propitious time to make the change. The administration's attitude has not been disclosed.

Senate and House committees were ready to begin a study of the armament program this week. Chairman May (Dem.-Kentucky) of the House military committee disclosed he was considering including in the program a system of "super highways" across and up and down the nation. In addition to being invaluable from a defence standpoint, he said, these roads should stimulate economic development.

U.S. NAVY MANOEUVRES

WASHINGTON — (CP). — The United States navy will assemble in February "war manoeuvres" in the Caribbean Sea, once the haunt of pirates and now regarded as a key to Uncle Sam's defences.

Incubator Baby Plays Role Of Tarzan's Son

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17—(AP)—An incubator baby, who wore out his last pair of rompers climbing trees, received his reward to-day as the youngest ape man in movie history.

Johnny Sheffield, who six years ago was kept in an incubator in a hospital nursery, now is the chum of lions and elephants. He swims across pseudo-crocodile infested streams as easily as if he had a motorboat.

He's the envy of a million boys. For the next few weeks, he's the son of Tarzan.

"Yip-ee-e-e," yelled Johnny, in anthrcpoid style, as he was interviewed for the first time after winning his first screen role.

He was wearing nothing but a leather breech-clout, tan make-up, and blue bedroom slippers. He was supposed to be studying his lines, but he swung up on artificial jungle creeper and wriggled his body in mid-air to keep in practice.

His father, Reginald Sheffield, the original David Copperfield of the screen back in 1913, said Johnny had been swinging on things since he was old enough to stand up.

Johnny looks like Johnny Weissmuller in miniature, and that in fact, was wh yhe was teamed up with "Big Johnny" in "Tarzan in Exile." In addition, however, "Little Johnny" had some stage experience in New York in "On Borrowed Time."

R.C. Girls Warned Of Skating, Skiing

OTTAWA, Jan. 17—Ottawa Roman Catholics were warned today in a letter from Archbishop J. G. Forbes that certain winter sports—skating, skiing and snowshoeing — lead to particular occasions of moral peril especially when engaged in by both sexes.

The letter said in part.

"These sports, honest in themselves, are not however, equally recommended for all, especially for persons of the fair sex, who, from their age, their condition, or at least from their call to the noble role of motherhood, should refrain from exercise too violent or exhausting.

"In any case, these expeditions or outings change too easily to unwholesome, or at least, dangerous and imprudent meetings from a viewpoint of temperance or of purity of morals. Parents cannot be blind to this and it is their duty to use their authority and to exercise stern vigilance to protest their sons and daughters and shield them against these all too harmful adventures."

RELIEF FROM PAINS IN BACK AND LIMBS

Short Treatment of Syntona Brings Grand Relief After He Had Suffered 2 Years.

MR. STEWART WOODWARD

"Because of the results I got, I can highly recommend Syntona to any one who suffers as I did," said Mr. Stewart Woodward, of 25 Augusta street, Hamilton.

"For about two years I had been troubled with rheumatic pains in my back and limbs. I used every treatment I knew of, but seemed to be getting worse, and finally I got so bad I couldn't get around at all for a couple of months. I had been reading about Syntona and finally I decided to try it, and I am certainly glad I did. I got relief from the pains in my back and limbs; I eat and sleep better, and get up mornings feeling rested and happy. I cannot say I am entirely well, because I am 80 years of age and have to take good care of myself, but I can get around quite easily now and I am certainly glad at my age, to find a medicine that helps me so much and yet contains no harmful drugs."

Syntona is made only from pure herbal juices. It is pleasant to take and quick to act. A splendid medicine for any one to take at this season. It drives out poisonous waste matter and acidity from the system and helps you to assimiliate your food for strength and energy.

Syntona is now being introduced in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Ask about the Special Introductory Offer.

Goering Seen New Nazi War Chief

Goebbels Reported To Become Berlin Governor

By Louis Lochner
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BERLIN, Jan. 18—(AP).—Rumors of far-reaching changes in the Nazi administration involving such men as Field Marshal Goering, propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels and others were current in Berlin today.

They coincided with the return to his desk in the propaganda ministry of Goebbels after nearly a month's illness. Official sources declined to confirm or deny them.

According to these reports, circulated by men usually in a position to know, Goering will shortly become vice-chancellor and minister of war. Both posts have been vacant for some time—the vice-chancellorship since Franz Von Papen, last holder, was made special ambassador to Austria after the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss in 1934, and the war ministry since the resignation of Field Marshal Werner Von Blomberg in February, 1938.

Goering now is chief of the four-year economic self-sufficiency plan and air minister, in addition to holding numerous lesser posts. The additional appointments would make him more conspicuously than ever Germany's No. 2 man.

New Nazi Leader Chief.

Goebbels, according to the reported new setup, would be placed above all other gauleiters, or Nazi district leaders, as obergauleiter. At the same time, the rumors said, he will be appointed statthalter, or governor, of the greater Berlin district.

He will retain his status as minister of the Reich but no longer will be in charge of the propaganda and press department, it was said. Under the reported plans the propaganda ministry would become attached directly to the chancellory with State Secretary Otto Dietrich, Chancellor Hitler's personal press chief, in charge.

Men from the foreign office then would conduct the relations with the foreign press. Goering would take over the direction of theatres, motion pictures and the radio, now in Goebbels' hands.

After recovery from his illness,

Blast Roundup Nets Ten Men

LONDON, Jan. 18—(CP-Cable)—Three men were taken to Albany street police station today as Scotland Yard pressed its investigation into numerous bomb explosions throughout the country yesterday in the belief they might indicate a renewal of the Old Irish Republican army feud against the British in Northern Ireland.

Almost simultaneously seven men appeared in police court at Manchester and were remanded for a week on charges of being in unlawful possession of explosives.

No charges were laid immediately against the three men being questioned in London. They were accompanied by officers from a north end house where they were found after an all night search for six men whose descriptions had been circulated throughout the country.

Police reported they were seeking three men who spent Monday night at a small Strand Hotel and left early in the morning by taxi, telling the driver they hoped to meet three friends. Hotel employees, who did not recognize any in the Rogue's gallery pictures of known agitators, said one of their guests spoke with a strong Scottish accent.

Mexico Sends Envoy Back To Berlin

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18 — (AP). —General Juan Azcarate left by plane for New York yesterday to resume his post as Mexican Minister in Berlin.

The government which a few years ago withdrew many ministers in foreign countries as an economy move, leaving the missions in charge of lesser officials, has been returning the diplomats to their posts recently.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 18 (AP)

POLICEMAN James Russell stopped a young Negro who was looking into a parked automobile and arrested him although the latter had not stolen anything and honestly answered all questions.

"What are you doing?" was Russell's query.

"Prowling," was the reply.

"Well, have you taken anything?"

"No, I haven't — I can't find anything."

Glamorous Vera Zorina, dancing star of several movie hits is pictured with her husband, George Balanchine, who is also her ballet director. The couple were wed secretly, Dec. 24, and the wedding was not revealed for three weeks. In the meantime gossips had linked the dancer's name with that of actor Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who was noted squiring Miss Zorina to social affairs.

R.A.F. Up To Date In 18 Months Says Commander

MONTREAL, Jan. 18—(CP).—The Royal Canadian Air Force is being built to act as "a powerful deterrent" to any possible aggressor, members of the Montreal united service institution were told last night by Wing Commander G. V. Walsh of Ottawa, who added that it would be impossible to make Canada completely immune to air attack.

Within 18 months' time it was hoped all existing squadrons would be fully up-to-date, he said. The R.C.A.F. must play a three-fold role in defence: Co-operate with the navy to protect trade and check enemy ships, with the army against enemy landings or raids and in observation of coast artillery fire, and in independent action against air or sea attack.

Pointing out that it was impossible to foresee what added aviation development might result under the impetus of another war, Wing Commander Walsh said dirigibles and planes launched from ships could easily attack the Dominion, while there was an added danger of attack from overseas bases.

Following the address, Col. F. R. Phelan, officer commanding the Brigade of Canadian Guards, was elected president of the institution, succeeding Col. P. E. Leclerc.

Six Inches Of Snow Clog Hamilton

A blizzard that swept in from the East during the night, threatened a tie-up of traffic on streets and highways in Hamilton district today. Six inches of snow fell during the night and it was continuing today.

Bus schedules were lagging and other transportation began to suffer. The street railway had its sweepers at work.

In other districts a general fall in temperatures was reported, but it was unaccompanied by storms except in Toronto where winds were whipping the snow around.

Sudbury reported recent snowfalls were now being packed on the highways and ice and ruts were beginning to appear.

U.S. Envoy To China Reports On War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP).—Nelson Johnston, United States ambassador to China, returned to Washington today to report to President Roosevelt on the war in the Orient.

He said on landing in New York last night that the Chinese were "very hopeful of an eventual victory" over Japan.

With Johnson's arrival, the United States now has four ambassadors here, and only two of the most important posts outside Latin-America are occupied—Rome and Tokyo. Ambassadors Joseph Kenedy, William Bullitt and Hugh Wilson, accredited respectively to Great Britain, France and Germany, are here for conferences. The post at Moscow is vacant.

Hidden Officer Nabs Bandit In Act Of Robbing Toronto Hosiery Shop

Grabs Russian As He Threatens Salesgirl, 5 Others Nabbed In Sunnyside Raid Are Blamed For 8 Of 9 Phantom Car Jobs

TORONTO, Jan. 18 (CP).—Police believe they have solved an epidemic of Ellis Hosietry Shop hold-ups with the arrest today of Max Yarmo. He told police he was born in Russia.

Plainclothesman William Dickson, concealed in the Ellis store at 501 Danforth Avenue, caught the suspect as he attempted to hold up the salesgirl today.

Yarmo walked into the store and asked the girl, Miss Margaret Donald, if he could see some merchandise. Then he walked towards the cash register and handed her a note, written in red crayon, reading: "Hurry. Give all your cash or I'll shoot."

At the same time he brandished a gun which was later found to be a toy.

At this moment the plainclothesman jumped out from the back of the store and, without drawing his revolver, grabbed him.

Police indicated that Yarmo will be charged with the several robberies of Ellis Hosiery Shops and a break-in of a Virginia Dare store.

Five Blamed for 8 Raids.

TORONTO, Jan. 18 — (C.P.). — Five men, arrested by police in a raid on a Sunnyside apartment house yesterday, were charged today with eight of the nine early morning robberies committed by a gang in a grey "phantom car" on Monday.

A special police squad, under Sergeant of Detectives John Hicks, smashed in the door of the apartment, as three of the wanted men, partially dressed, dived out a window. They found four policemen with drawn guns waiting in the courtyard.

Two raids in Agincourt and another near Milton resulted in the arrest of a sixth man, Ernest Kirk, 43, on a charge of retaining stolen goods, and the recovery of nearly $6,000 worth of loot, including three rifles and a revolver.

Charged with breaking into six Langley stores within 77 minutes, with breaking into Loblaw's store at Leaside, and with attempting to break into a Cleaniteria shop are: Joseph Huntley, 23; Hubert Hiscock, 24; Stewart Rowe, 19; John Nixon, 19; and Frank Cast, 22.

Nixon also is charged with theft of three rifles from the general store at Lansing and with stealing a hand truck and two "jimmies" from another shop in Scarborough.

Following a line-up held in the cells at the City Hall early to-day, Nixon and Cast were charged with the hold-up on Monday of Russell Daniels, department store driver.

Bail of $5,000 each was set for R. J. Huntley and Hiscock by Magistrate Browne. Bail was refused for the other three arrested at the Sunnyside apartment. Bail for Kirk will be set later, the Magistrate decided.

A Bank Warning

TORONTO, Jan. 18—(CP).—Ultimate devaluation of debts, conscription of productive resources or inflation of prices may be a sequel to the abandonment of past precepts in public finance, John R. Lamb, president of the Bank of Toronto, told shareholders at the 83rd annual meeting of the institution today.

Brown said he built the stairway for just such an emergency.

Quit Pretending On Defence Says Meighen

OTTAWA, Jan. 18—(CP).—Conservative Leader Meighen has called upon the Dominion Government to bring its defence policy out into the open and admit Canada never had and never could be able to defend herself.

The fact the government intended to spend a few more millions this year on national defence preparedness was not enough in itself to assure this country's security and everyone knew it, Senator Meighen said in the Senate address debate yesterday.

"Why all this hypocrisy and pretence that we are going to look after our own defence?" he demanded. "The Government leader knows we never did and never can."

The increase in defence appropriation was welcomed, but would be effective only as it was linked to a policy of co-operation, he contended. He begged the government to admit it was constantly in touch with the British Admiralty and War Office, and was fitting its defences into the British defence system.

Strain On The Premier?

Prime Minister Mackenzie King had made a statement in September of the terrible crisis through which the country had passed. "I appreciate his anxiety although I don't know what toll he went through that required three weeks in the Caribbean. What decisions were made? Did the toil consist of decoding cablegrams from Great Britain?

"Why the anxiety? No one was threatening war on Canada. There was anxiety because the government knew a peril to the power of England was a peril to us, to the security of Canada. I don't wonder that the Prime Minister was worried or begrudge him rest in the Caribbean, but why keep parading ourselves as capable of defending ourselves? It isn't the truth. We know it isn't the truth."

Making Friends.

Making friends with other countries might be a way of guaranteeing against attack from them, but Canada had been making friends with the United States and Great Britain, from which there was no threat of danger.

Senator Meighen said he had been "appalled" at a recent Montreal speech by Senator A. K. Hugesson (Lib. Montreal) intimating that Canada, as a portion of the British Empire, would run to the protection of Uncle Sam in case of danger.

Senator Meighen claimed the Government had not moved an inch towards curing unemployment since coming into power and it would not cure it the way it was drifting along. The only cure was in reduced Government costs and a clear road for industry and finance.

11 Italian Tanks Routed By Bombs Of Lone Loyalist Corporal

BARCELONA, Jan. 18 (AP) — Stiffening of government defence lines gave Barcelona new heart and made it a bustling city of wartime business today in the face of the gravest insurgent threat to government Spain since the civil war started exactly 2½ years ago.

The poorly-masked worry that gripped the government capital when the Insurgents drove within 35 miles of Barcelona disappeared today. The greyish morning sunlight found the strets full of hurrying crowds and noisy truck traffic.

Nowhere was their a sign of fright or panic.

The Spanish public acclaimed the exploits of a young "Dinamitero" who was officially reported to have stopped an Insurgent tank attack single-handed yesterday by hurling well-aimed bombs.

The semi-official newspaper La Vanguardia said Celestino Garcia Moreno, an army corporal, destroyed one tank in the Sant Coloma sector and brought back its machine gun.

In a second attack he faced 13 tanks alone, wrecked two and made the others flee. With a pickaxe he broke open the door of one tank and took four Italian officers prisoner.

Newspapers spread his name in banner headlines with congratulations from Premier Juan Negrin. A leading editorial on "the lesson of Corporal Garcia" said government Spain was meeting its deficiency in war materials with superhuman bravery and attacked "politicians of the world" who abandoned Spain.

Poker-Playing, Robbery Plotting In Armories Stir Whitby To Thoughts Of Inquiry

WHITBY, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP)—There should be an investigation into poker playing in the local armouries, Magistrate F. S. Ebbs said in police court yesterday as he sentenced Garnett Swain, 20, and George Duncan, 22, to three months in jail each on theft charges.

"I would like to take strong exception to public buildings being used as hotbeds of crime," said Crown Attorney Allin Annis when the two youths said they planned a robbery while at the Whitby armouries where, they said, they spent many nights playing poker.

"Apparently these boys have been congregating in the armouries and playing poker at all hours," said Magistrate Ebbs. "Some investigation should be undertaken."

Peeved Girl Friend Tips Police Lover Murderer

Detroit, Jan. 18 (CP)

MADGE HOWELL, 24, was so angry because her sweetheart, Clyde Gill, 27, confessed to a robbery that she told police today he was guilty of a murder.

Miss Howell told police Gill told her he killed a railroad detective in Memphis in August, 1937. Police records showed a detective had been murdered there in August, 1937.

COBOURG, Jan. 18.—Shuttling back from Northumberland to Durham, the Wardenship of the united counties remains in the Conservative household.

Settled in Caucus.

The election of Warden Reid was determined before the council convened. Weeks ago, Conservatives knew they could count on a dominating majority of the council, and with four aspirants for the Wardenship they went into caucus some time prior to the 7.30 p.m. assembly for the purpose of eliminating opposition and doubt within their own ranks by selecting one candidate to send in against Reeve Carruthers. The four reeves who were considered

Fish And Game Organization For The County

Formation of a committee to handle fish and game conservation and restocking in the County of Peterborough and to act as a steadying influence to the organization now in existence in the city of Peterborough was arranged at the County Council sessions this morning.

The idea introduced by Reeve William Anderson of Otonabee was described as one phase of work which is of vital interest to many parts of the county, and one which is not getting the attention or consideration which it deserves as the greatest industry in Canada. The discussion brought opinions from every member of the Council particularly the members for the northern townships and the members were unanimous the County Council was justified in taking an active interest in this work.

"We can set up an organization that would identify itself with the city group which is organized for the same purpose. Undoubtedly such a move would add strength to the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association and the two groups would accomplish much more than if they worked separately," declared Reeve Gifford.

Shoplifting Queen, $15,000 Loot Nabbed

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18 (AP) — Three men and a self-styled "queen of the shoplifters" were jailed early today on suspicion of operating a "cash on delivery" service which offered stolen finery at bargain prices to film and radio stars.

More than $15,000 worth of furs, lingerie, perfumes and other articles were recovered at an apartment and at a 15-room house by raiders led by John Klein, district attorney's chief investigator.

Klein said he found indications the shoplifting ring had connections in San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake City, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Chicago and New York.

Film and radio personages, Klein said, were believed to have been invited to buy luxury goods at sweeping discounts, any article selected to be delivered within 48 hours.

Abuses To Bring Extensive Relief Probe

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—(CP).—Extensive investigation of relief administration in Ontario appeared possible to-day as Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, expressed dissatisfaction with existing conditions and the new position of director of unemployment relief was created.

Appointment to the new post of Edward A. Horton, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, was announced by Mr. Cross last night. Mr. Horton has been relieved of his work as Deputy Minister of Welfare to enable him to give more attention to relief matters and possibly supervise the probe believed to be imminent.

A hint of the investigation was given when Mr. Cross said: "The great percentage of the Ontario relief problem is confined to the cities and we have reason to believe that in some of them many persons are receiving direct aid who have no valid claims to it. Only painstaking investigation of the homes can bring these cases to light."

The minister said 67,604 persons in Toronto received directly relief in November, 1938, as compared to 59,216 in November, 1937. Despite the increase, the city's staff of supervisors had not been increased to take care of the heavier load and

County Council Is Urged To Back Cooperative Creamery Movement

Reeve W. A. Anderson, veteran representative of Otonabee township, urged members of the County Council to give serious consideration to floating a bond issue for the establishment of a co-operative creamery for this county, when the members met in session Wednesday morning.

"Experience has taught us that the man who milks the cow gets two cents more per pound for butter fat from the cooperative creameries and if such an industry could be set up every farmer in the county would get two cents more for every pound of butter fat that he sold," said Reeve Anderson.

The suggestion followed a short talk from Reeve James Gifford relative to naming the Agricultural Advisory committee. He laid stress on the fact that farmers are failing to organize properly despite the knowledge that every branch of industry have so arranged things that they present a united front on petitions to the government and in tackling marketing problems.

"It is imperative that we organize and as a first step I would recommend that a Chamber of Agriculture be set up in this county for the sole purpose of representing agriculture. If this is done the idea may extend across the provinces and eventually farmers will be properly organized," he said.

Reeve Anderson speaking again said: "The time has certainly arrived when the County Council must take the initiative in improving the marketing of farm products. We often hear from politicians that they are considering abolishing county councils, but on the contrary I

Hitler Guard Paper Strikes Anew At Jews

BERLIN, Jan. 18—(AP). — The newspaper Das Schwarze Korps, organ of Chancellor Hitler's elite guard, enjoined Germany to-day to treat Jews as if they were "stinking air."

Apparently reacting to Germany's assurances to the United States that the government would live up to its treaty obligations in its treatment of American citizens, the paper remarked:

"Through international agreements Germany is actually forced to treat the most detestable Jew who carries a foreign passport as if he were a real member of a respectable people."

The paper added foreign treaties should not be regarded as a hindrance 'for us to judge these Jews the way we are accustomed to judge them."

Dawes Thinks Big Four Mean Peace

Is Sure Force Of Fear Will Prevent Another Big War

CHICAGO, aJn. 18 (AP).—General Charles Gates Dawes, who shared the Nobel peace prize with Sir Austin Chamberlain in 1925, predicted today an enduring European peace would emerge from parleys now in progress among Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

He based his belief on experience drawn from service as vice president of the United States, ambassador to the court of St. James', president of the American commission on German reparations, and general purchasing agent of the American expeditionary forces during the Great War.

In one of his rare public addresses, prepared for delivery before the Chicago association of commerce, General Dawes came to the defence of both the Munich pact and Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain, whom he called "a great and fearless leader."

People Fear, Hate War

"European people are now in the play of a tremendous force, the fear and hatred of war," he said. "In the grasp of this force are dictators and dictatorial governments as well as democratic governments, and if the result of its operation is not eventually an enduring peace in Europe, then the world may despair of any civilization hereafter which will not destroy itself by war."

This force of fear, he asserted, prevented the outbreak of war when Germany marched to the Rhine, prevented it when Germany took Austria, and forestalled it again during the Czechoslovakian crisis.

"I believe that out of the negotiations already in progress between the four great powers of Britain, France, Germany and Italy there will finally result an enduring peace, with the might of the four powers pledged to protect it, not simply as a matter of ethics but, as a matter of their individual self-interest," he said.

Insurgents Gain Another 3 Miles

HENDAYE, France, Jan. 18 — (AP). — Spanish insurgent forces pushing north-eastward along the Mediterranean toward Barcelona to-day fought their way across the Gaya River where they had been held since shortly after the fall of Tarragona on Sunday.

Burgos field bulletins reported the capture of Altafulla and Vespella, both on the east side of the river which until late yesterday had marked the government's defence line. Both villages are about 42 miles from Barcelona.

While the advance in this sector placed General Franco's troops about three miles nearer the Catalonian capital, the insurgent columns led personally by Franco directly west of Barcelona apparently were slowed down by stiffened government resistance.

These forces, moving along the Lerida-Barcelona highway, were roughly about 35 miles from Barcelona. They devoted their attention mainly to cleaning up a wide government pocekt south and southeast of Cervera, reporting the capture of a dozen villages.

They were preparing for what military observers believed would be a renewal of fighting in the mountains north-west of the government capital.

The Old Triangle

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 18—(AP). — A man who told police he killed his wife with an old Chinese dagger lay near death in an oxygen tent today, victim of an automobile which struck him as he ran from his home.

He was identified as Paul Mardorff, 50, by officers who found his wife dead on the floor of their bedroom. The bone handle of a dagger extended from her back and the point protruded from her chest.

State Investigator Stuart Smith said there was evidence of "the old, old triangle" in the slaying.

Provinces To Block Ottawa In Constitution Deal Says Blackmore S.C. Chief

Woodsworth Suggests No Lavish Display But Simple Reception For King; Eleven Speakers Hold Forth In House

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP).—Alberta will never agree to the constitutional changes contemplated by the Federal Government, in the opinion of Social Credit Leader Blackmore. He believes other provinces will take the same stand.

Opening the resumed debate in the House of Commons yesterday on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, Mr. Blackmore urged adoption of monetary policies in Canada and expressed fear the government was going to excuse its failure to produce social reforms on the ground of constitutional obstacles.

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, who followed Mr. Blackmore, said the barriers set up by the British North America Act were "the ever present help in time of trouble."

Scoring those who engaged in lavish and expensive display at social functions in Ottawa while thousands were in want and suffering, Mr. Woodsworth urged the reception to the King and Queen next May be "dignified but simple."

Mr. Woodsworth moved an amendment to the amendment urging government control of financial institutions and other enterprises "which exploit the people of Canada."

Eleven Speakers Hold Forth.

The House listened to a procession of 11 speakers, four Liberal, four Conservative, two Social Credit and one C.C.F. member. M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar) adjourned the debate and will speak today.

Yesterday's speakers were, in addition to the two party leaders: J. H. Harris (Con., Toronto-Danforth), D. McIvor (Lib., Fort William), W. A. Tucker (Lib., Rosthern), E. H. Hensall (S.C., Macleod), Mrs. George Black (Con., Yukon), Elie Bertrand (Lib., Prescott), T. A. Thompson (Con., Lanark), Leslie Mutch (Lib., Winnipeg South) and Gordon Graydon (Con., Peel).

Mr. Blackmore said his travels through the country disclosed a general feeling that democracy had failed. It was the responsibility of the government to see that democracy did not fail and in a country so vast and so lightly populated there was no excuse for failure.

What the People Want.

A democracy should give the people what they want and everybody knew what they wanted in Canada —jobs, good wages and equitable prices.

It was evident from the Throne speech the government planned to excuse its failure to do certain things by claiming it could not act without amendments to the British North America Act.

"May I say that so far as my native province is concerned and I believe so far as all the provinces with which I am familiar are concerned, they are not prepared to grant those changes."

Fresh expenditures were proposed in the Speech from the Throne and the Opposition leader had been talking of costly things to be done, but Mr. Blakmore said neither leader had indicated where they were to get the money.

Mr. Woodsworth said in his judgment there was "altogether too many gold braid and social functions in Ottawa" and he suggested it would be a good thing if parliament could meet among the lumbermen of British Columbia, the farmers of the west, the miners of Ontario or the steel and coal workers of Nova Scotia so that cabinet ministers might get a different idea of what Canada is.

Riel Rebellion Veteran Is Laid To Rest

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 18.—The funeral of the late Thomas Pope, a veteran of the North West Rebellion was held here under auspices of the Legion on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased who was a life long resident of Campbellford was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pope. He was born in Campbellford eighty years ago and was for many years a Boss Carder in the Campbellford Cloth Company of which he was an employee for over forty years.

His death came following a brief illness which forced him to bed a week ago at which time he was compelled to discontinue his work. He was an Anglican and a member of Christ Church all his life. His wife the late Charlotte Muffitt predeceased him seventeen years ago and he is survived by one daughter Mrs. Fred Lang of town and one sister, Mrs. M. Kelly of Hoboken, N.J.

The funeral left the family residence on Queen street at three o'clock for Christ Church where the funeral service was conducted by Rev. T. H. Floyd of Peterborough following which interment was made in Christ Church Cemetery.

Judge Opens 1-Man Gambling Campaign

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18 (AP).—Circuit Judge Allen Souther, a two-fisted veteran of the bench who once kept striking building workers away from his home with a shotgun, jumped into Kansas City's political war today with a one-man crusade against gambling.

His first blow fell last night when he issued search warrants. Sheriff James Williams and his deputies raided two gambling places, and virtually every one of the town's 100 or more other joints closed as the word got around.

Williams led a raid on a bingo parlor which catered chiefly to women. Chief Deputy Sheriff J. A. Purdome took a squad to another place known as the most lavish gambling setup in town.

Players were not molested, but 14 employees of the two places were arrested. They were freed a few hours later by Judge John Cook on writs of habeas corpus. They were placed on $500 bond each for appearance tomorrow.

Gov. Lloyd Stark recently called on Attorney-General Roy McKittrick to clean up what he termed a lack of law enforcement here that "smells to high heaven."

Frick To Retire?

Other rumors said Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, would be retired on a pension. He will be 62 in March. He may be given the status of an elder statesman with reference to domestic policy, much as Baron Konstantin von Neurath, ex-foreign minister and president of the secret cabinet council, holds in respect to foreign affairs.

In his place at the ministry of the interior would be named Heinrich Himler, chief of all German police and of the black uniformed SS (Elite Guards) troops.

Political observers see in such moves, if they are to be made, Hitler's policy of always balancing moderates and radicals. If Goering's appointment as vice-chancellor be regarded as a victory for the moderates, Himler's elevation to the interior ministry would be an offset pleasing to the radicals.

All this still is in the stage of talk in circles regarded as well informed. All admit, however, that in this situation, as in all other matters, one man and one man only decides — Hitler.

Well-Known Panhandler Hits Up Policeman Who In Turn "Softens" To Cop's Hard Story

On George St. a well-known panhandler tried to mooch a dime from a policeman in civilian clothes on Tuesday but instead of getting the money after telling his sad story, listened while the officer in turn told a sob story that touched the heart of the beggar to such an extent he decided the policeman was much worse off than himself and he, to the amazement of the officer, offerd a dime instead of trying to get one.

The panhandler, well-known locally by the nickname of Scotty, and who has been before the magistrate so often it has become a habit, accosted the officer as he stood in a clothing store. "Say, buddy, could you spare a dime, I haven't had a bite since morning," was his appeal he put on a look that a man might have if his wife and children had just been kindnapped and the bailiff had evicted him.

"I'm awfully sorry Scotty," said the policeman with an equally sad expression, "I know you are a deserving case but the truth is I'm pretty hard up myself. I haven't a cent, and I'm worse off than you are because I have to pay a bill tomorrow, we're running short of groceries and the rent is due.

Warning up to the subject and talking so fast the now bewildered Scotty couldn't get a word in at all, the officer added "You know how it is, a family is awfully expensive and it's a hard job trying to make both ends meet nowadays. I would help you if I could but do you know I'm so hard up I haven't even got enough money to pay my way home on the bus."

Proving that at times a heart of gold beats beneath a ragged shirt, the panhandler reached into his trousers pocket and pulled out two nickels. "Gee that's too bad, here you take a dime and ride home."

The dime was returned.

Abuses To Bring

"under such circumstances, it is possible abuses may exist."

Forty municipalities were responsible for 85 per cent of Ontario's relief problem, Mr. Cross said. The town of Sturgeon Falls, in Northern Ontario, had 54.9 per cent. of its population on relief. Improvement during the past year was shown in several Western Ontario centres, notably Windsor, Midland and Riverside.

Oshawa, Brantford Worse

But the situation in other Ontario cities became "definitely aggravated" during the year, he said. Oshawa, Brantford, Hamilton and Sudbury showed increases and "it is evident that any improvement in investigation methods will accomplish substantial savings to the municipalities as well as to the province and the Dominion."

The minister warned municipalities that they must be prepared to budget for at least 45 per cent of their relief costs in January, February, March and the ensuing months of 1939. The provincial contribution will be limited to 35 per cent of the total cost on the basis of the present federal grant of 20 per cent.

Ontario's position on relief was outlined to Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, in a letter sent by Mr. Cross yesterday. He requested permission to present the views of his department before the Dominion government proceeds with its program of relief works by municipalities, forecast in the speech from the throne.

The position of Ontario municipalities could not be improved nor could the present level of taxation upon real estate be lowered if municipalities "are encouraged to embark upon large capital expenditures which have to be annually met by instalments."Mr. Cross told the federal minister. Municipalities burdened with heavy relief rolls were the least able to afford any capital program.

More Grants In Aid

Mr. Cross added:

"Apart from these considerations, however, I am of the view that, generally, the most welcome assistance the federal government could give would be to increase its grant-in-aid so that all municipalities might benefit alike by way of a reduction in their share of relief.

"I might emphasize here that all municipalities in Ontario, with one or two exceptions, are carrying relief out of current revenue, which has to be raised by annual taxation. Any reduction in this burden has important results in encouraging private spending and private building, whereas capital spending by a municipality has a tendency in quite the opposite direction."

Comenting upon statements last night in Ottawa by officials of the finance department that the Ontario Government has refused to participate in the Dominion's self-liquidating loans scheme, Mr. Cross said in an interview the enabling legislation was "pushed through" at the last session of parliament without Ontario's representatives being consulted.

Staying On Sound Basis

"Ontario is determined to keep its municipalities sound and standing on their own feet," said the minister. "Any policy of cheap money from the federal treasury in the long run hits the Ontario taxpayer. He is merely taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another and adding to the cost of administration in the process."

Under the scheme, $30,000,000 was provided for municipal self-liquidating loans. Three main conditions were made: The project for which a loan is required must relieve unemployment; it must be self-liquidating and the province must guarantee the loan.

would suggest that governing bodies be reduced and that those which are left devote more time to the interests of agriculture."

"We represent 51 per cent of the voting power in Canada as farmers and yet we can't present a united front to parliament for proper treatment and marketing legislation," said Reeve Gifford. He added that there are between 70,000 and 80,000 cream producers in the province and the cooperative creameries have been responsible for the producer getting more profits for the products.

This is just another reason why the members of the Agricultural Advisory committee should represent rural interests. Agriculture needs vigorous leadership and perhaps we can start something in Peterborough that will spread all over the province, declared Reeve Gifford.

Reeve Mann of Smith expressed accord with the views of Reeves Anderson and Gifford and urged that Reeve Gifford retain the chairmanship of this committee during 1939. This was done.

The Council went into committee on appointments with Reeve Lean in the chair. Deputy-Reeve Melville Johnston resigned from the County Roads Committee after two years. He had been elected for a four-year term, but tendered his resignation because Reeve Milby of North Monaghan now is automatically a member of this committee because he is Warden. Harry Read, Deputy-Reeve of Otonabee, was elected on a vote of 9 to 6 over Reeve Gifford of Ennismore, taking Mr. Johnston's place. Reeve Shearer withdrew as one-year representative for the north townships and on a vote Reeve Gifford of Ennismore was elected for a one-year term over Reeve Curtain of Galway.

Reeve Anderson of Otonabee said county business is increasing every year and he believed work could be expedited if committees were reduced in size. He pointed out that this policy is followed in Northumberland and Durham, with the result they are able to finish all business by Friday night. He said the chairman of Education Committee had much work, some of it being none too pleasant, and he felt he had served long enough as chairman and wished to be relieved. Reeve Gifford opposed such a move particularly at this time, and he moved that the Education Committee consist of Reeve Anderson, chairman, Reeve Scriver of Lakefield, and the Warden. Reeve Mann was the seconder, and it was unanimous.

County Property Committee was named as follows: Reeve Thompson, Norwood, chairman, Reeve Mann of Smith, and the Warden.

Heads Finance Committee.

Finance Committee will be directed this year by Reeve Shearer of Harvey and Reeve Curtain was named chairman of the Equalization and Assessment. The name of the Joint Legislative Committee was changed to Legal and Legislative Committee, with Reeve Isaac Anderson, Belmont, as chairman.

Reeve Lean of Burleigh-Anstruther, heads the committee on appointments, with all members on the committee. Reeve Coughlin of Douro is chairman of the House of Refuge, with Harry Read, Deputy-Reeve of Otonabee, retaining his seat on the committee.

Foley Estate chairman for this year is Reeve Seeney of Havelock, and the committee consists of Reeves Gifford and Scriver, and Deputy-Reeves Johnston and Fowler.

Agricultural Advisory Board is again headed by Reeve Gifford of Ennismore, with Reeves Martin, McColl, Anderson, Mann, and Deputy-Reeve Johnston as members.

Conservation Committee to direct and manage the work in connection with the newly established county forest setup at the December session had Reeve McColl, Reeve Gifford, and the Warden added.

Church School Opens In Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 18.—(Special.)—Seventeen years ago last summer in George Street United church, Peterborough, Rev. Ernest Harston suggested that a training school should be held in the winter for workers in Young People's activity in rural areas, to instruct those who could not attend the summer courses.

That was the beginning of the Winter School of the Bay of Quinte Conference which met for 10 years in Cobourg and is duplicated now in Lindsay, Kingston, Renfrew and London and Hamilton areas. The parent school is now holding its 17th annual session at Bridge Street United church in Belleville; and under the presidency of Rev. H. B. Neal of Campbellford it is having great success with 115 young people and a staff of leaders registered for five days. The number is an increase of 42 over last year.

Four Indians Attending.

Much interest is being centred in the four young Indians, a delegation from Hiawatha. They form the first of their race ever to attend such a school. Courses are being given in Bible study, recreation, and youth problems. Rev. J. MacKay of the Church of All Nations in Toronto, made a strong plea or the New Canadians, and Rev. Jim Finley challenged a large public gathering in the church to "Creative Living." Last night young people presented three one-act plays and to-night a music festival will be given under the direction of Harold Kitney, organist of St. John's United church, Campbellford, who is also giving daily classes in music and art appreciation. Rev. Andrew McLaughlin of Havelock, is giving a course of studies in the Co-operative Movement and in Credit Unions. Rev. I. E. Kennedy of Madoc has a large group in "Problems of Personal Living for Youth." Rev. H. L. Morrison of Tweed, is conducting the morning devotions.

Form An Organization.

"The tourist business is important enough to the people of the county that we should have definite representation on any body. I believe we should form an organization that would work satisfactorily and harmoniously. The city organization is certainly not working smoothly, but as I see it the work should be started by the county officials and have the majority of members from the county with representatives from city and the City Council.

"The present city organization is a self-organized group and I feel much more consideration would be given by Parliament to a delegation composed of elected Council members.

Reeve Curtain of Galway-Cavendish, said work of restocking the back lakes had been sadly neglected and he hoped Council members would do something about it. Reeve Leahy said Buckley's Lake in Douro had never been restocked and sportsmen had advised him it would be an ideal feeding ground for bass and lunge."

Reeve Gifford said: "We can set up a committee who can identify themselves with any organization in the city organized for the same purpose."

Perhaps the County Council can provide the steadying influence that is evidently needed at the present time remarked Reeve Anderson. He added:

"We can give various parts of the county representation and if we join up with the present organization we will give them the strength they need."

Reeve Shearer of Harvey stated that one time this fall water dropped two feet and every fish and muskrat in shallow parts of Buckhorn Lake were smothered. I believe thousands of fish were killed this fall."

Reeve Martin of Dummer told the members that the committee would be well advised to having the Department make a regulation forbidding the dip netting of minnows for bait out of streams that have been stocked with speckled trout. He expressed the opinion that much fry was taken out by the bait men along with the usual shiners.

The committee as named consists of Reeve Wallace Shearer as chairman with Reeves Isaac Anderson, Belmont - Metheun, Caldwell of Chandos, and Thompson of Norwood. This committee has power to add to their number and intends to cooperate with organizations now in existence for the same purpose.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Jan. 18 — (C.P.). — Higher Liverpool prices gave Winnipeg wheat futures a strong tone to-day. Values began to rise from the opening and held their gains to close ⅜ to ⅝ cent higher, with May at 62½, July 63⅛ and October 63½ cents.

Export business in Canadian wheat was placed close to 500,000 bushels, including a full cargo worked out of Vancouver.

Liverpool displayed a firm tone throughout, influenced by inquiries for nearby parcels and scarcity of spot supplies, and finished a ¼d to ⅝d higher. Uncertainty of the European political situation also received credit for aiding in the advance.

Mrs. Fred Watson, a former resident of Havelock and present Worthy Matron-elect of Friendship Chapter, Toronto, assisted several past matrons of the lodge in the installation ceremony. Mrs. K. Price was presented with a Past Worthy Matron's Jewel from the local chapter.

Officers installed were as follows: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Georgiana Nobes; Worthy Patron, Walter Nobes; Associate Matron, Miss Minnie Williams; Conductress, Mrs. Rosa Wells; Associate Conductress, Mrs. Ida Chard; Secretary, Mrs. Luella Hubbel; Treasurer, Miss Eliza Wright; Chaplain, Mrs. Helena Bell; Marshal, Mrs. L. Young People's League.

The newly installed officers of the Young People's League of the Havelock United Church assumed their offices at the meeting on Monday evening, William McLauchlin, president, occupying the chair.

The meeting opened with a hymn and prayer by Mrs. J. Kinnajrd. Miss Helen Buchanan contributed a violin solo, with piano accompaniment by Miss Rhetta Southward. The topic, "A Guest in a Palestine Home," was described in an interesting manner by Miss Stafford of the Havelock Mission Hall. The meeting closed with the benediction.

Installation ceremony for the officers of the Young People's League was held at the Sunday evening service, when an inspiring address in this connection was given by Rev. Andrew McLauchlin. An all men choir presided during the evening, rendering two fine hymns, "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Forgive."

Restaurant License Is Being Withheld

"The small slaughter houses inspected this month," Sanitary Inspector Ronald MacPherson told the Board of Health in his report for December, "were found more satisfactory. In one case where no provision had been made for chilling and storing the meats, a new chill room separate from the killing room has been built.

"Several establishments where sausages are prepared were inspected. One was clean, sanitary and the equipment well cared for. In the other a number of improvements were required and a reasonable time given for their completion."

The report also stated that a satisfactory report on an application for a restaurant licence had not been given because the proprietor had taken no action when he was informed that the sink in his place was in a very bad state of repair. It was pointed out that the regulations governing those establishments require double metal sinks.

One milk producer, Inspector MacPherson reported, had been prohibited from shipping milk for city delivery due to the condition of his stable.

"Since that time," continued the report, "he has replaced the wooden floor with a concrete one, and his permit was renewed again. It is interesting to note that when this producer had taken up the old floor and had seen the foul condition beneath he was heartily in accord with the change, although he had previously objected to it."

Collegiate Notes

BASKETBALL

Two of our three basketball squads got away to a flying start, as it were, last Friday night, senior boys and senior girls pinning back the ears of Lindsays twin senior teams. The girls handed L.C.I. a setback which featured Ethel Saunders, the starry forward who calmly dropped in 16 points. It was a hard, fast game, but our fair lasses had a little too much saved up for the last quarter and beat out the Scugog maidens.

Then the senior boys team, whom you will remember, were last year's C.O.S.S.A. champions, very cooly and very unhurriedly proceeded to run amuck, over, under and around Lindsay's cohorts. And when the dust had cleared away, there was Lindsay down (but definitely not out) on the very short end of a 68-17 drubbing.

P.C.I. team evoked very, very fair in this initial tussle. But here is a note of warning. There are formidable clouds gathering and on the horizon. And behind each one is a Bowmanville player. Remember, Bowmanville's juniors last year? Well, they were good and they will be seniors this year, and loom as potential challengers to P.C.I.'s senior basketball monarchy. Well, don't say we didn't warn ya! Our junior entry, under the guidance of Mr. Craig, ring up the curtain on their schedule this week in Port Hope.

LIT MEETING

On Thursday the third lit meeting of the year was held. The program was given by Special Commercial and some of the third forms. It was a good program, probably the best of the year and will likely be the second last meeting of the Literary Society this year. The good list of events included a play put on by the students of Special Commercial; a chorus of guys and gals from 3C, Academic, singing two popular ditties from the present era of swing "The Umbrella Man" and the hit from Bing Crosby's new musical show, "You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby." Also included on the menu was a violin solo by Jewett Parr of Academic 3; an xylophone duet that made a big hit with the large and appreciative audience, and a tap dance number by Jim Gosselin, who was heard recently on Ken Soble's amateur show.

As we mentioned this will probably be the second last meeting of this school year, the finale coming sometime in February or March.

P.C.I. PREMIERE

This Wednesday (which incidentally is today) the school will be treated to what will probably turn out to be the best moving pictures of the year. The main feature is a two-reel dramatization of Gene Stratton Porter's great novel 'The Girl of the Limberlost," with which you lads and lasses are no doubt familiar. The cast for the screen version of this great book includes such well known movie actors and actresses as Louise Dresser, Marion Marsh, Ralph Morgan and Tommy Bupp. Then as an extra added attraction will be two, one-reel shorts, the first being titled "A Day at the Races"' an organlogue featuring Lew White at the console of the organ and including such songs as "Horsey" and even "Barney Google." The No. 3 presentation is another of Aesops popular fables, this one called "Radio Racket."

CAMERA CLUB

Last week the Camera Club held its regular meeting. The feature was an illustrated lecture from Eastman Kodak Company, entitled "Seeing For Keeps," which was undoubtedly a big help to al lthose camera club members present.

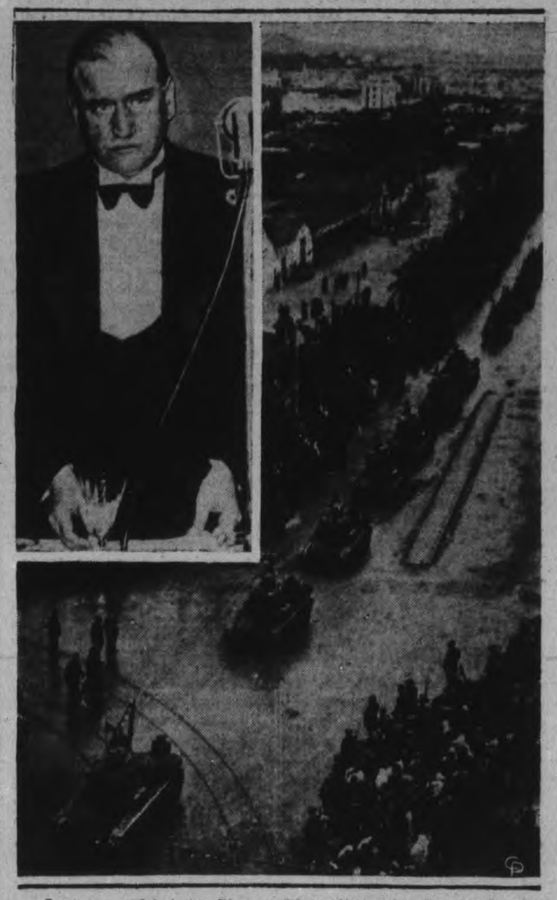
Tanks Add Point To "Hands Off"



Just as a hint to Signor Mussolini who has indicated that he had ambitions in France's colonial empire, Premier Edouard Daladier paid a visit to Tunis in North Africa and took occasion to warn all and sundry that France was ready to defend her possessions. At TOP M. Daladier is delivering a "hands off" address during a banquet in a Tunis hotel. "Tunis is French. It will stay French," he declared. The parade of tanks shown BELOW wending its way through the colorful city with turbanned and burnoused desert dwellers mingling with the European sightseers was among the reasons that Daladier thinks he's right.

Canadian Chilled Beef Favorite On London Mart Says Duncan

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 — (C.P.). — Canadian prime beef chilled in transit has become the sensation of London's famed Smithfield Market, where it commands a higher price than Scottish beef, Hon. Duncan Marshall (Lib. Peel) said during the debate on the Address in the Senate on Tuesday.

Senator Marshall said the new method of shipment had been developed by Dr. A. M. Shaw of the Dominion Agriculture Department's marketing service. Hung up in chilled railroad cars, the sides of beef were maintained at the same temperature crossing the Atlantic and during transfer to the market. Railways had co-operated to see that the car temperatures did not go below 32 degrees.

"Cattle killed in the city of Toronto—and within a few weeks this will also be true of cattle killed in Winnipeg and a few weeks later of cattle killed in Edmonton and Calgary—is shipped to the Smithfield Market in London, where it commands a higher price than prime Scotch," the Senator said.

"And when you speak about anything Scotch, you necessarily speak about the highest quality there is. Scotch short sides have sold on the Smithfield Market for a higher price and for a longer period of time than any other kind of beef. Yet we have been able to kill beef in Toronto, ship it to the seaboard, load it on to the boats, unload it at Liverpool and ship it to Smithfield, then sell it for nearly one cent a pound more than Scotch beef was bringing at the time."

The chilled Canadian beef, he said, was "the talk of the Smithfield Market." Formerly Canadian beef was laid on its sides in cars and stacked like cordwood. "We have developed now what we called baby beef. The trade name for it is "fed calves," that is, young animals that will produce carcass weighing around 400 to 500 pounds and some up to 550 pounds."

Because the railroad cars are seven feet high it was possible to hang the sides up instead of stacking them. Sides heavier than 400 pounds were cut off at the second rib and hung up.

"Remember, nothing but prime beef is shipped in this way," said Mr. Marshall. "The result is that the packing plants have no difficulty in disposing of it in England. The railways have given their co-operation by seeing that the temperature in the cars never goes below 32 degrees and scarcely even that low. So the meat is not chilled to the extent that Argentine meat is.

"The time that the beef is in the cooler, then in the car, then in the boat, and finally in the van in the Old Country is about the same time that it would take to ripen the beef in the packing house and while being shipped in this way it ripens in about the same temperature and to about the same degree as if it were in the packing house."

The Senator thought this new outlet for Canadian meat should be fully taken advantage of by development of the volume of shipments.

"The best product for farmers in Ontario and all over the Dominion is livestock," he said, "and though I am not one who fails to appreciate the importance and value of wheat, I hope to see the day when the producing of cattle will be the principal agricultural business of all our provinces."

Provision Men Fail To Get Money For Goods

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 18—Two wholesale dealers in provision at Warkworth and Hastings are still trying to get their money for a big stock of poultry and eggs they sold a Toronto commission man about two months ago.

One of them is Gordon English of Asphodel township, near the village of Hastings, and the other is Charles Boyce, retail merchant in Warkworth.

Finally the Crown was notified of the circumstances, and in police court here Tuesday afternoon Reg. A. Covert of Toronto, pleading guilty, was committed for trial on three charges of fraud.

False Pretences

He was acused of false pretences in giving a cheque for $2,873, drawn on the Queen and O'Hara streets branch of the Bank of Montreal in Toronto to Gordon English in payment of a large quantity of poultry Mr. English had purchased from farmers in the vicinity of Hastings The cheque was dated December 20, 1938.

Mr. Boyce at Warkworth received two cheques for, eggs, one in the amount of $172 on November 30 and the other for $99 on December 6.

Said Cheque Was "Good"

Mr. English testified that Covert had told him the cheque was "good", although it was found that there was some difference between the numerals on the face of it and the corresponding written amount. He went to Toronto to see Covert who assured Mr. English he would make it right. When nothing happened within a reasonable time, he returned to Toronto. Covert told him he was having difficulty collecting money from dealers to whom he had sold the poultry. At the bank English learned the Covert account was overdrawn. The defendant then offered English a note endorsed by his father, but that seemed a doubtful gain, and it was rejected. Covert then gave him a marked cheque for $873, reducing the debt to $2,000. Since then no other payment has been made. A. R. Willmott represented Covert.

Should Be Reasonable

There has been comment offered regarding the changes made in the method of collecting taxes in Peterborough. There are some ratepayers to whom the changes make no difference because they can and will pay in a lump sum; if there are any discounts to be secured they will get advantage of them. There are others in a less fortunate position and undoubtedly they have trouble enough in securing their tax money.

In 1938 tax payments were due on July 9, September 9 and November 9, and the respective penalties were 3, 2 and 1 per cent. In 1939 tax instalments come due in June, August and October, and penalties are increased to 4 per cent. in June, 3 in October and 2 per cent. for the rest of the year, when the statutory penalty of 1-2 of 1 per cent. becomes effective. Last year the penalty during July was 1 per cent. if the taxes for that instalment were paid before the end of that month; if not the 3 per cent. went into effect. This year taxes paid after the due date will pay the full penalty of 4 per cent. all the way until payment is made. Penalty last year was equivalent to 6 per cent., and this year it will work out at about 6 1-2 per cent.

There is reason to doubt that increasing the penalty will act as an incentive for the prompt payment of taxes and we do not believe that the history of collection will show that an increased penalty carries with it an increased speed in payment. The reason is not difficult to see. The average ratepayer is going to pay his taxes because he wants to pay them. Not that he finds delight in so doing but he wants to keep his property clear; he has no desire to allow taxes to mount against it because he is aware that by so doing he is taking the first step in the direction of losing his home. His desire to pay is there in nearly every case, but his ability to pay is not going to be made any greater by placing increased penalties against him.

The argument for the slight increase in the tax penalty is on the ground that the delinquent taxpayer has the use of the money for a longer period. The weakness of that argument is that it is based on the assumption that the individual actually has the money but is slow in handing it over to the city. Truth may well be that the ratepayer has not the money at the time and is not using it for any other purpose.

One can understand why the Council desires to receive a portion of its tax money in June instead of July, and there are several municipalities where the first payment is called for in April or May. By so doing the city gets ready money and can offset the amount which it would otherwise have to borrow from the bank and on which it would have to pay interest. One woman wrote a letter to the Examiner in which she stated it would be difficult to pay her first instalment at the earlier date. The coal bill to her is a big item and in the spring she has to start a process of saving for the tax payments. She was doubtful if she would be able to have her money ready a month earlier than usual. It does not seem fair that such a person should be penalized to a greater degree because she cannot meet the new requirements. She wants to pay and she will pay just as soon as she can. We do not believe citizens — including aldermen — would want to see that woman penalized and doubtless there are many others in the same class. It would be the better plan to regard the 1939 method as an experiment, and if it is a hardship on any section of the ratepayers then it should be changed.

The High-Powered Car

In one day there were five hold-ups in Toronto and on that same day nine places were broken into in such short time that while police were investigating the first case the second was under way.

One statement is that the police cars are not sufficiently good to catch those used by the robbers, and it is recorded that the robber car at times reached a speed of "nearly 80 miles an hour" and succeeded in getting away from the police. It has always been recorded that the robbers in making their escape went off "in a high-powered car." Seldom is that part of the description left out. And it is very unlikely that robbers use cars which are any stronger or in better mechanical condition than those used by police. The difference is that the robbers know they must escape. They are in a tight corner and they have to get out. They drive with a desperation which few possess and because they do that it is always recorded they used a high-powered car. High-powered cars are not made specially for thugs; a good many times they steal one that is available and know little about it before they start out.

In explaining this latest raid which baffled Toronto police we read in a Toronto paper this explanation: "It is believed the gang is desperately in need of money, and conducting a series of break-ins to raise funds to leave the city." That at least is high hope and if the theory is correct it might be better for the people in Toronto to hold a bazaar for the mugs and present them with the proceeds.

It Is Time We Quit

It is a dull day when we have nothing more which needs to be investigated. The rules and regulations regarding the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation are next in line, but this will be attended to by a Parliamentary committee and we insist there should be no additional outlay connected with it.

We have had all the paid-for investigations which we can stand for a long time. Since 1900 Royal Commissions have cost the Dominion $4,770,592.85. How so small a sum as 85 cents was allowed to be attached to the end of that string we do not know. It looks sadly out of place.

In 1936 we had the Purvis commission on unemployment and for it the country paid $335,549.

The Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations (and th sk is not yet completed) had cost up , June 10, 1938, $204,598.71. Since then a number of hearings have been held and the cost will mount accordingly.

In 1926 there was an inquiry into the Customs and Excise department and the bill was $236,447. In 1931 there was another inquiry presided over by Sir Josiah Stamp dealing with grain futures and for that we paid $220,573.02. By one of the strangest co-incidents on record the Price-Spreads inquiry of 1934-36 cost the government exactly the same amount—another $220,573.02.

The War Reparations Commissions cost $210,086. For the Turgeon Grain inquiry of 1923-26 we paid $170,295, and in 1937-38 there was spent for the Grain Marketing Commission $141,413. Back in 1916 it was decided to investigate railway development and we paid $127,280 for that.

There was an explosion of an oil tanker in Montreal in 1932 and the cost of the investigation is given as $20. The wonder is no person has thought of holding another investigation to find out how the cost was allowed to be kept down so low.

The business of holding an investigation has become somewhat of a fetish with us. It is all very well for people to start protesting that this and that is all wrong and crying out for a probe. We should have advanced to the stage by now where we will first ask the blunt question of who is going to pay for it. It is well enough to say the government pays for all such things, but it is not so pleasant when one remembers that the government pays its bills by taking the money from the people.

Nor do we believe that we get value for the money we spend in this way. Those long and exhaustive and highly-expensive reports are received and then for the most part they are filed or forgotten. A man in business is not getting along better as the result; the farmers are not finding the going any easier by reason of all the reports, and the man who works for a living has not discovered that the kindly influence of a commission report has made the way easier or more pleasant. Those who received substantial fees and a substantial living allowance have done well out of the business, but the rest of us have been left to pay the bills. It is well to have this $4,000,000 bill paraded when parliament is starting its session. When the next person suggests another commission of inquiry the first question asked should be: Who is going to pay for it? That might perhaps cause us to stop the foolish custom of flinging our money about where it is going to serve no good purpose.

Off To a Poor Start

The present session of parliament is not getting off to a good start because it is too much like other days in other parliaments. There is a degree of routine which marks all openings. The speech from the throne is actually not a great document; it deals in a general way with conditions and probably contains some intimation of what the government of the day hopes to do. Then there follows the debate on the address in reply to the speech, and in it the leader of the Opposition will move a vote of want of confidence in the Government. The debate goes on for days and in the end all the amendments will be defeated and the Government will be sustained. Having a protracted debate when a Government has such a majority as exists in the House at the moment is not far short of nonsense.

Hon. Dr. Manion took three hours to tell the House that the King Government was no good; he considered it an inactive and ineffective organization. The Premier had been a stickler for staying at Ottawa while he should have been out around the country finding out for himself what was going on. Premier King in his reply of two hours said it would be useless for him to be roaming about the country, addressing meetings here and there, while there was so much to be done at Ottawa. When things were wrong at sea the captain was not around visiting with the passengers, but on the bridge where he ought to be. And so on.

Good stuff perhaps to make the two parties feel there was some fight left in the framework, but mighty poor stuff for the country at large which is looking to Ottawa for evidence that it appreciates and realizes the shadow which has been passing over the land.

Candidly and honestly, gentlemen—the Dominion wants to know what can be done with our railway business; the Dominion desires to know if there is not some better way, some hitherto untried way, of putting more men at work. The people are not at all interested in the relative strength of party claims but they are mightily interested in the great questions which at the moment are not near solution.

Attacking Empty Pews

Laymen from various churches in Peterborough are going to do something about it. They believe it is a good thing for an individual to have a church connection, and more than that they believe it is a better thing for the individual to become active. At a meeting to launch this idea there was no beating about the bush. The meeting was held for the definite purpose of advancing Christianity.

One finds a deal of encouragement when it is learned that there is no particular denomination taking up this work. There is one aim in view and that one aim is the common property of all churches. Instead of having more discussions—most of which are useless—as to why men do not go to church this new movement proposes to go and search for these people and see if the laymen can bring them along. We believe a man is paying a direct compliment to his church when he asks another person to come along with him. We are certain enough any minister in the city would feel new life coursing through him if he saw that being more generally done.

The thing looks quite practical, and when the laymen enter the field with some definite objective they are apt to become more interested themselves. If they can launch a campaign against the empty pews which decorate too many of our churches then there is but one answer and one comment—more power to them.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We read that it has been 108 degrees in the shade in Australia—and Premier Hepburn has not yet reached there.

J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., wants Canada to state what its policy is. Does that man seek information or does he desire a keen day's debating in the Commons?

Friday the 13th is supposed to be unlucky, but we read of children at the Fullarton having a holiday then because the teacher was sick.

When Toronto and Chicago played hockey the penalties amounted to 92 minutes, and we have yet to hear of a player scoring a goal while sitting in the penalty box.

There have been so many banquets and farewell gatherings for Hon. R. B. Bennett that he may have come to the conclusion that the way to be nationally popular is to drop out of politics.

Toronto police cars are being outspeeded by automobiles used by holdup men. Looks like General Draper will have to sign on a few Campbells or Eystons.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., has been named honorary president of the local Caledonian Society, and when the weather thaws out a trifle we may yet see the gentleman attending council meeting in kilts.

London, Ont., police arrested a farmer who is six feet six inches high. Before going along with the officers we read he pushed a hay rack up a steep run to the barn and did it unaided. Then he picked up a couple of horses and put them in the barn, shoved the straw stack ten feet out from the building and went along with the officers.

THE CURE

(By A.R.K.)

¶ It Hitler had more chores to do, we wouldn't live in such a stew, I'm certain that is right; if he was up at five o'clock, and had to go and tend the stock, why he'd be tired by night.

¶ If when he got up from his bed, he had to fumble in the shed, and get some kindling wood; and get the kitchen range to go, before he started through the snow, he'd feel like how he should.

¶ And if he had to milk the cows, and fix the chunkers and the sows, before 'twas breakfast time; he wouldn't bust a nation's gate, nor chant aloud his hymn of hate, nor speak a warlike line.

¶ And if he bucksawed piles of wood, with sawhorse standing up no good, or if he struck some knots; he couldn't drive the folks about, and stand before the crowd and shout, nor hatch up bitter plots.

¶ And if the gray mare's wind was broke, and then the brindle cow would choke, and he would have to run; he couldn't buy ten hundred planes, or call his enemies new names, or tinker with a gun.

¶ And if his rooster's comb got froze, he'd have a goodly list of woes, be late when he got through; for Hitler might learn ways of peace, and cause our shiverin' time to cease—if he had chores to do.

Youth Is Ready For The Future

SOME WEEKS ago we attended the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. The Royal is said to be the greatest show of its kind in the world. To even be in the prize money at this great fair is considered a distinct honor by the breeder of all kinds of livestock. It is not of the Royal Fair we would write tonight except to say that this year's show stressed Youth in Agriculture—and youth, says Rusticus in Stratford Beacon-Herald, took the Fair by storm.

One of the most hopeful things about agriculture today is the gigantic youth movement. We may say that it starts in the Rural School Fair, where children learn much concerning the selection and care of livestock, poultry and farm produce. The movement extends on to the Short Courses held in many centres each Winter under the guidance of our capable Agricultural Representatives, and beyond that to calf, colt and grain clubs.

Here and there is a little group of perhaps ten or twenty boys. They are interested in their projects. Similar groups of farm girls are equally interested in their club work. Across the Dominion are 38,000 young farm people, members of the great Junior Farmers and Junior Institute Movement. What can Canadian agriculture expect from that vast army of youth?

CAN WE EXPECT them to sit idly by while the whole industry drifts aimlessly along, as it has been in the past decade? Can we expect the Junior of the great Western wheat lands to continue to grow wheat the world cannot afford to pay a reasonable price for? Will the young people of Ontario be willing to carry on in an industry that does not yield enough revenue so that farms may be properly maintained?

These 38,000 youth of the Canadian farms are vitally interested in rural life. They have had the pleasant experience of watching a calf or colt develop under their care. They have watched the miracle of select grain growing into good crops. Cost has not been so important an item in their program, and yet these young people have been working with superior animals and grains, and profits have usually resulted from their projects. Thousands of bushels of registered seed grain have gone into the ground to increase the yields on many farms.

There has been a tremendous improvement in the livestock on many hundreds of farms, because of the interest of the boys on the farm in the Junior Farmer Movement.

IN THE PAST there have been great co-operative movements among Canadian farmers. These were organized, grown to gigantic power and then let dwindle, all in the space of a few years. Why? Farmers had not learned to co-operate in the business sense. This army of youth is being taught the value of co-operation, and they are receiving a very valuable training in leadership. In twenty-five years from now we will be reading the farm papers of Canada and the men and women whose names we shall see therein, who will be advertising the best in livestock and seed grain, who will be guiding the plow on our farms and the destinies of our many rural organizations will be the Junior Farmers and the Junior Institute members of today.

Even now, though, in a less spectacular way than in the '90's, when the Patrons of Industry flourished, and in the period from 1916 to 1920 when the U.F.O. made such rapid growth, the co-operative movement is advancing. In the Maritime Provinces Credit Unions are growing in numbers and in strength. The French-Canadians of Quebec are perhaps the most co-operative minded of any Canadian people. We have reason to believe that among the 38,000 farm youth affiliated with the club work there will be found the leaders who shall eventually make agriculture in Canada the industry it once was and always should be.

Is it not well that Canada should have this great number of boys and girls interested in the production of the things that make life possible and more worthwhile, rather than that we should have them regimented into units training for war and the horrible things that war implies? We will wager there are no Junior Farmers or Junior Institutes in the military countries of Europe.

FACE-LIFTING COSTS.

Perhaps you have wondered, when you see a retailer giving his store a new front, what he is being "set back" by his enterprise. You may have said to yourself, "probably $1,000 at the very least." But a writer in Drug Merchandising says that a new front for a drugstore will cost round about $500—which should be good news to all retailers who feel that their store needs a new face. Our loose way of thinking may lead us to imagine that a new store front is a good salesman, but R. D. Carruthers, the writer referred to, tells us that the store front's job is the attraction of passersby to the store, and that what sells is good window displays. This is a way of saying that the lesser is the greater.—John C. Kirkwood.

• When There Is Just One Paper

AFTER the recent suspension of the South Bend News-Times, F. A. Miller, president of the South Bend Tribune, sent the following letter to his staff on Dec. 31. It is worth quoting in full, as a practical, unsanctimonious example of a veteran newspaperman's attitude toward his job as president and editor of the only newspaper in a city of more than 100,000 population. Mr. Miller says:

"To Tribune Employees: "Suspension of the News-Times makes South Bend a one daily newspaper city and places upon the Tribune, its owners and its employees, the greatest responsibility to the people that ever has come to those employers and employees. It is a tremendous overwhelming, almost crushing responsibility and one which we must collectively and individually meet in a way that will impress the people with whom we come in contact and convince them we will continue to give them the best that is in us. Satisfactory and complete service must be the aim in every instance in every department. We must all co-operate earnestly and gladly to make the Tribune not only much better than it ever has been but by far the best newspaper of its size in the country.

"Those in the news and editorial departments, those in the business office, those in the advertising department, those in the circulation department, those in all other departments and all Tribune people who come in contact with the public must exercise every effort to be pleasant, gracious, agreeable and accommodating, endeavoring to make such a satisfactory impression that every person who does business with the Tribune once will desire to return time and time again.

"The natural tendency when a daily newspaper is placed in the unfortunate position of being the only daily newspaper in a city is to assume, consciously or unconsciously, that with competition eliminated one no longer needs to be alert. This could be true in respect to those who collect news on the theory that "if we do not get it today we will have it tomorrow." This theory must not prevail in respect to the Tribune. News must be sought with the same alertness, the same intelligence and the same desire to be first as if the Tribune had the most active and most irritating competition. Tribune news-gatherers must not assume any other attitude. They must show as much interest in the Tribune as they did when we had competition.

"To do otherwise will be to indicate a waning interest in one's work, in the Tribune and in its progress and can have but one result.

"The business office, the advertising department and the circulation department are in closer contact with the public than any others except the news department. The persons in those departments must exercise special and constant efforts to be courteous, accommodating and efficient both when meeting people over the counters or otherwise and when talking with them on the telephones. Never must there be the slightest act or word that will cause any persons to think the Tribune believes it can be independent because it is South Bend's only daily newspaper. Attention should be so satisfactory as to impress the customer with the idea that the Tribune knows the meaning of service and tries to interpret it to the fullest extent in courtesy, affability and accommodation.

"If everyone connected with the Tribune will observe the foregoing all will be happier, the public will be more friendly than ever and the Tribune will grow; and growth has a significance worth appreciating."

• Dictators Cannot Make Peace

WRITING in the New York Herald Tribune, Dorothy Thompson makes the following points about the serious business of dinging peace and finding the people who can be trusted to make it. A gifted and well-informed writer is Dorothy Thompson.

It is a paradox, but I think it is true: The democratic world must arm in order to make a peace which is not a peace of Carthage. The democratic world must arm in order to prevent a worse world peace than Brest-Litovsk or Versailles—a peace, that is to say, which can only lead to another prolonged era of world war.

In order to make world peace with economic justice there must be some equality of bargaining power.

There was no equality of bargaining power at Munich. The fact stood out at Munich that the British Empire, with all her far-flung possessions and all her resources and money, not only could not stand up to Hitler but, more important, could not even sit down WITH Hitler.

The fact was that at Munich the British and French together had perhaps a fifth of the airplanes that Germany and Italy had together.

The fact is that the German penetration of South and Central America is proceeding with amazing swiftness and there is absolutely no guarantee that within some foreseeable time we will not have a few Czecho-Slovakias on this hemisphere — and be as unprepared as democratic Europe was last September.

And certainly none of us can believe that terms dictated to a world by Germany, Italy and Japan under their present regimes would assure greater justice than those dictated at Versailles twenty years ago.

The terms will be infinitely worse, and the world which emerges will be infinitely worse, and the settlement of the real issue, which is how we can all live together, will again be postponed into an even more distant future.

The German people do not want war any more than any other people. Certainly the generation which went through the last war does not.

It is therefore extremely important that we should make peace before that generation is dead, for what youth with no recollection of the last war and brought up in a glorification of war as a normal way of life may do baffles the imagination.

We can only make peace by coming to terms on resources, trade and money policies with all industrially developed nations.

Such a peace cannot be made without the United States. And no reasonable peace can be made unless there is equality of bargaining power—unless every nation knows what not making peace is going to cost.

Such a competent observer as Dewitt Mackenzie, Associated Press Foreign Affairs writer, just home from Europe, suggests that if Britain, France, and the United States were to combine in economic action against Germany at the present time, a bad position would be created for Hitler. A Bit of Nonsense

Poor Teacher

The class was not particularly bright that afternoon, and when teacher had given an explanation of the meaning of the word "miracle," she asked if it had been understood. It hadn't, at least, not by little Willie.

With weary patience she started all over again. "Suppose a man fell a thousand feet and wasn't hurt, what would that be?" she asked.

"A fluke, miss," replied Willie.

"And if he did it again?" asked teacher hopefully.

"Another fluke," said Willie briskly.

"And if he did it again for a third time, what would it be then?"

"A hit," said Willie, firmly.

Vaccination Against Smallpox Will Be Offered To Citizens

Free vaccination against smallpox will be offered the citizens of Peterborough, the Board of Health decided at its first meeting of the year on Tuesday night.

Dr. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health, will make the necessary arrangements, and the time for public vaccination will be advertised.

The matter was called to the attention of the Board by a letter from Ald. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who pointed out that general vaccination had not taken place in Peterborough for so long that a dangerous situation might arise. St. Thomas at the present time, said Ald. Gordon, was suffering from a smallpox outbreak.

"We can't compel anybody to be vaccinated," said Ald. Dutton. "However, it seems to me that if we provide the facilities for public vaccination and offer them to the citizens, we will have discharged our responsibility whether any one takes advantage of the service or not."

He moved, seconded by Ald. McCannan, that the Medical Officer of Health arrange for and advertise public vaccination.

"Peterborough has not been neglected in the matter of vaccination so far as school children are concerned," pointed out Dr. Murray Fraser. "Dr. McPherson vaccinated 900 Public School children last year, 1,000 in 1937, and 900 the previous year. In 1937 I vacinated 500 Separate School children, and while nothing was done last year because of my illness, there will be further vaccinations among Separate School pupils this year."

Tubercular Patients.

There was some discussion as to the care of patients returned home from tuberculosis sanitaria, and it was finally decided that the Medical Office rof Health and Relief Officer Arthur Metheral should confer as to what amount should be placed in the estimates this year for the care of such patients, and the matter will be handled through the Relief Committee.

Dr. Fraser stated there are at present 25 Peterborough patients in sanitaria, and that all local cases so far had been taken care of.

On motion of Ald. McCannan, seconded by Ald. Dutton, the regular meetings of the Board this year will be held at 7.30 o'clock in the evening on the third Tuesday of each month, instead of being held in the afternoon as formerly.

There will probably be a special meeting of the Board on Monday night next to prepare the estimates to conform with the Council's desire to strike the tax rate a month earlier than usual. It was pointed out that the estimates last year totalled $11,500, made up of $3,500 for the Queen Mary Hospital and $8,000 for health purposes.

It was decided that there was nothing the Board could do in regard to a complaint from Dr. J. J. Craig that his dental offices were permeated by odors from a restaurant situated below. The premises had been inspected by an official from the Prolvncial Health Department and certain recommendations made, Dr. Fraser explained.

However, while these odors might be a nuisance, they did not constitute a nuisance from the standpoint of health because they were not harmful to health, Dr. Fraser added. It was decided to send a copy of the report to Dr. Craig, the proprietor of the restaurant, and to the owners of the property.

British Destroyer Saves Chinese Junk From Japs

Hong Kong, Jan. 18 (AP) A BRITISH destroyer's rescue of a Hong Kong-registered Chinese junk from a Japanese armed trawler was disclosed today.

Naval authorities said the destroyer Thanet, while on piracy patrol Jan. 10, first picked up the junk's crew in a small boat which the Japanese had compelled them to board. Then the Thanet overhauled the trawler, which was towing the junk, and rained custody of the latter.

British officers emphasized there was no engagement. Appearance of the Thanet, they said, was sufficient to make the Japanese release their prize. Because the junk was registered at Hong Kong, British crown colony, it technically was a British vessel.

Tuning For Mass Flight and Manoeuvres

While President Roosevelt carried his campaign for larger defensive forces, including air squadrons, to the United States' Congress, this fleet of 48 bombers were winging their way southward toward the Panama Canal Zone, from which they took off to join the U.S. fleet for manoeuvres in the Caribbean Sea. They are shown here warming up before leaving San Diego, Calif. The combined fleet and air force exercises give point to Washington's repeated declarations that the United States is ready and able to resist by force any attempt of totalitarian powers to gain a foothold in the western hemisphere. The patrol bombers' flight was the largest massed flight in the history of the U.S. fleet.

Suspected Subway Robbers Rounded Up

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—A ring of employees suspected of stealing $1,300,000—or 26,000,000 nickels—from New York's city- owned subway was rounded up today by district attorney Thomas Dewey for questioning.

Dewey said the subway — largest municipally- operated utility in the world — had been systematically looted of approximately three per cent of its gross receipts for five years by a group of 30 station agents and maintenance men. The district attorney said further investigation might disclose far more than $1,300,000 had been stolen.

Chairman Not Named By Board Of Health

In a letter in which he stated that he was forced, because of his doctor's orders, to absent himself from the initial meeting of the Board of Health on Tuesday night, Ald. Walter Stocker asked his colleagues to relieve him of the chairmanship of the Board.

"For some years now I have been chairman of the Board," Ald. Stocker wrote, "and I have appreciated the opportunity so offered to be of service in a work in which I am greatly interested. I hope that this year the Board will appoint another as chairman."

Without discussion Ald. Dutton moved that Mayor Hamilton take the chair for the meeting and that action in regard to the chairmanship be deferred to another meeting. "We can see Alderman Stocker in the meanwhile," Ald. Dutton said.

The motion was seconded by Ald. H. J. McCannan, and carried unanimously.

New Wing Being Built To Y.W.C.A. Is Rapidly Nearing Completion

Their new quarters slowly taking shape, renovations steadily progressing, officials of the Y.W.C.A. are beginning to see now where the $50,000 they raised is being spent.

While little change is evident right now to a casual visitor when he first enters the building, there is nevertheless, a great deal of change. Most spectacular, of course, is the new gymnasium, a room 70 feet by 40 feet, much larger than the old one and with a balcony all around. It is of brick inside and out, presents a beautiful appearance. Much larger than the old gym, it will be entirely free of apparatus for basketball and other games. Such equipment will be stored in a room at one end. The new wing in which the gym is situated will be complete with luxurious showers, spacious dressing quarters, now in progress of construction. A separate entrance for spectators will insure privacy.

Approaches Lengthened.

The adjoining swimming pool is the same as before, except that its approaches have been lengthened and widened to give more room to persons using the tank. Spectators who have been accustomed to sitting in sweltering heat to watch aquatic event sat the Y.W.C.A. will find that a greatly increased height made to the pool and installation of electric exhaust fans, will make such competitions much more enjoyable. The air in the room is expected to be just as fresh and cool as in any other room in the building.

On the flat roof of the new wing a roof garden is now in process of construction, will be used by residence girls. Officials expect the new wing to be ready for use early in February.

The old buildings is taking on a new appearance too. Chief changes to date have been complete overhaul of the kitchen and new equipment for cooking. The room has lost its dingy appearance, is now shining with new paint and equipment.

The old gymnasium is being transformed into two rooms, one for recreation such as ping pong and badminton, while the other half, facing Aylmer street, will be a club room de luxe, complete with fire place and panelled walls. The fireplace, an extremely large one, has already been installed. Other meeting places such as the Green Room, are in process of complete renovation, and a butler's room has been installed adjoining. Downstairs there has been a great deal of remodelling of staff and storage quarters. Bedrooms on the second and third flcors are being done over at the present time, all the halls are being refinished. The entire upstairs, from attic down, will be as new by spring.

"COULDN'T GET TO SLEEP UNTIL BRONCHITIS WAS RELIEVED WITH MUSTARD"

MRS. L. LEFEBVRE of 3838 Wellington St., Verdun, Que., had, for the first time, an attack of bronchitis that wouldn't let her sleep. "Remembering my doctor's advice to get to bed when one has a severe bronchial cold," says Mrs. Lefebvre, "I retired in good time, but I had great difficulty in breathing. It seemed as though my air passages were closing up. Finally, I thought of that good old stand-by, the mustard poultice. I put one on my chest for 20 minutes and got relief at once. Then after applying olive oil to the reddened skin, I was able to sleep and awoke next morning feeling much better."

COMBINES OUTPLAY TRENTON IN TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE GAME

Norwood Wins Game 5-2 On Home Rink

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 18. — Backchecking their opponents to a standstill, the Norwood "Combines" formed a clicking combination last evening at the Norwood arena to hand the hefty Trenton "Couriers" a 5-2 setback, in a smart fixture of the Trent Valley Hockey League schedule. Hitting their stride, after three bad starts, the "Combines" really turned on the heat, playing the brand of hockey, of which they are capable. The forwards were fairly flying all night, with the defence handing out the bodychecks and McMaster turning in a fine game in the nets.

"Gordie" Puffer shone as the Norwood squad's individual star, collecting two goals and an assist, and was a continual threat whenever on the ice. His second counter, which broke the two-all tie in the second stanza, followed a brilliant play in which he stickhandled through the entire team, depositing the rubber in the visitor's net with half the team hanging onto his neck.

Lott notched both of the Trenton goals, and along with Lemoire, Hood and Lamorre, was most effective for the visitors. Top-notch players, Johnson and Cain, failed to get going all evening, giving the crowd of fans only an occasional flash of their usual selves.

Heavy bodychecking featured the match, although there were no penalties handed out until over half-way through the second period. Play roughened up a bit after this, but the players were held well in check by referees O'Malley and Ennis, seven minor penalties being given, five of these to Trenton.

The "Combines" broke into the lead two minutes after the opening bell, "Chuck" Puffer notching a nice one on a passing play with G. Puffer and "Pepper" Rogers. One minute later McMullen made the count 2-0, taking Hagerman's pass to go in alone on Steenburgh, faked a shot drawing the visiting goalie in the twine. Play then rushed from out of position and sank the puck end to end with both teams missing some marvelous scoring chances.

Lott secured his goal within two minutes of each other, near the end of the initial stanza, the first when he picked up a loose puck in the Norwood defence zone, and the second on a combination play with Johnson and Cain. This ended the scoring for this period with the teams deadlocked 2-all.

A Real Bump

The fans were given a treat in the first few minutes of the second period when "Toey" Ibey, Norwood's heavy-hitter, and Kerr, hard-hitting visitor, collided heavily, both going down. These two rival defencemen gave the players a rough ride to their respective goals all evening. Lemoire and Hagerman also took an active part in this bumping contest.

G. Puffer finally broke the deadlock with his solo rush, which drew quite a hand from the crowd. Lemoire was chased for charging. Kerr also got the gate shortly after the former returned to the ice, but still the Combines could not score. The puck was netted once however, but was disallowed, Hagerman deflecting McMullen's shot into the goal with his hand.

McMasters, Norwood goalie went off for repairs at this point, a cut which he received over his left eye prior to the game, being re-opened during a scramble before his net.

G. Puffer scored his second of the evening, camped right in front of the Trenton goal when N. Rogers slipped him a perfect pass. Rathwell drew a penalty for tripping and Norwood played one man short for the first time during the game, but the visitors could not change the 4-2 score. Chuck Puffer did some excellent penalty-killing at this time.

Entering the last frame Lemoire drew a penalty for boarding W. Rogers heavily, the latter getting his revenge when Lemoire was off, making the play for "Toey" Ibey's goal, on a hard shot from the blueline.

More Penalties

Ibey was penalized then for holding, and the Combines again withheld the attack. Lemoire and Lott drew penalties successively for holding and tripping and the play was confined mostly to Trenton territory. Norwood were awarded a penalty shot when goalie Steenburgh struck at G. Puffer, but Ibey failed to make it count. Thus ended the game with the final score 5-2.

Arrangements are trying to be made to play the postponed game with Tweed at the Norwood arena on Wednesday evening. Campbellford will make their first visit of the season to the Combines on Monday evening. The teams:

Norwood: Goal, McMaster; defence, Ibey, Webb; centre, G. Puffer; wings, C. Puffer, N. Rogers; alternates, Hagerman, McMullen, W. Rogers, Richardson, Rathwell.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

And it comes about that there will again be a big rush up George St. and over on Brock to the arena, where folks will be fighting for good spots to see the Trenton Fliers fly into the Petes in an O.H.A. senior "B" fixture. This is by no manner of means an exhibition game and it counts most positively in a schedule that is all too short—ending in just three weeks from now. Yessir, the R.C.A.F. gang will be here tonight and the Petes had better get in there and cop another win. Or else. It's getting so ya gotta win most of your games in these groups—runtier than a circus midget—or you will be left out knocking your knees in the cold while others gets the plaudits and, what's more important, the playoff do-re-mi. The Petes lost in Belleville but beat the Redmen here, whilst the Airmen did Belleville dirt with an 11-3 swish the other eve.

* * * * * *

Now it takes no peering into the crystal ball to get a slant on the Fliers this season. They are tough, as tough as an elderly steak in a railway hash-house. They couldn't trim the trousers off Queens to win the VanHorne Cup and then do an 11-3 chore on Belleville, and still be regarded as lilies of the valley, now could they? So it behooves the pugnacious Petes to go in there tonight looking for a real scrap, and to stay on the ice and score goals, if they expect to grab the duke. Fans need no prods to turn out for this tilt—they know it will be a dandy.

* * * * * *

List Of Gladiators

Here is the Fliers' lineup, several being familiar here and others being high-class imports to the Trenton camp: Goal, Gibson; defence, Todd (9) and Cook (3); centre, Lecompte (7); wings, Legris (5) and McNeeley (6); alternates, Brackenbury (10), Johnston (4), McNab (11), Jamieson (2) and Baldwin (8). And this is the Petes' setup: Goal, McNabb; defence, Gray and Crowe; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Starr; alternates, Gardner, McDougall, Nicholls, Creighton and Weir. Coach Frank Buckland is trying to give all his players a chance to strut their stuff this time of year, so has to make the odd shift—and consequently McNulty, Gratton and Coughlin are off for this game while others, off before, will be used.

* * * * * *

Nothing more need be said of the game. Good ice is provided by the Messrs. Sheehy and Hartley—who turned down an exhibition tilt to keep the surface fast last eve—and both teams are at full strength and in shape. Folks here will recall how classy the Fliers were last year and what grand games they and the Petes dished up. They will also remember the four-star goaltending job of Gibson, (who doesn't like to be heckled), the scrappy spirit of "Simon" Legris, the smooth stickwork of Louie Lecompte and the bash-'em style of play of the scrappy Eric McNeeley. We look for a slambang swing session with hot hockey the order and a close score this eve.

* * * * * *

There Were Two Scraps

Quinte crimson shirts couldn't have been so badly "chopped up" as they made out after their game here, as they iced a full team the other eve against the Fliers. But newspaper accounts state the Fliers flashed a great burst of speed, with brilliant rink-wide passing plays and ran up an early lead to win easily. Last several goals counted by the Airmen were more or less breakaways as Bellevillains tried futile ganging-up thrusts. The Quinte columnist thinks the Trentons are tougher than a year ago with Buzz Cook, ex-Halifax defence star, a bulwark on the blue line, the first front trio clicking like castanets and Johnson a sweet alternate forward. The game was marked by two fights—there was but one here—so 'twould seem the senior group is gonna be hectic enough ere the finish.

Lindsay scribe says: "We thought the days of Peterborough-Lindsay rivalry were passed into history. We never expected to again see the day when Lindsay and Peterborough hockey teams would lay down their sticks, cast off their gloves and step into as pretty a donnybrook as has been our pleasure to watch. This is what happened last evening in Peterborough. Lindsay had an edge on the fast-skating Colts and the homesters didn't like that. Craig and Foster, the chief fighters of the Colts, will carry the chips on their shoulders into the game here Friday or we'll miss our guess." That's what we're afraid of, pal. Penalties are bad business and pugilism belongs in a ring, not a rink.

Don't Sell 'Em Short

Next junior jamboree here will be Friday when the big bashers from Bowman Villa climb over the boards at the Brock to mix it with our Monarchs. And a gee wouldn't be oozing sap to maybe plunk a couple or three lettuce leaves on the locals. They claim they were robbed in that 6-4 reverse to Bowmanville in Whitby the other p.m., and want a different referee here. Manager Mo Breslin of Bowmanville himself said afterward that he feared his gang would get the skimpy side of the score up here Friday. Those young Monarchs, getting good coaching and lots of practice now, are starting to click—and should make group playoffs okay.

District O.J.H.A.—which flock of initials means Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association—loop swings into action this Friday in Lakefield, the St. Peter's squad of Peterborough playing the Villagers. Two other clubs round out the group, Campbellford and Lindsay. They play a single schedule with top two teams clashing then in playoffs. Winnah goes into Ontario playdowns. The local Saints are rounding up a good team and running a prize draw to raise some oughday. These juveniles operate on a frayed shoe-string and, when it busts, just a safety-pin or anything will do! There are over two dozen O.J.H.A. groups this year, and the emerger of the Peterborough district will tangle either with the setup around Fenelon Falls and 'Caygeon or the Oshawa victor.

Park St. Squad Gains Victory

Park St. Juveniles of the Church Hockey League blanked Trinity, 4-0, last night at All Saints' rink in a neat tussle, the winners having most of the play in a good showing. Martin, Cox and J. Ainslie scored in the first frame, and Martin repeated in the second. Trinity went strong defensively with Fowler especially good. Campbell looked best for the winners, and the starting line was effective. Horton was fast but well watched and Webster was fairly effective for the losers. The teams:

Trinity: Goal, Welbourne; defence, McBain, Hall; centre, Horton; wings, Henry, Lehman; subs, Webster, Harrison, Fowler, Bradley, Stanley.

Ring Titles Are Not Always Worth Million

By PAT ROBINSON
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The heavyweight title is popularly supposed to be worth a million dollars to its owner. It has been worth more than that to Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Max Schmeling and Joe Louis. In fact, Gene made a million dollars in one fight—his second affair with Dempsey.

But ring titles are not always the gold mines they are supposed to be. Much depends on the men who hold them, on the class of their opponents and length of time they cling to their crowns.

The heavyweight title wasn't worth a million to Jim Braddock because he didn't hold it long enough to earn that much. The bigger the fighter, the greater his potential earning power.

Lucre For Louis

Louis figures to make at least $300,000 and may earn as much as $1,000,000 in four fights this year, depending on the drawing power of his opponents.

The light heavyweight crown won't be worth more than $50,000 to John Henry Lewis or to whomever may succeed him. There are few outstanding battlers in this division and lately the public has shown a strong disposition to stay away from light heavyweight fights in droves.

Fred Apostoli seems sure to make from $100,000 to $150,000 in the more active middleweight class. It all depends on how the opposition stands up. A sensational newcomer like Billy Conn might mean many thousands in Fred's pocket.

Henry Armstrong, who is both welterweight and lightweight champion, may make $200,000 out of both his titles. A fight with Lou Ambers probably will net him $50,000. As the holder of two titles, little Henry is in a great spot for making money. If pickings are not so good among the welters, he ca nturn to lightweights of competition.

Going Down!

The featherweight division is in a muddle, but no matter who eventually will earn a clear claim to the title, he cannot dope to earn more than $20,000.

It takes a sensational feather, such as Henry Armstrong was, even to get a shot in Madison Square Gardens. Usually, the feathers have to ply their trade in the smaller clubs or go out of town.

Sixto Escobar will be lucky to hold on to his bantam title and even if he holds it, he will be luckier still if he makes $15,000. The market for bantams is even worse than for feathers and as for the flyweights there is no market at all for them in New York, and very little anywhere else.

HOW TO SKI

By FRITZ LOOSLI
Instructor Toronto Ski Club

A gelandesprung performed with aid of the poles.

THE GELANDESPRUNG.

If the jump turn has lost its popularity and usefulness, the "Gelandesprung" is still a useful and valuable manoeuvre. Not so much for racing, perhaps, but in touring it will spare the skier many a bad fall when obstacles such as fallen trees, ditches or snowdrifts are suddenly encountered.

In cross-country racing it is not advisable to use the jump turn or Gelandesprung to clear fences, because it is not worthwhile to gain a second or two by taking the chances of breaking skis, and furthermore, the effort required to clear the obstacle is too great for the tiring legs.

The simplest way of clearing a fence is to come to a Christiania stop parallel with the fence; if the fence is low enough, step over sideways; if it is too high for such a manoeuvre, lean against the fence with the back and roll over it, poles, skis and all.

At low and moderate speed, the Gelandesprung is executed with the help of the poles. At high speed, it is seldom used, but if necessity requires the use of it, it is done without poles.

Practising the Gelandesprung should be done at first on a smooth slope without bumps or obstacles. It is a fine exercise to get the skier away from the feeling of being glued to the snow, but should never be practised more than 10 or 15 minutes at a time. For best results, once you have dropped both poles in the snow and sprung up, try to remain in the air as long as possible. This will give the security required to do a Gelandesprung properly. A push off with the poles will steady the balance for the landing without the feeling of falling forward. A slight telemark position of the skis will increase the length of landing base, and avoid a forward pitch after coming in contact with the snow.

Lakefield Rink Lost To Lindsay

(Lindsay Post.)

Keeping intact a string of victories extending over the past three years, Lindy Mackey skipped his quartette to a victory over Lakefield in the Junior Tankard played Tuesday morning at the Peel Street rink.

Lakefield was the only outside entry and the local rink had little trouble in beating them. Rinks from Peterborough and Dunsford which were expected, did not appear.

Playing at top form, the Mackey rink quickly ran up an imposing lead and the originally scheduled 16-end game was over at the end of the twelfth. The Lakefield boys worked hard but could not match the steady drawing and guarding of their opponents.

Lakefield scored on four of the twelve ends played, but were only able to get one or two shots on each end while the Lindsay crew chalked up three's and four's.

Lindsay will now represent this district in the playdowns of the Ontario Junior Tankard which will be played in Toronto the first part of March.

Edward Barrow Steps Into Ruppert Shoes

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP).—Edward G. Barrow, 70, and a powerful character in every way, is the new president and dictator of the world champion New York Yankees.

As a fitting reward for nearly 20 years of service with the club as its secretary and business manager, Barrow was named to fill the vacancy created by the death last Friday of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, whose wealth combined with Barrow's baseball wisdom to create the Yankee ball empire.

The Colonel's brother, George Ruppert,, declined the presidential post at the meeting of the estate's directors and assured the election of Barrow.

An active figure in baseball for more than 40 years and acknowledged to possess one of the shrewdest brains in the business, Barrow is the proper man to carry on the Yankee tradition of victory. Only in the most important matters, such as the sale of a Yankee property, will he consult with his three fellow trustees of the trust — George Ruppert, Frederick Grant and H. Garrison Silleck, Jr.

No Real Changes

"There won't be any real change," he said last night. "I always made the decisions, and only seldom Colonel Ruppert questioned my judgment. I wouldn't be surprised if we won another championship this year."

George Weiss, by Colonel Ruppert's express request, will continue as directing force of the vast Yankee farm system which he created and brought to its present perfection.

Despite his mounting years, Barrow still is a strong, gusty individual. He was a fighting field leader for years before he moved into the Yankee organization.

Barrow developed two of the greatest stars the game has known, Honus Wagner and Babe Ruth. He considered Wagner, whom he sold for $2,100, the best ball player he ever saw, because "he could play more positions brilliantly than any of the others, including Ruth."

To foster Hellenic ideals and culture, a society has been formed in South Africa.

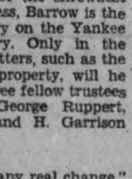
TRADE MARK



C.A.H.A. To Have Pro Set-up If Plans Of Duncan Go Through

By W. M. GLADISH
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—Although they may not realize it, many amateur hockey players of senior calibre face the early prospect of being arbitrarily placed in the class of salaried puck-chasers under the direction and control of the Canadian Amateur Hockey association.

Cecil Duncan

This is the solemn word of Cecil Duncan of Ottawa, immediate past president of the C.A.H.A. and secretary of the Ottawa and district branch of the association, who has quietly started the ball rolling for the establishment of this new division of the winter sport under the jurisdiction of the C.A.H.A. and entirely regardless of the National Hockey league, toward which Mr. Duncan has not the best of feeling. It is going to be for the players who, according to the sport leader of many years' standing, "are neither amateur nor professional," but he denies that it will be on a semi-pro. basis such as exists in baseball circles.

Straight Pro Basis

"They will be out-and-out professional," declared Duncan in revealing the unusual move. "We know they are getting something for playing amateur hockey and we will put them into the professional class whether they like it or not. The onus will be on them. We would say, 'You prove to us that you are not getting a consideration for playing hockey.' It will wipe out the hyprocrisy from amateur hockey altogether for one thing and it will serve as a grade to which the real amateurs can graduate when they feel good enough to get something for their services.

"The agreement with the National Hockey league is not satisfactory," continued the C.A.H.A. official. "I would not sign it when I was C.A.H.A. president because it meant we were merely supplying players in the manner that the N.H.L. saw fit. The agreement signed by Prof. W. C. Hardy of Edmonton, the present president, is not fair to the C.A.H.A. We know there is trafficking in amateur players who are still with amateur clubs. The player may not know it but he is placed on the negotiation list by one of the N.H.L. clubs, let us suppose Canadiens. Then Toronto Maple Leafs want a right winger and find that the player they want is reserved by Canadiens, so they pay $1,000 to Canadiens for the prospect. The amateur club gets nothing out of it. The amateur club having the player on its roster should get a percentage of the N.H.L. sale price if for nothing more than to pay for the skates and equipment used by the player who, in a sense, is being trained for the pro ranks."

Chief Case In Point

Past President Duncan is particularly sore about the so-called Eddie Finnigan case. This Ottawa player, who turned professional with the former Ottawa club, is through with pro hockey for private business reasons, but yet cannot be reinstated under the rules of the C.A.H.A. because of a suspension by the N.H.L. Finnigan became the property of the Boston club and was farmed out to Providence at a lower salary. Finnigan decided to drop out of pro hockey because he could make a better commercial living back home in Ottawa. Boston claimed it was out of pocket to the extent of $1,250 because of his retirement and his suspension followed—which meant he could not even play amateur hockey once more under the agreement between the C.A.H.A. and the N.H.L. in the reciprocal recognition of such decisions. President Frank Calder of the N.H.L. wrote to Ottawa suggesting that Finnigan could obtain his release by making a suitable cash payment to satisfy the claim of the Boston club.

Mistake By Calder

"President Calder was foolish in writing such a letter," declared Duncan. "It means that a player is expected to buy his release from pro hockey in order to play amateur under the rules of the C.A.H.A. In the meantime, Finnigan is prevented from playing."

According to Duncan, the case is to be made an issue at the spring meeting of the C.A.H.A. and a showdown is to be pressed on the whole amateur-pro hockey set-up.

The control of pro hockey by the C.A.H.A. will not jeopardize its standing with the International Ice Hockey Federation because provision is already made in the international body for the governing of professional competitions. This situation is found in various world-wide organizations which are identified with the Olympic games and other international features. At the time that the C.A.H.A. broke off with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, the bugbear of the loss of its international affiliation was held out by the A.A.U. of C. but this frightful consequence vanished into the air.

Ottawa City League Tries 5-Man Hockey

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (CP)—Five-man hockey will be given a trial this season in the newly formed Ottawa Intermediate City League, it was decided at an organization meeting of the loop last night.

The new idea of playing five-man hockey — goalie, one defenceman and three forwards, will be used throughout the regular playing season but the league will revert to six-man game in the playoffs.

According to league officers the plan will be put into effect to give players "a better chance to develop their skating and stickhandling ability." It was believed the five-man game would call for more skating by the players and they would receive a more thorough training in all departments.

The delayed penalty rule will be put into effect when more than one player on the same team received penalties at the same time. The teams will be allowed to sign only 12 players with a limit of 10 being available for duty.

BOSTON RALLIES IN THIRD PERIOD TO DEFEAT THE LEAFS 2 TO 1

Getliffe's Goal Puts Bruins Ahead Of Leafs

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

It needs no Sherlock Holmes to ferret out the reasons that Boston Bruins are leading the National Hockey League, for as the great sleuth of fiction said many a time it is elementary, my dear Watson."

The Bruins lead all other teams in the seven-club circuit in scoring goals, and have been scored on fewer times than any other team. That's as near to perfect as even such a task master as manager Art Ross could demand.

To simplify things still further let it be told that the Bruins have been scored on only 31 times in 25 contests, which is only a little more than a goal a game against them. And in those games they have scored 68 goals, or nearly three goals a game. It's not hard to understand then why they have won 18, lost only six and tied one.

Sparking the team offensive has been the young "kraut line" of Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Porky Dumart, although the other Boston front ranks are forces to be reckoned with. On defence they present the great Eddie Shore, a brilliant Dit Clapper, burly Jack Portland and Goalie Frank Brimsek, co-leader with Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs in shutouts so far with six.

4 Ahead of Rangers.

The qualities of this year's Bruin machine, proven more than once already this season, were demonstrated again last night as they toppled the Maple Leafs 2-1 in the only scheduled N.H.L. game of the night. Victory puts the Bruins four points ahead of the pressing second-place New York Rangers.

The sturdy Boston defence, which always seems at its best before a home crowd, faltered only once when it let Gord Drillon through for a goal in the second period. Ten minutes later in the same session the Bruins evened matters when Schmidt beat Broda, and in the 14th minute of the final period Ray Getliffe scored the goal that meant victory for the Bruins.

It was the fifth meeting of the season between the rivals, who battled for the NH.L. championship last season when the league operated in two sections. Last year during the regular schedule the Bruins walloped the Leafs five times and lost only once, but then went down to defeat in three straight games in their play-off for the league title.

Winner of the Lou E. Marsh memorial trophy, Bob Pearce, world's professional sculling champion, is seen here immediately following presentation of the award in Toronto. The award is made by a board of judges to the amateur or professional athlete deemed outstanding in Canada, and Pearce was the recipient for 1938 on the strength of his victory over Evans Padden, Australian sculling champion, a victory he trained for and accomplished shortly after the death of his wife. The winner is seen standing beside the perpetual trophy, holding his own replica, while on the wall behind is a picture of Lou Marsh, the sports writer who died in 1936 and in whose name the trophy is dedicated.

Flier And Petes Resume Ice Wars

Old rivalry will be renewed at the Brock St. rink tonight when the Trenton Fliers tangle with the Petes in their first O.H.A. senior "B" clash this winter. These teams packed in the fans all last winter, with their playoff series being a memorable set of classic tilts, the Petes finally winning out. They battled hard and bitterly last season and dished up first-class, exciting hockey to send the fans home talking to themselves game after game. With an 11-3 win over Belleville two nights ago, the Fliers apparently are at least as strong as ever, and maybe a lot tougher. The Petes are in peak form now and will be at top strength this evening, so it shapes up as a swell scrap.

Such remembered Fliers' stars as Goalie Gibson, Eric McNeeley, Louis Lecompte and "Simon" Legris, will be wearing the R.C.A.F. colors again for the visitors this evening, along with several good imports from around Camp Borden and Ottawa. The team is in fine condition, owing to a tough schedule in the Van Horne Cup series in Kingston this winter, which the Fliers won. Doc Nicholls will be on deck for the Buckland boys again, and the team will be after its second straight home win. Fans will no doubt turn out in force for this promising tilt.

BOXING UPHELD

PAISLEY, Scotland—(CP). — Sir Ian Colquhorn, chairman of the National Fitness Council for Scotland, answering a town councillor's criticism that boxing was "brutal, degrading and immoral," said he thought boxing the finest and most manly of sports.

Hockey Booming In Old Europe

BRUSSELS, Jan. 18. (CP-Reuters)—The draw for the world hockey championships, starting at St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 2, will be made here Jan. 31. Sudbury Tigers of Canada won the championship last year. Canada will be represented this time by the Trail Smoke Eaters, Canadian amateur hockey titlists.

The Swedish Hockey Federation has received a $10,000 subsidy to help towards cost of equipment and preparation for the Swedish team in the championship.

Meantime hockey is booming in Europe. At Brussels matches for the Belgian representative team, Etoile du Nord, crowd the January program. Last week Stoile du Nord beat Cambridge University 2-1 at Antwerp. The games are doing much to popularize the sport in Belgium and the younger generation are flocking to the ever-increasing number of rinks.

At Moscow, it is estimated 8,000 men and 1,600 women players will participate in the hockey championships to be decided on 60 different rinks shortly. There are 108 women's teams among the 538 sides which represent 72 different clubs. The clubs, divided into 10 different groups, are each represented by several teams.

Havelock Takes 4-1 Beating From Westwood

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 18 — Quite a crowd of fans were present at the local rink last night, for the first match on home ice, when the Havelock Albions lost a 4-1 decision to Westwood, in a regular East Peterborough Rural Hockey League fixture. The locals were outplayed completely by the visitors, and except for a great net-minding chore by Doug Hill the score might have been much larger. Havelock would have been scoreless in fact had a Westwood player not made the mistake of clearing the puck in the direction of his own goal, during the first period, which resulted in their only counter of the game.

A. Mortlock scored for Westwood a minute after the opening bell, placing them in an early lead. W. Graham's bad luck in clearing the puck shortly after this resulted in Havelock's goal which left the score tied at the end of the period. Gordon of Havelock drew the only penalty of the game during this period. S. Ross and A. Mortlock got Westwood's goals in the second and Gill notched their final counter in the last frame. Lade's effort toward a goal was disallowed on an offside during this session.

The teams:

Westwood: Goal, Spencer; defence, W. Mortlock, W. Graham; centre, A. Mortlock; wings, Gill, Ross; alternates, B. Graham, Chaplin, Thompson.

Havelock: Goal, Hill; defence, Lade, Hamilton; centre, C. Pollock; wings, Green, Varty; alternates, Hagerman, E. Ellis, F. Ellis, Wrightly, Williams, Griffith, E. Gordon.

McGowan Paces Sailors 12-2

(By the Cagadian Press.)

Hockey days may be numbered for Goney McGowan but there isn't any indication that "ol rockin' will get the aging Port Colborne centre this season. The veteran of the ice lanes, at a time when most players his age have retired to the fireside, to-day holds second place in the race for the scoring championship of the Senior "A" division of the Ontario Association.

Old Gomey jumped from fifth position to second at Brantford last night by leading his crew to a 12-2 win over the last place Brantford Red Birds. Goney slid his slender frame through the opposition for two goals and four assists, for a season total of 25 points as the Ports picked up 24 scoring points.

In the only other game, St. Catharines Chiefs pulled a minor surprise by whitewashing Niagara Falls Brights 2-0 at St. Kitts. Last Friday, Brights scalped the Chiefs 3-0 at the Falls.

Results left Port Colborne more secure in third position, two points behind Oshawa and nine points in arrears of the undefeated and league-leading Toronto Goodyears. Niagara remained in the fourth sloth with 13 points, and St. Catharines one point behind.

Beatty Has Off Night.

Brants, playing under their new coach, Alderman Art Pennell, took their worst beating of the season with Ted Beatty, usually brilliant in the Birds' net, giving his worst display of the winter. Pennell succeeded Leo Reise, who resigned to take over an assignment as an O.H.A. referee.

Out front, the Birds showed more punch and fight than at any time this winter. Jack Box, sub-goalie, took over the chores in the third period and had seven goals shot past him.

Other high point-getters for the Ports were Earl Laroche, with two goals and three assists; Lloyd Fitzgerald, with three goals, and George Wade and Doug Runions, each with one goal and two assists. Other scorers were Bob Morrison, Al Thompson and Gal Gallinger.

Ebby Edmison scored Brantford's first goal at the start of the second period, and Len Wilkes snared the other in the third.

St. Catharines scored in the first period when Bobby Pinder took a perfect pass from Rudy Pilous to beat Janitor Johnny Mowers. Billy Cobper, former Toronto junior, added the second tally 10 seconds before the end of the game as the Brights tossed caution to the winds in an attempt to score. Pilous earned an assist. Walt Coupland was a standout in the winners' nets.

Courageous Quebec Skier Makes Graceful Turn

Add to that long list of courageous athletes the name of Jean Gossflin, 19-year-old skier of Lac Beauport, Quebec. Jean must pursue his favorite sport with only one leg to use in the hazardous pastime, and despite the handicap can outdo most of his more favored companions. He took to the down-hill art when only eight years old.

Elgin Wallops Donegal 5-1

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 18.—Elgin won their second straight in the East Peterborough Rural Hockey League schedule last night, defeating Donegal 5-1 in a close-checking and hard-hitting match at the Norwood arena. Late in starting due to the Trenton-Norwood game, the midnight hour had almost arrived before the final decision was reached.

Roy Richardson started the scoring for the Elgin boys early in the first, scoring unassisted, then made the play for Lumsden's goal a little late, to place them well in the lead. Metcalfe added another to their total in the second, which was offset by Donegal's lone score of the evening, by E. Stevenson, with A. Stevenson getting the assist.

Lochhead received a bad cut on the nose in this stanza and was forced to go off for repairs. He was on the ice again, however, for the final session.

There were only two penalties given, one to each team. O'Brien, Donegal's net guardian, despite the score, made some great saves. The teams:

Elgin.—Goal, E. Preston; defence, O'Grady, V. Fleming; centre, R. Richardson; wings, Lumsden, Murphy ;alternates, Lobb, Sheppard, Metcalfe, G. Richardson, J. Preston.

Donegal.—Goal, O'Brien; defence Buck, Buchanan; centre, Starke; wings, E. Stevenson, C. Stevenson; alternates, Baker, Bedore, A. Stevenson, Lochhead.

Referee.—D. Bedore, Norwood.

Summary

First Period:
Elgin—Richardson 10.34

Second Period:
Elgin—Metcalfe 11.13
Donegal—E. Stevenson (C. Stevenson) 11.21

Meade Is Riding Winners Again

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 18—(AP).—Once the roughest, toughest jockey in the business, a wiser but by no means more subdued Don Meade is riding winners again—with the philosophic conviction his enforced layoff of 2½ years was the best thing that ever happened to him.

"It made me stop and think," Meade said today at Hialeah Park, where he has booted home a dozen winners in six days.

Apparently at the height of his career, with a victory in virtually every major stake race behind him, Meade was ruled off the turf for betting on horses other than those he rode.

"It happened just at the right time," he said. "If it had been any earlier I would have been too young to profit by it. With a wife to take care of and everything, it made me settle down and look ahead."

Meade said his reinstatement last summer was like getting a reprieve from a death sentence.

Don believes he is a better rider than when he was ruled off.

"The layoff gave my nerves a chance to rest for the first time in six years," he said.

Guiry Of Emily Is Warden Of Victoria

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, January 18.—In a spirited contest between three aspirants, Reeve Joseph Guiry of Emily was elected Warden of Victoria County at the opening session of the county council Tuesday afternoon. The other contestants were Reeve J. Baker of Lindsay, and Reeve Wilfrid Short of Mariposa. Three ballots were taken before Reeve Guiry secured the required number of votes necessary for his election. The Warden-elect has had considerable experience in matters municipal. He is a fluent speaker and has been a member of the county council for the past two years. Emily township has not been represented by a warden since 1921, when the late Reeve Robert Wilson was elected to that position.

Lindsay Rink Wins

A Junior Tankard game was played at the local rink Tuesday between a local rink skipped by L. Mackey and a Lakefield rink skipped by B. Johnston. The visiting rink was defeated 19 to 5.

Relief Call Grows.

getting better, according to a statement made by Alderman Butler at Monday night's council meeting. Eleven applications for relief were made during the past few days. At present there are 458 relief recipients in the municipality.

Car Rolls Down Bank.

A car driven by Charles Hunt of Kinmount slid off the road in that village a few days ago and rolled down the embankment below the dam on Burnt river. The car overturned, but the occupants escaped serious injuries.

Mill Opens Again.

The International Cooperage Company, which has a large mill at Head Lake, Haliburton County, has started operations with a full staff. A big season's cut is anticipated.

Fair Head Re-elected.

The annual meeting of the Lindsay Central Fair Board was held Tuesday afternoon, when Mr. B. L. McLean was re-elected president. Satisfactory reports were presented and the financial condition of the society is very encouraging.

MORE ABOUT—Provinces

Mr. Woodsworth proceeded to give reports on conditions in some parts of the west where people were suffering poverty without relief or hope and contrasted them with newspaper reports of social activities in Ottawa.

The Ethiopian Deal.

Mr. Woodsworth criticised the government for failing to disallow or refer to the Supreme Court the padlock law in Quebec and scored the recognition of the Ethiopian conquest by Canada as "weakly following the lead of other nations."

Proposed increases in defence expenditures was a case of entering an armament race — "that bloody pathway which, all through history, has led to disaster." He urged that Canada become a member of the Pan-American conference.

Hon. Harris castigated the government on all counts and called the roll of the cabinet ministers with particular charges against all but Finance Minister Dunning whom he absolved because of the heavy burdens he carried.

In all its promises of betterment the government had failed to make good. It had opened up the markets to imports which robbed Canadians of employment in secondary interests and offered nothing in compensation.

"There are more young men begging in the streets than at any time I can remember. More men come to my door and to the doors of others asking for a handout than I am able to recall. Panhandlers are on the increase."

Question Of War

Mr. Graydon said he regretted the speech from the throne had not contained the sentiment contained in a quotation given by the Prime Minister last night, that when the Empire was at war Canada was at war. To face the fact fairly and include that sentiment in the throne speech was not to much to expect at this time.

While not quarrelling with the government's hopes the new trade agreements would keep relations between the English speaking races, Mr. Graydon said the government was trustee for the people of Canada and "before we lose ourselves in the clouds of international understanding we must be sure everything is well in Canada."

Mr. Graydon ridiculed suggestions the new trade agreements would help the cause of world peace. He thought the causes of international differences were too serious to be corrected by any changes in the tariffs of Canada and the United States.

More Fruit Imported

In 1935 prior to the previous United States treaty, Canada's imports of fresh fruits and vegetables amounted to $13,000,000. Last year they were $17,500,000. If that was a measure of the value of the treaty to Canada it was not appreciated by the fruit and vegetable growing districts.

The speech from the throne gave no indication of any real program for agriculture. It spoke of the continuance of rehabilitation measures for western agriculture but eastern farmers were also struggling with low prices and they too felt the need of some rehabilitation.

The farmers were caught between low prices and high overhead.

Farming as an industry could not survive if overhead continued to increase and prices remained low.

Under the treaty there was a reduction in the duty on cattle but the quota restricted Canadian exports to 1¼ per cent of the number of cattle slaughtered in the United States.

The county of Peel alone produced three times as much milk in the year as was permitted to enter the United States at the reduced rate of duty under the quota provisions of he new treaty.

The cut flower industry was likely to suffer from the treaty. He hoped the government would remove the sales tax from cut flowers.

"I am in favor of a drastic reduction in governmental overhead in this country," said Mr. Graydon. "The need for a pay-as-you-go policy is a crying need.

Municipalities were paying as they went. Peel county had reduced its indebtedness by 60 per cent. It was not too much to expect the same thing from the federal government.

Public opinion in Canada was rebelling against the payment of radio license fees. The government should consider reducing the present fee of $2.50. It was a nuisance tax.

Praises C.B.C.

Mr. McIvor praised the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for refusing to be "bought" in connection with the request of George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail for use of a network. He urged the institution of a system whereby when a member of parliament dies some member of his family, if available, finish out his term, thus oviating the need for a by-election.

Mr. Tucker deplored the circumstances which kept so many young people idle and hopeless. The solution could be found in Canada and by Canadians and should be found before complete demoralization was reached.

Mr. Tucker recommended a government commission to examine industrial projects, such as mineral development. If they were found promising the commission would lend the necessary money with the guarantee of return of two per cent.

Mr. Hensall regretted failure of the government to include monetary reform in the speech from the throne and wondered how long it would be before some action would be taken in that direction.

Mrs. Black, Conservative-Yukon, said Canada was a bilingual country and she felt it was "a shame our young people are not taught to speak both French and English." She was pleased at the prospect of the royal visit and at a report the government would issue a silver dollar to commemorate it.

Highway To Alaska

Mrs. Black said she could give a hundred reasons why the Alaskan highway through British Columbia should be built and perhaps as many why it should not be built. If it were built men who understood the north country should be in charge. It would be an expensive undertaking and neither the Dominion nor British Columbia could afford it. Leaders in the United States said they wanted it for war purposes and it was a fact that when the United States was at war Canada was at war.

"I would urge that if the road is built the United States pay every cent of the cost and employ entirely Canadian labor and give to Canada a free port of entry at Skagway," she said.

Mr. Bertrand spoke of the government's aid to the wheat growers of Western Canada and believed similar assistance should be given farmers in the east. People in the east made both ends meet by thrift and they believed they should be aided in the same measure as the west.

Mr. Thompson resented references made yesterday by the prime minister to lack of patriotism on the part of Conservative Leader Manion and compared the latter's record with those who, during the Great War "slipped quietly across the border to good positions and remained there until all was quiet on the western front."

Mr. Mutch made a plea for government policies that would reclaim the lost generation of youth, victims of the depression and urged that the federal government assume full responsibility for relief and abolish or ignore constitutional barriers to that end.

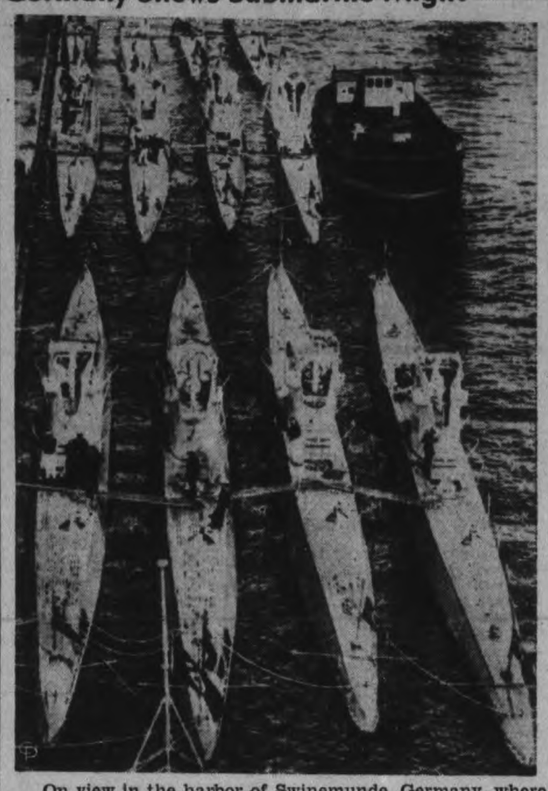
Germany Shows Submarine Might



On view in the harbor of Swinemunde, Germany, where large numbers of visitors can be properly impressed with the display of the country's undersea might, are these 12 submarines, all of the latest design, and possibly an indication of Germany's capabilities as expressed in her demand that she be granted parity with Great Britain in this type of craft.

according to the Examiner's information, were Reid, Cummiskey, Edmonstone and Devitt. After considerable discussion a vote was taken of the members present. Reeve Devitt of Cartwright went out on the first ballot, Reeve Edmonstone of Bowmanville on the second ballot, and the final decision was made between Reeve Cummiskey of Manvers and Reeve Reid of Clarke. Incidentally that is nearly the exact order the Examiner predicted, intimating that the most likely choice was the reeve of Clarke township.

Son of the late W. Hamilton Reid, the first Conservative elected to the Ontario Legislature from Durham county, Reeve Reid had no strikes on him when he went to bat for the Wardenship. It was simply a detail of how much the majority would be. His father was a member of the Legislature eight years, following experience in his township council of which he became Reeve, representing Clarke in the counties council. At the conclusion of his two terms in Legislature he was appointed Governor of the counties jail and died at Cobourg about twenty-five years ago.

Warden A Farmer

Warden Reid owns the farm of 370 acres about two miles north of Newtonville where he was born. He has been a member of Clarke township council nine years, four as a councillor, two as deputy-reeve and the last three as reeve, and most of his elections have been accorded him by acclamation. He has been recognized as one of the strong men of the counties council from the year of his entry as Deputy with the former Reeve Fred B. Lovekin. He has been well schooled in municipal works, especially in the affairs of the counties council, and it may be safely predicted that the administration of the united counties will be carefully and diligently directed by Warden Reid.

Improved Finances

Rev. W. P. Woodger, pastor of Trinity United Church, Cobourg, conducted the opening prayer, and E. L. MacNachtan, counties clerk and treasurer, took charge of the first step in the organization of the new council. He explained to the seven new members of council the method of procedure in voting for the candidates for the Wardenship, proceeded with the division, and that first phase of the sessions was concluded in six minutes.

After Warden Reid was installed by Mr. Calver and Mr. Patton, he thanked the council for the honor conferred upon him, and congratulated the members on their re-election.

"The fact that so many of the 1938 council have been returned is evidence of the confidence the ratepayers had in you," Warden Reid said. "To the seven new members I can say that they are filling the places of fine men. If your work is as successful as theirs it will be a credit to yourselves, to your municipalities and these united counties."

The Warden touched upon the improved estate to which the year's council has fallen heir. A bothersome overdraft that had been carried along for years, amounting to $85,000, has been wiped out, and a debt of $81,000 to the Department of Highways has been liquidated. The last payment of $27,000 on that obligation was made last year. Warden Reid said the counties' debenture debt was down to $555,000. The annual payment of principal and interest is $90,000.

"We still have need to economize, and do the best we can to get the greatest results from the money expended."

Opponent's Congratulation

Reeve Carruthers was the first to congratulate the new Warden. "It is a great honor to be Warden of these counties, and I wish to offer my congratulations to him. There is nothing wrong with Bert Reid but one thing, and I am hoping that in two thousand years or so he may see the light and step out into the glory of the full day."

That was a reference to the Warden's rockbound political loyalty.

"I promise you my co-operation and full support in all the affairs of the council this year," Mr. Carruthers added, "and I want to thank the members who supported me."

Capacity Crowd

The inaugural of the new council attracted another capacity crowd. The public section of the council chamber is comparatively small. It was packed before seven o'clock, the overflow extended into the corridor and almost as many more were to get a glimpse of the council from the committee room. Most of the members had to enter to reach their seats by that route. Durham probably contributed most of the visitors, especially from Clarke township and Orono, its municipal capital.

At the conclusion of the meeting Warden Reid dispensed with the customary invitation to former Wardens to join him on the dais. One reason was lack of accomodation for them at the front of the chamber, and the other was that if they were all to address the council the visitors would be kept standing too long.

Among the Wardens of recent years who were noticed were: J. F. George, Brighton township, 1938; Percy Stinson, Millbrook, 1935; Wilbert Davey of Hamilton township, 1934; N. Hart, Murray township, 1932; George H. Hooton, Cavan, 1931; also M. J. Elliott, Bowmanville, 1926; James McCamus, Cavan, W. M. Fowlds of Hastings and Fred Bowen of Clarke who was Warden eighteen years ago, and then was elected to the federal parliament from Durham.

Petition Rejected

The council's first decision as it proceeded with the business of the session was to reject a petition to reconsider the Gore's Landing school question. Mrs. Ruby Meggs wrote asking for an appointment for a deputation from Rice Lake community.

Reeve Cummiskey of Manvers moved that no action be taken, and his proposal carried without dissent. "We went into that matter several years ago, and it was then agreed by the Gore's Landing people that the decision would be accepted as final," Reeve Cummiskey said. "I don't think we should open it up again."

Manvers council asked that two miles of road from View Lake easterly be assumed as county road.

1938 Road Costs

A statement from the Department of Highways showed that $86,686.85 had been spent on the road in the counties system last year, less $2,420.46 received for sales, leaving the net expenditure $84,266.39, approximately half of which will be refunded to the counties by the Department. The items were: construction $12,000; maintenance and repairs $47,773.85; machinery $18,259.84; urban municipalities $2,181.36; superintendence $4,495.51; county bridges $1,362.49.

Other communications were sent on to the committees, and the council adjourned until 10.30 a.m. Wednesday.

also attacked political interference in the management of the Canadian National Railways, as exemplified in the announced construction of a new terminal at Montreal. Two Cabinet Ministers had promised the terminal to the electors of Montreal-St. Henri in a Federal by-election there.

Mr. Meighen called for re-establishment of the Senate Committee which investigated the railway problem last year. He suggested that body continue its probe where it left off last year. The committee's report suggested it should do so this session.

Support of the Government's program of increased defence was voiced by Hon. J. E. Prevost (Lib. Terrebonne), who seconded the motion. The education of Canadians in questions of defence was still imperfect. He disclaimed any Imperialistic tendencies ,but believed Canada should shoulder her responsibilities in a manner fitting to the premier's pretensions to autonomy and nationhood.

NEEDS SKATES

A young lad in East City is looking with mournful eyes these days at the city's free skating rinks, becoming perhaps a little embittered to think that even though the ice is free he still cannot skate on it. Skating is his favorite sport, but he has no skates. Perhaps he is recalling to himself that wards of the Shelter had skates provided them by a benevolent Children's Aid Society. Youngsters at the Sunday School of George Street United Church know the lad, are feeling badly about this need. He wears size six boot and skate, they have found out, and they want to know if someone has an extra pair that size. They have arranged that anyone having such equipment may leave it at 326 Burnham street, and it will be forwarded to the youngster.

Admittance Refused Sick Daily As Hospital Unable To Provide Sufficient Beds

The state of overcrowding at Nicholls Hospital, now entering its 50th year of operation, was stressed by Chairman E. F. Mason at the annual meeting of the hospital board on Monday evening. Mr. Mason was re-elected for another year along with A. J. Throop as honorary secretary.

Mr. Mason said that patients are being turned away from the hospital every day because of insufficient quarters, and that something must be done at the earliest possible date to remedy the condition. He reviewed the work of the hospital for the past year, acknowledging the support given by each member of the board.

Committees elected at the meeting were as follows: Supervision — J. J. Turner (chairman), Charles Lacheur, J. W. Pierce; Finance—Dr. J. M. McCulloch (chairman), Ald. E. R. Wilson, Rev. C. C. Boyter; Property—C. F. Kitney (chairman), Ald. H. I. Bradburn, J. F. Morrison; Investment—V. Eastwood (chairman), W. R. Turner, Jr., Dr. H. M. Yelland.

Superintendent's Report.

In a summary of the outstanding events in the hospital during the year, Mrs. E. M. Leeson, superintendent, pointed to increased activity in every department of the hospital, with a daily average of 76 patients which, she reported, was an occupancy of more than 80 per cent. of capacity. "For lack of accommodation we have refused admission to fully 200 patients. This, unfortunately, means that when we have accommodation, patients from outside points from which it is difficult to telephone, are taken to St. Joseph's for fear of lack of proper accommodation at Nicholls."

Since October, she revealed, the rooms occupied by the superintendent and the night nurses have been converted into wards for patients. "At the present time, every ward in the outer corridor, including the superintendent's rooms, is occupied by patients. The obstetrical floor is frequently overcrowded and even with empty beds in other parts of the hospital it has been necessary almost every month to refuse admission to mothers."

She said that an emergency light has been installed in the operating room. Steam instrument sterilizers have been installed on the first and second floors, paying for themselves in a short time by eliminating gas. Ten beds, with gatch frames, head lights, and spring mattresses have been installed. All private rooms and most of the semi-private rooms are now supplied with these beds. The X-ray equipment has been brought up to modern requirements.

"The laundry is still carrying on with its old machinery. Over 9,000 pieces of linen are taken care of every week. Of these, 5,000 require ironing."

Miss Leeson drew attention to a number of donations received during the year.

"The hanging screens in the obstetrical public and semi-private wards have been greatly appreciated by the patients, giving them a privacy that was not possible with the old type of screen. This type of screen was also supplied in the four-bed semi-private and the children's ward by F. J. Mitchell of the Border Cities Transit Company of Windsor.

"At the present time the most outdated piece of equipment in the hospital, I think, is our gas oxygen machine. In recent years the type and the giving of anaesthesias has made great strides and as soon as possible we should purchase a new machine. The price of this equipment is around $500."

In her report of the training school, Miss Lawson said all students writing in 1938 had passed successfully the provincial examinations. "I regret to report more illness among students than last year," she said. In all 359 days were lost through illness. "Social activities of the students have been somewhat increased. The Ladies' Hospital Auxiliary have taken an active interest in providing parties and picnics." The students' library was increased by 100 books donated by Dr. Turner of Millbrook and 12 books purchased by the hospital. "Our sincere appreciation is due to the medical staff for their interest and cooperation in giving so freely of their time for lectures, physical examinations and care for sick nurses; to Dr. Grieves, from the Ontario Hospital, Whitby, for twelve lectures on nervous and mental diseases; to Dr. H. H. Graham for his twenty lectures in chemistry; and to St. Andrew's church for a special service and social hour for the students; and to the social committee of the Ladies' Auxiliary for parties and picnics for the students." She expressed appreciation for the cooperation of her nursing staff and the training school committee of the board of directors.

Women's Auxiliary Report

During the past year, which has been one of organization, much progress has been made. The board of the Hospital Auxiliary have held 14 meetings. There have also been five general or public meetings. The auxiliary terminates September 1st, and at that time there was a general membership of 2,000, which included about 100 members from Keene, Lakefield, Gilmour, Bridgenorth, Omemee and Millbrook There are fifty life members.

"The visiting committee take care of the weekly visits to the hospital, with gifts of fruit and flowers. Sewing is given out at the monthly meetings, and up to September 1st, 947 articles have been finished. Mr. and Mrs. W. Belleghem presented the hospital with a cupboard, and this contains the layetties supplied by the Thursday club, also donations of clothing. Patients leaving the hospital, who are in need of clothing, are if possible, supplied from this cupboard. The transportation committee provided cars at different times.

'In the last report, mention was made of bedside curtains. Venetian blinds have since been placed in the upstair sun room, at a cost of $117. Through the kindess of a friend, three smoker sets were placed in the lower sun room.

"In order to establish a fund for the new hospital, a penny sale was held May 30th, which was very successful, the proceeds amounting to $1,008. With this money, two $500 bonds were purchased. The balance in this account, which is now $37.28 will be added to during the year by some special venture, which was yet to be decided upon. One $500 bond was also purchased with the life membership money. At this time, we would like to extend thanks to the Board of Governors, for taking charge of the bonds for us.

"The annual meeting was held in September, when the following members were elected for the year 1938-39.

Honorary presidents, Mrs. F. M. Delafosse, Mrs. H. A. Morrow; Mrs. R. M. Waddell; president, Mrs. J. G. Wharry; 1st vice-president, Mrs. I. Lillico; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Robert Ross; corr. secretary, Miss Evelyn Morrow; rec. secretary, Mrs. J. J. Turner; treasurer ,Mrs. W. Tinker; board members, Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell; Mrs. C. S. Reporter Calls Wife To Find Place Of Fire Discovers Neighbor Unaware Of Blaze

One Examiner reporter's wife has a great deal more respect for him today, believes he has some uncanny knowledge of what's going on.

He was in the police station Tuesday night when a fire alarm started to ring. Alarms ring at the police station because it is felt in some quarters that policemen should know where and when fires break out. They are curious people—though it has been said that sometimes they are not curious enough to attend major fires.

The reporter looked up, saw the fire had been rung in from a fire box at the corner of Reid and Park Hill Road. He lives in that neighborhood and so he phoned home to ask his wife if she could see any house on fire in the district.

A little girl was visiting her from a nearby house at the time and she sent her out to see where the fire was. An instant later, her eyes round with fright, the little girl hurried back in and said, "Yes, it's our house," and then ran for home as fast as she could go.

It was only a chimney fire, but the fire box had been pulled and the entire department had answered the call.

Walter Ramsay And Bill Hunt Are Given Bob Skates And Ski Poles To Beat Firemen

More fuel was added to the bitter rivalry smouldering between the bus drivers and firemen over hockey supremacy today when two parcels arrived at the bus barns, one containing a pair of bob-skates for Walter Ramsay and the other a pair of ski poles addressed to Bill Hunt, and in one parcel was a little note which read "You may need these when the Firemen play the Bus Drivers a game of hockey".

"This fellow Astles at the Fire Hall is a lot like Mussolini, he is doing a lot of bluffing and the truth is the Smoke Eaters are afraid to come into the open and issue a challenge naming a date and place for a hockey game, said Hunt.

A few enquiries at the Fire Hall revealed that four of the Foremen are nursing injuries received in a practise and are requesting the two promoters Joe Astles and Tuffy Carr to postpone the game for a few weeks until they recover.

A survey of both camps shows that the Firemen have the edge in experience but are outweighed by the Bus Drivers almost to a man, the latter having two prospects for defence positions who tip the beam over the 200 mark. It is expected that within the next week ambassadors from each team will get together and decided whether the game will beplayed this Winter or whether it will be laid over until 1940.

Plea Made By Family Plagued With Illness Given Special Consideration By Board

The Board of Health decided Tuesday night that there is at least one family in Peterborough that has more than its share of ill luck in the matter of illness.

The head of this unfortunate family wrote in regard to a bill for the treatment of two of his children at the Isolation Hospital that when his first child was born his wife was ill for weeks and later when twins arrived she had nearly a year's illness, involving 200 calls by a doctor. Afterwards she and the children were all striken with pneumonia. All but one of the children had to have their tonsils and adenoids removed and the remaining child would have to be smiliarly treated. One of the boys had to receive hospital treatment for the removal of a coin he had swallowed and afterward there was another operation because of an injury to his eye. The wife required to have all her teeth extracted but the family budget had not been able to take care of that for the present and meanwhile because of his wife's condition it was necessary to employ a maid.

Consideration was asked for because of these circumstances, the city's bill for hospital treatment for the two children who have been in the isolation hospital, one of them for four months being $199.50.

Pointing out that the father was working steadily and had a regular income and therefore could not be regarded as an indigent, Ald. Dutton felt however that this was a case that merited special consideration and he accordingly moved that the bil lbe reduced to $100 and a reasonable time be allowed for its payment. The motion, seconded by Ald. McCannan, was carried.

$175,000 Has Been Paid Town Treasurer By Campbellford Utilities In 8 Years

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 18. — Approximately $173,000.00 has been paid over to the corporation of the town of Campbellford in grants from the Utilities Commission since 1926, J. O. Benor, chairman of the commission for the past eight years told Rotarians in an address here on Monday. Stressing particularly the finances of the commission, the speaker claimed an increase in revenue of $5,485.00 from 1937 to 1938. "Not counting the miscellaneous revenue paid out in wages which kept men off relief and supplied us not only with sufficient poles for our own use but also a large number which we were able to sell at a profit our total revenue for 1938 amounted to $37,452.83, of which $1,000 was from the waterworks department. Against this we paid out for operating and maintenance $18,170.14, grant to the town $10,000.00 and for maintenance and for debenture $4,130.77, making a total of $32,300.00, leaving for new work to improve the system and give the service you are demanding $5,151.00. This amount is very small when you consider there is no sinking fund and maintenance costs are up and down according to the trouble we have from storms and other faulty equipment."

First New Industry.

"In the past few years we have made improvements to the system which have enabled us to give you the necessary service and also increased the sale of power to the hydro which was the first contract of this type we have had since 1927 and this year we have been instrumental in bringing to the town its first new industry in thirty years."

Speaking of the debt of the town which amounts to $170,585.00 Mr. Benor pointed out that no debentures matured until next year, but that $8,609.00 would be paid off in 1941. 'One would think that as debt is paid off each year we could save in interest but we find as interest comes down the principal payment is up. Our debentures run on until 1954 when we will be completely out of debt if nothing else is added in the meantime.

In concluding his remarks the speaker made reference to the installation of a water reservoir which would eliminate the danger of the service being disrupted by anchor ice and also assure a constant supply of pure chlorinated water at all times. This he intimated was a project which would have to be undertaken in the near future and would probably cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Rotarian Ralph Locke moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

Four New County Forests Were Established During Past Year Council Is Told

Endorsation of the broad program being sponsored by the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Association was given by the County Council at the inaugural meeting Tuesday afternoon when they voted unanimously an appropriation of $25 to further this work.

Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee, chairman of zone 4 which comprises Durham, Victoria, Peterborough, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox-Addington, explained the progress that had been made during the year and added that half the sum asked for would be turned back to zone officials so that they would not be out of pocket in doing the necessary travelling and work entailed by the venture, and that the municipalities they represent would not have to assume large expense accounts.

"I am reluctant to give money to any new organization but this Association is doing a work that will bring real benefit to every county in Ontario," he said.

Reeve Anderson said the Peterborough County Forest comprising 2600 acres in Dummer and Belmont townships was equidistant from Toronto and Kingston and he ventured the prophecy that in a few years the forest would have great value in a demonstrative way, because it was easy of access and would attract visitors from all part of Ontario.

During the year four new county forests were launched in the counties of Peterborough, Lanark, Bruce and Grey and several county demonstration plots were set varying in size from five to 30 acres. Conservation as it relates to flood control was discussed for a whole day at the annual meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, and further indication of the interest being taken in reforestation was given by the fact that in 1938 applications for trees amounted to 7360 as compared with 4878 in 1936.

The Council heard the communications after Reeve James Milby of North Monaghan had been installed as Warden for 1939, and left the striking of standing committees over until Wednesday morning.

Mellis New Head Of Employment Service Bureau

W. H. L. Mellis has been appointed superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada in Peterborough, succeeding Dan Douglas who has been promoted to an inspectorship in Toronto. The appointment was made several weeks ago, but Mr. Douglas remained on duty in the local office on King street, assisting Mr. Mellis in the details of his work until today.

Mr. Mellis has had an extensive experience in several branches of industry. At one time he was in charge of the induction motor and switchgear department of the Canadian General Electric Company in Peterborough. At the outbreak of the war he volunteered for active service, but was rejected. He then offered himself for any helpful work in Canada, secured a position at the Ross Rifle plant in Quebec and became superintendent of its thirteen departments. Later he was with Fairbanks-Morse and in the aircraft division of the Willys-Overland Company. Latterly he has been in charge of the Dominion government's rip-rap work at the Little Lake and at Lakefield.

Officers Guests Of Sergeants

Past and present officers of the Prince of Wales Rangers and the old units of Peterborough Militia Garrison as it was constituted before reorganization were Tuesday night guests of the Sergeants' Mess of which Sgt.-Major W. T. Westran is president.

The hosts took fullest advantage of the occasion to pay tribute to Col. J. A. Dewart, M.C., recently gazetted to command of the 9th Infantry Brigade, and to Lt.-Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., who succeeded to command of the Rangers.

Included among the former officers in command of the old Peterborough Rangers were, in order of seniority, Lt.-Col. E. B. Clegg, Lt.-Col. F. L. Bradburn, Lt.-Col. W. Gordon Hall, V.D., and Lt.-Col. M. H. Park, V.D., while included among the former officers in command of the old 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons were Lt.-Col. T. D. Johnston and Lt.-Col. C. H. Stuart. The command of the Canadian Machine Gun Corps, which was absorbed along with the old Peterborough Rangers and Dragoons into the Prince of Wales Rangers, was represented by Col. Dewart and Major James Turnbull.

A pleasant program of speeches and entertainment followed by serving of a buffet supper was ably presided over by R.Q.M.S. Joseph Gaskell as chairman. Other guests besides those previously mentioned included Honorary Lt.-Col. H. A. Morrow, Major Hurrell Dodds, Capt. (Rev.) J. D. Paterson, Capt. (Rev.) R. T. F. Brain, and others.

An address of welcome was given by R.S.M. William R. Piercy while Lt.-Col. M. H. Park contributed to the musical entertainment, being accompanied by Frederic Mann, L.Mus. George Walsh of Oshawa led a sing song and contributed vocal solos and monologues.

Acting Suspiciously Youth Is Run In

Several automobiles were robbed in the city Tuesday night, and as the result of seeing two men enter a car near Bethune and Charlotte Street and a third youth acting suspiciously in the vicinity, Reginald Hopkins and two companions, seized this third individual and took him to the police station, where he gave his name as George Thompson, 19, of Toronto.

The police instituted a search for the other two suspects and later a second youth who claimed to be Carlo Wilson of Toronto, was arrested on George Street. No trace was found of the third man.

This morning Thompson and Wilson were charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., with stealing a flashlight and a pair of gloves from Reginald Hopkins and pleaded not guilty.

They were remanded until next Tuesday at the request of the Crown, bail being fixed at $500 in each case.

George Huffman's car, parked on Aylmer Street, was also entered last night and a parcel containing a vest was stolen as well as a couple of car keys.

Truth In Germany

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 18. — "What is the truth in Germany" was the topic dealt with in an interesting manner at the weekly meeting of St. John's Y.P.U. by Miss Gladys Stephen. The program for the evening was under the chairmanship of the citizenship convener, Doris Mason. Miss Effie Dickie contributed a reading and Miss Doris Mason led in prayer. Other numbers were a vocal solo by Mrs. A. G. Watson and a piano solo by Miss G. Neale. Following this the members enjoyed a brief period of games.

T. B. Testing Quickened

Testing of cattle for bovine tuberculosis is at present being carried on by veterinarians of the federal government in Smith, Douro, Asphodel and Belmont, according to information from F. C. Paterson, who remarked today that this work is apparently proceeding more rapidly than during 1938. A circular letter reminds herd owners that premises must be thoroughly cleaned as a condition for compensation.

Suspect Held In Attacks Upon Women

"This man answers the description of a man who has been reported as acting suspiciously in the neighborhood of several residences and we would like a chance to try to find out something more about him," Chief Constable Samuel Newhall told the court this morning after John Burke, transient, had pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court to a charge of vagrancy.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., asked for a week's remand and the case went over until Tuesday of next week.

Burke told the magistrate that his home was in Nova Scotia and that he would go back there if he were given a chance.

"What did you come away up here for?" asked the Magistrate.

"I once worked in this town, Your Worship," Burke replied, "and I thought I might be able to get a job here again."

Chalmers Charged Reckless Driving

As the result of a recent traffic accident at Hunter Street East and Driscoll Terrace in which two members of a city snow-shovelling gang were injured when an automobile skidded into their midst while they were at work, the driver of the motor vehicle, James P. Chalmers, was arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on a charge of reckless driving.

Crown-Attorney McElderry, K.C., informed the court that the case would be regarded as an indictable offence charge rather than a summary conviction.

Chalmers, who was represented by T. J. Carley, K.C., elected trial by the magistrate and pleaded not guilty.

The Crown was not ready to proceed with the case, and by consent there was an adjournment until Thursday of next week.

Builders' Business Who They Employ

"There have been several letters of complaint in The Examiner about outsiders being employed on contracts here," said Mayor James Hamilton Tuesday night to a reporter. "It should be understood there is no law we can invoke to prevent that kind of thing. These are private contracts and we cannot compel the contractors to employ local men if they do not want to do so.

"We have not been asleep, however. I personally saw the contractor for the Y.W.C.A. job and we interviewed the contractor who had the new Bell Telephone Company's building job and in both cases pointed out to them that they would find here as capable and industrious a class of workman as could be found anywhere and as a result local men were given work on these projects. That is all we can do, and it has been our policy all along to try to persuade contractors to give local labor a chance. There is no law, however, that says they have to do that."

Increase Shown In Givings At Mark Street

A very successful and enthusiastic meeting of the congregation of Mark Street United Church, Ashburnham, was held on Tuesday evening. Over 100 members sat down to a hot supper, kindly provided and served by the ladies' of the congregation, after which a short musical program, organized by Choir Leader Harry Northrop was presented by the following members of the choir.

Guitar numbers, Tom Parker; monologues, Miss Margaret Ferguson; piano solo, Miss Elva Throop; solo, Mr. Rufus Payne; ladies' quartette, Mrs. W. Hepburn, Mrs. M. Pomeroy, Mrs. P. Tedford, Mrs. H. Northrop.

The business portion of the meeting opened with the election of Alan Stevens as chairman who then took charge of the meeting in his usual efficient manner and carried the proceedings along harmoniously and without loss of time. Every department of the congregation gave a splendid report which showed that 1938 had been one of the most successful in the history of Mark Street Church and reflected great credit on the energetic leadership of the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland. An increase in church membership was noted while groups for current expenses, building fund and missionary and maintenance all showed an encouraging increase during the year and the prospects for a banner year in 1939 were most encouraging.

The retiring elders, Ward Gamble and Stanley Matchett were re-elected for five years and the following were elected to the board of stewards: W. Hepburn, Rufus Payne, Fred Stevenson, Carlyle Ferguson.

During the business porton of the meeting various musical numbers were rendered under the leadership of N. Hewitt and "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" brought to a close one of the most enthusiastic and successful meetings of Mark St. United Church.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, is on her way to the Manor, the luxurious home of the wealthy Witherspoon family. She has agreed to take the place of her friend, Kitty, for a week, running the private salon of old Mrs. Witherspoon, an eccentric semi-invalid. The Witherspoon chauffeur takes her to the Manor, where she meets the housekeeper and then the parlor maid. Before retiring Elsie is told to change into her uniform to give Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., her nightly facial. She meets her maid, Eliza. Elsie finds her employer is a withered old woman with a sadly misplaced sense of vanity.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER FIVE

WHEN MRS. GREELY had gone, I wandered aimlessly about the salon, admiring my temporary workshop. How Polly would rave over the place, I thought, re-examining the driers and the permanent waving machine and the perfectly equipped manicuring tables. So engrossed was I in my study that it was some minutes until I realized I was no longer alone. A shadow, a woman's shadow, wavering on the silver curtains caused me to cry out and whirl suddenly to face the intruder.

"I am so sorry! I have frightened you." A woman in evening dress stood before me.

"I didn't hear you come in," I replied. "Your shadow startled me."

"I—I thought someone had left on the lights." The woman made her explanation falteringly. "I saw them from the corridor—"

"Oh!" I eyed her curiously. She was frankly middle-aged and quite plain. Her figure beneath the folds of her gown was thin, and scrawny. But it was her eyes that held my attention — they were small and brown and utterly sad.

"I am Mrs. Horace Witherthing clicked inside my brain spoon," she went on, and some-What was it Tim had said? Oh, yes—like a kid what's found out there ain't no Santy Claus."

"I'm Elsie Ritter," I said quickly, trying not to stare at her. "I'm taking Kitty Wilson's place."

"I remember." Her voice came tiredly. "You—you won't forget about the lights?"

I assured her that I would not forget.

"Good night!" She smiled, briefly, and went away.

The woman was not telling the truth! Then I suddenly remembered what it was about Mrs. Horace's explanation that had not rung true—those heavy doors at the Manor, why, you could not see even a chink of light when they were closed! And the outer door of the salon had been closed—tightly. What was it that Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Jr., had wanted from the beauty salon at nine o'clock at night?

✧ ✧ ✧

Promptly at ten o'clock I presented myself at the salon entrance to the elder Mrs. Witherspoon's suite. The unwholesome Eliza admitted me. She had a sheet of paper in her hand which she poked silently at me. It was the list of special preparations required for the old lady's treatment. It looked like an itemized account of the war debt.

"Please get the things from the salon and bring them here," she requested in her too-soft voice.

"Very well." I had meant to speak loudly, but somehow my own voice rose scarcely above a whisper. I was catching it, too, this uncanny habit of talking and acting as though the place were a morgue.

When I returned with my tray of jars and bottles and my pan of warm water Eliza was lifting the old lady from the bed to a great chair beneath the ceiling light. Strange, I thought, with all her money Mrs. Witherspoon had not wired her room for side and table lamps. But there it was! Wealthy people did the queerest things!

"Put me down! Put me down!" commanded Mrs. Witherspoon sharply, and Eliza lowered her gently into the chair. "Miss Ritter, use the small table for your tray."

"All right." I did as I was bid. I felt oddly ill at ease under the watchful eyes of the gaunt female who stood behind the chair regarding me suspiciously.

"Go along, Eliza," said Mrs. Witherspoon crossly. "Fix my chocolate."

"Shan't I wait?" Eliza was loath to depart.

"No! No! Go at once!" The old lady lost her temper. "Must I tell you twice? Go along!

"Yes I'll go." Eliza's lower lip trembled uncertainly. She crept noiselessly from the room.

Relieved, I set about preparing the treatment. It really was not so complicated in spite of the dabs of this and that I had to take from a half-dozen different containers. Just the usual night routine. First the warm sponage, then the cleasing cream, then the tonic. But I could not suppress a start of alarm when I had wiped that withered face clean of its thick coating. The skin was yellow, like wrinkled parchment, too. Mrs. Witherspoon was a sick woman, or I missed my guess. She had great blue circles beneath her eyes—she looked like death and sounded like it also. Her breath came rapidly and once when I leaned close to her I could hear her tired old heart thumping and pumping in her breast.

"Hurry! Hurry!" she said at intervals. "I am very tired tonight."

I did my best. But creams and tonics were not going to do her any good. What she needed was a doctor and quickly. What was the matter, I wondered, that her family had not seen how terribly ill she was? Or had it seen and not cared?

The treatment took a good hour. Tried as she was, the old lady would not let me skip a thing. Finally, however, I reached for the last bottle. It was a strange and unusual bottle; I had never before seen the preparation, and I turned it curiously in my hands. There was no label pasted on the glass.

"That's my beauty mask," Mrs. Witherspoon explained. "The ingredient's are secret." She brightened slightly. "No one knows what is in it," she boasted. "They're all after it, all the girls, but I won't tell them. It's my secret, My beauty secret! Horace makes it up for me."

HER beauty secret! Poor deluded old lady!

"Well, get on with it!" Her tone sharpened. "When you've finished with the mask you may go. It stays on all night. At ten in the morning you come in and wash it off!"

"All right." I shook the bottle. The stuff inside was gray and thick. I molded it onto her face. It dried rapidly. It had a pungent odor that got up my nose and made me sneeze.

"Return the tray to the salon," she directed, blinking at me. She was like a mummy, a thousand-year-old mummy, with the mask dried on her face in drab ridges.

I wiped my hands and got my bottles together.

"Good night," I said, but she did not hear. Her head had fallen forward upon her breast—she was sleeping. I tiptoed from the room.

✧ ✧ ✧

At a quarter past eleven I was in bed and fast asleep. At twelve I was awake, wide awake, and wondering why. Had I been dreaming? In my dream some one had made a noise—a noise like a falling chair. Only it had been a muffled noise—far away. For no reason at all the goose pimples rose on my arms and a pickling sensation ran the length of my spine. I felt my hair standing on end.

And then I heard a sound—a sound like some one carefully righting a fallen chair. And it was not in a dream. I was wide awake!

I do not know now why I got out of bed and opened the door that led to the salon. But I did. I turned on the light, quickly, before I could remember how frightened I was. There was no one in the salon and the lobby was quite deserted. I sighed in relief. I raised my arm to snap off the light, and and then I saw—I saw the chair that had fallen and had been righted again! It was the chair by the round black table that had no legs! I knew it was that chair, for three hours earlier I had sat in it as I had gone over the list of the morrow's appointments.

I had left the chair pushed flush with the table, and now it faced sidewise, to match the position of its companion at the opposite end of the table. As I stared, scarcely believing my eyes, my attention was caught and held by a rippling movement of the silver curtain surrounding the third anteroom.

One minute I was rooted to the ground—the intruder was hiding behind that curtain! The next minute I had touched the switch and bounded in one great bound into my room and into my bed. Let burglars carry off what they would! I was scared and no heroine!

Too Many Young Couples Want To Start Life Just Where Their Parents Are, And When They Cannot afford It, They Fail To Marry

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know why there are more bachelors now than there used to be. She says that Women are better looking, better dressed, better educated, more attractive than they ever were, yet they find it harder and harder to get husbands. Men enjoy women's society as much as they ever did. They like to play around with them and tread a merry social round with them, but they are bridal-shy and it takes skill, finesse and luck to drag one to the altar.

Well, the increase in the number of bachelors may be accounted for in several ways. First, on financial grounds. After all, matrimony is a matter o' money to a great extent, and the poor boy on a shoestring salary can no more afford to set up a wife than he can a yacht. Youth is the mating time of life. It is the time when the blood runs hot in the veins and a man can see the angel of his dreams in any girl in a white dress. If he cannot marry then but has to put it off until his pulses have slowed down and he looks at women with a critical eye, he is more than likely not to marry at all.

Of course, our forefathers didn't put off marriage until they had the price, but marriage wasn't the expensive proposition then that it is now. Young couples didn't expect to start out where their parents were leaving off, and domestic bliss did not depend upon the possession of automobiles and radios, fine clothes and sessions at the beauty shop.

But right or wrong, we have our acquired tastes and habits, and so when the modern Romeo figures out that the income that supplies luxuries for one would mean poverty and hard-sledding for two and more, and he has to decide between Juliet and a new car, it is not surprising that he is faithful to his deathless passion for himself and buys the streamlined automobile.

Another reason why men do not marry is because they do not have to. In former days a wife was a necessity. Now she is an ornamental fringe on life. The poor bachelor who had wearied and sickened of club and restaurant and boarding-house cooking, who had no one to darn his socks, or send out his laundry, or nurse him when he was sick, or keep up with his engagements, was practically driven into marriage to get some one to take care of him.

But now when every apartment house has its bachelor quarters, its valet services that supply his wants with an efficiency that few wives possess, and where a man can come and go as he pleases without being put through the third degree, it is easy to understand why bachelors are loath to surrender their freedom.

Then, too, men used to have to marry in order to get feminine society. Every man has to have some woman to talk to; some woman who will understand him and sympathize with him and jolly him along; some woman to whom he can boast of his triumphs and on whose breast he can weep when things go wrong; some woman he can say the things to that he could never say to another man. In the days when the sexes only met at stiff parties a man had to marry his audience, but now, when men and women work together and play together, he gets all the feminine society he desires, without having to pay its bills.

The amancipation of women did a lot for them, but it certainly put a crimp in their matrimonial prospects. Many men do not marry because their freedom is dearer to them than anything in the world. Others do not marry because they are selfish, and the very thought of having to give up all of their little ways and adjust themselves to the personality of a woman sends cold chills up and down their spines. Others do not marry because they are celibate by nature. No woman ever raises a thrill in their breasts. They have no leanings toward domesticity and they can conjure up no fate more dreadful than having to go home every night to a boiled mutton dinner and squalling brats.

Thousands of other men never marry because of a sad secret they keep locked in their hearts and that no one guesses. Sometimes it is because a man has been faithful through all the years to a dead love. He gave all he had to one woman and there was nothing left to give another. Sometimes it is because a man was kept from marrying by a possessive mother who would not loosen her clutch upon him. Sometimes it is because there were old parents, or little brothers and sisters he had to support, and by the time they were off his hands love had passed him by.

But, however it is, every old bachelor is the reason some girl missed a husband.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Have you ever gone sailing in a matchbox? Knarf and Hanid did. Shadows, you see, can do lots of things that children can't.

It had suddenly started to rain. The children had promptly run indoors, for they didn't want to get wet. But Knarf and Hanid, who had been following in their footsteps, stopped at the door. At any rate, Knarf did. He said to Hanid: "Don't go inside. You're not afraid of getting wet, are you?"

"Of course not," said Hanid.

"Then let's stay outside. I've got a wonderful idea. We'll make a boat and go sailing."

"H'mm," said Hanid doubtfully. Knarf often had wonderful ideas.

They pushed the matchbox "boat."

But not all of them succeeded very well. She wanted to know more about the boat that her brother meant to build.

"It's easy," he said. "All we need is a matchbox. I saw one lying at the bottom of the garden steps, right near the river."

"The river! What river? I didn't see any rivers."

But Knarf just laughed. "You didn't notice it. Come with me and I'll show it to you. But first we'll have to make ourselves small." So the two shadows made themselves small—as small as pins—then they glided down the garden steps. Sure enough, just as Knarf had said, there was an empty matchbox lying there.

"And there's the river!" Knarf exclaimed proudly, pointing to a stream of rain water which was pouring down from the steps and running swiftly along the edge of the garden path, down to the roadway in front of the house.

Some Boat.

They pushed the matchbox into the "river." They sprang into it. There was lots of room.

Away they went, bobbing and tossing and turning. They met all kinds of tremendous things as they sailed along: A giant blade of grass, a twig that looked as mighty as the great trunk of a tree, a leaf as big as a raft, a piece of bark that might have been the roof of a house.

Just as they reached the roadway a pebble rolled into the rain-river. It made such a big splash of a wave that the matchbox-boat was turned over and the two sailors plunged head-over-heels into the water.

But they didn't mind at all. It was a wonderful boat ride!

We Noticed

. . . The town's outdoor rinks resound with the joyous shouts of happy skaters these crispy, sparkling nights of winter, and from the Brock Street Rink as one passes (when there isn't a hockey game for excitement), comes lilting tunes and waltzes that makes one feel like doing a Sonja Heinie "whirligig" right on the sidewalk!

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . These same rinks present quite a pageantry of color, too, as darting skaters move about in costumes reflecting almost every color of the rainbow. Nothing seems to be too gay for headgear, and angora is a favorite for scarfs, gloves, mitts and parkas that contrast vividly with the color of the costume.

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . Boots and shoes and socks and stocking and gloves and scarves of intricate and even impudent colorings; trousers, trousers everywhere, severely tailored ,and valete dto the nth degree, to judge by their creases; velvet skating costumes with gaily-lined skirts for the more expert devotees of the shining blades; Tyrolean color embroidered into snowy white sweaters—well, its enough to make one want to cultivate the art of skating just to be in on the fashion parade, isn't it?

FOR THE BEACH

By ALICE ALDÉN

A change comes over the southern resort beach and play scene as soft clothes take the place of severely tailored garments. This photo shows the new length and cut of skirt for active sports, the type of model that the Cotton Shop sells by the half dozen to smart gals winging south. The model also comes in fan-pleated bifurcated skirt, a separate piece to be worn with classic mannish shirt. This is a fencing blouse cut on one piece on the bias. Belts designed for wear with separate skirts are gallus webbing, with pigskin inserts for buckle or clasp.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question—Here I am back once more for help, and it is about my shortbread. I make it perfect, but please tell me why it browns on the bottom first and the top never seems to color evenly, unless I turn the cakes over. I bake the cakes in the oven at 325 deg. Fahr. I do hope you can solve this problem.

Well, Mrs. Moore, here's wishing you a Happy and Prosperous New Year, and good health, good luck, and as we say in Scotland "lang may yer lum reek!", and if you don't understand it means the best. —(Mrs.) H.

Answer.—It was pleasant to hear from you again.

Three hundred and twenty-five deg. Fahr. is too hot an oven for shortbread. Have the temperature at 275 deg. Fahr. and place the pan of shortbread on the shelf, which should be about one-third from the ceiling of the oven-top, oven turned off of course. This places the shortbread two-thirds of the depth of the oven from the lower oven which should be turned as low as possible to maintain the 275 deg. Fahr. of temperature—and the heat which is more intense at the top of the oven than in the middle will tint the shortbread golden. I know this will work because I do it myself. Hoping you have success with your next batch—and that you will remember that it does not matter how long the shortbread is in the oven when the oven is low—it can be moved about without any harm. Write again whenever we can help and thanks for your good wishes.

Question.— I have been reading your column for some time now and as you have helped so many others I am writing to you for advice about my Christmas cake recipe. What should I put in it to make it darker? Also what to put in it to be able to keep it a year? How can you tell if it is not good, does it form a mildew? Does wine make a fruit cake gray colored? I think my recipe could be sweeter. I have put baking soda in it—is that better than baking powder? Why do you use baking soda? What would give my cake a real nice flavor? I do not like almond flavoring but we all like vanilla; should I put more vanilla in or increase my spices? As soon as I receive your reply I am going to make another batch of cakes—I have bought nearly everything to go in them. Whatever you suggest will be greatly appreciated—maybe you have a recipe with the same ingredients as mine. If wine or brandy would be better than the orange and grapefruit juice I put in will you please let me know? I do not like putting jam in my cakes. I still have half of a seven pound cake I cut for New Year's so if you could tell me better by having a sample, will try and get a piece delivered to you.

Please excuse my writing—am not one for writing letters. I have a boy 4 years and a baby 2 months and have to keep stopping to attend to one or the other.

The cake I made tastes good and mother liked it so much, she made the same recipe, but I think it could be improved, so will wait for your advice. Thanking you.—Mrs. J. T.

Answer.—Thank you for your letter.

The recipe you sent me seems to be well proportioned. Personally I like the flavor of lemon in a fruit cake containing pineapple too. Let me suggest—since you are interested in changing the flavor substitute ½ me suggest—since you are interstested in changing the flavor substitute ½ cup of lemon juice and ½ cup of brandy (to make it keep well too) for the 1 cup of orange or grapefruit juice. Since you want it sweeter and darker, increase the amount of molasses from ½ cup to ¾ cup and do not change the brown sugar quantity. You might try increasing the vanilla to 3 teaspoons—in such a big cake this would not be noticed enough to spoil the flavor. I do not recommend increasing the amounts of spices to darken the cake or change the flavor because the recipe all ready calls for a large quantity of spices—and if any more were added they might be too pronounced. I have never had any experience with wine making a cake gray so cannot answer you about this—but it sounds highly unlikely to me.

Soda is used in fruit cakes because it counteracts the effect of the molasses which is acid. If you fellow this recipe closely your cake will keep if wrapped in wax paper, towels, and brown paper and kept in cold place. Write again when I can help you.

With The Girl Guides

First Company held its usual meeting on Monday. Plans were made for a skating party on Saturday; meet at Jackson's Park seven p.m.; eat at Captain's house afterwards.

While we have no official information, it is possible we shall be going to Toronto for Their Majesties' visit. A fund has been started to cover expenses.

St. Peter's Guides are having a skating party on Friday at Sacred Heart rink. We wish to form Mothers' Auxiliaries, one for each company, and would like a meeting of mothers interested to elect officers. Will Catholic mothers meet at our rooms in Lyceum about eight o'clock on Thursday, and Protestant mothers on Monday, same time and place? Mothers, your co-operation and interest is very necessary to our success, so please attend these meetings.

Brownies, 1st Pack, had a surprise visit from 3rd Pack on Saturday to their enrollment ceremony, a few mothers were present, tea was served. The following recruits were enrolled: Marylyn Hamilton, Edith Miller, Jean Knott, Maureen Gravelle. Brownies will have a skating party Saturday afternoon; those not skating will play games at headquarters, and the skaters will return there for lunch. Please bring five cents.—"The Scribe."

Fine Program Heard By St. David's Club

An unusual and entertaining program was presented at the meeting of the St. David's Society Monday evening in the Business Women's Club rooms, when a good attendance of members and friends enjoyed a concert given mainly by talent outside the membership of the Society. Every number was exceptionally well presented, and enthusiastic applause compelled each performer to appear a second time. The children's items, especially, captured the hearts of the audience, and were the highlights of the evening.

Numbers given were: Piano solo, Mrs. E. Pearse; dance, "Highland Fling," Jean Millard; vocal duets, Mrs. W. Hepburn and Mrs. G. Telford; Y.W.C.A. Junior Ballet girls, Ann Boyle, Betty Boyle, Beverley Hughes and Iris Forbes in a Polka dance, Shirley Garner and Kenneth dance, Shorley Garner and Kenneth Simmons; ventriloquists, Mrs. F. Curtis and Miss Jessie Bell; vocal solos, Mrs. W. Prindible; Y.W.C.A. senior girls, Pansy Forbes, Eileen Biddle, Marion Dundas, Ruth Dalliday, Olive Young and Isobel Young, Medau Ball work; vocal solo, Mrs. W. Hepburn; tap dance, Shirley Garner and Kenneth Simmons; cowboy songs, Cecil Hope, Art Sayers, Charlie Hamilton, with guitar accompaniment by Ralph Mason and Art Northcott; Euphonium solo, Mr. A. Hempstead; comic duet, Miss Queenie Hope and Miss Clemena Long. Accompanists for the evening were Miss M. Hickson, Miss M. Flowers, Mrs. Telford and Mrs. Foster.

Following the program a brief business meeting was held. A letter was read from St. George's church choir inviting the Welsh Society to be their guests at a social evening in St. George's Parish Hall on February 1, the Welsh Society to present the musical program. A letter was also read from Rev. J. L. Hughes of Brighton, asking the Welsh Society to present a program for a Welsh night at Brighton on March 6, and it was decided to accept the invitation. A letter of greetings was received from Mrs. G. Blowers, who is ill in hospital.

The thanks of the Society was expressed by Mrs. V. Mills, president, to those taking part. Refreshments were served by Mrs. V. Mills and her committee. The success of the evening was largely due to the work of the Music committee, consisting of Mrs. C. Armstrong and Mrs. W. J. Davies.

The next meeting of the society will be held on February 6, in the form of a card party.

Do You Know?

Table salt dredged over the spot where fruit juice is spilled on the cloth until after the meal, and boiling water poured through the stain while cloth is stretched over a deep bowl will remove it? Fruit stains are serious only when allowed to dry and become set in the fabric.

If your child has the croup, put a little coal oil in the hollow of her neck, being careful to put a small amount and not to rub. This will check the choking.

Dry skim milk is one of the newer conveniences for the home? To make a milk shake with dry milk, place one cup of water in a bowl, add one teaspoon sugar, a few grains of salt, and one-fourth teaspoon of flavoring. Sprinkle one-fourth cup of dry milk over the surface and beat until smooth. Or, the ingredients may be placed in a glass jar or bottle and shaken.

Harness Racing Is Headed For Bigger Year

By E. Roland Horriman
(President Grand Circuit.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 — (AP). — Light harness horse racing, which enjoyed one of its best seasons in 1938, definitely is headed for bigger and better things in 1939 if for no other reason than it is to be sponsored by one organization for the first time in history.

The formation of the United States Trotting Association during the closing days of 1938 and the early part of this year was the most outstanding forward step ever taken by the light harness sport. It means much more than just the merging of the National, United and American Trotting Register Associations.

Whereas in the past the parent bodies were composed of various track associations alone, the new organization is one that also includes owners, breeders and trainers. All working for the improvement of the sport.

True, the American Trotting Association has not approved the new setup but so many of its individual units have gone on record as favoring the U.S.T.A. that I look for it to come in officially within a short time.

Bidding was lively in the 1938 yearling marts, indicating an increased interest in obtaining a good trotter or pacer.

Greyhound and Billy Direct, two of the horses responsible for the eight new world records last year, will be back seeking still faster marks. It wouldnt be surprising if Billy Direct went below the 1:55 pacing mark he established in 1938 and if Greyhonud beat his own world trotting record of 1:55¼.

The Hambletonian has drawn a field of 45 of the ranking three-year olds with Nibble Hanover the winter book choice.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP) — When it comes to smooth talkers the boys who hire the Georgia football coaches must be grade A. For two years, now, they've managed to sign a coach to a one year contract....It's produce right now, or else, down there in the watermelon belt....La Henie and her skates are captivating the big town again.... Wonder what French Frisch is doing and thinking about these days? Frank ought to get together with Babe Ruth and Rogers Hornsby and hold a convention....Tommy Farr is off to Hot Springs for (we hope) a bit of serious training.

Joe Gould has just issued his third annual denial that he is managing Je DiMaggio .... Most burned up citizen around New Orleans is one Mr. Howard Polett.... Two hours after signing with the Cardinals, he got a much more attractive offer from the Yankees. In moving, M. Polett forgot to turn in his new address and the Yank contract was delayed, dash it all.... James S. Carroll's big St. Louis book names Seabiscuit a 7 to 2 favorite to win the rich Santa Anita, with Dauber second choice at 15 to 1.

Lloyd Budge (Don's big brother) is conducting a 10-week's tennis school at Miami....President Ford C. Frick returns today from his European vacation to find National League affairs (except Van Mungo) well under control .... Does this make William Tell a busher, or does it; Two Oakland (Cal.) archers killed a 400-pound wild boar at 20 yards with six steel-tipped arrows....The Pacific Coast Conference has begun to de-emphasize football by clipping the time limit of spring training to 30 field turnouts.

Pinehurst is very much in the race for next fall's Ryder Cup golf matches....Dick Tufts, president of the Carolina resort, has out-bid all other courses in the matter of purses and expenses and looks to have the inside track....That film company which has hired Max Baer to do western shorts, makes him wear a 10-gallon hat for ballyhoo purposes....That recalls how John J. McGraw used to make old Chief Meyers, a college graduate and a cultured Injun, sit in front of hotels every night and say "how" to passers by.

12-Match Tourney Treat For Fans

TORONTO, Jan. 18—(CP).—Toronto wrestling fans will be given something new in the way of mat programs tomorrow night with a 12-match elimination tournament at Maple Leaf Gardens, the winner being proclaimed contender for the "world's title."

Thirteen grapplers will compete, pairing in six first round matches. Three second round matches will follow, then the semi-final and final. Jim Austeri of Triest, Italy, has drawn a bye.

A Banker's Headache

Perhaps it's a headache for Montague Norman, as appears probable, but actually this is a history-making meeting for it brings together the famed governor of the Bank of England and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of Germany's Reichbank and one of the modern world's financial wizards. Ostensibly Mr. Norman was in Berlin for a purely social visit visit to the herr doctor. Actually it is believed, discussions continued on possibility of a much-needed loan to Germany. Mr. Norman was not saying anything about that however.

HARWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. George Ford of Camborne visited at Mr. and Mrs. E. Harris on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Marriam and Leona of Cobourg visited friends here on Sunday.

Messrs. Harold Drope, Glen Hogg, Robert Bell, and Rev. H. Mellow left on Monday for Belleville, where they will attend the Bay of Quinte Winter School.

Mrs. Olof Snelgrove and Louise and Miss Audrey Isaac of Camborne were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. A. Lawton.

A number of men from this community attended the Men's Club at Plainville on Friday when they listened to an interesting lecture by M. Ames of "Mining."

Mrs. E. Shearer was in Hastings on Friday attending the funeral of her uncle, John Beamish.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Davey of Baltimore spent Sunday with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. Young.

Mrs. John Graham is visiting with her son, Hilton Graham.

Miss Helen Hosken, principal of the Public School here, and Miss Doreen Lawless spent the week-end in Cobourg.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

We believe the boys like the 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. draws better than the one game per night system.. In both of the double-header games the 7 p.m. games were all going at 7 p.m. while last night with only one game scheduled, one ice commenced at 7.30 p.m., one at 7.45 p.m., one at 7.50 p.m. and all others after 8 p.m. Think it over, boys

Up in Bobcaygeon, to-day, our club is represented by a rink composed of E. Metcalfe, W. Oke, J. Harkness and H. Dulmage.

One ladies' rink is over at Hamilton to-day taking in a bonspiel—Mrs. O. DeGraw is skipping, supported by Miss H. Fanning, Mrs. H. Munro and Mrs. G. Wood.

It was pretty hard to pick out any rink or curler for special mention during last night's play. Most of the games were mighty well played and on three ices the last stone on the 12th end settled the issue. So we'll just give them all a "good conduct" mark and let it go at that.

Trent Institute Has Busy Session

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 18.— The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Mann, with an attendance of 21. Mrs. Mann took charge of the meeting. The motto was "Good citizens observe the law," with a corresponding roll call on traffic bylaw. The members decided to have a play and appointed a committee composed of the following: Mrs. W. Lewis, Mrs. George Brooks, Mrs. J. Brown and Miss Doris Scott, to arrange for it.

The first aid kit for Trent River school was to be re-filled. The secretary, Miss Doris Scott, was appointed to make the tickets for the draw on the comforter. A letter from St. John's Ambulance Association, Toronto, was read regarding the course in first aid. No action was taken.

The spot and stain remover pamphlet was distributed, also the "Home and Country" paper.

Reports Given.

Mrs. Walter Lewis, delegate to the Central Ontario Area Women's Institute convention held at Toronto, gave a full and interesting report. Mrs. Harry Mann gave Mrs. Clarence Haye's (of Georgetown) report on legislation as given at the convention.

The members held the third series of progressive euchre parties at "Glendower" Maple Inn Wednesday night. Lunch was served. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Brooks.

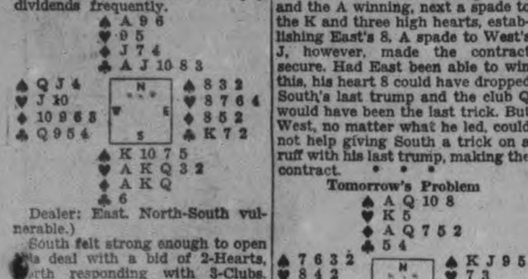
LADY LUCK AT BAT

THERE MUST BE some kind of divinity that watches over careless players once in a while. He—or perhaps it is a she, Lady Luck—will dramatically pull the contract safely into port in spite of all the risks entailed by bizarre play. The only trouble about depending upon such help is that it can be trusted only seldom, whereas a bit of careful thought in advance will pay dividends frequently.



Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

South felt strong enough to open the deal with a bid of 2-Hearts, North responding with 3-Clubs. Next came 3-Spades from South, 4-Clubs from North, 4-Hearts from South and 5-Hearts from North, a slam invitation which South refused because he felt he had already gone pretty strong by opening with a game-guarantee two bid on a hand with no surplus values. If the slam was there, he reasoned, North would have to bid it, not invite it.

After the diamond 10 was led, South's soundest play was probably to try three rounds of spades, so as to be in shape to ruff the fourth if the suit didn't break, and then to go for trumps. This would make it pretty sure that at the worst only one trick could be lost in each major.

But no. South won the diamond lead, led to the club A, returned a small club, East playing his K and getting it ruffed, and then South took two more high diamonds, risking a ruff unnecessarily. A spade was led, West false-carding the Q and the A winning, next a spade to the K and three high hearts, establishing East's 8. A spade to West's J, however, made the contract secure. Had East been able to win this, his heart 8 could have dropped South's last trump and the club Q would have been the last trick. But West, no matter what he led, could not help giving South a trick on a ruff with his last trump, making the contract.

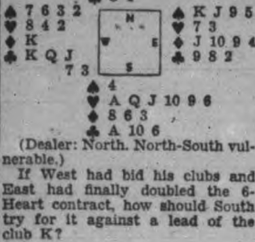
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

If West had bid his clubs and East had finally doubled the 6-Heart contract, how should South try for it against a lead of the club K?

Irish Get Blame For Series Of Bombings

LONDON, Jan. 18 — (AP). — Police throughout the United Kingdom were ordered to question members of Irish Republican groups to-day in an effort to fix responsibility for the worst series of bombings since the Fenian agitations more than a half century ago.

Heavy guards were posted at all power plants, gas works and reservoirs in England and Scotland to prevent a repetition of explosions in London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham and other cities yesterday.

Scotland Yard worked on the theory that the ten explosions were caused by members of the outlawed Irish Republican army whose aim is a united Ireland entirely free from British influence. The organization had been inactive for a year until an appeal for its recrganization was made during the week-end.

Many Citizens Frightened.

One workman was killed and two injured at Manchester, while fighting flames caused by one of the explosions, but most of the blasts did comparatively little damage. Many people, however, were so alarmed by the explosions they rushed from homes. Some put on gas masks distributed during the September crisis.

The name of Maude Gonne McBride, 70, was introduced into the mystery to-day. Once known as one of Europe's most beautiful women, she was deported from Northern Ireland in 1933 on grounds of Republican activities.

Police said charred bits of newspaper at the scene of one of the explosions mentioned the name "Madame McBride" four times.

The bombings recalled the series between 1883 and 1885 culminating in a dynamite explosion at the House of Commons. Life sentences then were given two members of the Irish Republican Brotherhood.

Police squads visited Irish sections of London and the big provincial cities looking for known agitators and the home-factory where they believed the bombs were made.

Mask Causes Stir

This mask, plus a large butcher knife which he carried in a suitcase produced such a stir in the Hall of Justice in Los Angeles, Calif., that the wearer, Larry Donovan, was taken into custody for questioning by police. His story of a long hitch-hike with a woman companion who became hysterical in a service station was so weird that police are seeking further details of his past. They want to know where Donovan was when Cleveland's torso murderer was staging his reign of terror.

Kotton Kids Klub Lay Social Plans

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Jan. 18. — On Saturday afternoon the Kotton Kids Klub met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Donald Tinney, to further study cotton accessories for the bedroom.

Eight members answered the roll call with the colour scheme of their bedroom.

A motion was made to have a club song composed by the members.

The president, Mrs. K. Braithwaite, offered the use of her home for the next meeting. The offer was accepted gratefully.

It was decided to hold a social afternoon on Thursday, Jan. 26, at the home of Mrs. Donald Tinney, to help raise some money to send delegates to the Guelph girls' conference held every spring.

Mrs. Oakley Carley read an article on cotton counterpanes, the material, size and pattern, as well as the relation of the counterplane to other accessories in the bedroom.

The girls were asked to bring to the next meeting the material required for the making of adresser scarf and chair pad. The kind and amount of material needed was discussed with the leaders helping the girls decide on their individual requirements.

Only Veterans To Sell Radio Licenses

OTTAWA, Jan. 18—(CP).—Employment of war veterans, where available, as canvassers for radio licenses will be made mandatory as from April 1. This was made public here to-day in a communication from the transport department.

One of the recommendations of the Rattray Commission, which probed the unemployment problems of war veterans, was that this collection work be reserved for ex-service men. Under present arrangements radio licenses are issued by radio dealers, post offices, banks and by 190 supervisors of a large number of house-to-house canvassers.

Under the new arrangement the licenses will continue to be issued by the agencies noted, but it will be compulsory that war veterans be named supervisors and canvassers wherever they are available.

Free Treatments For Veterans

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 — (CP). — Free medical treatment in departmental and certain hospitals for indigent war veterans who served meritoriously in a theatre of actual war and whose ailments are not attributable to their war service was announced by Pensions Minister Power today. This hospitalization had been previously limited to men in receipt of pension.

A statement accompanying the announcement sets forth that this broadening of the government's policy in the matter "implements an intention indicated by Major Power at different times in public addresses and elsewhere." It follows a departmental survey to determine the extent to which the hospital and treatment facilities of the department might be used for this purpose without displacing pensioners "for whom adequate accommodation must be provided."

The need and equitableness for the provision of such hospital treatment for this class of front-line veteran, said the Minister, had been impressed on him by the many cases brought to his attention by departmental officers. Hitherto they had been unable to entertain applications for hospital treatment for such cases even although it was urgently required, would have had curative results but could not otherwise have been obtained or paid for by the veteran.

Four Ships In Trouble On Atlantic Coast

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP).— A storm which swept the Atlantic off the Virginia Capes yesterday brought calls for assistance from two steamships and stranded two trawlers.

Both of the larger vessels, the British steamship Swinburne and the Greek steamship Diamantis, countermanded distress signals after coast guardsmen had been dispatched from Norfolk, Va., and New York.

The Swinburne's first message said a high sea had smashed one of her hatches about 360 miles due east of Morehead City, N.C., the ship bound from Norfolk to South America, later radioed that she was proceeding toward Bermuda.

The Diamantis reported she was sinking in the early afternoon. Later, from 175 miles off Cape Henry, came the message, "Sorry. Damage repaired. Believe we now OK." She was on her way to New York at last reports.

The trawlers Coosaw and Marguerite, stranded on Ocracoke Inlet, N.C., were believed in no danger.

France Fearing Insurgent Victory Considers Opening Pyrenees

PARIS, Jan. 18 (AP)—The French government, fearing an insurgent victory in Spain, was said today to have taken up anew the question of opening its Pyrenees frontier to aid the hard-pressed Spanish government.

Sources close to the foreign office said the government was considering rushing arms and munitions to the defence of Barcelona to meet Italian men and material aiding the insurgent offensive.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, returned from a meeting of the league of Nations council at Geneva to encounter increasing demands for such action.

Deputy Alfred Margaine, member of Premier Daladier's own radical-socialist party, told the chamber: "We have been duped in the policy of non-intervention in Spain. We acted as through fear of war, which should be enough to condemn such a policy."

Pressure Begins

Other deputies joined in the attack of non-intervention.

The socialist group, biggest in the chamber, decided to carry directly to Daladier and Bonnet its demands for an end to the practice of withholding supplies to government Spain while Italy openly supports the insurgents.

So far, it was said, France has not asked Great Britain specifically to cooperate in allowing the Spanish government to buy arms. In the Geneva conversations, it was believed, Bonnet sought only Lord Halifax's views on the possible opening of the frontier.

Lord Halifax, now enroute to London, was said to plan to state the French views to the British cabinet tomorrow. The British foreign secretary stopped at Geneva and Paris on his way here from Rome, where he and Mr. Chamberlain confered with Premier Mussolini last week.

Charles Allshouse, county game warden, was in charge of the hunters who had with them several hunting dogs.

Relief Belts To Pinch Cross Hints

Ontario Now Million Over Estimates; Only Hope Ottawa

TORONTO, Jan. 19 — (CP). — Hon. Eric Cross, Ontario Welfare Minister, said to-day every phase of relief administration is under close scrutiny for economy's sake. He was commenting on expressed fears by Dr. A. D. Kelly, secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, that the relief medical budget might be cut.

"Relief in Ontario for the coming year is estimated at $22,000,000 and the province is over its estimates by about $1,000,000," said Mr. Cross. "Not only must applications be carefully examined but families on relief must be constantly inspected.

"I agree with Dr. Kelly that both relief recipients and the doctors are satisfied with existing arrangements, but we must reduce our costs."

Mr. Cross said Ottawa had been asked to increase the Federal relief subsidy. The present division of relief costs was 45 per cent. to Ontario, 25 per cent. to Ottawa, and 30 per cent. to the municipalities. If Ottawa would increase its grant to 40 per cent., Ontario would pay 40 per cent. and leave only 20 per cnt. for the municipalities.

High Taxes Hinder Work.

The minister said the province was anxious to relieve the municipalities in order that they might reduce taxation.

The very places where work ought to be started to aid the inhabitants are those precluded from undertaking it on account of high taxation."

The proposal to add old-age pensioners and mothers' allowance recipients to the relief rolls for medical purposes was impossible, he said.

Acting Premier Harry Nixon today commented on the stand of the Ontario Mayors' Association against the municipalities having to pay more than 30 per cent. of unemployment relief costs.

"The Federal Government said it (unemployment relief) was a national issue when they were appealing to the public, and I have every reason to believe that they should more adequately contribute," Mr. Nixon said.

Britishers Told To Stock Food

LONDON, Jan. 19—(CP-Havas).—Air Auckland Geddes, technical adviser to Sir John Anderson, Lord Privy Seal who acts as minister for civilian defence, today stood by his advice to British housewives to stock up on essential supplies for emergencies. This advice was attacked in the press and deprecated by the board of trade.

Sir Auckland, a former principal of McGill University, Montreal, said he had no intention of resigning because of his disagreement with the board of trade's food department. Sir John Anderson called on Prime Minister Chamberlain at 10 Downing Street today.

"I have no ground for supposing that war will come next week or next year, but I drew the attention of women to the need for stored supplies in case there were a sudden emergency," Sir Auckland said. "The point is that if such purchases were made gradually over a period they would not upset world markets.

"I do not mean that people should at once rush to fill their bottles with water. People are so used to getting water out of their household taps that they don't always contemplate a situation where his supply might be affected and that was why I gave my advice. I was not wishing to be an alarmist. I disagree, however, with the food department of the board of trade. They are talking nonsense."

Salve Or Cream

TILBURY, Ont., Jan. 19.—(CP). —A story about the Epiphany being told to a class of small girls in a local Sunday school was interrupted when a girl of five wanted to know if among the wise men's gifts there was finger nail polish. This was after the teacher said myrrh meant salve or cream.

Mr. Hull Explains

Back from Lima, Peru, where he dominated the pan-American conference, Cordell Hull, secretary of state for the United States, ran into a tangle over a New Cuban-U.S. trade pact which he had under way. The Senate finance committee wanted to know if the pact violated provisions of the Reciprocal Trade Act. Mr. Hull said it didn't. Here he is giving his reasons to the committee.

Propeller Lost Ship Drifts Off Sable Isle

BOSTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — The propellerless freighter Black Condor wallowed in a North Atlantic storm today as rescue vessels pounded to her side 75 miles southeast of Sable Island, N.S.

Meanwhile, in Nantucket Sound, coast guards virtually gave up hope of saving the grounded Nova Scotian four - master Laura Annie Barnes. Her crew of seven were taken aboard the cutter Tahoe last night when she began filling with water.

With two salvage tugs and the coast guard cutter Cayuga converging on the Black Condor, mariners here believed there was no cause to fear for her 45-man crew under Captain Philip Prendergast of Hartford, Conn.

The Canadian salvage vessel Foundation Franklin, out of Halifax, radioed it expected to reach her side by afternoon.

The 5,380-ton Black Diamond Lines freighter, bound from Rotterdam and Antwerp to New York, had a broken tail shaft.

In Nantucket Sound, where the coast guard vessels Tahoe, Thetis and General Greene weer standing by the Laura Annie Barnes, the coast guard officers postponed further attempts to pull the schooner off Tuckernauck shoal until they could determine how badly she was damaged.

5 Excommunicated For Suing Parish

MONTREAL, Jan. 19 — (CP). — Excommunication from the Roman Catholic Church of a group of persons, unnamed, who instituted, without permission from the Archbishop of Montreal, legal suit in conection with a $260,000 loan in the corporation of the parish of Saint Etienne, has been announced in a decree issued in Rome.

The decree, published in newspapers to-day, said the persons concerned "are subject to all the penalties provided in such cases by canon law," because "no permission was given by the Holy See....to call before the civil courts....His Excellency Archbishop Gauthier as Coadjutor Archbishop of Montreal with jurisdiction of ordinary Bishop of Montreal."

Details of the suit were not explained in the proclamation, but J. H. Michaud, counsel for the plaintiffs, said five or six of the 83 holders of notes for loans of $260,000 to the parish of Saint Etienne, had brought the suit.

Hits Wife By Accident As Gun Jams Each Aim So Husband Quits In Disgust

DETROIT, Jan. 19 (CP)—Detroit police said today Stephen Hunt, 36, confessed he had spent five minutes trying unsuccessfully to make a jammed pistol work so he could put his wife, whom he had just shot, "out of her misery."

Eva Hunt, his wife, is in hospital here with a serious wound in her breast. Police said Hunt described the events for them. They said Hunt told them he made his wife get out of their car and ordered her to confess to him she had been unfaithful. She denied his claim and he put the gun to her forehead and pulled the trigger.

The gun jammed, he worked with it, and shot her, accidently, in the breast. He tried to shoot her in the forehead. Again the gun jammed. He went into the car and worked the revolver and it went off. Again he put it to her forehead. Again the gun jammed.

"You win," he told his wife. "I'll get you later." He took her to hospital.

Chamberlain's Son Escapes As Plotters Shatter Irish Hotel With Bomb

Windows Broken, Citizens Flung From Beds In Latest Of Explosion Outrages; Intended Victim Goes For Morning Hunt

TRALEE, Eire, Jan. 19 (CP-Havas).—An apparent attempt to kill Francis Neville Chamberlain, 24-year-old son of the British Prime Minister, failed today when a powerful bomb exploded in the rear of Hawney's hotel in this County Kerry capital, where the younger Chamberlain is staying.

Several hundred windows in surrounding houses were broken and numerous persons were tumbled out of bed by the blast. No casualties were reported.

Young Chamberlain arrived in Dublin from Liverpool last Saturday and came here to spend a part of his vacation hunting. He was in his hotel room at the time of the explosion—the latest in the series of blasts in England and Ireland that followed publication of a "proclamation of the Republic of Ireland" by the Irish Republican army organization last Sunday.

Police investigating the explosion said a powerful bomb apparently had been placed near a big wooden door at the end of a passage in the rear of the hotel. Special police units were stationed around the hotel after the explosion and an immediate investigation was launched.

In Family Iron Works

The younger Chamberlain entered the family iron works at Birmingham recently following completion of his studies at Cambridge. He also serves as a gunner in the territorial army.

Apparently little troubled by the explosion, young Chamberlain later left the hotel with a group of friends on a hunting trip.

"It is impossible for us to say whether the I.R.A. are responsible for the affair,' said a police spokesman. Tralee, although it was a hot spot a few years ago, has been very quiet lately and we have had no trouble of any kind for a long time. There has not been any evidence of activity on the part of the I.R.A. although of course it is impossible for us to rule out the possibility that this organization is at the back of this bombing business."

Clocks Save Many.

Police continued to find unexploded crude bombs in various parts of the country. They said the organized sabotage had largely failed through use of a cheap brand of alarm clock. Nearly all the alarm clock timing devices had run down before the hour set for the explosions.

Lancashire police found one at an electricity pylon near Windle. The alarm was set for 6 o'clock, but the timepiece had stopped at 5.15.

A Birmingham newspaper editor received a postcard signed by a drawing of an Irish harp, which read: "Warning. London, Manchester, Liverpool. There will be no mistakes next time. We have not finished yet."

Small Surplus Forecast United Counties

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, Jan. 19.—After disposing of the Wardenship Tuesday night, electing Reeve T. A. Reid of Clarke township to that pre-eminent position, the counties council passed out a few of the secondary and assuaging plums yesterday.

Reeve Chas. Carruthers of Darlington, the defeated candidate, was appointed chairman of the finance committee.

Reeve J. C. Cummiskey, of Manvers, whose entry in the Wardenship handicap was "scratched" by the Conservative caucus, was given the chairmanship of the Roads and Bridges committee, which was virtually the extension of the job and role he starred in last year. During the illness of Reeve Robert Innes, of Seymour, a rather prolonged indisposition, Reeve Cummiskey was acting chairman.

Reeve Creighton Devitt of Cartwright, has not yet been called up for his compensation, but that may come to-day or Friday, for there are still some posts unmanned.

Reeve L. H. Wilson, of Cobourg, has been selected to carry the burden of the schools committee this year.

Reeve Herman Morrow of Murray township, is chairman of the agricultural committee; and Deputy-reeve H. R. S. Ryan of Port Hope, a bright young barrister, newly come to the counties council, is chairman of the legislation and by-laws committee, and Deputy-reeve W. J. Boggs, Manvers, chairman of the County Property committee.

Farmers Raise Storm Signals

LONDON, Jan. 19—(CP). — The British Government has encountered storm signals from a new quarter—an organized protest of United Kingdom farmers against its agricultural policy.

As farmers in one section organized a protest march through London, the National Union of Farmers met in the capital yesterday and heard members urge government action to alleviate conditions which assertedly are threatening the farmers' existence.

Farmers complained that prevailing produce prices, increased foreign competition and higher labor costs are making it almost impossible to make ends meet.

In support of their demands, farmers from agricultural regions of East Anglia planned to march through London, February 1. The parade will end with a demonstration before the House of Commons.

More than 6,000 farmers, their wives and farm laborers have signed up for the "square deal" trek. They will assemble at designated points in Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex, Cambridgeshire and Lincolnshire and leave for London by special trains.

Western Indians Go In For Stock

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 19. — (CP). — John E. Pugh, superintendent of the Indian reserve at Cardston, Alta., home of the Black Foot Confederacy, is a visitor here and is making an inspection of the Six Nations reserve. The reserve at Cardston is the largest in the Dominion, covering 350,000 acres or about 530 square miles of territory in the southern part of the province.

About 20,000 acres are under cultivation by the Indians and the rest of the property is grazing land for 2,800 head of mature cattle and 825 calves. The Indians raise thoroughbred Herefords and Shorthorns and are gradually swinging to Herefords entirely.

On the western reservation conditions are vastly different from those in existence on the Six Nations reserve. There are no day school out west, instead there are two residential schools where 284 Indian children above seven years of age go to school from September to June inclusive.

6-Foot Timber Wolf Is Trapped At Baptiste Lake

(Examiner Correspondence.)
Tweed, Jan. 19.

THOUGHT to have been one of a pack that has been ravaging cattle and sheep in the northern part of the county, a magnificent specimen of timber wolf was trapped in the township of Herschel by Herbert Grant of Baptiste Lake.

The wolf which measured six feet from nose to tail-tip was caught in a trap baited with a deer head. The presence of a large number of tracks in the snow surrounding the spot where the trap was set, denotes that the captured wolf was one of a pack.

Grant took the fine pelt to the county treasurer to claim the government bounty of fifteen dollars.

Store Manager Being Tried On Arson Count

Evidence at this morning's session of the trial of Robert Nathan Herman, former manager of Pattenick's store here before His Honor Judge Smoke in county court to-day on a charge of arson in connection with the fire of December 12 closely followed that given in the preliminary hearing, although one new witness, Thomas Ephgrave, was called by the Crown.

The charge against Nathan was the result of an investigation after the fire by Inspector D. H. Saville of the Ontario Fire Marshall's Department.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., is prosecuting, while Herman is being defended by E. F. Singer, K.C., of Toronto.

Roy Pitchford, photographer, the first witness, identified a photograph he had taken in the basement of Pattenick's store three days after the fire.

To Mr. Singer he said he had no other picture showing the layout of the cellar, the location of the furnace, etc. His instructions had been to take the portion of the cellar shown.

Thomas Ephgrave, building contractor, identified a plan of the Pattenick basement. He said the basement was 103 ft. 6 inches long and 29 ft. wide, and had a concrete floor. The principal burning done by the recent fire was 25 to 26 feet away from the furnace. There were signs of an old burning on the ceiling and those had been there when witness did the building over for Pattenick's several years ago.

The actual burning done by the recent fire, witness said, stopped eight feet away from the furnace.

"There is nothing in your evidence to say where the fire started?" asked Mr. Singer in cross-examination.

"No, but my own opinion is it likely started where the heaviest burning was."

Witness admitted, however, that the fire might have started elsewhere. It was possible, he said, for a spark from a wood fire in the furnace to have caused a fire some distance away.

Mr. Singer asked about the effect of oil dropping through the floor of the store on to the electric wiring and the witness said that if that happened it would damage the

360 Passengers Flung About Decks As Liner Fights 125 Mile Gale

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 — (AP). — Stories of hysteria and near panic among 360 passengers on the Italian liner Vulcania, struck by a furious storm which silenced its radio off the Azores on Tuesday, were told to-day when the ship reached port.

J. M. McClelland, publisher of the Longview, Wash., Daily News, said at least six passengers were injured and that scores were bruised as the vessel wallowed in mountainous seas.

"The waves crashed over the top of the ship, breaking windows on the top deck," he said.

"The hurricane struck at 12.30, just at the lunch hour, and all we could do was sprawl on the floor and try to hang on. The wind reached a velocity of 125 miles per hour.

"We never expected to live through it. There was general hysteria. Women fainted and screamed. Everybody was praying."

McClelland said the radio antenna was torn away soon after the blow struck.

"Ninety per cent. of the passengers were sick," he said. "Some of the stewards tried to crawl along the floor to serve hot broth and food, but it was like climbing the face of a cliff going up and down.

"The storm came up suddenly and found the ship totally unprepared. Furniture crashed and flew around hitting people. I saw a man with a broken arm and a woman with a broken shoulder. Most of us got bruises. To make it worse, doctors simply couldn't reach those who had been hurt."

Italian Line officials said the ship had met five days of bad weather, with continuous high head-winds, but declined to confirm passengers' statements as to the number injured. Line officials said the peak wind velocity was 67 m.p.h.

Japs Bemoan Guam Fort Plans

U.S. Act Unnecessary In Face Of Tokyo's Non-Attack Policy

TOKYO, Jan. 19 — (AP). — Japan is gravely concerned by United States naval expansion plans, a Naval Office spokesman said to-day, and fears establishment of airplane and submarine bases in the Pacific would be but advance preparation for "long distance attack."

"Fortification of Guam (1,500 miles from Japan) would be like placing a gun against the gate of a neighbor," said the spokesman, Rear-Admiral Shozaburo Kanazlawa.

Establishment of bases at Midway and Wake Islands, he continued, would surround "our undefended mandate islands." Fortification of Guam "in the middle of the mandates" would seem an unnecessary way to treat Japan "in view of our policy of non-attack and non-aggression."

The spokesman emphasized these mandates—the South Sea Islands held by Germany before the war—were unfortified and under present international agreements could not be fortified.

For this reason he said, "Guam would have a eral strategic value if fortified," although Japan's objection to expansion in the Pacific was "moral rather than legal" since no treaties exist to prevent it.

Step to Raid on Japan?

"From the experts' point of view, establishment of plane and submarine bases in the Pacific islands is nothing but making advances for long distance attack across the ocean," Kanazawa continued.

Of his own nation and navy he said:

"That the strength of Japan's navy is not sufficient for long distance attack across the ocean is quite clear, not only from the experts' point of view, but also from a commonsense viewpoint. Our national defence policy is to keep the navy strong enough to defend the Western Pacific. We have no ambition to attack anything outside this area and no aggressive policy. We do not understand the necessity of expanding the United States navy with such a tremendous budget as this year."

Five Escape Fire In Nick Of Time

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—(CP).— A man, his wife and their three small children narrowly escaped being trapped to-day when fire swept a two-storey frame house on Mitchell avenue.

Clement Prescott carried his two daughters, Ethel, nine, and Doreen, four to safety, while Mrs. Prescott saved her son Irvine, 11, by pushing him through an upper window after breaking the glass with her hands. Mrs. Prescott followed the boy to the sloping roof and both jumped 10 feet into the snow.

Irvine was treated at hospital for shock and cuts and was then able to leave.

Firemen said the blaze was due probably to the kitchen stove, but Mrs. Prescott recalled that she had checked it before retiring, and was sure the origin could be traced to a short circuit in the electric wiring.

"I was awakened by the smoke," Mrs. Prescott said. "I went to the stairway, but couldn't get down, so I called out, awakening my husband, who was sleeping downstairs.

Goes Back For Son.

"I went back to my bedroom at the front on the second floor. The heat was unbearable. I picked up Irving, and after breaking the window, shoved him through. Then I followed him and fell to the lawn, landing in a heap."

"I'm a sound sleeper," explained Mr. Prescott, "and didn't notice the smoke until my wife called me. I picked Ethel up and carried her to the street. I went back through the smoke and flames and manage dto egt upstairs and pick up the baby, Doreen. I held my breath as I carried her out, but the baby was almost smothered. She was coughing and choking when we reached the door.

"As I came out the second time I saw Irving huddled on the lawn," the father added. "I carried him to the house next door and then saw my wife fall. I picked her up and carried her to the neighbor's.

Dandurand Hints Britain May Not Aid Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 19—(CP).—Defence measures and co-operation with Britain in making Canada safe from foreign invasion promise to provide the Senate with interesting material for debate when it resumes its sessions Feb. 14.

Before taking its customary early-session holiday after three days of sittings, the Upper Chamber yesterday passed the address in reply to the speech from the Throne, concluding a debate that was concerned largely with defence matters.

Government leader Dandurand and Conservative leader Meighen clashed in a discussion that covered the whole field of post-war defence co-operation between Canada and Britain and brought from Mr. Dandurand the statement that Britain might not necessarily be on Canada's side in the event of this country being at war.

He said there was a possibility Canada might be required to defend her neutrality if the United States and Japan were in conflict and Britain was not involved.

"What are we hearing in this House?" asked Senator Meighen. "Did the government leader suggest that if war broke out between Japan and the United States and Canada became involved Britain would not be on her side. Such a condition was unthinkable.

"The moment we are at war, we know who our ally is," the Conservative leader said. "Not our ally, but our friend and progenitor through history, will be on our side That is why I say we should prepare our defence in co-operation so that the defence of one will be the defence of all."

Senator Dandurand argued that such co-operation might entail difficulties arising out of frequent changes of British government and policy but Senator Meighen replied Britain and France had continued their defence co-operation despite frequent changes in the French government.

Hawkesbury Swept By $100,000 Fire

HAWKESBURY, Ont., Jan. 19—(CP).—Four persons escaped uninjured and damage estimated at $100,000 was caused here today by fire which gutted a three-storey brick building, housing a general store and apartments and a warehouse. Hawkesbury is 45 miles east of Ottawa.

Omer Laurin, reeve of Hawkesbury and owner of the building, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. George Simpson, occupants of the apartments over the store, escaped after being awakened by constable Ernest Jerome, who discovered the fire.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined and fire chief Pierre Bertrand said he would ask the Ontario Fire Marshal's department to conduct an investigation.

The fire spread rapidly and firemen fought for several hours in sub-zero weather before bringing it under control.

Cadi Upholds Red Tape In $20 Fine

Wife Sick, Home Lost Victim Forgets Report For Ottawa

TORONTO, Jan. 19 — (C.P.). — Albert Debenham, 54, father of four children, smiled ruefully to-day and figured he would have to get "about 10 odd jobs" in the next two weeks or go to jail for 30 days. "Those red tape officials at Ottawa are the cause of it all," he said.

Yesterday Debenham came home from Police Court to tell his wife, sick in bed, that he would have to raise $20 or go to jail. "I told her I didn't know where the money was coming from," he said. "I said, 'I guess I'll just have to face it and go to jail if I can't raise the money.'"

Mr. Debenham, who has lived in Toronto and the suburbs for the last 30 years, is a carpenter by trade and an "odd job man" by necessity. It was because he was "just doing odd jobs" that he appeared yesterday on one of the strangest charges ever heard in a Toronto court.

Specifically, Mr. Debenham was charged with failing to fill out a statistical form and return it to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. He pleaded guilty, blaming his "odd jobs" as the reason he failed to comply with the Ottawa request.

Never in Court Before.

"Those red tape officials have a lot to do to take people to court over such a thing," he said. "Why, I am an honest citizen and have never been in court before in my life."

Although the magistrate fined him $20 with the alternative of 30 days in jail, the worried father still has two weeks to pay the fine—"I told the Judge I would try to pay it in two weeks. Honestly, I don't know how I'm going to get the money."

The form in question reached Debenham during a serious crisis—just before his house was seized by the mortgage company. In the rush of moving out, placing his wife and children, and getting the odd carpentering job which has kept his family from complete destitution, Debenham lost the form and forgot about it.

Ottawa didn't, however, and 10 days ago the carpenter received a court summons.

25,000 Smuggled To U.S., 2 Years

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP).—United States federal authorities today pushed forward investigation of an international gang reputed to have smuggled about 25,000 aliens from Canada to the United States within the past two years.

Held here incommunicado since his arrest at Rouses Point last Friday was Spyros Cyrcos, 38, of Montreal but investigators believed the real headquarters of the gang was in New York. Cyrcos was charged with smuggling, harboring, transporting aliens and conspiracy. Ed and Hugh Cushman, brothers, were arraigned in Malone, N.Y., on similar charges.

Although the syndicate originally concentrated on importing Greeks and Chinese, its activities in recent months had turned more toward Jewish refugees from Europe, according to James Scileppi, assistant United States attorney.

Trainloads of refugees crossing Canada en route to Australia were scouted by agents for the syndicate. Those who paid were smuggled across the border and driven by automobile to New York city Scileppi said.

The investigation which resulted in the arrests has been carried on by Scileppi since early last November, when a policeman picked up a bewildered Greek immigrant in New York.

When he was unable to produce credentials, the immigration authorities were notified.

An interpreter learned that the prisoner had arrived from Greece the day before by way of Canada. He said the arrangements for his transportation to New York had been made by relatives in Greece who corresponded with a gang in New York.

Inglis Stock Probed Before Drew Urged It Says Nixon—Thinks Bren Case Hurt Country

TORONTO, Jan. 19 (CP)—Ontario Securities Commission approved the sale of stock in the John Inglis Company "long before" Col. George Drew, now Ontario Conservative leader, made his charges in connection with a Bren machine gun contract given the company by the federal government, it was announced today.

Acting Premier Harry C. Nixon today referred to Col. Drew's demands for an investigation by the securities commission into evidence before Mr. Justice H. H. Davis, of the supreme court of Canada, who as a royal commissioner investigated and reported on the contract.

"Long before Col. Drew thought of suggesting it, the commission investigated the sale of stock," said Mr. Nixon.

"I differ entirely with Col. Drew on the Bren gun issue. I think he has done infinite harm to the country as a whole. I would like to point out that Mr. Whitehead, the securities commissioner, looked into the stock of the company long before Col. Drew even mentioned it."

Loyalist Lines Stiffen; Aid On Way

Madrid Sends 60,000 By Sea Route, Rebels Lie In Wait

HENDAYE, France, Jan. 19 (AP) —Catalonian militiamen fought off Insurgent thrusts in the mountains west of Barcelona to-day while the government sought to run a naval blockade to rush reinforcements from the idle Madrid front.

Twelve thousand Madrid troops, the first contingent of 60,000 the geographically divided government hoped to shift to the hard-pressed Catalonian fronts, were reported already at sea.

They were said by advices reaching the French border to have embarked last night at Valencia whence the other 48,000 were expected to leave shortly.

An undetermined number of Insurgent warships, three of which yesterday shelled government lines northeast of Tarragona, were ordered to intercept the transfer.

Insurgent and government manpower in the battle for Catalonia has been about evenly matched, with about 300,000 on each side. The Insurgents, however, hold a decided advantage in planes, artillery and other equipment.

Late government bulletins said strong resistance was developing in the rugged hills in front of Igualada, which was believed to be a key point in the government's "mystery" fortifications blocking General Franco's path to Barcelona.

Ragged columns of retiring militiamen were said by these dispatches to have turned suddenly and taken a stand before Igualada, about 28 miles by air west of the government capital on the Lerida-Barcelona highway.

insulation. He had not seen any openings in the floor, but said that there was a bulge in the middle of the floor and it was possible that oil could get through there.

To Mr. McElderry, in re-examination, witness said that he had not seen any aperture in the floor, which he described as a very heavy one.

Fire Chief's Evidence.

Fire Chief George Gimblett described the scene at Pattenick's store when he arrive don the evening of Dec. 12, and the steps taken to fight the fire, which was in the basement of the building.

"The smoke was very dense. I had several firemen overcome," Chief Gimblett stated.

He told of having to cut holes in the floor in order to insert the nozzles to fight the fire in the cellar.

The hottest spot was found 40 feet east of the front of the store and when a hole was cut there flames shot up. The main fire was killed off by lowering a rotary nozzle through the opening. Later a second hole was cut in the floor nearer the front of the store.

Chief Gimblett said that in his opinion the fire originated on the north side of the basement and half way between the front of the building and the furnace, approximately where the first hole had been cut in the floor.

"Have you formed any opinion as to the speed at which the fire progressed?"

"I believe that some accelerant must have been added because of the rapid rate at which the fire progressed," replied Chief Gimblett.

"What would have happened if the alarm had not been given until a half hour later?" asked Mr. McElderry.

"There is no doubt what would have happened," replied the witness. Three or four stores might have been burned."

Chief Gimblett said that he did not examine the furnace after the fire because he did not think it was necessary as there was no fire near the furnace.

The witness said that the wiring of the building had been inspected regularly and the cards filed at the fire department would show the results. These were produced and showed the wiring as all right.

"Could you give His Honor an opinion as to how the fire started?"

"No, I don't want to say that, because I don't know," replied Chief Gimblett.

Wanted His Money.

Witness said he saw Herman 15 minutes after he himself had reached the scene of the fire and accused wanted to get down into the cellar because he said some money was there. Later Chief Gimblett said he had sent Herman down into the basement with Fireman Geo. Gimblett, Jr. and afterward Herman said the money had been burned up. He mentioned $306 as the amount and said it was Saturday's receipts.

The night after the fire Chief Gimblett said that he, Herman and Fireman Carr visited the basement and Herman pointed out the spot where he said he had hidden the money. At the point, witness said, the ends of the boxes were burned off. A search was made and no money was found, nor were there any signs of debris and burned money. Herman had said the money was in a roll of bills contained in a bag. The spot he pointed out was 4½ feet from the floor.

Mr. Singer in his cross-examination asked Chief Gimblett if he had ever seen a fire start.

"No and I don't suppose anybody else ever did except the man that started one," replied Chief Gimblett.

Mr. Singer objected to the reply.

"We have no jury here," Judge Smoke smilingly reminded him.

Defense counsel examined witness at length as to his opinion as to where the fire started and Chief Gimblett refused to admit the possibility that the blaze started elsewhere.

Mr. Singer asked about gas spreading fires and witness replied that there could have been no gas there because there was no fire in the furnace.

"You don't know that," said the fense counsel.

"Only by what I was told," replied Chief Gimblett.

Chief Gimblett was examined at length on his statement that from the conditions as found there after the fire he believed that an ordinary fire would have had to burn over half an hour to produce such results. Mr. Singer pointed out to the witness that the brigade had arrived at the fire at 6.21½ o'clock and that the store had been closed at four minutes to 6 o'clock. "That gets pretty close to your half hour," he said to the witness.

Chief Gimblett said in answer to a question that he found no evidence of accelerants in the cellar.

"What evidence of accelerants would you expect to find?" asked Mr. McElderry in re-examination.

"Sometimes there is a smell of oil," replied the witness. "You couldn't smel lanything on this occasion."

"No, because of the density of the smoke," was the reply.

Court adjourned for luncheon as the Chief completed his evidence.

Spiritual Revival Needed Says Drew

TIMMINS, Ont., Jan. 19—(CP)—The great need in Canada to-day is for a spiritual revival, a revival "of the old ideas that meant so much to our ancestors in the development of this country with respect to the home, the church and the school," according to Col. George A. Drew.

"I would also like to see a revival of the doctrines of success," the newly-elected leader of the Ontario Conservative party told the Timmins National Conservative Association at a banquet here last night. "Paid agitators preach that only those who have failed are honest. We are opposed to any of these foreign doctrines."

The address was the third major speech Col. Drew has made on his present tour of Northern Ontario, on which he is being accompanied by Mrs. Drew. He speaks in Sudbury to-night. During the trip he is studying conditions and visiting mines in the rich mining district.

The young people of the Porcupine mining area made up a "veritable league of nations." Col. Drew told the banquet gathing of more than 200 business and professional men of the Timmins district. "It is a great inspiration to me to find children of all nations of the world gathered together in obvious harmony, full of confidence in their own future," he said.

Urges Canadian Munitions Made At Cost

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (CP).—Canada's government should assume full responsibility for production of any munitions necessary for her defence or for war so they may be obtained at cost, O. B. Elliott (SC., Kindersley) believes. He adds that steps should be taken at once to prevent commodity price rises in the event of war.

Mr. Elliott was one of four speakers who participated yesterday in the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne in the House of Commons.

M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar) made a plea for admission to Canada of a quota of the refugees from Central Europe. Such action, he said, would only conform "to the policy of what we sometimes call 'traditional Liberalism'."

R. J. Reachman (Lib., Huron North) praised the government for its trade expansion efforts and the proposal to abolish the excise tax which he said would be the greatest single blow at existing economic problems.

The Water Diversion.

John R. MacNicol (Con., Toronto-Davenport) upbraided the government for not having prevented Ontario's expenditure of some $2,000,000 in preparation for water diversion from the Albany River basin to Lake Superior, a project which was abandoned when United States approval was not forthcoming. That situation caused the rift between the Ontario and Federal governments, Mr. MacNicol said.

Mr. Coldwell offered New Zealand as an example of what could be done by a government to better conditions among the people. On the basis of progress in that country Canada should this year build 20,000 new homes for the people and enact legislation to maintain reasonable rents.

Pensions to the blind and widows had been provided in New Zealand and the old age pension increased since 1935 to $30 a month with an age limit of 60 as compared with $20 and an age limit of 70 in Canada. Wages had increased 40 per cent, hours were shortened and business was continually increasing. Farm prices were guaranteed.

In Canada, Mr. Coldwell said, "all across the country we find unemployment, misery and want." What compensation was to be given, he asked, for the loss to the western farmer of his British preference of six cents a bushel on wheat. The fixed minimum price of 80 cents did not meet the average cost of production.

While the C.C.F. did not subscribe to unlimited immigration, Mr. Coldwell urged the admission of a quota

High Taxes And Cost Of Property Banned Toronto Man From Building Apartment Here

A contemplated apartment building, cost of which would have run in the neighborhood of $80,000, fell through recently because a Toronto contractor found the expense of buying necessary land and the high taxes which would be imposed on the building when it had been completed, were so high as to doom the enterprise to failure.

That statement was made by H. B. Cowan, Senior, addressing the Peterborough Businessmen's Association on Tuesday night on "Peterborough's System of Municipal Taxation."

In regard to the apartment building that had been contemplated, he said he had been told of it by a disappointed merchant who had been approached in regar dto purchase of goods of a particular line for the entire building.

"Think for a moment what that building would have meant to the city," Mr. Cowan said. "It would have taken men off our relief rolls to dig the excavation, mix the cement and lay the foundation, to supply the carpentering, plumbing, heating, and the hundred and one other services and articles that would have been required in connection with the erection and use of such a building. Before such a building could have been completed almost every industry in Peterborough would have benefitted. How many other potential business enterprises in Peterborough, do you suppose, have been snuffed out in a similar way and for the same reasons?"

Fines for Improvements.

He said many people believe they are being fined for improving their homes and places of business in this city. One case he related was of a householder who said to him: "Within the past few years I built a cement walk leading into my home, put in a new furnace and laid hardwood floors. The result was that my assessment and taxes were increased. I thought I was doing a good thing, not only for myself, but for the community, when I bought the goods and employed the labor that was necessary before I could do these things. The city must have thought differently, because they have been fining me ever since through the increased taxes I have had to pay."

"Our merchants and manufacturers are affected in the same way. Yesterday, the manager of one of our medium-sized manufacturing plants related to me the experience of his firm. A few years ago they tore down some old buildings and replaced them with new and larger ones. They also installed more modern equipment. Since then their assessment on their buildings has been increased by over $7,000 and their business assessment by over $18,000. The total increase in their assessment was well in excess of $25,000. Their annual taxes have been increased in proportion. The question naturally arises, 'Does it pay property holders to improve their buildings or enlarge their plants under these conditions?' Many of them will tell you emphatically that it does not. Need we wonder, then, that the chief business sections of Peterborough are disfigured by so many old, out-of-date and dilapidated buildings?

"Retail merchants, more than any other class in the community, are the victims of many form of taxation. This is because all lines of business handling the goods merchants sell, including the importers, manuafacturers, wholesalers and dealers, seek to pass on to the retailer all the taxes these firms are forced to pay. The retailer, in turn, is forced to ask the public a price for these goods which will enable him not only to cover their costs and taxes but his own as well. Thus, more than any other businessman, the retailer becomes in effect a government and municipal tax collector. As such he falls under suspicion, on the part of the public, of having unduly enhanced the prices of the goods he sells, even although, in far too many cases, he may be selling these goods at a loss. If I can say anything to-night that will help to effect an improvement in these conditions, my meeting with you will have been well worth while.

The Important Tourist Trade.

"The tourist trade of recent years has become recognized as a factor of far-reaching importance to the merchants of many cities. There is nothing tourists notice more quickly or remember longer, than the appearance of the main streets of the cities they pass through.

"You, as merchants, deserve commendation upon the window displays which you have made and the stocks you have carried. You have kept well abreast of the times and have brought credit to the city in this regard. It is unfortunate, however, that owing to our antiquated and reactionary system of taxation, you are being forced, for the most part, to do business in old and out-of-date buildings which are far from being a credit to the city of Peterborough. Not only is this the case, but the rentals which many of our merchants are paying are not based, in any real sense, upon the value of the service they are receiving in return. Instead, they are based on th principle, for the most part, of get all the business will stand, and then some. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that business changes along George Street, during the past 20 years, and I might almost say 10 years, have been as numerous as they have been and that so many firms have found it impossible to surmount the difficulties which have been heaped upon them.

Business Essentials.

"The prosperity of the businessmen in any community is dependent largely upon two factors, the buying power of their constituency and a system of taxation which does not unduly handicap business enterprise. There is abundant evidence to show that the system of municipal taxation in force in Peterborough is helping not only to destroy the buying power of our citizens but the prosperity of our manufacturers and merchants alike, and that it is time that we should do something about it. What I have just said is not intended to be a reflection upon anybody in this community. We are victims of conditions which we ourselves have helped to create. In a large degree they apply to landlords as well as to tenants.

Our Manufacturing Industries.

"As long as the law permitted us to do so, we offered manufacturing inducements to locate in Peterborough. This was done in the form of freedom from a considerable degree of municipal taxation. The citizens of Peterborough have burdened themselves with hundreds of thousands of dollars of taxation by granting tax exemptions to these industries. Our merchants have had to make up a large portion of these tax remissions.

"By this policy we succeeded in drawing to this city such industries as the Quaker Oats, the Canadian General Electric, the De Laval and others which could be mentioned. That these industries have been great assets to the city is recognized. Thus, we have shown that we recognize that taxation upon improvements retards the development of industry and that freedom from taxation promotes it. Furthermore, if we stop to realize it, we have admitted that our present system of taxation is fundamentally wrong and that another system, which would exempt, not only our manufacturing industries but all forms of industries, from improvement taxes of any kind, if it could be made to work, would be infinitely preferable. It is about such a system, and one that does work, that I propose to speak. Before doing so, however, I would like to call attention to another phase of this subject.

Peterboroughs Abandoned Lots

"You will have noticed in the press recently the statement that the city is seeking to sell several hundred lots which have come into its possession because their owners relinquished them in preference to paying the taxes their continued ownership would involve. What a lurid light that condition throws upon our system of municipal taxation. It is not hard to find the reason. It is due to the fact that we have so heaped taxes upon improvements that it is no longer possible, in a large percentage of cases, to erect buildings upon such land and make a profit therefrom. Under such conditions there is little or no demand for land. Let us, however, remove the taxation from buildings and we will create a demand for land which cannot be realized in any other way. Under such conditions, if we may judge by the experience of Australia and New Zealand, we would have little occasion to hear of potential building lots being turned back to the city because the owners were no longer willing to pay the taxes thereon. This would be the case even although the taxes on vacant land presumbably would be considerably increased.

'Why do I talk with such assurance on these maters? Simply because I have been in cities, not only in Canada but in Australia and New Zealand, which have had experience with our system of taxation and have discarded it. They have adopted a new system under which improvements, in Australia and New Zealand, are exempt from taxation. In Western Canada we have a number of cities which have exempted improvements from taxation 40 and 50 per cent and, in a few cases, 100 per cent. In every case that I know of the change has proved beneficial."

Of his information on Australia and New Zealand, Mr. Cowan said, "I can only say that after seeing for myself the signs of healthy expansion, which they showed on every side, their beautiful homes, lovely parks, and fine business buildings, it was something of a shock to me, on my return, to look at the old rundown buildings which disfigure the chief business sections of Peterborough because of our system of taxation. I would like to see the handicaps lifted off our property owners and off our manufacturers and merchants, as they have been lifted off the property owners, merchants and manufacturers of these other cities. This is because it would promote the erection of new and modern buildings, provide work at good wages for our unemployed, reduce the cost of manufacturing and selling the goods our people need, and result in transforming Peterborough, within a few years, into a modern and up-to-date, prosperous city such as we desire to make it.'

St. Louis Mothers Stage Sitdown Strike In City Hall

Here are a few of the 41 tired and hungry mothers of St. Louis, Mo., pictured during their sit-down strike in the city hall as a protest against failure of the city council to provide funds for relief purposes. The women represented almost 1,000 mothers who had been dropped from relief rolls because the aldermanic board believed they were eligible for federal grants under a program designed to provide for women with dependent children. Shortly after this photo was taken, the fatigued group donned their discarded footwear and left the hall quietly at the order of police.

Tractor Driver's Body Recovered From Lake

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 19—Under supervision of Deputy Chief Rangers Wm. Stringer, of the Department of Lands and Forests, the tractor which went through the ice on Crooked Lake, with William Turncliffe, on January 9, was recovered from seventy-five feet of water, with the body of Turncliffe entangled in the machine.

Turncliffe, an employee of W. F. Hamlyn, engaged in lumbering operations in the township of Mayo, attempted to take a tractor of the lumbering company across the lake about a week ago, but due to the poor ice conditions of the lake, the machine went through, carrying Turncliffe with it. Attempts to recover the body and the machine were abandoned early last week, when the ice went out, but with the return of colder weather, rescue operations proceeded, resulting in the machine and the body of Turncliffe being recovered.

Right Thing To Do

Peterborough County Council has decided to take an active interest in fish and game conservation, and it is well they have placed that word "conservation" in their program, because it is something which is too often sadly lacking. We have plenty of folk who are interested in fish and game because they want to have as much of it as possible, but the basic idea of conservation has not yet occurred to them.

There is no good reason why the County Council should not be just as much interested in this work as in any other undertaking to which it places its hand. Peterborough County is a summer resort area, and it is a favorite spot for deer hunters in the fall. As a commercial attraction the fish in our lakes rank high; they are away above the deer in the bush.

County Councillors believe they can bring a certain amount of reason and intimate knowledge to bear on the situation, and we do not doubt that claim. Often enough that is the trouble in any organization which is seeking to handle the fish and game interests. It is difficult to have men present who actually have an intimate knowledge of what has been done and what should be done. Yes—we'd like to see the County Council go into this work because it means a good deal to Peterborough county. In a very certain way it is an industry well worth looking after.

Then Why Say It?

It is unfortunate that people cannot say what they think needs to be said without seeking to put a sting in its tail. By way of illustration let us take this instance:

J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., leader of the C.C.F., during the debates at Ottawa took occasion to refer to the coming of Their Majesties to this country, and expressed the desire that the displays made on that occasion should not be on too lavish a scale, having in mind that many of our citizens are on relief. Mr. Woodsworth said he recognized the King of Great Britain as the King of Canada, and "that he is the outward and visible symbol of the tie which unites us to Great Britain." He was on good ground, but he ventured to say the reception should not be on a scale beyond our ability to pay.

W. J. Stewart, M.L.A., and former mayor of Toronto, did not agree with Mr. Woodsworth, and that of course is perfectly in order Mr. Stewart is described in a Toronto paper as "lashing out at the C.C.F. leader and declaring: "Woodsworth needn't worry! He'll never have to buy a Privy Councillor's uniform. I wonder if he would sing or play God Save the King."

Perhaps Mr. Stewart figured that would hold Mr. Woodsworth for a long time. But what he said was uncalled for; it served no good purpose and it proved nothing. Then why say it at all?

Would Be No Use

Wilfrid Lacroix, a Quebec Liberal sitting in the House of Commons, is not content with the name "Dominion of Canada." He is certain we should be called "The Kingdom of Canada."

And what's more, we should change the name of the Governor-General; he should henceforth be known as a viceroy. Nor should he be sent in here from the Old Land. He must be a Canadian.

That's not all. We also need a great seal for the Kingdom of Canada and a royal signet, and these things are to be kept in Ottawa locked up and with the key in charge of the Prime Minister.

And then what? If we had all that done overnight would we be any better off in the morning? The public debt of the Kingdom would be just as great as that of the Dominion. Having a home-brew as viceroy would take from us a very close connection with the throne which few people want to see take place. Our railway business would be in the same position, and our Wheat Board would still be wondering what sort of a deficit was to be reported at the end of the wheat year. When there are suggestions made at Ottawa we prefer those which are going to make an improvement at least to the extent of a quarter or a half dollar.

Yes, It's Our Business

Owen McNeill, 18 years of age, is under lock and key in Toronto. He tried to rob a bank and did not make much of a job of it. He had with him a toy pistol; likewise he had a black mask with places cut out for the eyes and a cap with a couple of holes in it. The whole outfit seems to have been rather juvenile. The people in this particular bank had been robbed before when the work was done by mugs of the major division, and they sensed that Owen was somewhat of a greenhorn and was having his first go at bank robbery. The result was he was chased out with two or three shots following him and a short time after he was arrested. He got no money.

We have small patience with this sort of stuff, but the story of this youth of 18 is worth considering. He was born in Toronto but has no home; he could find nothing to do and was "desperately in need of some money as I had to get something to eat." Last year he was working with a railway gang near Barrie and unfortunately when the work was finished Owen McNeill was paid off and laid off. He was not running about with a mask over his face at that time. He was slugging and developing hard muscles and a good appetite. He was just a normal young man doing a day's work and earning a day's pay, and we have an idea that if the job had lasted Owen McNeill would be there today doing the same kind of work. Today he is in a bad spot because he used the gun when trying to rob a bank. The fact that it was a toy gun makes little difference or none at all; he did not announce it as a toy weapon when he entered the bank.

While having no patience with what this young man did we find it difficult to entirely forget that when he was working he was not a bank robber or any other kind of a robber. It was when he lost his job that his money played out and he began to think in terms of robbery as the way to make a living. Perhaps you do not agree; perhaps you think you have no part in it. But you have. If we are anxious to punish Owen McNeill for being a bank robber then we must also be as anxious—and more so—to make certain that we put these young men where Owen McNeill used to be. And that is at work. When he was working he was not a robber.

He Dotes On Spelling

James W. Howey lives on a 206-acre farm in Bayham township near St. Thomas, and when he looked at the calendar the other day he became convinced he had reached his 88th year. Then it was he talked with a reporter of the St. Thomas Times-Journal. When looking at a story like that one is apt to suspect in advance what it will be like and it may be before the story is completed there will be something about the secrets of many years and a few words about the way the young folk of today are carrying on.

But Mr. Howey was different. Quite different. He intimated he was orthographically inclined, meaning of course that he was some pumpkins when it came to spelling words correctly. Years ago at school he spelled the word "cedar" with an "s" at the front, and the seriousness of the offence appears to have entered deeply into the Howey mind or spine or wherever it is such landing field is situated.

The result is Mr. Howey is a good speller today (pardon the simple term "speller") and he is ready to prove it. He told the reporter he had a standing offer to match himself with anyone in Ontario who will put up $5,000 on the side and try and spell him down.

While the reporter jotted that one down the Howey of 88 went on with another and in doing so he hopped right off the deep end in financial terms. He is ready to go into a spelling match with other persons — four in number — with high school educations, and each one will put up $5,000, making $25,000 in all. Ten or fifteen thousand of the more difficult words are to be selected and in the end Mr. Howey is prepared to have spelled correctly 100 more words than any competitor.

Mr. Howey cannot be serious in suggesting that $25,000 should be brought together in one place and for one purpose. A man who lives on a farm talking in terms of $25,000—why the thing is preposterous! What under the sun would he do with so much money if he won the pot? That spelling match will never take place. We know of no man who would stake $5,000 to say he was a whale of a speller. Some idiosyncratic individual in a spirit of braggadocio motivated by a feeling of idiologism might floor him with icositetrahedron or lymphanglectasis.

Claims He Has a Cure

Old Country papers are telling of the work and experiments of Professor W. M. Crofton, and also of his final claim that he has discovered a cure for foot and mouth disease in livestock and poultry. Previously there has been no known cure, and fear of the spread of the disease has been a serious hurdle in the shipment of livestock.

It is estimated that in 1937 alone the foot and mouth disease caused a loss to farmers of the Old Country of $70,000,000 and Prof. Crofton claims that the general adoption of his cure would save at least 90 per cent. of that loss.

Like many another in search of a cure for a known disease Crofton found the Minister of Agriculture adamant; he would not be allowed to experiment on a sick animal. He had to go over to France to carry on his work, and there he was presented with two lambs, and the degree of doubt felt in his method can be sensed by official words at the time: "Do what you like with them; they will be dead in any case tomorrow morning." The lambs were in an advanced stage of foot and mouth disease. In the morning after Crofton had given them injections one of them was frisking about, but the other sick one died later from an overdose of the serum. But the scientist had proved his point—he had saved an animal in advanced condition with foot and mouth disease. And such a thing had never been done before.

Like a good many others, Prof. Crofton has received little encouragement. He had to take his idea and go in hiding as it were and work the thing out for himself. But today he is able to claim and with proof to substantiate the claim, that he can cut an annual loss of $70,000,000 from foot and mouth disease by at least 90 per cent.

The disease gets its name from the nature of the attack which is in the form of a fever with sores resulting in the mouth and also on the feet. In districts where the disease breaks milk cannot be sold, neither can cattle be imported or exported.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Other times, other manners but not in Canada's parliament where they still make two and three-hour speeches.

One way and another it looks as if the radio will play a big part in the next Federal election. It is making plenty of political static at the present time.

Hon. Dr. Manion told the House of Commons that the King government was doing nothing, but it is recorded that it took three hours to do the telling.

St. Thomas farmer wants to bet $5,000 that he can outspell anyone in Ontario. He's 88, so at least he can claim to have lived quite a spell.

The position of Minister of War in Germany has been vacant for some time, but the general idea of the office has not been allowed to become rusty.

Men's night shirts are to be modernized, we are told, with delicate hues and sashes. The swing movement seems to have spread even to the field of night attire.

Grand jurors in Middlesex county after inspecting buildings recommended more comfortable chairs and ashtrays for use in the grand jury room. If and when they have any heavy thinking to do they prefer a degree of comfort.

Ottawa civic authorities want all undesirable persons removed from that city prior to the visit of the King and Queen. But how about the members of parliament and the editors of the Ottawa newspapers?

Something going on in Toronto, and we read: "Basil O'Meara, sports editor of the Montreal Star, came all the way from Montreal at his own expense, to participate in the ceremony as one of the speakers." Truth is most people travel the same way.

Another of those stupid bread wars has been ended at Windsor where they had finally brought the price of a large loaf down to five cents. Much better to pay attention to the open charge that some of the firms have been paying employees from $8 to $10 per week.

Toronto woman known for some time as Mrs. X was sent to jail for 60 days for trying to vote in the place of another person at the municipal election. Of course that is wrong, but is it much worse than the case of thousands of others who are entitled to vote but who never go and attend to it?

Postman in Chicago was in trouble because he had been throwing away a good many circulars and such which he thought were no use. He did so because they made his bag too heavy to carry. Of course the man was wrong officially, but we have a feeling that in another way he was right.

HOW ABOUT IT?

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Some learned men were gathered there, and handled things with tender care, for they were very old; and as I looked my interest grew, my own accomplishments seemed few, such stories as they told.

¶ For there was woodwork on display, not like we often see today, and nothing cheap or slack; for it was done I heard them tell, and made both skilfully and well, five centuries ago.

¶ The man who then had plied his trade, could well be pleased at what he'd made, no person knew his name; but still his workmanship lived on, five hundred years since he was gone, 'twas neither bent nor lame.

¶ We may have better tools today, for we've improved most every way, and progress has been fast; and yet five hundred years ago, a craftsman caused that work to grow, so true that it would last.

¶ We rush around at things today, we get them through most any way, p'rhaps faster than we ought; but do we give to every chore, like what this workman did of yore, the very best we've got?

¶ Will anything we do live on, in years when we have quit and gone, or will it end somehow; will anything you've done survive, and will folk keep the thing alive—five centuries from now?

Our Statesmen At Their Tasks

FROM OFFICIAL REPORT

Hon. R. J. MANION: It is the same old story. Every time this government deals with the United States it gets the worst of the deal. Usually my hon. friends opposite give two for one; and it will be found, when this trade agreement can be properly evaluated over a period of time, that we shall have suffered in the same way as we have always done whenever the government led by the right hon. gentleman has dealt with the United States. Let me give another interesting figure. In the last twelve months ending in November, 1938 we bought from the United States $40 worth per capita—it may be a little more or a little less, $39 or $41. How much did they buy from us? They bought $3.50 worth per head of population.

Mr. EULER: That is not a fair comparison.

Mr. MANION: Why not? What is wrong with it? I do not see anything unfair about it. I can see no reason why one Canadian should buy eleven times as much as an American buys from Canada. But that is precisely what happens when my hon. friends opposite deal with the United States.

An hon. MEMBER: One rabbit, one horse.

Mr. MANION: We get the rabbit and they get the horse. We buy eleven times as much per capita as the United States people buy from us. I cannot see anything unfair in the comparison. I submit that it is perfectly fair.

THIS IS MY SPEECH

Mr. MANION: I understand that. That is nothing new. I did not say the three per cent tax removal was in effect. I said the treaty was in effect, and the cancellation of the three per cent special excise tax does not come into effect except by legislation of this parliament. But does my hon. friend suggest that, having promised in the treaty that they would submit the matter to this house, if they failed to carry that provision they would not look upon it as a complete defeat of their government? Certainly not; they will put it through. In other words, it is as good as done.

Mr. DUNNING: If my hon. friend will permit me, that was not the point. What my hon. friend has just said is quite correct. My point is that any addition to the items mentioned in the schedule of the treaty to which the removal of the excise tax will apply is not in itself a matter of treaty but a matter in the judgment of this government and of this house.

Mr. CAHAN: It is a matter of international agreement and international honour.

Mr. DUNNING: No; the international agreement applies simply and solely to the items mentioned in the schedule.

Mr. Cahan: But there is a promise collateral thereto that the three per cent excise will be removed.

Mr. DUNNING: No—

Mr. MANION: Mr. Speaker, I think this is my speech. I do not mind interruptions, but I do not want speeches interjected in the midst of mine.

✧ ✧ ✧

WIDE AWAKE NOW

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Where does it say that he was going to cure unemployment?

Mr. MANION: I shall quote it when it suits me. I am making a speech at the present time. The right hon. gentleman would not answer me this afternoon, and I shall treat him in the same way. I shall quote these things as I go along. He was going to wipe out third parties. He was going to have a more equitable distribution of wealth.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Where does it say he was going to wipe out third parties?

Mr. MANION: I just read it. The right hon. gentleman is almost as much asleep in this house as he is about the affairs of this country.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Well, now, he is awake.

CAN'T FIND THE PLACE

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Before my hon. friend puts down the little book, he promised to read the passage where he said, I had said I would cure unemployment. He has not done that.

Mr. MANION: Oh, by implication. I do not think I can look through the book just now, but I have no doubt I could find he made that promise more than once. By implication; the very attacks the right hon. gentleman made on us for not curing unemployment imply it. Surely the right hon. gentleman was serious in what he said. What did he mean by attacking us for not curing unemployment?

An hon. MEMBER: You said you would.

Mr. MANION: I thought I had that part marked. I cannot read the whole book; the whole thing is so many promises; I picked out just a few of the select ones.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: My hon. friend promised he would read the statement.

Mr. MANION: Well, that is nothing to the promises the right hon. gentleman made in the last election. I may have to renege on that promise tonight because I cannot go searching through the book, but the right hon. gentleman promised, oh so many things. He was going to reduce taxation; he was going to lessen expenditure; he was going to retain the British preference, to bring about harmony and co-operation, to bring about social justice, to appoint an investment control board, to remove unemployment, to bring about prosperity, to wipe out third parties, or to bring about conditions which would cause third parties to disappear.

• Britain Expected To Keep Peace

MR. Chamberlain's visit to Rome was worth the effort. To define his meeting with Mussolini as a failure is in the line of error. At least England's Prime Minister returns home with a clearer perception as to what to expect, and what not to expect from the master of Italy. There is no reason to believe according to the New York Times that Mr. Chamberlain's convictions as to Britain's Mediterranean policy have been weakened. Nor is there any parallel between the results — or lack of them — of the Rome meeting and those of the Munich meeting. Here is no threat of war; no present threat by Mussolini of substituting deeds for words; nor any early likelihood of such substitution. That Mussolini may one day obtain, in some degree, something of the total for which he yearns is possible, but he has no immediate plans for fighting England.

Hitler's reported advice to Mussolini to "keep the peace for one year" is significant. It is good advice. Participation in a war for the mastery of the Mediterranean is not on Germany's agenda. Hitler is fully occupied in other directions. British and French interests as of today, and probably for a long time to come are far more closely interwined than are those of Germany and Italy. Certainly this is true as regards the Mediterranean and Red Seas. Germany's interests in those waters are at present largely theoretical, and will become real only upon the restoration to her of Tanganyika — an event quite beyond the powers of an ordinary imagination.

Hitler advises Mussolini to "keep the peace for one year." During that year Great Britain will have spent nearly two and a half billions of dollars preparing for war. And quite possibly the end of that year may find Great Britain, not Italy, keeping the peace.

• Pioneers Are Losing Farms

IF the Government could wipe out forever the working of the Agricultural Loan Board, and start all over again, even at the expense of some losses by reason of not getting back the loans made in the days when everyone was hard hit, it would not be making a serious error.

In spite of any explanation forthcoming, there continues to be deep resentment in many places at being dispossessed of lands, which in some cases, have been in the hands of the same family for four generations, but which had to be mortgaged under what proved to be an iniquitous Government plan at a time when poor crops and low prices made it impossible for the owners to carry on without financial assistance and under terms that they never thought would be relentless in the final analysis, and dispossess descendants of owners of 100 years ago, and resell the land to foreigners for a small down payment, and then turn around and lend the new owners money on very easy terms to carry on, under better terms and conditions than were allowed the original owners who are now evicted.

Resentment is too easy a word for the feeling among many families, who have lost all they had because they, at the time demanded, could not meet the payments required. —(Amherstburg Echo)

• Youth Must Do Something

OF the 4,287 transients who found shelter in Cornwall, (Ont.) jail during the year 1938, at least 50 per cent were, in their twenties or younger" (Report of Chief of Police). What Canadian youth wants is not a dole or insurance (payment for idling), but useful work at decent wages, says Sequitur in The Montreal Star.

"Training" is of little use, unless jobs will be available at the end. And "camps" are merely a temporary make-shift, which we have already tried and discarded.

In a few years the youth of today will be a man, with a wife and family to support. How is he to do it? Here are scores of thousands of "wealth-creators"—strong, capable and willing. What sort of wealth shall they produce for us, so that they can earn an honest livelihood for themselves? Shall it be food? Are there not too many at that job already?

The experts predict an even worse wheat crisis this coming year. Shall it be clothes or furniture? Are there not plenty of workers in those lines on short time already?

Surely the commonsense and rational answer is "Collective Luxuries," such as hospitals, convalescent homes, holiday centres, schools, sport or pleasure facilities of all kinds, not to mention houses, highways, power facilities, etc.

If they produced nothing of value, still we should be no worse off—so we are assured by eminent economists. Some of their number would have produced the extra food, clothing, etc., that they had consumed. But if they produced useful things, it would be clear gain.

Every Canadian would be really richer to that extent. Every dollar that we paid to them as "wages" they would promptly hand back to us as "purchases." Have we still to learn the first letters of the economic alphabet, which Adam Smith penned so carefully 160 years ago in his "Wealth of Nations"—"The revenue of a society consists altogether of goods (or services) and not in the wheel (money) which circulates them"? (Book 2 chap 2)

SEQUITUR

SOUND AND FURY.

You can hear much smarter, albeit casual, criticism of Premier Chamberlain in a London music hall than you can read in the Kolnische Zeitung; the ordinary Hebrew comedian on the radio has a better "line" in dealing with the faults and failings of his own race than the arch-anti-Semite Julius Streicher and his propagandists; President Roosevelt can and does find far neater criticism of his policies on the lips of die-hard Democrats than he does in the pages of the Voelkische Reobachter.

When it comes to good, round invective, the totalitarians are apparently at a loss. They just say silly things. They are as inarticulate and as inaccurate as children in a tantrum. They may hate much; but they do not hate well. Can it be that their hearts are not in their work, or do they find, with Shelley, that,

"There is no sport in hate when all the rage
Is on one side"?—(Montreal Star)

FIVE FINE GIRLS.

According to a story in the Boston Globe, five fine young girls, attending the Howard Seminary in Bridgewater, Mass., out for a walk some days ago, discovered an unfortunate kitten whose four feet, so the story says, were frozen solidly to the stone, and which was hanging helplessly to a stone bridge. Finding they could not themselves rescue the kitten they called the fire department who lowered a ladder and, with the aid of the girls and cloths wrung out of hot water, were able to release the kitten.

The newspaper reports that the headmaster penalized them for their act proved, upon investigation, to be anything but the truth. It was learned that he was in entire sympathy with the fine act of the girls in rescuing the kitten. The medal of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A. was presented by the President of the Society to each of the five girls before the entire school.—(Our Dumb Animals).

Writer Expelled By Mexico Blames Knowledge Of Nazi Oil Deals

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Jan. 19.—(AP).—Frank Kluckhohn, New York Times correspondent expelled by Mexico, said to-day the United States Embassy at Mexico City had made photostatic copies of credentials showing he entered the republic properly.

The Government Press Bureau at Mexico City said last night Kluckhorn entered the country "in violation of an order of immigration authorities" and charged Kluckhohn "maliciously interpreted" Mexico's policies.

"Over a period of two full years in the Mexican Republic I have sent hundreds of news stories. The Mexican Government during that period has not denied the facts in these stories. I think that speaks for itself," Kluckhohn said.

Kluckhohn said he had been "merely made the butt of a general move to crack down on the American press correspondents in Mexico.

"I found out too much about the activities of Mexican oil exports and other affairs in connection with the government's oil deal in Germany," he said.

Kluckhohn said a United Press correspondent had been warned by the chief of the official press bureau that "There is no interest in the outside world about Mexican deals with Germany.

"The United Press has just been fined 5,000 pesos by the Mexican Government, and other correspondents were severely reprimanded last week," he said.

"I am serving as a warning to other correspondents of the attempt to cut off impartial news at its source."

82-Year-Old Elm Logs From Ontario For British Ships

Caledonia, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP)

HUGE ROCK ELM LOGS, cut from 82-year-old trees at the Jas. Dougals and Sons farm here, were shipped today to Great Britain to be used in building ships.

The trees, rare in this district, had stood on the Douglas homestead since the grandfather of Stanley Douglas came here from Scotland in 1856.

One of the pieces of timber was 26 inches in diameter and 41 feet long, the equivalent of 750 feet of lumber, board measure.

Refugees From Reich See N.Y. Skyline

Lining the rail of the transatlantic steamer which brought them from Europe, this group of refugees from Nazi Germany eagerly scans the skyline of New York as it prepares to break its journey to South America and new homes in lands of freedom. The refugees were permitted one-day landing privileges in New York in order that they could see the metropolis. Then they sailed for their South American destinations again.

U.S.-Built Bomber Ready For England

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 — (CP). — First of 250 fighting planes ordered by the British air ministry from United States manufacturers, a Lockheed bomber with a reputed speed equal to any bomber yet built was on view at Floyd Bennet airport here today.

The plane arrived here yesterday from the Lockheed Aircraft plant, Burbank, Calif., having made the transcontinental trip in an elapsed flying time of 12 hours.

Squadron Commander James Addams of the Royal Air Force who supervised construction arrived on the bomber and said that secret tests on the coast "slightly exceeded expectations."

The plane, he said, has a flying range of 'over 1,700 miles' 'and, except for military adaptation, is a sister ship of the plane in which Howard Hughes, millionaire oilman, encircled the world in three days, 19 hours and 14 minutes last July.

Designed for combined bombing and reconnaissance service the plane's gross weight is 17,500 pounds and is powered by two Wright Cyclone motors of 1,100 horsepower each, Addams said.

The plane is camouflaged war fashion. The fuselage is a dull grey, mottled with brown under the two machine gun posts in the nose. The ship will be dismantled and shipped to England Friday.

Once Earned $100,000 Yearly, 20 Years, Now Broke At 83

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).

GEORGE LIFTCHILD, who said he had earned $100,000 a year for 20 years as a Wall Street broker, is looking for a place to sleep—at 83.

The aged former financier and his son, Frank, 55, spent last night in a police station after a futile attempt to barricade their home against deputy sheriffs sent by the Home Owners Loan Corporation to dispossess them.

Police persuaded them to leave their once richly furnished 10-room home in Brooklyn by promising lodging for the night and agreeing to help them find another place to stay. The two men had locked themselves on the third floor of the house.

Their eviction resulted from the foreclosure of a Home Owners Loan Corporation loan for $11,676.

TOULON, France, Jan. 19—(AP)—France's Mediterranean fleet, supplied on a war footing, to-day sailed from this naval base for two months' manoeuvres off Africa's north-western coast in which it will be joined by the French Atlantic fleet, which sailed to-day from Brest.

Labor In France Favors Madrid

PARIS, Jan. 19—(AP).—French labor represented by the executive committee of the General Confederation of Labor, voted to-day to join its Socialist and Communist political friends in trying to get the government to send military aid to the Spanish government.

The committee instructed its officials to "take all measures or join any movement to obtain effective and immediate assistance for Republican Spain."

The action was taken despite an informal statement by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet in parliamentary corridors, that France would follow the lead of Great Britain and refrain from direct intervention in the Spanish civil war.

Regardless of the apparent intention of the government to stay clear of the war, the labor movement was regarded as an important one, although the Confederation was said to have lost thousands from its 5,000,000 membership roll after the failure of the general strike Nov. 30.

TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS TO SIGN McMASTER U. DEFENCE STAR

Get K. McAdam For Syracuse As A Weekender

Ken McAdam, defence star of McMaster University hockey team, has received permission to turn professional with Toronto Maple Leafs He will come to Toronto to sign his contract this Saturday, and is to do his first moneyed puck-chasing on the following week-end, with Syracuse Stars, the Leafs' farm club. The arrangement which enables McAdam to join the Leafian family stipulates that he is to only play in week-end games for Syracuse while still continuing his studies in his last year at McMaster.

Toronto Leafs received news of the completion of McAdam's plans as they came home from Boston late on Wednesday afternoon. Coach Irvin's tired bunch of rubber rustlers have been excused from holding a practice to-day, but they will take the ice on Friday to limber-up for Saturday's game here against New York Americans, the team they hope to soon dislodge from third place.

Oddly enough, while the Leafs were rolling home from Boston on Wednesday afternoon, the Amerks were having a workout in Maple Leaf Gardens. They will spend the remainder of the week there because ice is not available in New York's Madison Square Garden. Red Dutton's team is to work out at Varsity Arena this morning, and at the Gardens on Friday. Al Murray and Red Beattie, each a casualty, are the only missing members of the star-spangled team that is furnishing the major surprise in the N.H.L. race this season.

Tuesday's good game in Boston, which the Leafs lost by 2-1, offered rather definite proof that a 16-man squad generally has the punch to nose out a tiring 14-man squad when the chips are down in the third period of a hard-hitting and fast-skating contest. Leafs actually had 15 men in uniform, but Coach Irvin did not choose to play Normie Mann in that kind of a battle. Mann was dropped off at Syracuse on the way home from Boston. Some Syracuse forward will be brought up to the Leafs for Saturday's game against the Amerks, who also will tangle with the Toronto team in New York next Tuesday.

France is insisting that all goods entering the country show where they originated.

Out Temporarily

Out of action for about six weeks is Jockey Jackie Westrope, ABOVE, one of the most popular riders on the continent's scattered tracks who is laid low following an operation for appendicitis. He was riding at California's lucre-luring Santa Anita track when stricken.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Another season's record was broken at Duffus' Tuesday night when Roy Penrose bowled for Mason's Groceteria team in the Merchants' League. In beating Tom Cupoli's City League 400 single, Roy put in ten strikes in a row, his eleventh ball costing him $100 when he took off the 4 and 2 pins, as his last ball was right in the pocket for a spare. Penrose's fine effort went for a 426 game.

The high scores for Tuesday and Wednesday were as follows: In the Merchants' League, R. Penrose 827 (426); J. O'Toole 696; B Lewis 681; B. McMahon 650, L. McCormick 627 and Mrs. R. Penrose 503. In the Mercantile League, Art Morley 712, Jerry O'Toole 654, Joe Leith 644, Lloyd Raper 632, Bill Mulrhead 615, and Miss M. Allison 519. In the C.G.E. Shop League, Fred Earle was high with 677 (302), J. Playford 676, T. Basby 640, C. Gould 640, R. Clifford 637, J. Grierson 635, V. Shaughnessy 634, S. S. Shaughnessy 628, H. Taylor 625, F. Maloney 608 (300), and L. Breadman 601. In the Quaker Oats League, M. Caccavella knocked off 747, T. T. Gentles 731, Holland 681 (330), S. Peryer 675, L. Galley 670, J. Ferguson 642, W. Rankin 627 and N. DeNoble 615.

In the Westclox office group, H. Guppy 645, F. Stevens 628, Miss D. Ackord 614, Miss M. Sisson 533, and Miss M. Johnston 525. Nova Scotia, Maurice O'Neill with 699 topped the Automobile men; G. Copping 664, W. Inch 654, V. Fitzgerald 628, K. Shadgett 622, M. J. Duffus 613, and Walter Edkins 603.

The C.G.E. Drafting Room wound up its season's schedule last night with a four-team play-off. Al Rooke featured when his AC No. 1 team rode in first on his 748 (329). Switchboard No. 2 took second money, Bill Wright hitting 621. Switchboard No. 1 finished third, F. Dunfield knocking off 696, while Fred Hickey's 620 was the best for the fourth place IC No. 2.

The City League goes in action again tonight under the new deal. All high class pin spillers are invited to be present at 7.00 o'clock.

Ski Notes

At present writing, this bright Thursday morning, the possibility of staging our floodlight jumping exhibition on Friday night appears very slim. Plans are all completed and if it should snow enough tonight the show will go on. So keep your eye on the weather and tomorrow nights paper for the final decision.

Snow or no snow Jack Holland will hold his regular instruction class tonight at Victoria Park. Be on time so you can join the party at Jackson Park after. The club's cabin will be heated and refreshments will be served. Better bring your skates because the ice on the new rink is in good shape.

The second annual ski club At Home will be held this coming Saturday afternoon at the Jackson Park club house under the auspices of the committee. Social, to which all members, members' families, relatives and friends are cordially invited. Tea will be served from three to six.

The junior instruction classes on Saturday afternoons at Jackson Park are very popular. The juniors have a large and active section this year with an enthusiastic leader, Bob White, and we're expecting big things from them.

Your entries for the club championships must be in the hands of the secretary, Miss Lahring Parsons, in writing, not later than Saturday January 21st. These events will be run on January 28th and 29th. Make your entry now, the more the merrier—and it will make it more interesting for everybody.

Don't forget to watch Friday's paper for the final word on the night jumping exhibition.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Monarchs and Bowmanville meet here on the morrow at 8.30 in the Brock St. palais d'ice (careful, Mr. Printer, it's not a dice shop and we might get sued) in a junior O.H.A. fray. These teams battled it out in Whitby Monday and possibly the surroundings had something to do with the fracas, but anyway it was a screwy setto. A redhot one, mind ya, but more disputed goals than Cousin Kate has freckles, and the Monarchs mentor banished and ditto three goal judges. Bowmanville got a 6-4 nod, but broke a third-period tie with a goal as shady as the middle of a tunnel! So the scrappy young Monarchs are vowing to go to work on the Villa bunch here tomorrow and reverse the decision.

* * * * * *

The kids are playing good hockey now as they start pointing toward a playoff berth. They held the powerful Lindsay sextette to an overtime draw here some time ago and almost beat the bruising Bowmanville bunch on foreign ice this week. So fans can figure it out themselves. The locals are due to pull an upset, and it ought to be a grand game of hockey with two classy crews playing for keeps in an important number — one that might well affect the ultimate group finalists. It rates a real crowd, a typical Friday night crowd.

* * * * * *

Believe It Or Not

Well, sir, a goodly gang of folks, some 1,400 of 'em—and many who figured the Fliers were a shoo-in—saw the Petes take the Trenton Fliers by a 7-5 score in overtime here last p.m. A dandy game, and we have not been so excited since the Orfuns beat Sarnia in football. The Petes, after an agonizingly slow start, began to click late in the second frame and then outplayed the Airmen the rest of the route. Had the darned tilt won three times, but it was tied up twice. We wish to point out now that this is quite an accomplishment at this time of the season. The Petes, ordinarily, should not have beaten the classy R.C.A.F. gang. The latter crew beat Belleville by an 11-3 score right in Belleville, whereas the locals lost to the Redmen on Quinte ice and just won a close one over 'em here. And furthermore, the Airmen have been playing two months to the Petes' two weeks.

* * * * * *

None the less, the Buckland boys showed more speed and fight to earn the win in a speedy, clean and exciting fracas. There was one local disputed counter, but the Petes ripped home another right after. The one the argument was over happened at the far end from the press box, so we can't say what happened, it could have been in and out fast or not in at all—so far as we know—but the point is that the Petes were outplaying them badly at this time, being robbed by Gibson, being outlucked, and also muffing a lotta chances. They were better and certainly earned at least a tie on their play in the third chukker. Though Goalie Gibson looked mighty good to us.

* * * * * *

Airmen Lacked Wind

In the overtime, the Petes had a 3-1 margin and easily earned it, and this is somewhat amazing. They aren't supposed to be in as good shape as the Airmen—who don't work hard, who get daily p.t. drills, and who were playing hockey weeks before the Petes got on ice. Yet the locals outstayed and outskated 'em the last half of the game. So what? So Belleville will worry plenty and it's gonna be harder than a super-crossword puzzle to keep the Petes outta the playoffs—provided they don't get cocky. Frankly, we were a bit surprised, but tickled pink, at their showing, as the Airmen definitely are good. We won't name any local stars (maybe being a bit cowardly when they all look oke) except Ray Harding in goal. The quiet Ray, who doesn't say a word in the dressing-room, played a beautiful game in goal. The defence looked okay to us, both ways, and the forwards went fine. So we'll leave it at that, till the Petes' tilt on Friday in Belleville.

* * * * * *

This from Oshawa: "Oshawa's junior 'B' team looked impressive as they won an exhibition tilt 7-0 up in Port Perry. The local junior 'B' team will play a double schedule this year with Peterborough Colts. We look for the Oshawa juniors to go places. They have plenty of star players from last year's juvenile team and also several players of experience in 'A' company—such as Scotty Reid and Maxie Yourth. Lindsay 'C' juniors defeated Peterborough's junior 'B' team right in Peterborough the other night. Do we see the hand of a certain O.H.A. officer in that setup? Surely, Lindsay's junior team is now ready for competition in 'B' ranks." Well, sir, pretty doggone nearly, we'd say.

* * * * * *

The Kids Have It

St. Peter's squad from here open their O.J.H.A. schedule in Lakefield on Friday 'gainst the Lakefield juveniles at eight bells. Jerry Connelly may be referee for this match—and it ought to be a lively scrap between these young hustlers. Ken Fleming's flock is pretty well picked now. Elliott, Basciano and O'Toole are all available for goal, while Scriver, Crary and Lewis make up the defence. One line has Corkery, Mackness and Mason; with the other forwards being Henwood, Garvey, Eason and O'Hearn. Then on Monday, Lakefield plays in Campbellford, whilst Lindsay and St. Peter's clash in Lakefield.

* * * * * *

What's the cage setup locally for the week-end? Well, it starts off tonight in P.C.I. gym with two girls games billed, of the exhibition variety. Quaker juniors meet Westclox lasses at eight, with Orfuns and the C.G.E. crews of L.O.B.A. calibre clashing at 8.45. Both will be lively frays. The P.C.I. senior gals and junior boys have tilts in Port Hope tomorrow in the twilight, the senior lads being idle like painted ships. Ladies' City Loop is getting set and will announce its schedule shortly. Men's senior city tussles on Saturday eve in the Y.M.C.A. gym are: Dominions vs. Quakers at seven, Hecla vs. St. John's at eight, and C.G.E. vs. St. Paul's at nine. And that's the works.

Exercise Boy Widens Race Stable Menagerie By Adding Ant Eater–So He Can Sleep

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 19.—(AP).—It's getting so you can find everything in the stables but horses.

The racing secretary at Oaklawn Park was walking down stable row the other day when he got a shock. He had seen the regular pet show in the stables—dogs, goats, cats, parrots, canaries, bantam chickens and love birds. But when he saw Ralph Towles, a negro boy, stroking an ant eater he was licked.

Towles, a resourceful young man, bought the animal in Cuba when he was having a tought time catching up on his sleep between races. The ants bit him. He found the ant eater in Havana, bought it and slept like a baby at Havana and elsewhere ever since.

Eddie Neil Medal Given Dempsey As Sports Men Rally In Tribute

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP).—Story of a friendship that started in a Saratoga Spring fight camp 13 years ago was told anew last night in a Manhattan dining room when Jack Dempsey stood up and received the Eddie Neil medal, memorial to the Associated Press sports writer and war correspondent, Dempsey's dearest friend among the writers.

The award was for Dempsey, symbol of his work as the man who had done most for boxing in 1938, James Walker, mayor of New York in the gay days when Dempsey was young and heavyweight champion of the world, was there. So were nearly a hundred working newspapermen. For most of them, when they stood up and drank a toast to his memory, Eddie Neil, killed in Spain on assignment a year ago was there too.

Dempsey, speaking in the high, thin voice that never fails to surprise, talked of Neil as he first met him in 1926 when he was preparing for his first match with Gene Tunney.

"I liked him right-off," said Jack. "We were pals from then on. You fellows have done me a great honor. This is a very happy moment. I am happy and proud to receive the medal—but I am happier that it perpetuates the memory of my good pal, Eddie Neil."

A Square Shooter

"He was one of the squarest men I ever knew," Dempsey continued. "I owe a lot to newspapermen; they've always been my friends. Of them all, I loved and admired Eddie Neil the most."

One by one the speakers got up to speak of Neil.

Jimmy Walker said, "I knew him, but I know him better now. I have never heard so many fine things said of any man. The speeches have been a real tribute."

Alan Gould, former sports editor of The Associated Press and present assistant to the general manager, pointed out: "It is fitting that this award go to Jack Dempsey. There was no essential difference between the two, Dempsey and Neil. Both were hard fighters, good losers and straight shooters."

Bowmanville Here To Play Monarchs

Bowmanville juniors and the Peterborough Monarchs mix it here tomorrow (Friday) evening at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink in an O.H.A. junior contest. It will be the first clash of these teams on local ice, and their second setto of the season. In Whitby last Monday, the Monarchs surprised their rugged rivals by holding them to a 6-4 score in a wild and woolly tussle, and the locals claim they were robbed at that. It was a hectic struggle, marked by fights, fired goal judges, ejected Peterborough pilot and disputed goals on both sides. The return tilt here tomorrow ought to be a sizzler, and should pack in the fans.

Coach Pete Vitarelli's young hustlers, in the bright sweaters, are improving every game and playing exciting and smart hockey right now. They stand an excellent chance of beating the bruising Bowmanville bunch tomorrow, and they expect to cop a playoff berth in their group shortly. The local lineup will likely be: Goal, Morrison; defence, Beggs and Giardino; centre, Rochetia; wings Connelly and Vitarelli; alternates Nichols Cauley DeCarlo Mortimer and Clarke The all-star visitors will have March a brother of Mush March of the Hawks who is being watched by the Chicago team now.

CURLING

All boys under 21 years of age are reminded of the meeting in the club rooms at 7.30 this evening.

Rinks from Bobcaygeon, Lakefield, Lindsay and Peterborough are playing the preliminary games of Group No. 3 of the Ontario Tankard at Peterborough all day.

Special mention goes to Howard Clegg on his sportsmanship shown last night in the game with J. Richmond. Clegg, leading nearly all the way through until Richmond made a beautiful in turn raise with his last stone to win the game. True, Clegg had one stone left to play but missed by inches. Clegg was the very first one to congratulate the president when he made that most important and difficult shot.

Tom Ryan was welcomed back by the curlers after an absence of over three weeks.

HOW TO SKI

By FRITZ LOOSLI
Instructor Toronto Ski Club

WAXING YOUR SKIS

Ski waxes may be divided into three classes, downhill only, general purpose and climbing waxes. Manufacturers of wax have made great progress in the last few years and have brought to the market waxes for general purposes, which have solved, to a certain extent, the waxing problem for the average skier.

For best results, skis should have a base wax applied to the running surface when the bare wood shows. For all-round skiing, a base with a heavy mixture of tar is better than a lacquer base. Some of the tar bases are applied merely at room temperature; others may be applied with a blow torch or a flat-iron. The most common mistake made is to keep the blow torch far too long on one spot, which takes the life out of the fibre of the wood.

Applying Tar Base

The best way to put on a tar base is to apply the mixture at a temperature of 70 to 80 degrees, and when the running surface is fairly well covered, run a blow torch rapidly back and forth over the base until it is smoothly distributed over the whole bottom of the ski. If a blow torch is not available, a fairly hot flat-iron will serve the same purpose.

Before appliyng a wax base, the running surface of the skis should be cleaned of old wax with steel wool and gasoline. The advantage of using a tar base is that the skis will absorb a certain amount of the tar in the pores of the wood, thus extending the life of the skis, and ordinary wax will adhere much better to a tar base than to a lacquer base.

Lacquer base is used mainly for downhill, where long slopes or ski lifts are available. It is easily applied with a brush, and for best result three or four coats should be applied. A light rub with fine sandpaper betwen each coat will give the smoothest finish.

Downhill wax is meant for fast downhill running, but makes climbing very difficult and the skier can use creepers or sealskin for getting back up the hill. Downhill wax should be put on lightly and smoothly for dry snow. For slush and very wet snow, it is preferable to have it rough and heavy to avoid suction when running downhill.

All-purpose Wax the Favorite

For the average skier the all-purpose wax is favored because of its climbing quality. There is no doubt that an all-around wax will never be as fast as a downhill wax, but if properly used, it is very satisfactory for recreational skiing.

Apply the all-round wax over the base wax fairly heavily and smooth it out with the palm of the hand or a cork. Adding a little more under the foot plate will make climbing easier, but the skis must be rubbed on the snow once or twice to make ready for the downhill run.

Wet snow waxes should be used strictly for the purpose for which they are meant. All trace of such wax should be removed when waxing again for dry, powder, or new snow. The inconvenience of certain waxes when clogging may be minimized by rubbing parawax roughly over it.

Campbellford School Defeats Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19.—In a fast Interscholastic fixture here last night Campbellford High School defeated Lakefield 4 to 0. It was the schools second game of the season and their second victory having won from Havelock in their opening game of the season 7 to 6. Kelly played an outstanding game in goal for the locals turning aside the repeated thrusts made by the visitors forwards while Donan, Jarvis and Farrell starred on the forward line.

Reduce Varicose Or Swollen Veins
This Easy Way—At Home.
Swollen veins may become dangerous and sometimes break. Sufferers should get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once with this healing oil. A small bottle will last a long time because it is very concentrated and a little goes a very long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush or finger tips as directed until the swelling is reduced. So effective and safe is Emerald Oil that failure is rare indeed—at druggists everywhere.

Galento All Set For Brescia; Farr, March 10

By Drew Middleton
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEWARK, N.J., Jan. 19.—(AP).—The amazing Tony Galento will waddle into the Newark armoury ring to-night to battle Jorge Brescia, an amiable Argentine who once won fame by smacking Joseph Louis on the chops.

Brescia will weigh 210 to Tony's 235 or thereabouts for the 10-round bout. Galento has been named the No. 1 challenger for Louis' heavyweight title by the National Boxing Association. To date he has fought no one who might endanger the rating.

To-night's bout will be the last in the minor leagues for some time for the beer keg that walks like a man. The 20th Century Sporting Club has lined up Galento and Tommy Farr for a 15-round duel at Madison Square Garden, March 10, ample evidence that Mike Jacobs, the boxing czar, and Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager, have kissed and made up.

Fresh from a tour of the Hinterlands on which he buffeted assorted members of the Thomas family, Galento is expected to lure a crowd of 10,000 or so to the Armory, to-night.

The boisterous buffoon is in good voice. As usual he is calling all heavyweights, living and dead, "bums" with Brescia the chief "bum" at present. Around 11 p.m. to-night Tony should be blowing the collar off a beer and reissue his challenge to "dat bum Louis."

Tony has added nothing new to his training schedule or his boxing technique. He has skipped rope, pummelled a few spar mates and punched the heavy bag around in a Newark gym.

Up to yesterday Mike ignored Tony's claims, enraged the bulbois fellow by matching Lou Nova and Max Baer for the doubtful pleasure of meeting the boss, Joe Louis. Now if Tony can get by Farr he probably will get a shot at the Nova-Baer winner and, if he wins that one, his long awaited chance at "dat bum Louis."

He has no high regard for the trio—or for any man. "Dat Baer quit to Louis—he sez so himself—wait till I get a chance at him. Or dis Nova, a kid. I can lick 'dem tramps the same night and den take on Louis."

Remember When—

Charlie Conacher, 28-year-old right winger with Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League, retired from hockey one year ago today due to ill health. He was the circuit's leading point-scorer in 1934 and 1935 and was the game's No. 1 attraction. He returned to hockey this season with Detroit's Red Wings.

Prospects Good For Great Year Upon Ball Fields

By Will Harridge
(President, American Ball League.)

CHICAGO, Jan. 19—(AP).—On the threshold of a new baseball season, it is customary to look forward, to anticipate the game's new high lights and unprecedented achievements. Hope and confidence are anticipation only are the usual sentiments.

Entering upon the 1939 season—baseball's centennial year—we cannot but yield to the urge to look back and contemplate milestones marking the century's baseball progress.

Each succeeding year has brought its novel thrills and its new heroes. Such a "century of progress" must assure unwavering confidence for the future of baseball.

The first few months of the 1938 season saw several American league clubs engaged in a close, thrilling struggle which was reflected in such increased patronage that recent attendance records seemed destined easily to be surpassed. Unfortunately, just when our race attained its closest phase, adverse weather conditions in our eastern cities interrupted our schedules for nearly an entire week. The resultant loss in attendance was the one factor which prevented the leageu from showing most gratifying increase in patronage.

With the celebrations commemorative of baseball's "century of progress" scheduled in each baseball city, 1939 appears destined to be an exceptional season.

All our teams have been strengthened by the addition of young, outstanding playing talent secured from the minor leagues, while the exchange of players within our own organization is bound to result not merely in greater interest.

PETES BEAT FLIERS IN A THRILLING OVERTIME SENIOR SCRAP

Locals Rally In Last Half To Cop The Decision And Get Top Rung In Group

In a thrilling overtime O.H.A. senior "B" match here last night, the Petes pulled out a 7-5 decision over the Trenton Fliers before 1400 wildly excited fans. It gave the locals undisputed possession of first place in their grouping and sent the big crowd home happy. The game was held up in the third frame for 10 minutes when rabid rooters showered the ice with programs.

The game was fast, clean and exciting every minute of the way. The Airmen swept into a commanding lead and looked quite a bit superior to the locals for half the game. But the Petes kept battling away and looked the better outfit the last half. They had the game won three times in the late stages and certainly looked superior in the final few minutes. It was a redhot number throughout the session and kept the place in an uproar, with but six penalties drawn.

The score was 2-0 for the R.C.A.F. gang in the initial inning and 3-1 for them going into the third. The Petes had a 3-1 edge in the third and again held a 3-1 margin in the overtime, due to a scrappy spirit and good hockey. They muffed a lot of chances in the first two heats but proved a speedier squad with plenty of good puck ability. They stayed on the ice in a clean contest, while Fliers looked flashier with some smart passing but slowed up near the close.

Harding Stars

Aside from Ray Harding, who played a brilliant game in goal and did not let an unearned one by him, it is difficult to pick outstanding players for the Petes over the entire route, though several sparkled in the last 10 or 15 minutes. The defence looked good both checking and on the attack, while both forward lines turned in plenty of good hockey—but after the first frame was finished. They skated fast, checked well and were dangerous on the attack. Half a dozen players for the homesters figured in on the scoring. Lecompte, McNeeley, Legris and Gibson were best for the Fliers, and their defence checked effectively most of the way.

Kingdon almost tallied at the start in a fast, clean session with the Airmen having an edge. Legris and McNeeley made Harding hop and a Crowe-Tompkins thrust came close. Todd scored halfway through on a pass from Lecompte with but one defenceman to beat. Starr scored from Weir and Tompkins but it was called back. Legris tried hard and then Richardson tallied on Cook's assist with a bullet angle drive. Weir went off for boarding and the visitors pressed hotly. Tompkins nearly broke away for one and later it was fast and fairly even, with Weir making a lovely rush right through only to have Gibson block his drive.

Fliers Still Up

The Petes swarmed in to start the second and Gibson, sitting down, picked off a blazing shot by Kingdon. McNeeley blasted home Lecompte's rebound to put the Fliers three up and get the fans yelling at the locals. They kept tearing in on the Buckland boys with fine passing plays and looked good but Harding was hard to beat. Starr got in for a nice try and, when Johnston was gated for tripping, the Petes pressed hotly. They were all back when Tompkins took Kingdon's pass at defence to notch the first home counter. Near the end of the chapter, the Petes seemed to have a margin, pressing hard as the Airmen slowed up. The Petes were shooting four men up and looking better, but in danger of the odd breakaway at the bell.

Todd drew a penalty in the third for tripping Tompkins as he went in and the Petes swarmed up. They were all back when Creighton scored on Gardner's corner passout to put the Petes back in the game. Todd drew another session for tripping and the Petes ganged up once more. Legris missed the goal on a clear breakaway and they held their own till Todd returned. The Petes still skated faster and looked better, with Kingdon making a swell stab in close but muffing an open net. Harding had to be good as the Fliers threatened on breaks with the locals ganging up. Crowe drew a penalty for hooking and play was held up 10 minutes to clear the ice of papers thrown by the angry fans. At full strength again, the Petes tore in and got one that set the crowd wild when Tompkins took Starr's pass in close. It was disputed and the goal-judge changed. Starr scored again from Tompkins right after as he rifled one 'rounding defence. The Fliers tore up hard and, when Nicholls was jailed for holding, McNeeley scored on Lecompte's assist.

Petes Better

The battled hard in the overtime, with the Petes looking quite a bit fresher and stronger. Harding made several nice stops in on top of him, and then Cook got the finger for tripping Crowe as he weaved in neatly. The Petes swarmed up hotly and Tompkins scored on a passout at the goalmouth from Gardner. Lecompte got it back right away, going around defence and drilling a dandy drive. The Petes kept trying and Gardner scored the winner on Nicholls' pass with a backhand on Gibson's doorstep. With five Fliers up the ice in a desperate attempt, the Petes broke away and scored again a minute before the end, Kingdon tallying from Starr with a fine backhand lift.

The teams:

Fliers: Goal, Gibson; defence, Todd and Cook; centre, Lecompte; wings, McNeeley and Legris; alternates, Brackenbury, Baldwin, Richardson, McNabb and Johnston.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Gray and Crowe; centre, Kingdon; wings, Starr and Tompkins; alternates, Nicholls, Gardner, Creighton, McDougall and Weir.

That Man Maxie's Here Again

In the east for a hearing in a court action, Max Baer, still, somehow, in the heavyweight fight picture, strikes a "well, I'd tell you about the west, boys!" pose as he arrives in New York, dressed in semi-cowboy attire, a tie-up with his new movie contract that calls for six westerns a year for five years. Max and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, at the same time hoped to make some arrangements for the Merry Madcap's future ring appearances, that will lend eventually, so Maxie hopes (or says, at least) to another shot at champion Joe Louis.

Bradman Scores Sixth Century

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 19 (CP Cable)—Don Bradman today scored his sixth successive century in Australian first-class cricket this season, equalling a record established 37 years ago. The Australian captain hit up 135 not out in a drawn Sheffield Shield contest between South Australia and New South Wales, giving him an aggregate of 914 runs, an average of 182.80.

Back in 1901 Charles B. Fry, England and Sussex amateur and a famous all-round athlete reached the three-figure mark in successive innings in English county cricket.

Two days' rain interfered with the match concluded here today. New South Wales made scores of 246 and 156 for six, South Australia declaring with four wickets down for 349 runs. Bradman made his runs in three hours, 21 minutes, hitting seven fours.

Elgin Defeats Albions 3-1 For 3rd Win

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 19—Elgin won their third straight tilt in the East Peterborough Rural Hockey League schedule, defeating the Havelock "Albions" by a 3-1 score, in a close-checking match, last evening at the Norwood arena. They are tied with Indian River for top place in this loop, neither team having lost a game so far.

The encounter was packed with plenty of action from start to finish, with the Elgin squad squeezing out a win, mainly due to more effective shooting. The Albions missed several fine scoring chances when their shots proved rather weak.

Doug Hill, Havelock's goalie received a bad cut on his face, when struck with puck, just before the start of the second stanza. The game was delayed while Hill received first aid in the dressing room. He came back for the rest of the game to continue a fine performance in the nets.

The injury jinx also hit the Elgin team, while Hill was off, Murphy, one of their wingers, had a tooth knocked out, when struck by a teammate's stick.

Elgin went into an early lead on Richardson's lone-handed effort, in the first period. There was no scoring in the second and they held this one-goal advantage going into the final stanza.

Murphy and Fleming, notched two more for Elgin in the first half of the third, Lumsden getting assists on both. Hamilton, local defenceman, spoiled Preston's chance for a shut-out, stickhandling through the Elgin defence to make the only Havelock tally of the evening, in the dying minutes of the final period.

The teams:

Elgin—Goal, E. Preston; defence, Sheppard, L. Fleming; centre, Richardson; wings, Lumsden, Murphy; alternates, Metcalfe, G. Richardson, W. Preston, A. Lobb, C. Lobb.

Havelock—Goal, Hill; defence, Lade, Williams; centre, Gordon; wings, E. Ellis, F. Ellis, alternates, Hagerman, Wrightly, Pollock, Green, Varty, Hamilton.

Referee—B. Hagerman, Havelock.

No scoring.
No penalties.

Ramblers Crush Indians 4-0

(By the Canadian Press.)

A pace that has left the rest of the field groggy found Philadelphia Ramblers 11 points in front today in the race for sectional honors in the International-American Hockey League after a smashing 4-0 victory over Springfield Indians.

The Ramblers, making a runaway of it for the eastern division title, walloped the Indians last night at the same time as New Haven Eagles and Providence Reds, the two other teams in the section, were playing to a 2-2 overtime draw.

The Philadelphia - Springfield contest was close for two periods and half of the third. Bill Carse put the Ramblers ahead in the ninth minute of the second period, but it wasn't until the 14th minute of the third period that they were able to add to their total. Then Cliff Barton tallied, a few minutes later Joe Krol made it 3-0 and Hugh Gustfson finished the scoring in the last minute.

The second place Reds came from behind to gain a draw with the third-place Eagles. Bob McCully scored first for the Eagles in the first period and Bud Jarvis evened matters in the third session. Then Tony Hemmerling sent Eagles up 2-1 in overtime only to have Pat McReavy tie it up again.

Oshawa's G-Men Hold Goodyears To Third Straight Draw, A 2-2 Tilt Before 4,400 Fans

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 19.—(CP)—Oshawa, clutching second place in the Senior "A" division of the Ontario Hockey Association, appeared today to be the most improved team in the six-club league. They've lost but one game since Dec. 14, during which time they tied the undefeated Toronto Goodyears on three occasions.

The latest overtime draw—a 2-2 affair—occurred here last night as the two rivals met for the last time this season in the regular schedule. Critics figure Oshawa will end the season in second position, behind Goodyears, and the struggle for supremacy will continue in the playoffs.

An overflow crowd of 4,400 watched each team come from behind once last night. Goodyears drew level at 1-1 in the first period and Oshawa overcame a 2-1 disadvantage in the first 40 seconds of the third.

Winkie Smith, wee winger, made the play for both Oshawa goals. The first was scored by Lex Chisholm, league-leading scorer, less than three minutes after the start. Don Metz evened the count 13 minutes later to beat Goalie Peg Hurst on a pass from Captain Blondy Sutcliffe.

Toronto Steps Out

Goodyears took the lead early in the middle session, when Peanuts O'Flaherty beat Hurst on a relay from Johnny Inglis and Eddie King. Cliff Maundrell's third-period tally evened the count after he took a pass from Smith and Chisholm.

In the overtime session Maundrell drew a minor penalty and Manager Bill Trimble took to the ice to lodge objection with Referee Dinty Moore. A shower of peanuts hit the ice at the same time and the game was held up while the debris was removed.

In Oshawa Dec. 14 the homesters tied 3-3 with Goodyears, and at Toronto Jan. 6 the two teams battled to a 0-0 overtime draw. In the first meeting of the season, Toronto trimmed Oshawa 3-0.

Oshawa are now seven points behind Goodyears with the season's end but three weeks away. Port Colborne Sailors occupy the third rung, three points behind Oshawa.

Compulsory Pasteurization Given Periodic Barrage Of Criticism

If the Almighty wanted milk pasteurized He would have put a pasteurizing apparatus in the cow, Reeve Allan Caldwell of Chandos told the County Council in session Wednesday afternoon as he launched a barrage of criticism against the plan of enforcing compulsory pasteurization.

The member from the northeast corner of the county usually a man of few words teamed up with Melville Johnston, Deputy-Reeve of North Monaghan against what was termed by the latter as "highhanded action on the part of the Hon. H. J. Kiroy, Minister of Health," who in answer to a letter protesting the law of compulsory pasteurization said it was not a question within the jurisdiction of the County Council.

Last November the Natural Milk Producers and Consumers Association wrote the council from Kitchener seeking their suport in protesting the enforcing of compulsory pasteurization. The letter indicated the association did not condemn pasteurization but was definitely opposed to the compulsory feature. The County Council on motion of Deputy Reeve Johnston went on record as supporting the association in their stand and sent a copy of their letter to this effect on to the Minister of Health. His answer read at the meeting Wednesday angered Deputy Reeve Johnston.

"I think the minister is taking quite a bit on himself when he tells us we can't ask questions. It's a funny thing if the County Council have no say on health matters. I don't see why we should be so particular about pasteurization when we have our herds T.B. tested. I want this resolution to go to the Rural Municipalities Association. Reeve Martin Coughlin of Douro seconded this motion and it carried.

Reeve Caldwell voiced approval of the T.B. testing but said, "When a cow is healthy why pasteurize the milk. It looks to me like a frame-up to boost the price of milk, and if pasteurization becomes general the settlers in the northern part of Peterborough county will lose considerable money. I am definitely opposed to it, and so is most of the farmers in Chandos."

Reeve David Curtain of Galway-Cavendish took the same stand as his colleague from Chandos.

The question was discussed when the council was in committee on Legal and Legislation with Reeve Isaac Anderson of Belmont presiding.

The committee decided on motion of Reeves Gifford and Martin to take no further action on urging that grand juries be abolished because a letter from the office of the Attorney-General intimated some change was contemplated anyways. Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee moved an amendment asking that the grand juries be abolished entirely, and he was supported by Reeve Seeney of Havelock but the amendment was lost. Reeve Anderson contended that the grand jury prolonged the time of the court and caused extra expense.

The council decided to have the county solicitor advise them definitely on whether the county or the Children's Aid Society is responsible for the hospitalization costs of any child who is a ward of the Children's Aid Society and at the same time a resident of the county.

Several members of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board headed by the president, Thomas Brown met the council and sought an increased grant this year to permit the erection of a large horse barn. Torrance Lillico, a former member of the county council, S. S. Staples, Gordon Hancock, R. M. Glover, Thos. Brown and Roland Denne all spoke briefly and outlined the splendid progress that has been made in the past two decades. It was said the board intended to build two or three barns this year and asked the council to grant $1,000 this year.

Gordon Hancock, past president of the Quinte District Seed Growers Association asked the council to make a grant to the association this year. The seed show he said would be held this year in Napanee and only a small grant would be expected from the local county council. He said it was a worthy enterprise and one that had aided materially in making local farmers seed conscious, with the result they were securing first quality seed. Both requests were referred to the finance committee.

"Canada should be willing to join with other democracies in offering asylum to a quota of sufferers, both Jews and Christians, in a broad humanitarian effort to relieve their distress and with proper safeguards that they will not become public charges."

Free Trade

Mr. Deachman dismissed the idea of a balance of trade being necessary between countries and urged the free interchange of commodities as between all countries. He defended the new Canada-United States trade agreement.

Removal of the excise tax as proposed by the present government in connection with the new trade agreement would be a great contribution to the solution of the unemployment problem, Mr. Deachman said.

Distribution of available work among as many as possible so as to increase the total amount of the wage fund, was a prime necessity in dealing with the problem of unemployment.

"We have made a start in reduction of the tariff by means of abolition of the excise tax. The government has maped out a further course. It proposes to examine the tariff upon sugar and into the West Indies treaty.

MORE ABOUT—

Small Surplus

mittee Wednesday afternoon he was confident there would be a substantial surplus from 1938. He presented a balance sheet comparing the estimates of last year with the actual expenditure, but he stipulated that they were not final and complete and they had not been audited. Several years ago Major MacNachtan terminated publication of these interim announcements. They used to be an annual affair, indicating whether the council had hewn closely to its budget, but some ratepayer over in Durham who happened to read the report of the statement in some newspaper, and wholly misunderstanding its import, wrote a letter to the clerk and treasurer threatening all kinds of things, and generally giving him an undeserved shellacking. He recalled the incident in committee yesterday, saying that he was only intimating what the ultimate financial review was likely to show, a surplus that should be pleasing to all the members of the 1938 council and the ratepayers of Northumberland and Durham.

During the last five years the council has wiped out a debt of $80,000 for King's Highway account including the cost of ditch digging some years ago, and a further accumulated deficit of $85,00 in connection with county road costs. The debenture debt has been reduced to $555,000, the annual payment of interest and principal being around $87,000. Mr. MacNachtan said that altogether the finances of the united counties had gained appreciably and the outlook for the future was bright, based on a strong financial position.

1939 Road Estimates.

A. S. Miller, county road superintendent, submitted his estimates for this year amounting to $110,000 as compared with the even $100,000 in 1938. Some of the items of the proposed expenditure are: $18,000 for construction of county roads, $12,000 for crushed gravel, $2,000 for pit run gravel, $3,000 for power grader operations, $9,600 for county road connecting links in urban municipalities, $5,000 for snow removal, $2,000 for snow fence and posts, $2,000 for sanding roads, $1,000 for washouts, $5,500 bridge repairs, $2,000 concrete culverts, $3,000 metal culverts, $7,500 ditching, grading and drainage, $3,000 for a storage shed, $3,500 for machine repairs, $3,500 for brushing and weed control, $1,000 for weed killing equipment, $1,700 for wire fence and land purchase, $3,000 for a new truck; interest $2,600; insurance $500, compensation $1,300; office salaries, etc., $4,800; extras for non-subsidizable expenses $4,000, and various other items.

Mr. Millar said there are 35½ miles more of roads than in 1938 to be improved to the county road standard.

Some of the increases are: $9,000 for consolidated roads by using calcium chloride; $3,000 for a storage shed for road machinery, a project that has been discussed for three years or more; rebates on urban road connecting links $9,000; $3,000 for snow removal and $1,000 for sanding roads in winter, a total of $30,000 in extras. This amount can be reduced $10,000 by items that are less than last year; leaving the net increase $20,000.

Mr. Miller said the cost of snow removal was approximately $200 a day of twenty-four hourhs, operatday of twenty-four hours, operatthis year has been $759. He proposed purchase of a spray pump and 600-gallon tank on a truck for killing weeds on country roads. By a consistent policy of weed killing and brush removal, the time would soon come when the county road system would be free of weeds, and the annual cost would decline to a negligible sum.

Mention was also made of the necessity of keeping the roads in good condition to sustain the low insurance rate of $440 as compared with $2,495 in 1936. Purchase of a new power grader was becoming a necessity in view of the repair bill last year of $450 exclusive of blades and tires.

School Costs.

School levies last year amounted to $67,400. The figures were $38,761 to Collegiate Institutes and High Schools within the united counties and $8,225 to others outside the counties; and for Public and Continuation schools $17,162 to those in the counties and $1,241 to others outside.

"The money paid in grants to schools outside these counties is absolutely lost to us," Reeve L. H. Wilson commened.

Mr. MacNachan said that some of the largest requisitions come from Trenton, Lindsay, Peterborough and Belleville. Vocational training in some of those centres accounted for a large part of the school moneys going outside the counties.

"Those schools attract children who are residents of our countries, and we have practically none coming into our schools," the clerk remarked.

Asked for Increase.

The Finance Committee recommended that no action be taken on the request of A. S. Mille, road superintendent, for an increase in salary. It was stated that he was appointed at $1,500 a year and was given an increase of $300 last year. An amendment to grant him an additional $100 a year was rejected in committee Two petitions were received from Hamilton Township Council asking that the "Cavan" road from Plainville to Bewdley be assumed as a county road. One of them from a group of ratepayers wanted the western part of it and its extension straight east along the 8th Concession taken over. Because of the conflict in that section of the township the Roads and Bridges Committee decided to hear deputations representing both roads today.

"They shouldn't put it up to us to decide for them," Reeve Cummiskey chairman, said. "They ought to agree on it among themselves, and then have our commission report on the road they ask for."

Freezes Gas To Make Flying Fireproof

In an effort to eliminate or reduce the fire hazard that is present in airplane accidents, Assen Jordanoff, former Balkan army flier, has devised a system of "freezing" gasoline to a point 100 degrees below zero, thus making it a solid within the fuel tanks. Jordanoff is shown pointing to part of the apparatus fitted in his plane at Roosevelt Field, New York. As fuel is needed from the tanks it is melted by a special device. In the event of aerial warfare it is claimed that a bullet could pierce the gasoline tank without doing much damage. Note ice on the pipe lines in photo.

OWENBROOK MAN FINED.

On a written plea of guilty Fred. Pomeroy of Owenbrook was fined $10 and $2.50 costs in police court this morning on a charge of fishing through the ice.

GETS JAIL SENTENCE.

Alex. Knott, Curve Lake, was given 15 days in jail by Magistrate Langley in police court this morning on a charge under the Indian Act of being drunk. He had just completed his sentence this morning on another drunk charge.

BANK CLEARINGS.

A small decrease in bank clearings for the past week ending today as compared with the same week a year ago was reported by the secretary of the Peterborough Clearings House. Clearings for the past week totalled $528,587 while one year ago they totalled $551,857.

AREA REDUCED.

The Department of Public Welfare has reduced the area of Fred McNeeley's inspectorship of municipal relief departments. Part of its eastern frontiers have been clipped off, giving him more time to attend to the main section of which Peterborough is probably the centre.

NO TESTING UNTIL SPRING.

Frank Paterson, Department of Agriculture representative for Peterborough told members of the County Council Wednesday that Galway and Cavendish townships would be gazetted soon, but no T.B. testing of cattle would be started until spring. Work of testing herds is progressing in four townships in the county at present.

EXTEND HIGHWAY 30.

Reeve Seeney of Havelock asked the County Council to support his motion that the continuation of Highway 30, north of No. 7 Highway at Havelock be taken over as a secondary road by the Department of Highways. Reeve Isaac Anderson of Belmont seconded the measure, and it carried unanimously. The road would link Havelock with Apsley and Burleigh.

ESCAPES WITH BRUISES.

Roy Brooks of Young's Point sustained bruises and shock and his car was damaged to the extent of approximately $150 when the machine ran off the road on a curve a mile north of Nassau early this morning and turned over. The top of the automobile and the windshield were badly damaged. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable Gordon E. Broughton.

SNOW BADLY NEEDED

Unless snow falls within the next two days, large crowds are going to be robbed of an opportunity to witness the first night ski-jumping in the history of Peterborough. Members of the Peterborough Ski Club had planned to use their newly-erected flood lights at the Nassau jump for the first time on Friday night and many a thrill awaits spectators if snow comes before that date.

A CLOSE SECOND

Most often verbal brickbats are hurled at relief committee officials in this and other cities by persons receiving city aid, but the pleasant sound of verbal bouquets was heard in a downtown store here the other day. Several unemployed were discussing relief and admitted that Peterborough dealt very fairly with its reliefees. Toronto was best, according to most, while Peterborough followed a close second.

FIVE WARDENS MISSING

The five members of the 1938 County Council who either dropped out of the municipal race or else were defeated at the polls were all ex-wardens. The five are Charles Tanner; E. N. McDonald, Dummer; John Clarke, Galway; W Griffiths, Belmont, and Roy Brown, Burleigh. The only ex-wardens now sitting in council are Reeve Gifford—of Ennismore and Reeve Anderson of Otonabee.

POOR SPORTSMANSHIP

Top honors in poor sportsmanship and ill breeding shown at last night's hockey game must go to an individual whose identity is not known, but whose idea of fun was to spit from the balcony of the rink down onto the head of the Trenton Fliers' goalie. Following the second period the goalie made a disgusted complaint to rink officials and a constable was despatched to the balcony when the goalie returned to that end of the rink in overtime.

LAUDS ELLIOTT

Reeve Seeney of Havelock paid tribute to Alex Elliott, M.P.P. for his success in obtaining substantial grants from the government during the past year to build a spur road from the county road running north of Havelock into the property of the Canadian Flint and Spar Company. He said there was great possibilities that other mining properties in this section would be developed and the improved roads were an encouragement to mine companies to undertake development.

A rare bird in this part of the country is this white Arctic owl, shot on the outskirts of the city close to the Chemong highway by Clifford Woodcock, 60 Victoria Avenue, seen holding his victim. Cheese Output In District Worth $170,000

Cheese made by Peterborough district factories last year produced a revenue of $170,000 to the farmers who suplied the milk, W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, told the annual meeting of the Cheese Patrons' Association in Frank C. Paterson's office this morning.

"And this district was that much better off because that was $170,000 paid by consumers in another country," Mr. Moore added. He said the factories of his inspectorate manufactured 1,215,000 pounds of cheese in 1938 ,and the price throughout the season as compared with butter prices should convince dairy farmers as a whole that it was decidedly in their interest to associate themselves with the cheese industry.

George A. Elliott of Norwood was elected president for the third successive year. He and his associate officers were all returned by acclamation as follows:

Vice-president, Gilbert McIlmoyl; directors, R. E. Thurston, Bobcaygeon; Charles McNulty, Norwood; Stewart Clysdale, Warsaw; Gordon Fitzgerald of Smith township.

Secretary-treasurer, F. C. Paterson; auditors, Fred Crowe, Dummer and Charles McNulty.

All but one or two of the district factories were represented at the meeting, probably the most largely attended in many years .

R. H. Mayberry's Address

R. H. Mayberry, Ingersoll, director of the Milk Producers' Marketing Board, reviewed the resolutions considered at a meeting of the provincial executive in Toronto Wednesday preparatory to the annual meeting Some of the resolutions proposed that the toll of five cents per hundred pounds be reduced, but as each county receives one-quarter of the tolls collected from its area it was preferable to leave the charge as it is at present. It was felt that the Association could not carry on efficiently with less revenue. The government intends to assume again this year the responsibility for testing milk, a change approved by the executive. The price spread on grades was also favored as a means of encouraging quality.

"We though it wise and sound to ask the federal government to pay a premium on quality of cheese," Mr. Mayberry said. "Within six weeks from the middle of October the price of cheese dropped from 13¾ to 10¼ cents because the cheese market was so much stronger than the price of butter. With the prospect of a rather heavy production of winter cheese and consequent overloading the market with it, buyers decided to bring the price of cheese down in line with butter. The whole dairy market has been affected, and the executive felt the Dominion government would be justified in paying a premium on first grade cheese as a means of stabilizing the dairy industry, inducing more men to stay with the making of cheese and encouraging production of quality cheese."

Mr. Mayberry read the resolution which proposed a premium of one cent a pound on cheese scoring 39 points for quality and a total score of 92 points; two cents a pound for cheese of 40 point on quality and a total of 93 points; and three cents a pound on all cheese making a total score in excess of 93 points. This recommendaton has already been submitted to the Hon. Mr. Gardiner, Minister of Agricuiture, whose reply was that it would be thoroughly condensed by the government.

Mr. Mayberry said another proposal to the provincial government plans more time to be spent in inspection of farms, that is the source of milk production.

Marketing Problem

V. S. Milburn, field man of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers, said the dairy farmer's major problem was that of marketing. "We have proposed to the government to ask for marketing legislation so that an equalization board may be set up with power to levy on every pound of butter fat to create a fund to bonus whatever commodity needs to be bonused to direct the flow of milk into products that can be most readily sold.

Mr. Milburn said that cheese was the safety valve of the dairy industry because it could be sold in the world's market to a better advantage than any other product.

Challenge Tariffs

"Our challenge is to tariffs, and in this connection I am not saying anything about tariffs, but our problem is to bring your unit of labor to a level with that of the other fellow's. Your hour of time is bringing you about an average of five cents as compared with the other fellow's 60 or 70 cents, and secondary realizes today that primary producers have little buying power, and industry as a whole is suffering from that state of affairs. In fact secondary industry is deeply concerned about it and wants to see some substantial improvement. Your duty is to show our governments what is needed, and that is what we are trying to do, but the solution must come from our industry. If anything is said about the cost of organization, just remember that you have been paying a tremendous lot because you have not been organized. You have been taking just what you can get in the consumer's market."

The Board Affairs

Cheese sold on the Campbellford board last year was valued at $428,500 by H. W. Wood, president of the board, and representative of Trent Bridge factory, in a review of the season's operations this morning at the annual meeting here of the Peterborough Cheese Patrons' Association in the offices of Frank C. Paterson.

Mr. Wood said 30 factories sold cheese at Campbellford, 18 from Northumberland, 11 from Peterborough and 1 from Victoria. They made 35,267 boxes of cheese which at the average price of 13½ cents reached a total value of $428,500. With the cheese sold off the board to patrons and so on, the revenue to the industry was close to $500,000. The highest price of the season was 14 7-16 cents and the lowest 10½ cents.

George Van Volkenburg, president of the Northumberland Patrons' Association and Thompson Brade nalso addressed the meeting.

Office Is Stolen

HASTINGS, Mich., Jan. 19.—(CP)—Sheriff's officers here listed an office building today as the latest stolen property to be recovered by their efforts. Walter Rector complained to them several days ago that someone stole an office building from him. The building, 18 by 19 feet, was used as an office on construction jobs. It was found six miles away, but no one discovered who stole it.

Marmora Restaurant Proprietor Describes Attack Made In Preliminary Hearing At Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 19. — Isaac "Ike" Neal, 67-year-old Marmora laborer, was committed for trial at the next court of criminal jurisdiction, by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court held in Belleville yesterday. Neal was charged that he did unlawfully wound one Lem Lung, Marmora Chinese restaurant proprietor on Dec. 10 last, and thereby committed the indictable offence of attempt to murder.

The principal witnesses heard yesterday were Dr. E. R. Frankish, Medico-legal expert of the Province of Ontario, and Lem Lung, Chinese cafe owner, who was allegedly attacked and beaten over the head and face by the accused man.

Dr. Frankish Called

Dr. Frankish, the first witness called, produced the blood-stained clothes said to have been worn by Neal and Lem Lung on the morning of the alleged attack which occurred in the kitchen of Lung's restaurant in Marmora. A hammer, which police say was used in the attack upon Lung and later found in Neal's home, was also introduced by Dr. Frankish.

Dr. Frankish concluded his testimony by stating he had analyzed blood received by him from Dr. G. S. Cronk of this city, which was later stated by the latter to have been taken from Lem Lung. Dr. Frankish could not identify this blood test with the stains on the clothing.

Interpreter Used

"When is the Deloro Mine payday?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"The 10th and 25th of the month," was the reply.

"Yes, up to $90.00 and $120.00."

"What knowledge did Isaac Neal have of this practice?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"He saw me pay out money many times," assured Lem Lung as he went on to tell as to how Neal had come to his restaurant on Dec. 8th and 9th consecutively and requested Lung to open his business early in order to prepare breakfast for himself and three friends.

"Did Neal come in on the morning of the 9th?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"Yes, but he tell me his friends could not come today as they were drunk," was Lung's reply, as he added that Neal came back that night and again ordered breakfast for the morning of Dec. 10th.

Bent Over Table

Lung stated he was bent over a table buttering toast when he was struck on the head from behind. "Did you see this hammer?" asked Mr. Donnan, introducing the hammer presented by Dr. Frankish.

"I see nothing. I was blinded and semi-conscious. He grab me by collar and hit me on face and head many times. I bleeding bad when I shout 'Neal killing me'. Then I run out door and Pat O'Connor take me to doctor," concluded Lung.

Other witnesses testified at the previous sittings of the court, including police officers who arrested Neal and obtained blood-stained clothes and the hammer in question.

Neal was not represented by counsel and did not plead to the charge. When Magistrate Lloyd asked Neal if he had any evidence on his own behalf, the accused answered—"Not now."

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan assured the court he had procured adequate counsel for Neal at his trial, however. The accused man was lodged in the county jail awaiting the next sitting of criminal court jurisdiction.

Lucky Numbers

The lucky prize numbers on last night's. Peterborough Hockey Club programs at the O.H.A. senior "B" game here were 6883 and 7715. The first was for a permanent wave, given by Moore's Beauty Parlor, and the second called for a $5 cash prize, given by Ashmore's Service Station.

The Rambling REPORTERS

SAFETY FIRST

According to Vic Millard it is always best to attach your safety belt when going up in an aeroplane. This writer took his first ride in Lansfield's plane piloted by Ernie Ferguson yesterday and started out with the belt attached. Up in the air rising up to look out this passenger did not feel the tug of the belt. Looking down he noticed the belt unattached. So he very quickly sat down, and proceeded to gain a very firm hold with his hands and feet.—D. W.

LINDSAY

Brawl Suspect Is Nabbed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Jan. 19. — Russell Clarke, who was wanted by the Lindsay police in connection with the bloody brawl at the Hudson home last week, and also with the theft of a quantity of furs from the J. Houzer store, was arrested by Provincial Constable Campbell at Campbellford on Tuesday and will be brought to Lindsay for trial. Beaverton Fire.

The residence of Mrs. A. Edwards, of Beaverton, was partially destroyed by fire Tuesday night. The blaze started from an overheated furnace.

Prayer For Council.

Ex-Warden Martin, of Victoria County, wants the County Council sessions opened with prayer. "I am a strong believer in prayer," said Mr. Martin at the opening session on Tuesday. "If the Lindsay ministers do not want to act, then we should bring a minister from outside of town," declared the ex-Warden.

Want Plowing Match.

A delegation from Victoria County Plowmen's Association waited on the County Council Wednesday and requested co-operation in arrangements for inviting interprovincial plowing match here this year.

Winter School.

Changed Their Minds.

A few weeks ago all but three of the twenty-seven local grocers petitioned the Town Council to pass a bylaw closing such stores on Wednesday afternoon during January and February. The bylaw was passed and advertised and went into force two weeks ago. The council is now faced with another petition, signed by some merchants who attached their signatures to the first petition, asking that the former petition be repealed.

Five-Year-Old Rescues Playmate From Drowning In Trent River

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 19.—When he was trying the ice with a hockey stick, Archie, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William West was nearly drowned Monday, but his parents did not know of the incident until yesterday.

In company with Donald Fairman, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fairman, he crashed through the thin ice of the Trent river eight feet from shore. Young Fairman lay on his stomach and pulled Archie to safety. When the boy reached home soaking wet, he told his parents that he had fallen into a nearby creek, fearing a scolding if he admitted the seriousness of the situation. Donald told a similar story at his home.

Yesterday afternoon, Archie was walking down town with his older sister, Rita, when he admitted the truth. "I didn't fall in the creek at all. I fell in the river," he related.

Did Not Mind Cold Water.

Neither of the boys would talk last night, but they had previously admitted to their parents that they were badly frightened and screamed for help. Archie told his parents that he did not mind the cold water as he did not actually get wet until he reached home due to heavy clothing preventing the water reaching his body until some minutes later. With a nod of his head, he acknowledged that he would have been unable to get out of the water by himself.

Mrs. West said that the boy went in the water up to his shoulders, and that he was fortunate to escape worse consequences. Had he broken through the ice a foot farther out from shore, he would have disappeared, is the opinion of Howard Fairman, father of one of the boys. Teh bank takes a sharp drop at that point, he said.

Five-Year-Old Rescues Chum

Kingston Inspector Is Visiting City

Recently appointed sanitary inspector in Kingston, W. Wallace is spending two weeks in Peterborough studying the operations of the local health department and accompanying Sanitary Inspector Ron MacPherson as he goes through his rounds. Mr. Wallace came to Peterborough at the suggestion of the provincial board of department of health who advised him that he would get a better outline of his duties and responsibilities by watching the work being done here.

C.G.E. Shop Teams Play To Deadlock

Drafting and Porcelains of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League's secondary division, battled to a neat 2-all draw the night before last at the Sacred Heart rink. Rooke and Hough scored for Drafting while Young and M. Collins countered for the other side. It was a clean, close-checking tilt with but two penalties drawn and all players looking good. Probably Rooke, Hough and Palmer for drafting; and M. Collins, Woodcox and Richmond of Porcelain went best in this number. The teams:

Drafting: Goal, Mason; defence, Palmer, Pakenham; centre, Hough; Wings, Preston, Dunsfield; subs, Rooke, Shiner, Ellis, Edmondson, Collins.

Porcelain: Goal, Maher; defence, Johnston, English centre, J. Collins; wings, M. Collins, Woodcox; subs, Norris, Bucknell, Richmond, Young.

Referee, Cy Whatley.

CORRECT VOTE

In the voting for the Warden at the first session of the County Council Tuesday, two names were left off the list of those who voted for Reeve Shearer of Harvey. Ten members favored Reeve Milby of North Monaghan who was elected and eight voted for Wallace Shearer as follows: Reeves Gifford, Seeney, Martin, Curtain, Coughlin, Mann, Isaac Anderson and Shearer. Today two members were added to the Fish and Game Conservation Committee of which Reeve Shearer is chairman. The two new members are Reeves Curtain of Galway and Gifford of Ennismore.

Work Started On New Forest Highly Lauded

A vote of confidence and commendation was unanimously endorsed by members of the County Council this morning in the committee managing the County Reforestation Project. Warden Milby moved the motion which was seconded by Deputy Reeve Johnston of North Monaghan, and practically every member voiced ligh praise of the venture and the progress being made.

Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee, chairman of the Reforestation Committee explained the steps which had been taken to complete the block of property. Several small parcels had to be acquired so that the area would be properly filled out. He asked that the committee be given authority to purchase any small parcels whenever the time was ripe.

Reeve McCall of Asphodel said he had been over the property and was thoroughly satisfied with the way things were shaping up. The original motion giving permission to acquire the 2,600 acres was broad enough to take care of any minor extensions, but Reeve McCall explained the committee wished the council to know exactly what was taking place.

Reeve Gifford said he was in favor of cleaning out some of the fallen timber because it could be turned into money and represented a fire hazard. Reeve Isaac Anderson of Belmont said he was just getting acquainted with the project, and he recommended that a fire break be cut around the entire forest as a safeguard against a timber fire which could be disastrous if it gained much headway. The forest is well supplied with water from streams which criss-cross the property and this condition, would greatly facilitate fire fighting, Reeve W. A. Anderson said.

Reeve Martin of Dummer who is thoroughly familiar with the forest said the county has a property, they need not be ashamed of. "In a very few years this forest will have a great deal of mature and valuable timber.

Appropriation Made

On motion of Deputy Reeve Johnston and Deputy Reeve Read, the sum of $3,000 was placed in the estimates for reforestation purposes, and the committee was authorized to purchase any fire fighting equipment which they believed was required to give the necessary protection.

Criminal Traits Be Ascertained At An Early Age

Criminal traits in a man's or child's make-up can be ascertained before he has committed any crime, was the claim made for phrenology by Professor James Strange, who spoke at the Public Library last night on "Understanding Ourselves."

Professor Strange claimed that no person is criminal by nature, but rather through unbalanced education and improper understanding by his associates. He said that criminal tendancies grow in such persons, can be detected through phrenology and checked by correction of education and home treatment.

The lecture was sponsored by the Barnardo Old Boys club of Peterborough. Profressor Strange said he is an old Barnardo boy himself, that he had received his apprenticeship with a family at Omemee, Mr. and Mrs. John Downer. In the course of his address he paid high tribute to the late Dr. Barnardo. "He was slated to be a medical missionary to China, but his destiny was that he became the foster father of little boys and girls who had no place to call their own or who were desti.ute and in need of sympathy." He said the founder's great aim had been fulfilled, that more than 40,000 of his wards are now in Canada and that the great majority of them are able to walk as equals with Canadian men and women. "They have achieved a fine record considering their background and opportunities," he said.

Only One Of Its Kind

The Peterborough club is the only one of its kind in all Canada, he believed. He told of establishment of a Peterborough home for boys and girls more than half a century ago, and how it was later moved to Toronto. Professor Strange has been in Canada for the past 27 years, said that he has spent the past 10 years in research in character analysis through phrenology. He will be in Peterborough for an undetermined length of time.

He said that each individual is endowed with one or more talents, that they will stand revealed through phrenology. In such fashion, phrenologists can determine what profession would best suit any individual. The artist, the writer, the sculptor, the farmer, the laborer, all have different types of head, he claimed.

Truck Is Damaged On Lakefield Street

A truck belonging to W. H. Lean of Haultain was badly damaged in an unusual manner on Queen street in Lakefield on Tuesday afternoon when it skidded off the centre of the road, after the driver had been flagged down by Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton, and struck a culvert.

The officer was checking up on the loads carried by wood trucks and states that when Lean was several hundred feet away he signalled him to stop. The driver, he says, did not slow down until within one hundred feet of him and then slammed on his brakes with the result that the big truck slid off the crown of the road and down the sloping side into a culvert.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, is on her way to the Manor, the luxurious home of the wealthy Witherspoon family. She has agreed to take the place of her friend, Kitty, for a week, running the private salon of old Mrs. Witherspoon, an eccentric semi-invalid. The Witherspoon chauffeur takes her to the Manor, where she meets the housekeeper and then the parlor maid. Before retiring Elsie is told to change into her uniform to give Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., her nightly facial. She meets her maid, Eliza. Elsie finds her employer is a withered old woman with a sadly misplaced sense of vanity. After bumping into Mrs. Witherspoon, Jr., in the darkness of the salon, Elsie is awakened in the middle of the night by a falling chair in the same room.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER SIX

IT WAS a long time until I slept again. For hours, it seemed, I lay listening to the sound of my heart — and for another sound — the opening and closing of the outer salon door! Presently, and the clock on my bed table chimed two, I heard that for which I waited. Stealthy footsteps crossed the tiled floor of the lobby. The door opened and closed. The intruder had gone.

I made up my mind to question Mrs. Greely in the morning, but when morning finally arrived I had changed my mind. After all, the salon was public property to members of the household and guests at the Manor. Doubtless mine was not the only key to the beauty parlor.

In the bright, cheering sunlight I could laugh at my midnight fears. My burglar had been no burglar at all, but more than likely one of the ladies who had, perhaps, run out of face cream. And in the excitement and hurry of the afternoon rush I completely forgot the incident.

Mrs. Greely had not exaggerated when she had said that Saturday would be a busy day. It was, and with a vengeance! There was work enough for three operators, and all on my shoulders. By lunch time I was a wreck, and by evening my shoulders ached, my brain in a whirl and my legs like chunks of lead fastened to my body.

The morning began well enough with Miss Daphne, "Daffy" she was called, arriving ten minutes early for her appointment. I liked her immediately, she was so friendly and obliging.

"Take your time," she said as I scurried about to get things ready. "Beastly bore, this grand ball, but grandmother insists."

"Must be a wonderful affair," I remarked, and she made a faint moue. She had an interesting, impish sort of face, and her eyebrows darted upward in the centre and her nose tilted ever so slightly. She was not pretty by accepted standards, but she was young, not more than 19, and she had lovely skin—pale golden and quite flawless. It was her hair, the color of carrots, and her long green eyes that gave her color. She looked rather a tomboy, for she was slim and slight.

"Ready," I said, and she moved to the chair indicated. I gave her a shampoo and began on her nails while she was under the drier. She had nice hands, short and square and capable. When her hair was dry, she parted in in the middle and brushed it furiously.

"Can't be bothered with a wave," she explained carelessly. "Too much trouble."

"You don't need a wave," I told her, and it was true. Straight hair suited her.

She sat down again and I went on with the manicure.

"What did you think of grandmother?" she said suddenly, and, glancing up, I surprised a tense, taut expression on her face.

"Why—why, she is quite marvelous for her age," I replied, scarcely knowing what to say. You cannot tell a granddaughter that you believe her grandmother a dying frightful woman.

"You didn't think she looked—ill?"

"Ill? I swallowed. Her voice sounded like her face had looked—tense. "Well, of course, at her age—"

"Yes, yes, she's quite old." She seemed oddly relieved. "I keep forgetting she isn't so young any more."

"Bright or dull finish?" I queried, and she said she would have the bright.

"She'll be in her glory tonight," she said presently.

"I expect she will," I knew that she was thinking of the old lady. "I imagine she enjoys parties."

"She's mad about them. Mad!" She laughed shortly. "Tonight is something special. The sacrificial goat, you know."

The sacrificial goat! Now what had she meant by that All day, off and on, I pondered the phrase. A grand ball and a goat! It did not make sense. But I had no chance to ask for an explanation, for the outer door opened and a tall woman in a red satin morning gown came into the salon.

Although no longer young, she was a beautiful woman. She had curling hair dressed low upon her neck and black eyes as big as dollars. Her figure was svelte and full-bosomed, and her lips were large and sensual. When she moved I understood what the song meant—you know the one about "a dream walking"? That was the way she walked, slowly and smoothly and like a dream. She made Daphne appear young and awkward—I thought together they reminded one of a colt and a blooded mare.

"Good morning, dear child." The newcomer's voice was deep and rich and far down in her throat.

"Hello, Della." Daphne did not sound pleased. She was frowning and looking down at her hands.

"Getting beautiful for the fray?" And the way she said it it sounded mean and nasty.

"Hardly that. I'm still at an age when a lick and a promise does very well."

"Really!" Dull color flooded the woman's cheeks. "Rudi is waiting for you in the breakfast room," she said. "I left him there fuming. No fun being third party to a pair of lovers, you know."

"Lovers?"

"Glad and Jeff, darling. They were billing and cooing. Too romantic, and so early in the morning!"

"How interesting!" Daphne spoke lightly, but she was not pleased. I could see that. Her eyes were clouded and angry. I wondered who Rudi was, and Glad and Jeff. Well, maybe I would find out.

"And where is our precious flower, the divine Reginald?" Daphne said after a moment. "Billing and cooing with, shall we say, an unknown party?"

"Really, my dear" — the Della woman's laughter rippled musically—"really, you do despise poor Reginald, don't you And he quite admires you. The athletic type always appeals to him. Odd, isn't it?"

"Very." Daphne arose. "I must be running. See you at lunch."

"So sorry"— was there a shade of triumph in her tone? — "I'm lunching in town with your father."

"So long, then.. Thanks, Miss Ritter. See you later." She pressed a dollar bill into my hand and banged the door shut—loudly.

"Sweet child," murmured Della. "I'm very fond of her—very."

I said nothing. I did not like this Della Craig. Broadway actress or no Broadway actress, she was plain C-a-t! I washed her hair quickly. Once a bit of soap fell into her eye and she said: "Damn!" and gave me a dirty look. She knew that I was wise to her. Women can always tell. She was hard to please when it came to setting the wave—she had ideas about this and ideas about that.

"I suppose you think me a frightful nuisance," she purred. "Really, I should know by this time what to expect—in a country town, you know!"

"I do my best work when the hair isn't quite so thin on top." I gave her back as good as she sent. High hat me, would she? Not much!

"My hair is unusually thick!" she snapped, and I hid a smile and thought what a fool I was to let a female like her upset me so.

I did her nails while she leafed through the pages of a movie magazine. She had a word for all the actress—a bad word. I let her rave on, for she was beginning to amuse me.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a young married woman, very happy except for one thing. I am a social flop and I don't know why. I seem unable to make friends. My husband is a sociable soul and loves to entertain and so do I, but, although we give innumerable parties that people come to and seem to enjoy, they never invite us to their homes. For two years I have made a wreck of myself, getting up good dinners and lunches and suppers that others ate, praising the food and saying what a good time they had, without practically any return of invitations. I feel that I cannot go on this way; that it is undignified to thrust myself on people who evidently don't want me. What can I do about it?

ANSWER:

I think you must have got into a crowd that is singularly lacking in knowledge of the social amenities. A chop for a chop is the rule of good breeding the world over and if you accept the hospitality of others you must return it if you possibly can.

It looks to me as if these acquaintances of yours who come and devour your good food and have good times at your house, yet never ask you to their parties, are simply a lot of deadbeats who are sponging on you, and that instead of trying to cultivate them you will be wise to drop them and make friends in a more appreciative group.

But, all the same, if you do not click and the people you know are not anxious to include you among their guests, it is a good thing to sit down and have a heart-to-heart session with yourself and ask yourself why. Perhaps you can discover in yourself just what it is that makes you persona non grata to others.

I know a woman, for instance, who is good and sweet, kind and very hospitable. She entertains beautifully and people flock to her parties, but they never ask her to any of theirs, except their big affairs. The reason of it is that she talks too much. She ruins a dinner party by monopolizing the conversation. Nobody else can get a word in edgewise, and as what she has to say is confined exclusively to her own family and affairs every one is bored to tears.

I know another woman, very intelligent, and who also gives lovely parties to which people go, but who is seldom asked to theirs because she argues about everything on earth and disagrees with every one on every topic. You can't say it is a pleasant day without starting something with her and, as she has a loud shrill voice, she turns the most harmonious gathering into what sounds like a cat fight.

I know other women who ruin parties by bragging about their children, their cars, their clothes. Others who think it witty to be sarcastic and make wisecracks at the expense of others. Women who tell their grievances and their secret sorrows to the public. Women who bawl their husbands out. And all of these are left out when hostesses make out their invitation lists.

Maybe you are one of these and can correct your fault. Any woman who is a good housekeeper has the first aid to popularity.

• • • • • •

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am 23 years old. Have been married three years and have a baby. I had gone out with my husband two years before we were married and he treated me like a gentleman in every respect. Was kind and considerate and never displayed any temper. But as soon as we were married he became a different person. While we were still on our honeymoon he struck me and ever since he has been beating me when he felt like it. When the baby cries he spanks her brutally. I spoke to his mother about it and she says that his father has treated her the same way, and his brothers beat their wives, and that I would be better off without him. But what can I do? I have no one to turn to. My parents are dead and I have no close relatives. I have no trade or profession and only three-and-a-half years of high school. My husband doesn't drink, which makes his conduct all the more hard to explain. What should I do?

BROKEN-HEARTED WIFE.

ANSWER:

You are only 23 and have probably a long life before you. You can't spend the years that lie between you and the grave in being beaten up. No wife is called on to stand that and so you had best have a showdown with your husband and find out whether he means to treat you decently, or whether he considers it a husband's privilege to amuse himself by mistreating a helpless woman and baby.

Inasmuch as he does not drink, his brutality may be his way of getting rid of you, and in order to get you to give him a divorce he may be willing to pay for a course of schooling for you in some trade by which you can support yourself. You've got that idea to trade on anyway, for very few men are willing to be publicly branded as wife-beaters, as he would be if you had enough spunk to have him arrested the next time he strikes you.

There is a little book called "We Are Forty and We Found Jobs" that you can get from the library that will tell a great deal about how to get employment and how to choose an occupation.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have fallen in love with a nurse whom I met in a hospital recently when I was recovering from an illness. She is charming and intelligent. In short, all that a fellow wants in a girl, but she is older than I am. Does that make any difference? J. A. G.

ANSWER:

Yes, son, it makes a lot of difference at your age. If you were in your thirties, it wouldn't make any difference if the girl was four or five years older than you because you would be mature, your tastes formed and you would know what you wanted in a wife. And, furthermore, people who are really grown up are all about the same age, anyway, and think alike and want to do the same things.

Dont take your falling in love with the nurse too seriously. Every patient does that. It is a part of the cure. And the nurses are wise enough to take all the patient's vows of devotion as the vagaries of a sick man that he will forget as soon as he gets well.

By careful nursing you may be able to arrest this dread disease in its first stage, which is like a severe cold affecting eyes, nose and throat.

Our 32-page booklet describes symptoms, gives specific treatment for the different forms of distemper and other common dog ailments. Be on the safe side. Have this valuable guide on hand. It deals with feeding, training and housebreaking, too.

Looking Back
On This Date

Once again the hand of time has added another year to the life of Sir William Mulock, and Canada will send congratulations and good wishes to this Grand Old Man, born at Bond Head Upper Canada, Jan. 19, 1843, who today passes his 96th birthday, seemingly as active in body and mind as he was a quarter of a century ago. Indeed, except that he is gray now, we who knew Mr. Mulock as postmaster- general in the Laurier cabinet in 1896 marvel at his perennial refusal to grow old.

The only member of the original Laurier ministery surviving, Sir William has been long divorced from politics, yet we of the Old Guard may hope that he is finding time to write his autobiography and recall some of the many striking incidents in politics in which he took part. His 30 years on the bench divorced him from public life; yet as an onlooker he can, with absolute frankness, recall the stirring days in parliament prior to 1896 and his strenuous endeavors to reform the Canadian post office and make it worthy of both the dominion and the empire.

Imperial penny postage and the Pacific cable are two great landmarks in the development of the British commonwealth of nations, which must for ever be identified with the name of William Mulock. Perhaps, however, his greatest personal pleasure has been in his duties as chancellor of the University of Toronto in which capacity he has devoted time and money to improve the opportunities of the young of Ontario.

William Mulock as a boy welcomed the then Prince of Wales (later Edward VII) to Canada in 1860; in a few months he will, D. V., be among the chief of those who will welcome to Canada George VI and Queen Elizabeth, the first reigning sovereigns to visit us. What a contrasting picture he can draw for their majesties.

Flowers and cablegrams and letters will fill Sir William's home today. But they will represent only a very small part of the good wishes from millions of Canadians unable to say, "Many happy returns," in person.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

A cold winter wind was blowing among the trees in the garden. From the window Knarf and Hanid could see the trees tossing their bare branches. But on the elm tree near the garden wall they saw one last leaf. It was hanging on with all its might.

"I wonder why it's still there when all the other leaves have gone," Hanid said.

"It doesn't want to leave the old tree," said Knarf. "It's afraid of being blown away by the wind."

"But it shouldn't be afraid. The wind isn't going to harm it."

Snow Will Cover It.

"No," said Knarf. "The wind will just blow it down to the ground near the trunk of the old tree where all the other leaves are lying. Then it will lie very quietly. And when the snow comes, they will all be covered and warm."

They saw one last leaf.

"Just look how it is tossing! But still it won't let go."

"It is thinking of what a fine time it had all summer on the tree," said Knarf. "It remembers the time when it was a bud and how it opened up into a bright green leaf. It remembers how the birds came and perched on the branch where it was standing, and how they chirped and sang. It remembers how the children played under it. It remembers the flowers that grew in the garden, and the green grass, and the daisies and the buttercups. But they're all gone now, too."

"If only it wouldn't be afraid. It looks so sold and lonely on that tree. It ought to know that all the other leaves are happy now where they've gone. The wind doesn't bother them any more. And when the spring comes and the sun is warm again, they'll be lying in the green grass, with the tree right above them. It will protect them. I do hope it lets go."

"Look!" criew Knarf. "It has just let go now!"

Sure enough, the leaf let go. The wind caught it up and carried it down to the ground, right near the trunk of the old tree. And it lay very quietly ,and I hope it is happy.

Dr. Barr's Book Is Found To Be Real Gem

(By E. W. Young.)

I have been asked by the Peterborough Ministerial Association to review the book 'Torch Bearers of Recovery,' by Rev. A. T. Barr, Ph.D., of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. It has been a great pleasure to read this interesting little book, which is the second work of its kind that its author has published within the last two years. One cannot but feel a sincere admiration for the industry of a city minister who can find time to write books amid all the varied demands of a large congregation. This book is, in the writer's judgment, a considerable advance on the former publication, the author has found his wings, and at times soars to considerable heights, though never so far as to be remote from the earth.

The thesis of the book: It is written to young people, and in the opening sections one finds impassioned appeal to them to cultivate the great virtues whose titles stand at the head of the different chapters. The thesis underlying the book is that the world has gone astray; people have wandered out into the night, and the way back is by the cultivation of such qualities as enthusiasm, the sense of duty, the open mind, the simple life, and generosity, to name five out of the nine watchwords stressed by the author. It is, says Dr. Barr, in the return to these virtues which we have lost, to some extent, that recovery from our lost estate will eventually come. The popular clamour of the hour, he says, is in other directions. People are asking for this new legislation and that other, and speak as if new laws would bring in the return of prosperity and satisfaction. We believe that the author is right in his main contention. Good laws require good men to carry them out, and until we have a better type of human nature we cannot advance in our civilization.

Its plan: The author selects one of the lesser known characters of the Bible as the central figure of each chapter. Thus we have the story of Epaphroditus, who undertook a dangerous mission to Rome to see Paul in prison; Annanias, the youth who was sent to see the apostle after his conversion; Luke, the beloved physician who, without thought of reward, accompanied him even into the prison house in Rome. Young people who read this book wil lcome into touch with these seemingly unimportant Bible characters and find that there were fine qualities in their lives.

The background of the book: Every book has a background, which gives indication of the amount of study that was necessary to produce it. An author's mind is generally stimulated by others who have written on similar themes. There is evidence here of considerable reading of the best religious literature. There are frequent references to Augustine, one of the saints of the early church. We are told the story of the Parobolaric who in the fourth century were dedicated to the task of healing the sick. One finds apt discussoins of the labours of John Knox in Scotland, David Branierd, apostle to the American Indians, John Calvin, the reformer at Geneva, Luther, Horace Bushnell, W. H. Myers, Karl Barth, John Ruskin, John Wesley and other celebrated men who helped to mould the thought, and shape the lives of multitudes of people. Dr. Barr writes with intimate knowledge of these men, knowledge which has been gleaned by wide reading, and careful study.

Digging For a Miner

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 19 (AP).—A crew of 75 rescue workers, equipped only with hand shovels, toiled today in an attempt to reach a 21-year-old coal miner entombed since yesterday beneath tons of rock and dirt in an independent mine at nearby Jessup. Little hope was held, however, that he was alive.

The young miner, Michael Anbrasko, was trapped by a roof cave-in when a mine car overturned and knocked down a supporting pillar. Five companions escaped.

Uncle Sam's Nieces Study Flying As Air Strength Grows

With United States planning huge increases in its air forces as part of new defence plans, Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews are drilling for the job of manning the flying armada. The Lake Erie College for Women, Painesville, Ohio, has instituted a class in aviation for its students and here are some of the girls attending the course. At TOP LEFT Marion Wagner, of Erie, Pa., is busy with pliers as she does ground work in the mechanical shop; at RIGHT Janet Beech, of Indianapolis, Ind., adjusts her parachute before going aloft for a training flight. Pilot-Instructor Ray Porter demonstrates the correct technique in spinning the propeller to Margaret Newman, of Detroit (Lower LEFT), while the class looks on, and at TOP, CENTRE, Mrs. Ruth P. Bartlett, head of physical education at the college, watches as Miss Newman gets instrument instruction from the teacher.

Most Encouraging Report Read At Knox Church Annual Meeting

Evidence of health, growth and progress was the predominating feature which characterized the annual meeting of the Knox United Church congregation, held in the lecture hall on Wednesday evening. At the close of the meeting those present felt and expressed a renewed zeal for the work of the Kingdom as it presents its challenge to the Church of Christ.

With Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt presiding, and J. W. Byers reappointed to the office of secretary, the business was introduced by a message from the session, read by Arthur Pitchford, the clerk. Mr. Pitchford reported that during the year 41 had been received by profession of faith, 12 by certificate, and 4 had been reinstated—a total of 57. As against this, 9 were removed by death, 5 by certificate, and 28 names had been transferred to the appendix roll. The minister had officiated at 15 baptisms, 17 marriages, and 22 funerals.

Howard Clegg reported on the finances of the church. As against last year's bank overdraft of $152 with expenses less than in 1938, the treasurer was able to show a credit balance for the year of $89 and $200 principal paid on the mortgage of the church. Mr. Clegg paid tribute to the Women's Association for their help and also expressed his gratification that the church was measuring up to his three-year plan, outlined last year, for an increase of $1,000 over a three-year period.

Following this, the various Women's Missionary organizations reported. The W.M.S. of Knox reported through its secretary, Mrs. Long, a profitable and constructive year of work. In addition to the regular studies in missions and temperance, the society had furnished bales of clothing valued at $53, and had oversubscribed their allocation, sending the Presbyterial treasurer $215. Miss Mary Morton reported for the Helen Roger Auxiliary. The auxiliary has supplied bales and toys valued at $27 and has sent in $173 to the Presbyterial treasurer. Miss Gladys Gerrard reported for the Frances Watt Mission Circle—that they had captured the efficiency banner of the Presbytery for increased membership, attendance, givings, etc., and had sent in $54, thus oversubscribing their allocation. Under the capable leadership of Miss Barrer, the Mission Band reported progress in many activities and has sent $18.90 to the wider work of the church in missions. Miss Jean Trotter reported for the C.G.I.T. which is affiliated with the W.M.S. That group has raised $52.40 since meetings were opened in September.

It should be added that in the above reports emphasis is placed upon the financial showing of these societies. The actual reports, however, stressed a spiritual atmosphere and fellowship for which there can never be any figures. It is the regret of this reporter that he cannot convey to the public more adequately these most encouraging evidences of what is essential in the true work of the church. This thought, too, was expressed by William Herd in his written report of the activities of the Sunday school. Due to the absence of Mr. Herd in Toronto, the report was read by Stewart Thexton. The school shows an average attendance of 170 with receipts amounting to $362.76 and expenses $325.82, and in addition $68.76 have been subscribed to misisons. Mr. Texton also reported for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund. He reported that though $100 had been added to the former allocation, the total sum had been reached, and $707 forwarded to Dr. Laird.

Many and varied were the activities of the Women's Association of Knox Church. Miss M. L. Armstrong, secretary, reported on the social and spiritual activities of the organization, while Mrs. M. J. Laing read the treasurer's report. Total receipts amounted to $1,324.72, and expenditures $1,013.49. Of this latter sum $355 had been sent to the managers, and $272.25 paid on interest on the mortgage. The W.A. has a bank balance of $311.23.

The report of the Knox Dramatic club was submitted by J. Howard Hall, showing receipts of $108, and a balance of $2.11. This club was able to turn over $75 to the Management Board.

Knox Bowling club reporter, Alderman McCannan, even submitted figures on the amount of granite rolled by the members. He reported receipts totalling $51.50 and a balance of $11.60. Ormond Benson reported that the Badminton club had received over $30 in fees and has a balance of $7.60 on hand. Miss Mary Morton reported receipts of $45.40 for the choir, and bank balance of $3.25.

Refreshing, too, was the report of the Junior congregation, with no financial statistics, but showing a membership of 100 and an average attendance of 32. The work of Mrs. Spicer and Mr. Pitchford was highly commended in this regard.

J. W. Byers brought in the secretarial report of the Board of Managers. Mr. Byers was greeted with applause—a tribute to his now over 30 years activity in that capacity. Appreciation was also expressed by the meeting of the services and activities of its organist and choir master, W. R. Potter.

Following these reports the following officers were elected for the following year: To the Board of Managers, Mr. J. W. Byers, Mr. John Allen, Mr. James Jackson, Mr. James Gerrard, Mr. Harold Fry and Mr. Dan. Campbell. Mrs. Harold Fry was elected representative to the Anson House, and Mr. H. McCannan and Mr. John Allen to the Y.M.C.A. Mr. J. F. Morrison and Mr. A. Sanderson were elected representatives to the Bible Society, and Messrs. Arthur Pitchford and Allen White were appointed auditors. Messrs. H. McCannan, A. Pitchford, H. Clegg, F. Morrison and Rev. V. Zufelt were named as a committee to prepare the way for the erection of a suitable memorial to the memory of the late Rev. Dr. J. A. McKenzie in Knox Church.

After the meeting had adjourned the ladies served tea and a delightful lunch. The meeting closed with the benediction.

Downeyville Proud Of Its New Warden

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, Jan. 19.—The newly-elected warden of Victoria County, Joseph Guiry, took his seat Wednesday in Lindsay and was cheered by a large crowd, his neighbors from Downeyville and all the township council being present. Westwood Institute Plans Euchre Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Jan. 19. — The January meeting of the Westwood Women's Institute was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Town Hall. The president, Mrs. J. Clysdale, presided with twenty-two members in attendance. Plans and final arrangements were made for a euchre card party to be held on Wednesday evening, January 25, and several committees were appointed to be responsible for the success of the evening.

A number of letters of appreciation for Christmas cards and remembrances were read by the corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Wood, and the president. Answers to the roll-call were given by reading a meat recipe or presenting a quilt block pattern. Current events were read by the president in the absence of Mrs. D. N. Cameron. An interesting contest prepared by Mrs. Millar was won by a group including Mesdames R. Wilson, F. Faux, F. Birdsall, and S. Graham.

The feature of the meeting was a paper on the canning and preservation of meat, prepared by Miss Edith Bray and given by Mrs. F. Faux.

Following the National Anthem, dainty refreshments were served by the group of which Mrs. F. E. Birdsall is convener.

We Noticed

....Do you get that "lower than zero" about your clothes after the holiday rush? If you feel its a mite early to burst forth in print (altho it's being done), take yourself by the hand and go on a neckwear binge! You will see beautiful things to adorn your neck to scare away the doldrums on winter. wardrobes, and take a new and exciting lease on life!

✧ ✧ ✧

....Close your eyes—now open them and behold! Dainty white organdy fichus with the val edging your grandmother wore are charmingly feminine and so flattering on a black dinner or daytime dress. Berthas are fashionable again, and delightful affairs in gorgettes, or embroidered organdy with val insertions and edging, will make you feel, and look, demure and quaint.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Should you feel an attack of "petticoat fever" coming on, remember there's a reason for it this year—there are lots of adorable petticoat dresses with cute touches of white at the neck being shown. Why not buy some embroidered batiste by the yard and sew it on the full skirt of your pet dark dress?

✧ ✧ ✧

....Color is important in Spring neckwear, also. Adorable crisp bows in jonquil yellow, larkspur blue, or carnation pink piqué will do wonders for your wardrobe. Try them in amusing ways; one pinned on your dress and another perched on your hat, or the lapel of your dark winter or spring coat.

Ambitious Program Planned For Presbyterial

Conference groups will also be led by their respective secertaries, while at the evening session Miss Martha Coutts, B.A., missionary from West China, will bring a stirring message upon this troubled area.

A fine musical program will be given to intersperse the reports and financial items. A feature of special interest to study book leaders will be the pictures shown on the study for the coming year. Dinner and supper will be served by George Street Auxiliary at a nominal fee.

Miss D. Brandon Visits In South Africa

An interesting article taken from the social column of a Rhodesia newspaper tells of an interview with Miss Dorothy Brandon of Toronto. Miss Brandon is a niece of Mrs. Thomas Brown, 375 Downie street, and of Mr. Wm. D. Morris, 43 Lansdowne street, and has many friends in Peterborough. At the time she was staying with Mr. and Mrs. R. Wentzel, whom she met while making a voyage round the world in the flying boot, Yankee Clipper.

This is Miss Brandon's first visit to South Africa, and she finds the country similar in many ways to Canada, but misses the sharp distinctions between seasons, winter snow, with skiing and sleigh riding, and very hot summers, when aquaplaning is her favorite sport. Autmn, she considers, is the most beautiful time of the year at home.

On her trip round Africa, Miss Brandon was very impressed by the lovely surroundings of Capetown, and she went for long drives in the country. After calling at Port Elizabeth and East London, she stayed a week at Durban, where she spent most of her time on the beach enjoying surfing for the first time. Of all the places she has visited she considers the Drakensberg the most striking and Maritzburg the prettiest.

To those who have an urge to travel and a nose for adventure, the following quotations from this Rhodesia paper will be of keen interest. "In Johannesburg, Miss Brandon has been very busy meeting people and enjoying the gay social round. She was just in time to see the jacaradas in Pretoria"

Next month she will visit the Falls and the Zimbabwe Ruins and, after leaving Rhodesia, hopes to spend some time in Kenya. She will be particularly interested to continue the voyage through the Suez because on her trip round the world in the Yankee Clipper, instead of returning that way to Europe, she went up the Persian Gulf to Basra, Iraq, Bagdad and 500 miles across the desert to Damascus.

In the Clipper, Miss Brandon went from Gloucester, Massachusetts, to Bali, in the Dutch East Indies. From there she left the boat to travel for a year on her own and visited China Japan, the Phillippines and many places in the Far East. After leaving Burma and India, she went to Palestine and Egypt and spent six months in Europe, going from Syracuse through Hungary and eventually to England.

Last May Miss Brandon made her seventh journey to England and spent some months motoring round the country. She also visited Scandinavia and thinks Stockholm, built on its seven islands, one of the most beautiful of modern cities. Social welfare work there particularly interested her.

Bus transport in Burma is growing rapidly.

Auxiliary Meets In The Parsonage

NORWOOD, Ont., January 19.—Mrs. M. I. Robinson was hostess to the Evening Auxiliary of the United Church for their first meeting of the year at the parsonage on Wednesday night with 28 in attendance.

Mrs. W. B. Tucker opened the meeting and the various secretaries gave their reports for 1938. The installation of the officers for this year was conducted by Mrs. Hugh Robb, president of the W.M.S.

Miss Pauline Weir, the new president, in her opening remarks stressed the importance of our missionary work, pointing out the many ways in which the members may assist. Mrs. John McConnell was chosen as delegate to the Presbyterial meeting in George Street Church, Peterborough, on January 24th. The Bible reading was given by Miss Maizie Buck. Miss Beatrice Borland assisted by Miss Florence Nevins, Mrs. John McConnell, Miss Lila Engisch and Mrs. Iden Bonds, gave a vivid picture of our Home Mission work from the study book. At the close of the meeting lunch was served and a pleasant social time enjoyed.

WOMEN STUDY

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. — (CP). — Women of the Fraser Valley are going back to school this winter. Night classes for the teaching of handicrafts and homemaking have an enrollment of 200.

Girls Are Urged To Study Own Type Carefully

The woman who is determined that she will be more attractive at the end of 1939 than she is right now when the New Year is so very new ought to resolve to study her type more carefully and learn exactly how to buy clothes which are truly flattering.

If, somehow or other, your wardrobe always seems faintly disjointed and you constantly are tired of about half the items in it, perhaps you ought to make a shopping list every four months, actually buying clothes only four times a year, instead of whenever you happen to see something you think you like pretty well.

This way, you won't have a red hat with which not a single dress you own can be worn. Or navy shoes when all of your frocks are black.

Seldom is it advisable to buy anything hurriedly. And remember that the dress which you don't like or are indifferent about until a saleswoman tells you how flattering it is and that you certainly should buy it, is usually a dress that you won't like and wear for years.

Make it a rule not to take any costume that you aren't keen about. Being a polite, considerate customer, doesn't necessarily mean a wishy-washy, easily convinced one.

Whether you like girdles or not, you might as well face the fact that clothes are more flattering to the properly corseted figure, whether that figure is large or small, than to the uncorseted one. And a proper girdle or garter belt keeps stocking seams straighter than round bands of elastic.

You'll walk more gracefully in medium-height heels which have fairly broad bases than in high, slender ones. Save the latter type for dress-up and dancing. Simple, pull-on gloves are your best bet—everytime. And a single piece of pretty good costume jewelery is a better buy than a complete set of an inferior grade.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Good Time Of The Year To Specialize In Desserts

(BY MARY MOORE)

If you are like our little Pete you eat the "vegebul" part of your dinner merely as a short cut to dessert.

Desserts seem to have been chosen luckily in our house this past week or so. It makes me think it is a good time of year to specialize in them. That is, "made" desserts are all right if you serve an ample portion of dad before them, otherwise stay with your fruits, fresh and canned and same time and two kinds of trouble.

Peach Cream Pie

This comes direct from my friend in Cleveland who is one of the best cooks I know.

Line a pie pan with pastry. Blend 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons cornstarch, spread ¾ of this mixture over the pastry. Fill with canned peaches—halves—hollow sides up, edges just touching. Sprinkle with remaining sugar and cornstarch. Carefully pour over it ½ pint of cream putting some in each hollow. Bake in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then at 350 deg. Fahr. until peaches are soft and cream thickens.

Since this has only one crust it is a nice compromise between pie and fruit and is grand to see, especially nice for the host to serve when you have guests.

Desserts using sago effectively are hard to find sometimes. I hope some of the readers who have asked me for them see the following recipe for:

Lemon Pudding

Cook ½ cup sago with 1 cup white sugar and a pinch of salt in 2½ cups cold water in top of double boiler until it is clear. Water in bottom of double boiler should be slowly boiling at all times. Beat the whites of 3 eggs stiffly with 1 tablespoon sugar and pour the cooked sago on them, stirring well. Then add the juice of 2 lemons beat again and pour it all into a wet mould. Make a soft custard of the three yolks with 1½ cups milk 3 tablespoons sugar and the grated rinds of the lemons. When these are beaten together they are stirred over boiling water until the custard thickens slightly and then immediately removed from heat or they will curdle. Serve the custard poured over the pudding topped with a cherry or a touch of whipped cream. This is very good and a nourishing dessert for undernourished children or adults.

Since the recipe for a boiled or soft custard is directly above I would like to insert here the method of making a simple and elegant dessert with canned sliced pineappe and egg whites.

Pineapple Meringues

Drain sliced pineapple very well. Have a slice for each person to be served, also allow one egg white for each person to be served. For each egg white add 2 tablespoons sugar and beat them all until shiny but not dry. Flavor with 1 teaspoon true vanilla. Pile the meringue on the pineapple slices with a spatula, leaving a circle in the centre. Sprinkle chopped nuts or shredded cocoanut over the meringue and place all on buttered cookie sheet. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. Cool but do not chill (or they will be sticky). For serving fill the cavity in the centre with boiled custard (see method in above recipe) OR a few sugared strawberries or lemon cheese or anything you think would be nice.

Caramel Custards, Baked

These delicate little morsels are sometimes considered the test of a seasoned cook when French mothers have been tutoring their daughters in the art all through their 'teens.

Two cups milk, 3 eggs or 6 egg yolks, ¾ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla, pinch of salt. Scald the milk. Put ½ cup of sugar in the frying pan and spread it in a thin layer over the surface. Place over low heat and let stand without stirring until a light brown liquid forms. Be careful not to burn. Divide the caramel into four by pouring it into the bottoms of four custard cups. Beat the eggs or yolks until mixed, all yolks give a creamier custard. Stir the remaining ¼ cup of sugar into the eggs, and salt and vanilla. Add the hot milk gradually while stirring. Pour into the custard cups. Set them in a pan of hot water. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour, test by inserting blad of silver knife into centre of custard. They are done when knife comes out clean. Remove from oven and pan of water immediately and chill. To turn out run a knife around edge and turn out on serving plates. The caramel in the bottom of the cups will have flavored the custards and provides a delicious sauce.

Dr. Moore's Favorite Rice Pudding

Four cups milk, ½ cup packaged brown rice, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, grated rind ½ lemon, 1 egg Wash the rice adding all ingredients (egg being beaten with the sugar) except 1 cup of the milk. Stand dish of rice in larger pan containing hot water and bake 2¼ hours at 300 deg. Fahr. After ½ hour of baking stir pudding and add ¼ cup milk. Do this every half hour until remaining cup of milk is used up. Serve hot with cold cream.

Honey and Almond Pudding

Two cups milk, ½ cup chopped blanched almonds, 3 egg yolks, ½ cup strained honey, pinch of salt, 1½ tablespoons gelatin, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup whipping cream, cubed red jelly (jello dessert). Scald the milk and almonds over hot water. Beat the yolks and combine with the honey and salt and gradually add the scalded milk mixture to them. Return all to doubel boiler and cook stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Soak the gelatine for 5 minutes in cold water and add to the hot mixture in double boiler. Stir until gelatine is dissolved then set aside to cool. When chilled add the vanilla and fold in the cream which has been whipped until stiff. Turn all into wet mould (preferably a ring mould) and allow to congeal. Unmould on large round serving dish and fill centre with cubes of bright red jello dessert or cold soft custard or mashed strawberries or peaches. This is a good looking company dessert.

Apple Fritters (with Lemon Sauce)

Firm, tart, ripe apples, 1 egg yolk, one-third cup milk, ½ cup sifted sugar, 2 teaspoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon baking powder. Peel and core the apples and cut in slices about ½ inch thick. Cut them thicker if the apple seems soft and ring is liable to break. If they have to stand put in 1 quart water with 1 tablespoon salt to keep from browning. Beat the yolk and combine with the milk. Sift the flour with the sugar, salt and baking powder and add to the egg and milk mixture, beating until smooth. Dry the apple rings with a towel, dip into bater and fry in deep hot fat, 375 deg. Fahr., until brown on one side then turn over. Skim out, drain on absorbent paper, dust with powdered sugar and serve hot with hot:

Lemon Sauce No. 2

One-half cup sugar, 1 cup biling water, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, few gratings nutmeg, few grains salt. Mix sugar and cornstarch, add water gradually, stirring constantly; boil 5 minutes, remove from heat, add butter, lemon juice and nutmeg. If well covered this sauce will keep a week in the ice box. Merely reheat it in top of double boiler when needed.

VICTORIAN FRILLS

Queen Victoria's frills are the high style of new play clothes.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Take this play suit South, and bring it back for service with your Spring ensemble. The top is as crisp and fluffy-ruffled as the lingerie blouses already appearing with town's "little suits."

On the beach, or possibly off, you'll fasten the matching, high-waisted skirt (sketched right) around your midriff. The outfit comes in cotton in all white, color or stripes.

Fashion Tips

Sunshine yellow dots the beach in Miami, and all shades of yellow are cropping out in costumes worn at all times of the day, according to this week's reports.

Examples of the adoption of yellow are:

Roman striped accessories with sun yellow frock.

Light yellow sports dress with orange and green raffia belt.

Yellow coat over print dress.

Yellow coat over green dress.

Chrome yellow angora sweater costume.

For evening: Yellow satin gown and another of smoky gray combined with yellow chiffon and yellow fox.

"White with" a contrasting color continues to be a popular fashion in the South, although the newest fashion swing is toward color-and-color contrast for the whole costume. Rust and wine are still the two most important combination colors. Newest-looking and fairly numerous were white with Kelly green, white with purple or fuchsia, and white with mustard or chartreuse.

Husbands As Housewives

Two hundred South Australian men are in the curious position of being working husbands and housewives at the same time.

The husbands, however, are only "part-time" housewives, the status having been conferred on them by reason of their membership of the South Australian Housewives' Association.

The Association, which has 22,000 members, has as one of its aims the elimination of domestic discord by means of co-operation between husbands and wives.

The Secretary of the Association (a woman) said in an interview that South Australian husbands joined because they realized the value of co-operation.

"Of course," she hastened to add, "they are only associate members and have no voting power. But our men members find how to look at women's problems from a different viewpoint and that saves a great deal of domestic discord."

In one quarter it was suggested that the men joined because they received financial benefits. Investigation proved this idea to be erroneous, although in Victoria men members of the Housewives' Association got 15 per cent discount on goods purchases.

SKIRTS TOO LONG

SASKATOON — (CP). — Skirts worn by Canadian girls are too long, thinks Miss Amy Packer of Sydney and Miss I. Nelson of Gilgandra, Australia, school teachers who are here under the teachers' exchange plan. The comment was in answer to Miss Kay Allingham ,a Saskatoon teacher now in Sydney. She told Australians that women "down under" wore their dresses too short.

Skirt Fullness Is Still Popular

Skirts are still swirling, flaring, flowing—if there was any suspicion that the world of fashion was tired of the spreading skirt and hankered after a narrow line, the current openings dispel the idea. Fullness all around, voluminous rippling width, front fullness, back flares, loose pleats, gathers—and newest of all—side fullness. Fullness over the hips at either side, enough fullness to widen the silhouette and leave the front and back flat. It's a formal fashion.

Year Of Progress Is Recorded At St. Paul's Annual Meeting

One of the best attended meetings in years was held on Wednesday evening in the Sunday School Hall of St. Paul's Church, when the members assembled to hear the annual reports and discuss recommendations from various boards. The minister, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, presided, and Howard Macdonald acted as secretary. In his opening remarks Dr. Barr referred to the need for greater co-operation if the future of the church is to be assured. Increases in membership depended on ability to get every Presbyterian who came to the city linked up with the church, as well as those who were lax in attendance. At present there is an average of one child in part to a family, so that increase by generation cannot be depended upon. The report of the Kirk Session, presented by the newly appointed Clerk, W. S. Hill, revealed an addition of 48 members to the roll, which now stands at 1,031. Mr. Hill referred feelingly to the loss sustained in the passing of two esteemed elders, the late Richard Lees, M.A., and J. H. Savigny, and hinted at the probable necessity in the near future of having to add to the number of elders.

Miss Walker, deaconess, reported on her work, showing its variety and interest. Besides visitation of the shut-ins, she also supervises the work in the branch Sunday School, and acts as financial secretary for the Board of Management.

Main interest of the meeting centred on the report of the Board of Management, presented by George A. Macdonald, chairman. It revealed increased givings for the year, but also increased expenditures. A comprehensive report of the condition of the church fabric was also presented, and it was suggested that a maintenance fund be established to which amounts could be added from time to time. This recommendation was endorsed by the meeting. A legacy of $1,000 was received from the estate of the late Mrs. Mabel Rosenburgh, and Dr. Barr reported that another legacy of $200 from the estate of the late Miss M. A. Lindsay would be forthcoming soon. The meeting ordered that the Board of Management be given authority as to the disposition of such, either on mortgage, or to maintenance fund.

Missions Totalled $3,082.43.

Contributions to local church support amounted to $9,112.55, and to the missionary budget $3,062.43. The latter amount was a slight decrease from the previous year, but missionary enthusiasm has not dulled in St. Paul's as was revealed in the subsequent reports of the Women's Missionary Society and the Young Women's Auxiliary, who, by voluntary contribution, without teas, or any other aids, both raised their allocations. The amount raised by the W.M.S. was $1,067.00, and the young ladies raised $100. The Fraser Auxiliary, W.M.S., also reported that their allocation had been reached, amounting to $505.67.

The Ladies' Aid Society were very active during the year. Mrs. William Lyburn reported the completion of a well-equipped kitchen on modern lines, all fully paid for. The ladies also assisted the Managers with a substantial contribution, and aside from a surplus in the previous year of over $400, had a total expenditure of $1,352.56.

E. F. Mason, chairman of the Trustee Board of Nicholls Hospital, gave a comprehensive statement of the conditions of overcrowding at present prevalent and of the necessity for support when appeal is made to the citizens. He outlined the proposals to build additions, and made an appeal to everyone to get behind the Board enthusiastically, and endorse the effort contemplated.

Other reports presented were from the South-end Sunday School, by Miss Elizabeth Walker; Young Peoples' Society, Miss Audrey Ellis; Sunday School, Dr. C. M. Lawrence; Muriel Davis Girls' Auxiliary, Miss Betty White; Presbyterian Girls' Guild, Miss Walker; the choir, Adam Sands; Men of St. Paul's, A. D. McLeish; Boy Scouts, O. M. Steer.

T. H. Taylor was elected a member of the Board of Trustees. Elections to the Board of Management resulted as follows: For three years, W. A. Cochrane, T. A. MacKay, Gordon Hill, Walter Perks, Stanley Couper; for one year, E. H. Howson. The total amount raised during the year was about $17,000.

10 meetings. She referred to the various committees and the splendid work they had done. Among these were the sick and visiting committee, the Look-out, the Flower, the Church Decorating, the Cupboard, the Welfare, the Parsonage and Social committees. Financially the W. A. had a very successful year. Total receipes were $911.33 of which the group raised $569.00. Disbursements totaled $634.82 including $300 to the Board of Stewards and $25 to the Quarter Million Fellowship fund. Assets at the end of the year amounted to $604.47 cash in bank, $650.54 in the bond account, a total of $1,255.01. Mrs. T. Mark report for the Christmas Cheer Fund of the W. A. Sixty family baskets were distributed using up practically all of the $102.16 taken at the special offering for that purpose and the White Gifts from the S.S. valued at $94.40.

At this point in the program Mrs. James Goldie soloist of the church delighted the audience of 200 with two beautiful offerings.

Mrs. W. Dorrington reported for the choir a membership of 60 with an average attendance of 44. Special thanks was tendered to Frank Stevens during the interval of the change in leadership and also to the various committees. A cash bank balance of $135.92 concluded the report.

The Women's Missionary Society reported through its five branches, a most successful year. The parent organization through Mrs. McMillan announced 95 annual and 50 life members with an average attendance of 94. Some 638 sick calls were made and a total of $1,020.76 was raised.

The Evening Auxiliary was reported by Mrs. Charlton McBride, who noted 28 members and average attendance of 17. Meeting the second Thursday evening of each month, a total of $210 was raised, being $20 over the allocation. Mrs. Emerson Hodgins reported for the Twilight Mission Circle with 29 members. Special mention was made of the leadership of Mrs. Dulmage and Mrs. McMillan. The allocation of $100 was raised satisfactorily. Miss Viola Beatty gave a short report on the Fidelis Mission Band, having previously made a very full report to the W.M.S. Thirty annual members and 7 life members was the record here. Since one meeting a month was held in conjunction with the Junior Church, the average attendance was 48. $60 was sent to the Presbyterial treasurer due to the numerous activities. Mrs. Don Munro, reporting for the Baby Band, mentioned 107 baby members and 33 mothers actively interested. The amount raised was $16.08, and balance carried over $7.85.

The Sunday School report was read by the secretary, Charlton McBride. In drawing attention to the great value of the church school the question was pointedly asked, "Where would George Street Church be 20 years from now were it not for the Sunday School?" In June the superintendents, Homer Borland and G. A. Rowe, found it necessary to resign, due to existing conditions. Much credit is due to Mr. Rowe, who rendered invaluable service during the period the Sunday School was without a song leader. 991 members were reported, with officers and teachers numbering 104, with an average attendance of 493. During the year 22 joined the church. There was $620.84 raised for the current needs of the school, 422.17 was given through the King's Bank for missions, the Quarter Million Fellowship fund received $25.83, and various classes raised a total of $289.43, making a grand total of $1,358.27.

The Young People's Association report was read by Miss Ethel Robson, and mentioned a few of the year's highlights. The average attendance at the various meetings was 50. Receipts amounted to $311.50. Among many items of expenditures, $35 was given the board of stewards and $117.36 to missions.

A balance of $37.43 was left.

The C.G.I.T. was given by Ilein Winslow and the boys' work read by the secretary. Both reports indicated progress and financial independence.

The Men's Bowling Club, meeting every Monday night for a social time, the Women's Bowling Club, meeting Wednesday afternoon, the Men's Forum meeting Sunday afternoon, all reported fine seasons. The Second Quarter Club, endeavoring to link up the older young people with the church more closely is making steady progress.

G. C. Staples, secretary of the nominating committee, introduced their report, and upon motion it was accepted and the following elected to the various boards:

Elders for 4-year term: A. Northey, D. H. Kerneghan, H. S. Strong, F. E. Latimer, W. McMillan, F. Stevens, Dr. A. M. Weldon.

Stewards for 4-year term: Dr. H. M. Yelland, Homer Borland, E. E. Lord.

Nicholls Hospital Board: Dr. H. M. Yelland.

William Hall Poor Fund: T. Mark.

Anson House: Mrs. B. Shortly.

Herb. Snelgrove spoke of the untiring efforts of the pastor, Rev. M. C. Parr, in his conscientious leadership in the church's activities. His vote of thanks and appreciation was seconded by A. A. McIntyre and presented to the congregation by L. M. Richardson. The congregation gladly and with great enthusiasm unanimously carried the motion. In reply Mr. Parr thanked the assembly for their confidence and asked for their continued help.

Another year's fine reports were brought to a close by singing "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love," and benediction by the pastor. A social hour was enjoyed as the W.A. served refreshments to conclude the evening.

George Street United Church Closes Year With Nice Surplus

A year of increased activities and increased givings in many of the departments and organizations was reported on Wednesday evening at the annual meeting of the George Street United church presided over by the Pastor, Rev. M. C. Parr, L. M. Richardson was named secretary of the meeting and Homer Borland the press reporter.

Rev. M. C. Parr, in giving his report, spoke of the need for gratitude to God for the excellent reports to be heard of the year's activities. The work of the church speaks for itself and needed no further comment. The size of the congregation and work involved made great demands upon the minister. He made 1306 pastoral calls, many to sick and shut-ins and of necessity Mr. Parr was unable to visit about one-third of the homes. He spoke of his gratitude for the expressions of confidence in him, for the loyalty and co-operation of all the organizations, and of the encouraging attendance at divine services.

Contributions to the Quarter Million Fellowship Crusade enabled the missionary maintenance committee to report their objective of $3,300. Nineteen members passed away during the year; indicated the need for new members to assume their full responsibility in moral and spiritual support as well as in a financial way. Sympathy was extended to the bereaved and Mr. Parr concluded his report by asking for the continued fine cooperation of every member.

1120 Members

The report of the clerk of session, G. C. Staples was largely statistical. 27 were received into church membership by profession of faith and 48 by church letter. There were 43 removals, leaving an increase of 32. At the present time 1120 members, 77 of whom are non-resident, 37 infant baptisms, 7 adult baptisms, 49 marriages. It was noted that during Mr. Parr's pastorate 394 had joined the church, 143 had been baptized, 150 funerals and 146 marriages solemnized.

A. Stewart in reporting for the official board thanked all organizations for their work and co-operation and expressed the hope that some of the organization representatives attend the official board meetings.

Treasurer's Report.

H. G. Walker, treasurer made his report, remarking that the loyalty of the people of George Street made possible the splendid showing of this year. He made special mention of E. L. Sackville, chairman of board of stewards and W. K. McGee, envelope steward, for their untiring efforts.

Current receipts amounted to $9,166.73 for the year with expenditures amounting to $5,034.05 for salaries and $4,151.53 for other expenses. The credit balance carried over into 1939 was $930.52.

Missionary and maintenance receipts were $3,333.18. Receipts from the Stabler estate during the year were $1,500.00 making a total to date from the estate of $43,850.00. George Street Church is in the most fortunate position of having church, Sunday school, parsonage furnishings and equipment valued at $190,000.00 with no liabilities whatever standing against it.

The report of the board of stewards was read by the secretary, Jack Beatty in the absence of the chairman. He spoke of the unfailing co-operation of the stewards and included Mr. McGee and Mr. Walker for special mention. The money raising organizations of the church were thanked for their co-operation to the current funds. The customary thankoffering was not as large as usual because the stewards wished to give full support to the quarter million fellowship crusade. During the year $1,800 was spent on renovating the property, $1,000 of which was repaid to the current fund from the trustee board.

W. A. Report.

Mrs. G. C. Staples, reporting for the Women's Association mentioned the enrollment of 103 members of which an average of 63 attended the

PILE SUFFERERS

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know the real cause of piles is on the inside?

Do you know they can be doctored from the inside

Do you know you must get at and remove the cause of Piles, to get rid of them?

The real cause of piles is poor circulation—a congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel. This makes the veins flabby, full of impure congested blood and weakens the rectal membranes.

So if you would have relief from piles you should use an internal medicine like HEM-ROID, a prescription written by Dr. J. S. Leonhardt. HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving the cause. It stimulates circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel, and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Stores or any other good druggist is authorized to make good our promise to you that if you are not completely satisfied with the results from one bottle, you may have your money back.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

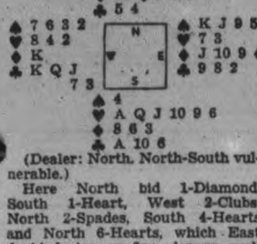
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

ONCE IN A BLUE MOON

A SO-CALLED "trump squeeze" is seen only once in the proverbial blue moon. It is a gorgeous play, really known clearly to only the most skilled cardsmen. It differs from most other squeezes in one respect. If the squeezed player makes a discard from a certain suit, the declarer is put in a position where he can establish a winner there by ruffing the suit, thus disposing of the last remaining card of it held by the defender.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

Here North bid 1-Diamond, South 1-Heart, West 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades, South 4-Hearts and North 6-Hearts, which East doubled. Among fine players, such a double of a slam bid, since so many points are already at stake, usually calls for some lead other than the natural one, its purpose being to help beat the contract rather than increase the value of tricks taken. West, however, made his natural lead of the club K.

In the South a very fine player, Charles Lochridge, winner of many national titles, decided that East probably had the spades covered, so decided to try to build a delayed squeeze. He let West win the first club, then took the second with his A, ruffed a club with the heart K, then ran his hearts, watching discards carefully.

As he played the heart 9 for the eighth trick, he also held the heart 6, three diamonds and his spade, the dummy three spades and three diamonds, one of the latter being thrown on the trick. East now had to choose between his three spades and three diamonds. If he threw one of the diamonds, South's 8 would be the final trick. If he tossed a spade, a lead to the A and a ruff would set up the Q. East picked the diamond. A diamond lead, prepared to finesse, brought the K and A, then the spade A, the diamond Q, a spade ruff and the diamond 8 completed the contract.

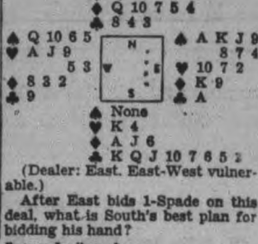
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

After East bids 1-Spade on this deal, what is South's best plan for bidding his hand?

White Fire Cars

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 19—(AP)—White automobiles—instead of red ones—from now on will carry Indianapolis fire department battalion chiefs to fires. Fire Chief Fred Kennedy, decreeing the new color, said the red machines looked so much like taxicabs he was afraid of accidents.

Dairy Farmers Are Urged To Organize

TILLSONBURG, Jan. 19.—V. S. Milburn, of Peterborough, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Dairy Farmers' Federation, was the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Tillsonburg Concentrated Milk Producers' Association here Tuesday.

The speaker, who was introduced by T. Merritt Moore, president of the Ontario association, declared "the problem of marketing is not just, and since other British Dominions are going to regulate supplies to the British market, Canada must fall in line if agriculture is to take its rightful place in Canada."

John Stansell, ex-M.P. for Elgin County was welcomed after recovering from serious injuries and warned the large gathering that organization was necessary for dairy farmers. P. G. Webster, checker of the organization, showed progress by a large chart since organization in 1934. Frank Way, of the provincial executive, was glad to see the entire provincial executive present at this strategic milk producing centre.

Harry Scott, of Norwich, provincial vice-president, predicted that agriculture was on the march and would soon see better times. C. D. Suter, provincial director, of Paris, was confident dairy organizations were winning a great struggle. G. R. Green, agricultural representative for Oxford County, congratulated the officers on one of the best milk producers meetings he had ever attended and with the air of a chart pointed out the progress of T.B. restricted areas in the province.

The 1939 officers were elected as follows: President, Colin Brown; vice-president, Roy Gehring; secretary-treasurer, Arthur Holland; directors, Kenneth Wardell, A. M. Rutherford, James Lowrie, Frank Harris, James Pettman, Robert Martin, Fred Walthers, Ernest Treffrey, Guy Helsdon, and Carman Pratt.

14 Sailors Saved

GIBRALTAR, Jan. 19—(AP). — Lloyd's reported to-day the steamship Waziristan had rescued the crew of the 2,733-ton British freighter Ulmus after a fire had caused the men to abandon the ship near here early this morning.

The Waziristan, also British owned, picked up the 14 men from a lifeboat shortly after receiving an SOS from the burning vessel and brought them to Gibraltar for treatment of minor injuries. Cause of the fire was not explained.

Mr. Bennett Lauded As He Bids Ontario Farewell

Before a dinner gathering of almost 1,700 persons, Rt. Hon. Richard Bedford Bennett, former Prime Minister of Canada, who is leaving to reside in England, said his farewells to Ontario. The testimonial dinner saw representatives of industry, science, church and state laud the former Conservative chieftain as a great Canadian. Mr. Bennett replied with a brilliant speech in which he called upon Canada to mould her future toward a more prominent place in the British Empire and to work individually and collectively for a better and more united dominion. At RIGHT, Mr. Bennett is shown as he delivered his ringing challenge. At LEFT, the former Prime Minister is pictured with Sir William Mulock, former Chief Justice of Ontario, and a lifelong Liberal, whose laudation of Mr. Bennett was a feature of the farewell gathering.

Any European Conflict To See U.S. In It Inside Six Weeks?

Paris, Jan. 19 (CP-Havas)

THE UNITED STATES will intervene in any European war six weeks after it breaks out, the German general staff was informed last week, Genevieve Tabouis, political commentator, wrote today in L'Oeuvre (Radical Socialist).

Mme. Tabouis said the German staff generals received a report Friday of the outcome of the Rome conversations between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini. They were told at the same time that Mr. Chamberlain had received assurances of a virtual United States alliance, as well as aid from Russia, six months ago, Mme. Tabouis said. American intervention in six weeks' time was assured, according to alleged secret German reports.

Mission Circle Meets At Burnham Home

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 19.—Golden Links Mission Circle was entertained, for its initial meeting of the new year, held on Monday at 8 p.m., by the Misses Jean and Mary Burnham, at their home King street, with an encouraging attendance, and the president, Miss Phyllis Kidd, in the chair.

The study book, second chapter, "Planting the Church," was taken up by Jean Burnham, and the devotional service was opened with a solo, "There Were Ninety and Nine" by Leitha Edworthy, Mary Dawson reading the lesson, and prayer being offered by Estella Hetherington, Mrs. D. L. Lunn and Della Mae Sisco. Two new members, Miss Shirley Buckingham, B.A., and Mrs. Leslie Unitt, were enrolled and welcomed.

The talk, given by the president, was on the "Parable of the Lost Sheep," and was both instructive and interesting, the story being previously read by Elsie Theobald. Following the benediction the hostesses served candy and a social hour was enjoyed.

Lone British Paper Would Aid Loyalists

LONDON, aJn. 19—(CP-Havas). —War developments in Spain and Italy's angry warnings to France occupied the attention of the British press to-day.

Conservative organs were guarded in their comments and even among the opposition newspapers The News-Chronicle (Liberal) was the only one which came forward with an energetic demand for a removal of the arms embargo on Government Spain.

The Times (Independent) said, "It is a matter of some surprise indeed that at this crisis in their fortunes the Barcelona Government should still proceed with the release of their auxiliaries (the foreign fighters), even though there are some obvious moral advantages to be gained from it—including the reproach to General Franco that he needs foreign help to become master of Spain."

The News-Chronicle said, "For 30 desperate months the Spanish people have asked, not for any privileges, but for the ordinary, right to which they are entitled as a recognized Government—the right to buy arms where they will.

"In the name of preserving the utterly fictitious non-intervention, it has been refused. It is too late to appeal even now to Britain and France to do, in the interests of freedom and national security, what they should have done in July, 1936."

Wounded Montreal Constable Dies

MONTREAL, aJn. 19 — (CP). — Constable Lucien Bourgela, 42-year-old officer wounded in a gunfight a week ago with a bandit whom he killed, died early to-day in hospital. Bourgela's condition had been so serious since admittance to hospital physicians had not removed a bullet which entered his chest.

The gun battle occurred as Bourgela was about to board a street car to go to his beat in another section of the city. He fought it out with the bandit, identified as 24-year-old Victorian Perreault, who had been frightened in an attempt to hold up an elderly woman storekeeper.

The bandit was the first to find the mark, hitting Bourgela in the chest. But the police officer coolly kneeled on the ice-covered sidewalk and took aim. Two of his six shots hit Perreault. One slug struck Perreault in the right side of the chest and the other directly over the heart.

Rumor Windsors Sail In March For U.S. Visit

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 19. — (AP).—Elsa Maxwell, lecturer and party-giver, said to-day a French nobleman is in Hollywood incognito to arrange for a visit here in March by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. He is Comte Ambrose D.-J. Du Bek, social secretary to the Duchess, known here as "Mr. Luck," Miss Maxwell said.

"It is my understanding the Duke and Duchess expect to sail for the United States in March," she said. "They first will visit the Duchess' former home in Maryland, later will come to Los Angeles and Hollywood, will go then to San Francisco to be guests of the World's Fair and then will return to New York to attend the World's Fair there. The Comte Du Kek was commissioned to come to America to prepare the way for the Windsors."

Film and society notables alike were understood to have offered use of their estates to the visitors.

W.A. President Is Re-elected

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 19.—Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, president of the W.A. of St. Thomas' Church, was hostess for the annual meeting, held at her home on Monday at 8 p.m., with the leader in the chair; Mrs. (Rev.) W. Simpson reading the lesson, and the W.A. Litany being conducted by Mrs. Westmacott.

The election of officers, held in November, was confirmed, Mrs Westmacott being still president; Mrs. John Allen, honorary president; Miss Rose Macnamara, secretary; Mrs. J. E. Allen, treasurer; Dorcas secertary, Mrs. H. J. Russell; Junior W.A., Miss Bella McCorry; Little Helpers, Mrs. J. W. Hilton.

A special vote of thanks was made to Mrs. John Allen, senior, for her practical help financially and through the donation of several quilts she had made.

It was decided to again have the slides covering the study book on India, some Wednesday in Lent.

Mrs. Simpson gave an interesting talk on the convention she had attended at the W.A. House in Toronto, noting that this year is the W.A. Centenary, and outlining some of the plans already laid for its observance.

Miss Macnamara read from the Missionary Leaflet "On This Day of Prayer" that will last from sunrise to sunset as all over the world missionary societies and other groups of women meet in supplication, and at the close, the hostesses served coffee and sandwiches, Mrs. H. J. Russell will be supper hostess for the February meeting.

Drew Asks Probe Of Arms Deals

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Jan. 19. —Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, said in an address here last night it was the duty of Prime Minister Mackenzie King to set up a parliamentary committee, representative of all parties, to investigate all armament contracts.

Discussing the recent judicial investigation of a contract let by the Department of National Defence to the John Inglis Company of Toronto, for manufacture of Bren machine guns, Col. Drew said the report by Mr. Justice H. H. Davis "exonerated no one." The report "merely summed up the facts of the inquiry and placed them squarely before the House of Commons for action."

The address was the fifth made by the newly-elected Conservative leader during a tour of Northern Ontario. Col. Drew spoke twice in North Bay Monday and addressed a Board of Trade meeting here Tuesday and the Canadian Legion earlier last night. His main address was delivered in the Kirkland Lake theatre.

The Inglis Company.

Col. Drew said that when he takes his seat in the Provincial Legislature as leader of the Conservative party he will demand to know why the Ontario Securities Commission has not investigated the affairs of the John Inglis Company. He repeated his demand voiced in North Bay last night that Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie resign.

He declared contracts which should be investigated by a House of Commons committee were an ammunition contract let to the Jannin Construction Company of Montreal; a contract for artillery let to the Dominion Construction Company of Toronto and contracts for airplanes to various firms throughout Canada.

Airplanes contracted for or already delivered to the Department of Defence are inferior to British planes, said Col. Drew. The speed of Canadian warplanes was about 145 miles an hour, compared with speeds of between 300 and 340 miles an hour set by British planes.

Political Meddling To Doom Textiles?

MONTREAL, Jan. 19 (CP)—Canada's cotton textile mills will be operating at a loss and in debt to the banks—as they were prior to 1904—less government interference in the industry ceases, James E. Brooks, Montreal Textile Company executive, said last night at a meeting of the Canadian Purchasing Agents' Association.

"If politicians do not cease this meddling, approximately 15,000 Canadians employed in the cotton mills will be on relief, dole, or some other tax-supported system of keeping bread in their mouths and clothes on their backs," he said.

Between 1894 and 1904, Brooks said, a group of Canadian mills were indebted by more than $4,000,000 to the banks and were on the verge of closing when a group of successful young businessmen came to the rescue.

"Yet as soon as the depositors' money is back in the banks," he said, 'and security given the shareholders, along comes government interference for subtle political gain only, which is just about to put these industrious companies back where they were in 1894 to 1904."

Crippling Rheumatism

Rheumatism leaves in its train distorted joints, crooked limbs, crippled hands, and the intense pain is almost unendurable.

In the beginning rheumatism is often due to dyspepsia or indigestion, for if the digestive organs did their duty there would not be any poisonous uric acid in the blood to sow the seeds of rheumatism.

Burdock Blood Bitters invigorates the system, and helps to eradicate the uric acid from the blood which is the cause of the inflammation and pain.

Gardiner Rejects Hepburn As Political Leader But Upholds Him As Friend

Is Sticking With Principles Of The Party No Matter If The Ship Sinks; Massey Charges C.B.C. Used Politically

OTTAWA, Jan. 20 (CP).—If the time ever comes when Agriculture Minister Gardiner wants to oppose the government on which he is now a member he will resign and work from the outside, he told the House of Commons yesterday.

The Minister was dealing with a statement made by Conservative Leader Manion last Monday that "the talk is he (Mr. Gardiner) was one of the men mixed up with Mitch. (Hepburn) in an attempt to overthrow the government."

"While I sit in the Treasury benches of the Dominion or of any province I shall stay with the principles of the party no matter if the ship sinks," Mr. Gardiner said.

"If I ever wish to oppose the government of Canada of which I have been a member I will do what my honorable friend from Kootenay East (Hon. H. H. Stevens) did — I will leave the government, I will relinquish the emoluments of office and go to the country and fight for the principles in which I believe.

"But I will not remain in the government until the people of the country defeat the government to which I belong and then say that my friend from Kootenay East was right by taking him back and having him sit at my right hand in this House."

Goes Into Wheat Tangle.

Mr. Gardiner was first in a long list of speakers who took part in the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. He dealt exhaustively with the wheat problem and presented numerous statistical tables in support of his arguments.

Denton Massey (Con., Toronto-Greenwood), who concluded the day's debate, occupied himself almost entirely with an attack on the government which he charged was using the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for political purposes.

It was because of politics, he suggested, that C. George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, was refused the use of a network of Canadian stations to air his personal views.

Transport Minister Howe adjourned the debate and is expected to reply to Mr. Massey today.

It was not so much increased acreage as improved production methods that removed so much of Paying Farmers Fair Price Will Aid Jobless

There isn't a group in the Dominion who could solve the unemployment problem as quickly as the farmers if they received a fair price for farm products, J. E. Houck, former chairman of the Ontario Milk Control Board, told 125 people attending the annual dinner of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board Thursday night in the Empress Hotel.

Speaking as a farmer and one with an intimate knowledge of the many problems facing the man on the land, Mr. Houck warned the gathering that the farmer must be given a fair return for his efforts if prosperity is to be returned to Canada. He urged a spirit of tolerance and understanding between all groups and said the most would be accomplished if both the urban and rural dwellers learned more about each others problems.

Graduate of Cornell.

Mr. Houck was introduced by Alex L. Elliott, M.P.P. who described the visitor as one with a thorough knowledge of and understanding of agricultural work, and a graduate in agriculture from Cornell University.

"On a plaque which marks the last resting place of Scott and his four intrepid companions who died in a trip to the South Pole is inscribed the motto, "To seek, to strive, to find and not to yield," said the speaker. This motto can be applied every day in our lives and it is the attitude we should take in attempting to solve the major problems of the province to-day, particularly as they affect agriculture and the unemployment of youth."

He said constructive good always resulted when men from every walk of life got together around the same table in such gatherings as the one he was addressing. "I must stress that the secret of ultimate success is an attitude of tolerance and understanding rather than one of criticism towards the other fellow."

Eight Hour Day.

The farmer enjoys an eight hour day—that is eight hours before dinner and eight hours afterwards. The city man should know the losses a farmer has through tuberculosis in cattle, from Bang's disease,

Radio Network Strike Looms

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP). — Radio entertainers prepared strike ballots in three cities today—ballots which may silence many of the major commercial programs of the United States networks—after 1,200 performers in New York voted to strike if such a call comes from their national organization.

The 1,200 members of the New York local of the American Federation of Radio Artists voted unanimously last night in favor of the strike.

A strike vote is scheduled to be taken tonight by the Chicago local. The Los Angeles group votes tomorrow and the San Francisco unit Sunday.

With Eddie Cantor, comedian, as president, the Federation membership includes such entertainers as Jack Benny, Bing Crosby, Phil Baker and Edgar Bergen, the voice of Charlie McCarthy.

Virtually every major commercial program in the United States originates in one of the four cities in which the ballots are being cast.

Wage scales are the issue with the A.F.R.A. asking minimums of $15 for a 15-minute broadcast; $25 for 30 minutes and $35 for 60 minutes, plus $6 an hour pay for rehearsals.

The American Association of Advertising Agencies has offered $15, $20 and $25 for each respective time period, with the proposal performers rehearse free for two, three or four hours for each period.

Fever On Reserve

CARDSTON, Alta., Jan. 20—(CP). —Three cases of typhoid fever and a number of suspected cases were reported today on the Blood Indian reservation near this southwestern Alberta town. Officials said they had instituted every precautionary step possible but had not yet determined the origin of the infection.

Jumped By 6 Wolves, Saskatchewan Trapper Shoots 6, The Last Dropping At His Feet

ILE A LA CROSSE, Sask., Jan. 20 (CP)—Claiming six wolves had charged him, Trapper Janvier of Buffalo River, came in to Ile a La Crosse a few days ago to claim the provincial government bounty of $10 for each of six skins. He shot them all.

Janvier said he was out on a point of Peter Pond Lake northwest of here, when the wolves started for him. Within 150 yards of him they stopped briefly, then continued to approach.

Janvier started firing, getting one at a time until three remained. They stopped about 75 yards away and he shot another. The other two charged and he dropped them, the last one almost at his feet.

Dancer, 2 Nieces Willed Ruppert Cash

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 — (AP).—Two nieces, Helen Ruppert Silleck and Ruth Rita Silleck, and Helen Winthorpe Weyant, were named chief beneficiaries of Col. Jacob Ruppert, millionaire brewer and owner of the New York Yankees Baseball Club, in his will filed for probate in County Surrogate's Court to-day.

Col. Ruppert, a bachelor, died last Friday after a protracted illness. He was 71.

The estate has been variously estimated at between $30,000,000 and $70,000,000.

Under the terms of the will all the capital stock of the Ruppert Holding Corporation, which holds the stock of the Yankee Club, is divided into three parts among Helen Ruppert Silleck, Ruth Silleck, and Helen Winthrope Weyant, in trust. Nobody at the Yankee offices could identify Helen Weyant.

Byron Clark, Jr., one of Col. Ruppert's attorneys, said she was "a very dear friend of the Colonel's, and I have met her socially. She is very charming."

And at the offices of Chorus Equity, the union to which chorus girls belong, it was said that a "Winthrope Wayne" was listed as a member and had appeared in several musical shows, among them "The Merry Malones" and "Three Cheers."

An Icy Idea

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20—(AP). —Department of public works officials wondered today who originated the idea of using a street flusher to clear a busy downtown thoroughfare of slush and snow. With the mercury at 27, the water promptly froze into a sheet of ice. A hasty order was dispatched for ashes.

Charge Nuffield Been Exploited In His Gift Of 5,000 Iron Lungs

LONDON, Jan. 20 — (CP). — Charge that Viscount Nuffield's gift to the Empire of 5,000 "iron lungs" was a "wanton waste of private benevolence" has been made by Sir Frederick Menzies, Medical Health Officer of the London County Council.

"Sir Frederick held the type of mechanical respirator Lord Nuffield is buying will be outmoded before long. In a letter to the British Medical Journal, he wrote:

"I wonder how it came about that Lord Nuffield was persuaded to provide no fewer than 5,000 mechanical respirators of a particular type for distribution to any hospital in this country and the Empire which chose to ask for one.

"It is incredible that advice of this kind could have been given by any person who had any practical experience or knowledge of mechanical respirators. It is a pity that the munificent generosity of one of the greatest benefactors of medical science in recent years should have been exploited in this way."

Has a Solution

J. E. Houck, former chairman of the Ontario Milk Control Board, who in an address at the annual dinner of the Peterborough Exhibition Board, urged that farmers be paid a fair price for their products and hence in this way solve Canada's unemployment.

Martin Ousts Millard, 14 Others

Grabs U.A.W. Control And Its Files; Call Own Convention

DETROIT, Jan. 20—(AP)—Homer Martin, union president, today suspended 15 members of the United Automobile Workers' executive board—including Charles Millard of Oshawa, Ont.—and announced he would assemble an international convention to replace the one called for March 20 at Cleveland by his opponents in the U.A.W.

The sudden attempt by the youthful president split wide open the factional row in the big automobile union, and headed the organized workers towards possible dual unionism and dual conventions.

Martin's announcement was made after he had taken possession of a number of union files from the international offices and removed them to his apartments.

The suspended board members charged Martin's actions were illegal and unconstitutional, and that they remained in control of affairs of the international union which claims nearly 400,000 members.

Call for the Martin-sponsored convention, which probably will be held in Detroit, is expected late today. Martin directed the nine remaining members of the 24-man executive board to meet at 4 p.m.

Martin's action came suddenly after the U.A.W. executive board, in session here for the last 10 days had stripped him of much of his authority as union head and had arranged for a special convention of the organization that both Martin and the board members said would settle "once and for all," months-old factional strife within the union.

Ex-Sidley Maid Bares Romance

RACINE, Mis., Jan. 20—(AP).—Mrs. May Harrison, former maid to the late Mabelle Horlick Sidley, testified today that after W. Perkins Bull, Toronto atorney, visited the Sidley home at Racine in 1927 the rigid discipline of the household relaxed and events arose leading to the divorce of the malted milk heiress and the late Dr. John Streeter Sidley.

Mrs. Harrison was the first witness called by counsel for William Horlick Sidley, 26, of Racine, contesting his mother's will on the grounds she was mentally incompetent at the time it was signed and was unduly influenced by Bull, one of the principal beneficiaries.

During Bull's protracted visit, Dr. and Mrs. Sidley had a dispute and some months later divorce proceedings were instituted, Mrs. Harrison said.

Questioned as to events preceding the dispute, Mrs. Harrison related that one night Mrs. Sidley and Bull were sitting at a piano and when Dr. Sidley passed the room on a balcony, "what he saw didn't please him; there was a dispute."

Prior to Bull's arrival in Racine during the summer of 1927, liquors rarely were served, the witness told county judge Allan Simpson. Bull, however, acted as though he were a member of the family, came to meals in his shirt sleeves, and liquor was available to him at any time, Mrs. Harrison said, adding that the Toronto barrister was constantly in Mrs. Sidley's company.

A Dry Dinner?

James Shaw of Milwaukee, counsel for young Sidley, asked how the custom concerning the serving of liquor came to be relaxed, and Mrs. Harrison replied that when Bull came to the table he would want to know "if this is going to be a dry dinner," whereupon liquor would be served to him.

After proceedings were instituted which culminated in a divorce in 1931, J. J. Harris, a private detective, frequently visited Bull at the latter's apartment in a Chicago hotel, she related.

Asked what they were doing, Mrs. Harrison said: "They were working on the divorce and Mr. Sidley."

During the period pending the divorce, she said, Bull's attitude toward Mrs. Sidley was "very affectionate."

"He would put his arms around her and kiss her."

Shaw asked: "Where did this take place?"

"Anywhere. At the Oaks (the Sidley home in Racine), at her apartment (in a Chicago hotel), and at Mr. Bull's apartment (in a Chicago hotel)," she answered.

Hitler's Half-Brother's Wife In Court For Tax Arrears

London, Jan. 20 (CP-Havas) MRS. BRIDGET HITLER, Irish wife of the German fuehrer's half-brother, Alois Hitler, appeared in Highgate Court today to answer charges of non-payment of taxes.

The court agreed to let her pay the sum due over a six-week period. Dodging photographers, she then ran out of court and down the street.

Mrs. Hitler married Alois, then a waiter in Dublin, in 1911. They separated three years later.

Hitler Shelves Germany's Money Wizard

By Melvin Whiteleather
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BERLIN, Jan. 20 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler today shelved Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Germany's money wizard, in a lightning move which put the Reichsbank under the control of the Nazi party.

The bank, which under the able hand of Schacht had retained comparative independence, was given to Walther Funk, minister of economics. At breakfast time Funk received a letter from Hitler giving him three specific tasks.

The most important of these was Hitler's request that he transform the Schacht-controlled institution "into a German bank of issue unconditionally subjected to the sovereignty of the state in conformity with national Socialist principles." Two other tasks given Funk were to safeguard the "absolute stability of wages and prices and thereby continue to maintain the value of the mark,' and to "enlarge the capital market for private needs."

The Reichsbank under the Dawes plan was made into a semi-independent organization with foreign shareholders. Although foreign influence was eliminated by a decree of Feb. 10, 1937, Schacht ran the bank as his own bastion and often got into hot water with the Nazis over their huge expenditures and the purposes for which the money went.

Surprise To Schacht.

Schacht, in the cabinet as a minister without portfolio, was retained in the cabinet with unnamed "special duties."

Hitler's announcement surprised high party officials as well as financial circles. Schacht apparently was not aware of what was coming.

The official interpretation of the Chancellor's move was that the "huge tasks of the four-year plan demand complete unity of financial and economic direction."

The Nazification of the Reichsbank means the elimination of the conservative Schacht who with the exception of three years has guided the Central Bank since 1923. It means the placing of the bank's power unreservedly behind the four-year self-sufficiency plan.

Mere Radical Policy?

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—London diplomatic and financial circles interpreted the ousting of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht from the presidency of the German Reichsbank today as a prelude to a more radical German economic and monetary policy.

Informed sources believed he was deposed because he told Chancellor Hitler the German economic structure could not withstand the present heavy expenditures on building and armaments.

Financial men said they are not particularly worried about the chances German barter methods now may damage world trade. They believe they will be effective in central and eastern Europe but that they can not succeed on a world-wide basis.

Arson Trial Is Full Of Surprises; Former Maid Declares Evidence Given At Preliminary Was Mistake

Original Statement Given Inspector Correct Girl Claims

(For Thursday afternoon's evidence see page 11.)

The Herman arson trial before His Honor Judge Smoke in County Court continues to furnish its surprises.

Thursday afternoon Harold Stevens supplied one when he suddenly declared that on the evening of the fire Herman had handed over the keys of the store to him before the blaze broke out.

This morning it was Iva Tripp, former maid in the Herman house, who furnished the fireworks when she declared that her evidence in preliminary hearing that when Herman came home shortly after 6 o'clock on the night of the fire he had gone out and brought in the children's clothes off the line in the back yard, making two or three trips, was a mistake and that her original statement given to Inspector D. H. Saville that Herman had gone out of the house and was absent fifteen minutes was correct.

Nervous At Time.

Her only explanation of this change in stories when cross-examined vigorously by E. F. Singer, K.C., defence counsel, was that she was nervous at the time she gave her evidence in police court.

This development along with a long examination by Mr. Singer of Harold Stevens, assistant manager of Pattenick's store, supplied the chief interest in this morning's session.

Stevens told Mr. McElderry when court re-opened this morning that it was 6 or 7 minutes after 6 o'clock on the night of the fire when he left Herman in front of the latter's house.

He said that he had made a loan of five dollars to Ralph Solerow before the fire and there had been two other similar loans. These he claimed were personal loans and had nothing to do with Solerow's purchases from Pattenick's.

"Did you remember yesterday afternoon during the intermission you were sitting with Virgil Carr, the fireman.

"Yes".

"Do you remember telling him that you guessed you had thrown a bombshell into the works or something to that effect?"

"I don't remember my conversation".

Mr. McElderry then claimed the right to treat Stevens as an adverse witness and His Honor agreed that Stevens had been put in that position.

Stevens Cross-Examined.

"What are you afraid of in this case; what have you done that makes you afraid," demanded Mr.

Farmer 37, Wed At 14 To Bride 45, Fails In Support-And Gets Off

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 20.—(CP). —"It is ridiculous the way this marriage was contracted in the first place, it was wrong from the beginning," Magistrate Frank Ebbs said in police court yesterday when he dismissed a non-supoprt charge against Clarence Ellis, of Newtonville.

Ellis said he was married in 1916 when a boy 14 years old and his bride was a woman of 45. Ellis is 37 years of age and his wife 68.

Ellis claimed he did not have the means to support his wife as he was working on a farm cutting wood and made only enough to keep himself.

"How did you come to get into this marriage in the first place?" Magistrate Ebbs asked. "My father wanted me to get married so I could live at home and help him with the farm work," he replied. "He took me to Orono, where we were married."

"So they led you like a lamb to be slaughtered?" the Magistrate remarked.

Ellis said he had gone overseas shortly after his marriage and had supported his wife on his return until a couple of years ago.

"I offered her a home with my mother but she wouldn't come," he said. "I am only making from $3.50 to $4 per week. I left her two years ago because I couldn't support her."

"I don't see how I can register a conviction in this case," Magistrate Ebbs decided. "I can't force these two people to live together, especially under the circumstances. I am going to dismiss the charge."

Girl Driver Skids In Fog, Crashes 2 Gas Pumps Sets Car Afire And Escapes Unhurt

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP)—Miss Doris Harper, Brantford, was described by firemen today as "the luckiest person in the world" after her car had struck and carried from their foundation twin gasoline pumps in front of a service station at the junction of highways 2 and 5 near Paris.

The car was sprayed with gasoline which burst into flames. The two pumps were carried 30 feet.

Shaken up and unnerved, Miss Harper jumped out of the flaming car in time to escape serious harm.

Firemen said that in similar cases on previous occasions occupants of cars have had no time to escape before being burned to death.

Miss Harper, a nurse, was driving to the Willet Hospital in Paris. The highway was slippery and treacherous at the time and visibility was poor because of dense fog. At the turn towards Paris the mishap occurred.

Britain Arming Constables After Bombings

LONDON, Jan. 20—(AP).—Constables throughout Great Britain were ordered to carry arms to-day to guard against terrorists who for five days have touched off bombs at power and water supply centres.

An explosion at the rear of the Tralee, Ireland, Hotel, where 25-year-old Frank Chamberlain, only son of the Prime Minister ,was staying, led to an order for city and county peace officers in the British Isles to carry guns beside their batons.

Only a few picked men ordinarily are permitted to carry guns.

Police blame the outlawed Irish Republican army for the terrorism In Northern Ireland, where several explosions have taken place, 15,000 regulars and auxiliaries of the Royal Ulster Constabularly maintained a 24-hour patrol while ministers of the Northern Ireland Government were reported ready to come to London to discus sthe outberak with British officials.

Police in England, Scotland and Wales were given guns and kept constant watch at airports, railroads, prisons, docks, electric plants and gas works.

Airport, Train Threatened

Anonymous warnings received by police threatened the Key airport at Hendon, and the crack London to Holyhead train, the "Irish Mail."

A ten-foot hole was torn in the roof of a suburban train coach by an object dropped from a bridge Only a few hundred yards outside one of London's busiest terminals. A passenger said "the noise was just like an explosion."

A special guard was placed about Brixton prison where eight Irishmen awaited a continuance of hearings on charges they illegally possessed firearms and explosives. No one was allowed to loiter near the stone-walled jail which is flanked by busy South London streets.

The Daily Mail said Prime Minister Eamon De Valera of Ireland sent an apology to Premier Chamberlain for the explosion which endangered his son.

Germans Launch New Cruiser

LONDON, Jan. 20—(CP Cable).—British naval and diplomatic experts today began consideration of a German note outlining the reasons for increasing the German submarine fleet and the number of cruisers carrying eight-inch guns.

The note, requested when Germany originally served notice of intention to build a submarine parity with Great Britain, was not made public when received today.

Meanwhile Germany launched yesterday the 10,000-ton cruiser Seydlitz, which will carry eight-inch guns. Under the Anglo-German naval treaty Germany agreed to limit to three the number of cruisers carrying eight-inch guns but now serves notice it will increase this to five, which would represent the full 35 per cent of Great Britain's tonnage in this category.

The Seydlitz will be the fourth vessel with eight-inch guns in the German navy. Another, the fifth, is contemplated.

Japs Preparing New Drive In South China

HONG KONG, Jan. 20.—J(AP)—New indications were seen today that the Japanese were preparing to renew their military campaign in South China, possibly including attacks on Hainan Island and the town of Pakhoi, near French Indo-China.

Reports from Canton said troops were leaving Wongsha station throughout the night for undisclosed destinations to the north. Chinese reported Fahsien, 25 miles north of Canton, was catured by the Japanese.

It was rumored the French were concentrating their far eastern naval forces in the Gulf of Tongking. Although neutral observers seriously doubt France would interfere in either Pakhoi or Hainan were attacked, they took into account the stubborn French attitude with regard to the Paracel Islands.

(France occupied the Paracel Islands last July despite Japanese objections, explaining the move was a routine police matter of the French Colony of Indo-China which claims jurisdiction. The islands are in the South China Sea near Hainan Island. Many believe France seized the islands because of Japanese threats to occupy Hainan.)

Japs Lose Town

SHANGHAI, Jan. 20 — (AP): — Chinese reported to-day they had recaptured the town of Wamiaotsi, 60 miles west of Hankow, after a three-day counter-attack which blocked Japanese forces driving through Central Upeh Province along the Han river. Wamiaotsi had been occupied by the Japanese Sunday.

The Chinese also announced they had recaptured the town of Chaoku in Southwestern Shansi Province and torn up several miles of track on the Shansi Railway.

Arson Trial

Singer when he began his cross-examination of Stevens.

"Mr. Skeans cross-examined you at length at the preliminary hearing about the keys. Didn't you realize that he was trying to get an admission out of you that you had the key of the store at the time of the fire?" continued defence counsel.

"I didn't realize that", replied Stevens.

"Did you not realize that it was a serious matter for Herman?"

Witness hesitated in his reply.

"You feel that Mr. Pattenick may have a feeling that you may have had something to do with the fire?"

"Yes" admitted Stevens.

"You are trying to protect yourself?" queried Mr. Singer without reply.

"Do you smoke cigarettes?"

"Perhaps four a day".

"There is smoking going on in the cellar of the store"?

"Not that I know off".

"Did you every smoke there yourself"?

"Perhaps three or four times."

"Did you smoke in the cellar that day".

"No".

"Is it possible that you were smoking that day an.. dropped a cigarette butt in the cellar"?

"No"

I am informed you do a lot of smoking in the place?

That is not right.

Stevens said he did not put any wood in the furnace after 1.30 o'clock that afternoon. The last time he was down in the basement that day was 8 or 10 minutes to 6 o'clock, when he took the sweepings from the store down. He remembered closing the bottom door of the furnace then.

Mr. Singer examined the witness at length as to the events just before the fire and as to the time taken by Herman and witness to walk to Herman's house. He said it was 6.06 or 6.08 when he left Herman at his house.

Witness said that he had seen Herman go down into the cellar of the store on the afternoon of the fire and that he brought up gift boxes. Stevens said he did not think Herman took money down at that time. He had reason to believe that he took some down on Saturday because it was customary to do so two or three times on Saturdays.

Mistake in Figures.

Mr. Singer pointed out that there had been a mistake in addition in giving the total of deposits made by Stevens in Herman's bank account. The total was $329 instead of $429 as stated yesterday.

Mr. McElderry said that the statement was correct. "I had intended calling the matter to the attention of your Honor this morning," he said.

Stevens was asked as a statement he made in police court to the effect that he trusted Herman.

"Did you still trust him?" asked Mr. Singer.

"I have no reason to mistrust him," replied the witness.

In re-examination by Mr. McElderry Stevens admitted that he had been under the impression that Herman was continually short in his accounts and that was the reason he had borrowed from the witness. Of the $329 deposited by Stevens to Herman's' personal account between November 15 and December 12 only $40 was in cheques, Stevens agreed.

Iva Tripp, former maid in the Herman home, was next called by Mr. McElderry. She testified that Herman came home on the evening of the fire shortly after 6 o'clock, spoke to his wife and immediately went out the front door again. He was out about fifteen minutes and witness did not see him during that time nor until he came back into the house again and went down to the furnace shortly before Stevens arrived at the house to tell him the store was on fire.

"You remember making different statements previously?' asked Mr. McElderry.

"If I did it was a mistake," replied the witness.

"Did you see Herman bring in any baby's clothes that night?"

"No."

Cross-examined by Mr. Singer, who read the evidence given by Miss Tripp at the previous hearing the witness maintained that she had made a mistake then. "I was nervous," she told defence counsel but refused to explain what she was nervous about.

"Have you been spoken to by the police or the Crown Attorney about this?" "No."

"You didn't speak to the Hermans about this " "No."

"Or did Herman speak to you?" "No."

Re-examined by Mr. McElderry witness said that the statement given by her to Inspector Saville was the same as she had given this morning and was true.

Harry Emmerson repeated his evidence given at the preliminary hearing of seeing Herman on George street near Brock street going south not later than 6.10 o'clock on the night of the fire.

In cross-examination he fixed the time at which he had seen Herman as between 6.05 and 6.10 o'clock.

Maurice Howlett, who was with Emmerson in a car going north on George street on the evening of the Pattenick fire, swore that he had seen Herman walking south on the east side of George street near Brock street. Herman was alone and wore no hat. Howlett said it was between 6.05 and 6.10 o'clock and closer to 6.-0 o'clock.

Court then adjourned for luncheon.

Rebels Shelling Loyalists Key Defences

HENDAYE, France, Jan. 20 (AP).—General Franco's insurgent forces opened an artillery bombardment today on the town of Igualada, 28 miles west of Barcelona and keypoint in the defence line guarding the Spanish Government capital.

Insurgent dispatches said the bombardment was "intense and destructive" and Franco's observers reported great columns of smoke were seen pouring from government fortifications after direct hits.

Object of the assault was to clear a path to the Manresa-Barcelona highway, the main inland route connecting the capital with the French frontier at Pugcerda. Manresa is about 12 miles northeast of Igualada and about 25 miles northwest of Barcelona.

While Igualada was under attack, insurgents launched a left wing flank movement driving deep into government territory to positions about a mile from the town of Calaf, 15 miles due west of Manresa.

These forces were advancing down the Rajadel River Valley to avoid the rough hill country and strong government defences along the Lerida-Barcelona highway which runs through Igualada.

Insurgent advices said Franco's troops had advanced an average of six miles all along the line moving slowly toward Barcelona.

Field bulletins said the flanking movement toward Manresa had changed the insurgent strategy in the central sector. They said that if Manresa were captured the government's line of "mystery defences" around Igualada would be threatened by a flank attack from the north.

Council Passes Many Bylaws Night Session

COBOURG, Jan. 20 (Special)—To clear the decks of a long list of by-laws in order that Friday could be devoted to cleaning up the rest of the session's business, the council of the United Counties held a night meeting last night and disposed of the raft of by-laws. Included were by-laws providing for the taking into the counties road system, a number of township roads, and also a number of township bridges. The road appropriation by-law received two readings and was deferred until today for final reading in order that a few details might be settled. Bowmanville had no representatives at last night's session and the appointment of council trustees on the high school and collegiate boards received its second by-law reading and was laid over until to-day.

A motion from Middlesex County, asking the council to endorse its resolution against the Lord's Day becoming open to amusement, fell by the boards and on motion of Deputy-Reeve H. R. S. Ryan, of Port Hope, who said that it was too late to be incorporated in the By-Laws Committee's report and who also declared that he was not in sympathy with it, the Middlesex communication was merely received.

A by-law was passed to authorize the borrowing of sums not to exceed in total, $150,000.00 to meet expenses until the taxes were collected. The counties road expenditure by-law to cover a $110,000.00 road program for 1939, was given its second reading. A by-law was passed striking off from the counties road system, a portion of No. 16 county road in Millbrook in order that it would become a connecting link.

Counties Roads

Another by-law established a portion of No. 10 of the county road system as a connecting link in Millbrook. The following township roads were taken into the counties road system by virtue of covering by-laws:

Section in Haldimand between lots 5 and 6 to No. 22 of the county road system; section in Cartwright between lots 6 and 7, running to View Lake as a county road; boundary road between Peterborough and Northumberland counties between No. 30 Provincial Highway and west Seymour; Brighton township from No. 30 Provincial Highway as part of No. 27 of the county road system; assumption of the Bowmanville-Darlington boundary bridge into the county system; the Decker Hollow Bridge in Hope township to the county system.

By-laws were also passed confirming sale of side roads in Haldimand township in lots 16 and 17, 3rd concession and in lots 13 and 14, 8th concession to E. Stickney and W. Knight, respectively. The following appointments were made:

Auditors of criminal justice accounts, F. T. George of Smithfield and Reeve C. Devitt of Cartwright Township; commissioners, east Northumberland registry office, W. WINNIPEG, Jan. 20 — (CP). — Scarcity of offerings was given most of the credit for to-day's firm tone on Winnipeg Wheat futures market as prices held around yesterday's close. At the finish, quotations were unchanged to ¼ cent lower, May at 62⅝, July 62⅞ and October 63¼ cents.

Export business in Canadian wheat was estimated at 100,000 bushels, most of which was worked from the Pacific seaboard.

Exporters offered scattered support and a little buying was attributed to mills.

Other operations were made up chiefly of spreading involving purchases of May against sales of the July option.

Barcelona Women Flock To Defence

BARCELONA, Jan. 20—(AP). — Women are volunteering at Barcelona recruiting stations at a rate of 600 a day to enlist for tough jobs behind the lines as the front closes steadily in on Barcelona.

Chattering, smiling and eager, they go nosily through the formalities of signing up for work as bicycle messengers, chauffeurs, cooks, teachers and nurses.

Some will clean the soldiers' barracks and wash their laundry. Others, even, will enter uniformed units such as the carabineros, customs guards or asaltos — government police.

About 5,000 women between the ages of 18 and 50 already have enrolled for soldiers' pay—10 pesetas (45 cents) a day and rations. They are under orders of the Defence Ministry.

Although all women have been ordered mobilized by government decree, enlistment is voluntary.

No Blame Placed On Car Driver By Coroner's Jury At Inquest Into Death Of Stone

No blame was placed on the driver, Gordon C. Tollington, C.G.E. engineer, by a coroner's jury which sitting under Coroner Dr. Herb. Young in the police court Thursday night, found that Giles Stone, 87-year-old lumberman, had come to his death on Monday morning, January 16 as the result of fracture of the skull caused by injuries received on Saturday, January 14, when he was struck on Park street near King street by a car driven by Tollington.

"The jury finds no evidence of negligence on the part of Mr. Tollington, the driver of the car," the verdict concluded.

The principal evidence in the inquest was given by Tollington himself who was the only eye-witness of the affair.

"If the same emergency were to happen again," he told the jury at the close of his testimony, "I would do exactly the same thing."

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., examined the first witness and E. W. Borbridge took over half way through the inquiry when the crown attorney had to leave. W. B. Gordon had a watching brief in behalf of Tollington.

L. L. Maguire was foreman of the jury and the other members were Maurice O'Toole, Chas. E. Ireson, Patrick Coursey, M. J. Maher, Michael O'Brien, Harry Campbell, Earl Maniece, Joseph Odette, Cecil Watson, Mortimer Quinn and John Thompson.

Oscar McGill gave identification evidence. He said he was a relation by marriage to the deceased.

Gordon C. Tollington on whose behalf the protection of the Ontario and Canada Evidence Acts was asked, said he was an engineer in the employ of the C.G.E.

Around 4.20 p.m. on Saturday afternoon last he was driving his car south on Park street at the rate of 20 miles an hour.

Saw Him on Sidewalk

"As I approached King street I saw an elderly gentleman walking south on the east side of Park street," said the witness. "I was 60 to 70 feet away from him when I first saw him. I was just to the west of the centre line of Park street."

"I saw him step off the east curb and proceed to cross the road in a south westerly direction. At that time I was probably 55 or 60 feet away from him."

"As soon as I saw him step off I blew my horn and applied my brake. He went out about 10 feet from the east curb and then hesitated, looked around and saw the car and became excited."

"How did you know he became excited?"

"He took a quick step back."

"That wouldnt indicate excitement but caution," said Mr. McElderry.

"That's right," agreed the witness.

Witness said he was travelling at about 15 miles an hour then.

Asked as to whether the car could have been stopped Tollington replied that it could not because of the icy condition of the road. He said that he did not put his brake on fully at first. He was on the south side of the intersection when he first saw Stone and had travelled 15 feet before Stone had seen him.

When the old man had stepped back witness said he swerved the car toward the west. Then Stone bolted toward the west side of the street, running straight across.

"I had slowed the car down to such an extent that he had almost got across before my car reached him," said the witness.

The right front fender struck Stone's right hip. I was travelling very slowly then, between 5 and 10 miles an hour."

"Stone's feet seemed to be knocked from under him. I think he fell backward."

"If you had turned into the curb couldnt you have avoided hitting him?"

"I think the rear end of the car would have slewed around and hit the man," replied the witness.

Constable W. A. Clark investigated the accident and said Tollington's car was fifteen feet away from where Stone was lying on the road. The surface of the road was slippery. Stone was able to talk witness said but could not give his name or address.

Clark said Tollington told him he turned his car to the left first and then to the right. Witness said he had stopped his own car without difficulty but he knew just where he was going to stop. It might have been different if he had had to stop unexpectedly.

Medical Testimony

Dr. R. K. Magee who attended Stone told of the condition of the man when he had seen him after the accident and said that the cause of death was bruising of the brain substance as the result of injury.

Dr.'s C. B. Waite and T. W. H. Young who preformed the post-mortem testified as to finding Stone's skull fractured in two places and agreed that death was due to skull fracture and injury to the brain, Dr. Young including shock as one of the causes.

The jury was only out a few minutes before returning with its verdict.

Jobless Freed, Then Arrested, By Bobbies

London bobbies, with hammers and cold chisels, are shown cutting through the chains with which this unemployed Londoner has anchored himself to the railings outside the home of Ernest Brown, Britain's Minister of Labor, as a protest against his plight. Freed, the youth and his companions were arrested.

Sir William 95

Displays of flags and flowers by private citizens, rather than costly decorations by the city, were suggested by Sir William for the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth next May, in a birthday interview.

Charge Employment Office Useless

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 20—(CP).—Charges the local employment office was of no use whatever and of no assistance to the welfare board of the city of Kingston, were made by J. K. Fraser, chairman of the Kingston Welfare Board at a meeting held last night. The charges were made during the course of discussion of finding work for men on relief who desired work. It was said that there was no work available.

"As it is at present being conducted," said Mr. Fraser, "the employment office is inefficient and practically useless. It enjoys neither the confidence of the workers or the employers of labor and should be so re-organized as to make it an effective agency for securing employment for men out of work and securing workers for employers.

This office is of no assistance to this board.

Col. H. E. Pense, welfare officer, reported that at present there are on the relief rolls and those in receipt of emergency relief, a total of 2,042.

September 30 there were 1,034 on relief or 362 more than for the same date a year ago. There are now 613 more on relief than in January, 1938.

Officers Installed For Mission Band

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 20.—Rev. B. Simpson Black conducted the installation of officers for the members of the Goforth Mission Band of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. It was their first meeting of the new year and a large number of new members were welcomed by Rev. Mr. Black who expressed his appreciation in particular for the interest shown by parents in their attendance. The officers were installed following the opening devotions as follows: President, Josephine Nesbitt; secretary, Ruth McEacherne; treasurer, Frances DeCarrol; 1st vice-president, Jean Dunn; 2nd vice-president, Frances Hendy; assistant secretary, Frances McNaughton; pianist, Mrs. F. G. DeCarroll; assistant pianist, Bernice McMullen; membership secretary, Georgie DeCarrol; assistant membership secretary, Eleanor Allan; program secretary, Marjorie Kerr; assistant secretary, Geraldine Peake; leaders, Mrs. B. Simpson Black, Mrs. M. Peeling, Mrs. F. G. DeCarrol, Mrs. Heriott, Mrs. J. F. McGregor, Mrs. Dunk; leader sewing and work classes, Mrs. Jack Clarke.

Following a report by the treasurer, Billy Thompson, which showed receipts of $142.00 for the year the secretary read a letter of thanks from Mr. McArthur acknowledging the gift made to him by the society. Other items on the program included the presentation of junior life membership pins and certificates to Marjorie Kerr and Geraldine Peake by Mrs. A. C. Connor. Recitations were given by Betty Dunk and Jean Campbell and the meeting concluded with the address entitled "Slow But Steady Wins the Race" delivered by Rev. B. Simpson Black.

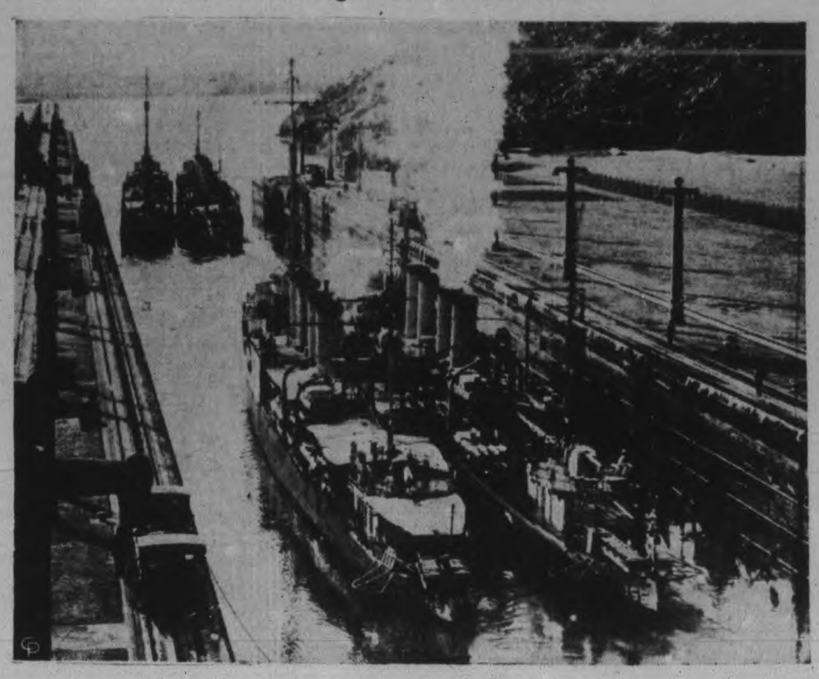
U. S. Fleet Passes Through Panama Canal



Four destroyers of the United States' fleet are pictured as they moved through the Mira Flores locks of the Panama Canal as the Pacific fleet of Uncle Sam moved into the Caribbean Sea for large-scale manoeuvres. The war games will be held in part in the Atlantic for the first time in many years. All the warships passed through the famed canal without incident except for a slight mishap which saw the aircraft carrier Lexington dislodge several concrete blocks. Proponents of increased armament are seeking a new lock in the Panama to facilitate passage of the war fleet.

Bennett Brands Radio Ban As A "Mistake"

OTTAWA, Jan. 20—(CP). — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's refusal to allow George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, to buy time on its network for a series of five speeches was termed a "mistake" by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett in a statement issued here Wednesday.

Unless Prime Minister Mackenzie King frankly admits and corrects the error "it will be regarded as a precedent for the exercise of arbitrary powers which is not consistent with our ideas of democratic institutions and which thus far has been regarded as a prerogative only of foreign dictators," Mr. Bennett said.

The former Conservative leader, who is nearing the end of his farewell tour of Canada before sailing for his new home in England, challenged the legality of the C.B.C.'s decision not to allow the Toronto publisher to speak over its network.

He said the Canadian Bradcasting Act of 1936 vested great powers in the C.B.C. but the ultimate responsibility for the activities of the corporation was with the federal government. The Act provided that by-laws may be made by the corporation to carry on its business, Mr. Bennett continued, but no such by-laws came into force until approved by the cabinet.

Government Holds Control

"The government must approve of the methods adopted by the corporation for the transaction of its business and the discharge of its corporate functions. The principle in this dispute is fundamental."

(In the House of Commons Monday the Prime Minister said the government had nothing to do with the C.B.C.'s refusal of Mr. McCullagh's application.)

Mr. Bennett said that where a public utility has something to sell such as broadcasting time any person who could pay the price charged should have the right to buy that commodity except where it involved a breach of the law.

In the McCullagh case, the corporation "assumed the right to deny the privilege of free expression of lawful opinions by a responsible citizen of the Dominion," Mr. Bennett continued. "By what authority does it claim to exercise such autocratic powers? Do the by-laws of the corporation confer such powers upon the management?

"If so, the government is wholly responsible for having approved a by-law that conferred such powers upon a servant of the public. If not, then the action of the corporation is wholly wihout legal authority for the government has not approved any such by-law."

Order Boarder Ousted Or Lose Tenement

MONTREAL, Jan. 20 — (CP). — Believed initial invocation of the particular provision of the Quebec padlock law, warning has been sent by provincial police to Louis Fineberg of Laval avenue, that he must evict his son-in-law from his tenement residence or the "whole of the tenement occupied by you" will be padlocked as an establishment used to house a communist.

The order, confirmed to-day at provincial police headquarters, was sent Tuesday in a registered letter which warned Fineberg a 'boarder" named "Taub Muni or Mooney," must be evicted within four days. The letter gave no reason for the demanded eviction.

At provincial police headquarters, however, it was announced the warning had been sent under provisions of the padlock law which permits police to close any building used to house communists or used for dissemination of subversive propaganda.

The Farmer's Earnings

V. S. Milburn, field man of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers, selected something interesting to discuss when he addressed a meeting of Cheese Patrons' Association in Peterborough. It was this —trying to bring the farmer's labor unit to the level of the other fellow's. One illustration was this: "Your hour of time is bringing you an average of about five cents as compared with the other fellow's 60 or 70 cents."

Whether that is entirely a fair comparison we do not know, but we are certain enough there are many of these "other fellows" who do not receive 60 or 70 cents per hour. But whatever the degree of difference there is, the problem is there just the same. And the same problem exists in the cities just the same as it does in the country. There are plenty of people living in cities on small wages who find it extremely difficult to purchase the time and services of other people who are in a higher wage bracket.

One comes across this disparity so often. There is a colored man in Detroit by the name of Joe Louis, and his stock in trade is his ability to double up his fists and knock other people over, and for that sort of work he has received so much that he is now on the road to the collection of his second million dollars. If he were using those same fists and strong arms in ordinary but useful work he would probably be getting a few dollars a day. It might even be he would be doing nothing at all at times. He would find the going tough enough as a worker, but he finds the journey pleasant as a fighter. He produces nothing at all, and yet the world puts its seal of financial approval on him.

We know of one man and he could hardly be called a farmer. He has 45 acres of land and it is not particularly good. On part of it he raises feed for turkeys. In the spring he buys 1,000 young turkeys and his work is to finish them for the fall and winter market. His chief assistants are three good dogs to keep off prowlers by night. He has his own system of raising turkeys and his losses are few. When he sells out in the late fall or early winter he turns the key in the door and goes south until it is again time to start in the spring. He makes more money than any dairy farmer in his district and has a long holiday in the winter. He went into business that way because he said there were too many dairy farmers.

Whether equality in earning cash income will ever be attained we do not know. We cannot blame Mr. Milburn for urging it as an objective because the farmer is too far down in the scale today and the fact that he is keeps a good many others in the same position. If the farmers can find a way to increase their earnings by the hour or week or month or year then we'd be glad enough to see them do it. It would help them and it would help a good many other people who are more dependent on the farmers than they generally care to admit.

Takes In Much Ground

Col. George A. Drew, newly appointed Conservative leader for Ontario, has been delivering a series of addresses in Northern Ontario, but he has not been discussing provincial matters to the exclusion of others. It does appear that he considers the Ottawa field and what takes place there the better ground for bombardment. Ottawa of course deals with guns and shells and such things and Col. Drew likes to get his finger on the trigger and proceed to business.

His latest demand is that Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Federal Minister of Defence, should resign. It seems that this Mackenzie individual cannot move too quickly in that direction to please the Ontario political Colonel.

There may be plenty of latitude for a man when he goes out delivering addresses, but when he finally settled down to the leadership of the Conservatives in Ontario, then Col. Drew would do better to discuss Ontario problems. We have had the spectacle of Ontario's Premier gunning against Ottawa and the prime minister in particular, and now we have the leader of the Ontario Opposition pointing his weapon at the federal capital and trying to bowl over the Minister of Defence. There is such a thing as an individual trying to cover too much ground.

Ask More Probing

In the news of one day there is evidence that the desire for probing is not running itself out. Three newspaper headings tell about it:

"Probe of Relief in Cities Hinted."

Asks Investigation of Social Schemes."

"Asks Probe of Poker Playing In Armories."

If people can go forth and ask their own questions and secoure their own answers, then go ahead and probe. If it is necessary to appoint probers and pay them for their work then it is well to sit back at the start and make sure that the information secured is going to be worth the price paid for it. Our experience in this country with probers has not been profitable.

We Will Need Some Money

M. J. Coldwell, M.P. for Rosetown-Biggar, Sask., during the debates at Ottawa complained about the loss of the preference on wheat in the British market. He urged that as long as there was tariff protection for industry there should be some compensatory adjustment for farmers, and on that account it would be fair enough if the set price for wheat cost the country $50,000,000.

That argument is much used in the West where it is claimed that by reason of protection farmers there have to pay an added $58,000,000 per year for what they purchase. That figure has been both affirmed and denied according to the views of those who have occasion to refer to it.

It provides ground for fair enough argument. Tariff protection is of use to a manufacturer so long as there is a market and a demand for the article which he is producing. When the demand falls off and the people purchase in limited quantities then he is in a poor position regardless of protection. It may be his protection came because it was considered advisable to have something made in this country which could not otherwise be produced.

The bonus on wheat is not one which can be regarded as justified on the ground of national or world need. We generally give a bonus to secure something which we need and would not secure in the ordinary course of events. If we had no wheat-growing industry in this country and found it difficult to secure wheat elsewhere then it is quite conceivable we would offer a bonus to those who would start and see what they could do about growing some wheat for us.

But we are in no such position. We grow too much wheat, and the reason for paying a fixed price for Western wheat is to keep the farmers from being ruined by having to sell it at world prices. Mr. Coldwell knows that, and he is a well-informed man so he must also be aware of what is ahead of us. Reports are that wheat from Argentine will in the 1938-39 year total 315,991,000 bushels, and that is an increase of 71 per cent. over 1937-38. If that is any indication of the world wheat market which lies ahead—and it is—and if Mr. Coldwell insists we should keep on paying a bonus for the production of Western wheat he might at the same time consider offering an explanation of what we are going to use for money.

We Call It Wealth

Neither mining companies nor men who work in mines had anything to do with providing a supply of coal. It was all on hand when they arrived on the scene and long before that. Coal is classed as a natural resource, part of the grand total which we refer to at times as the wealth of a nation.

It may be and undoubtedly is true that coal is wealth; it is essential as well. But we do not seem to have made much progress in finding happiness or substantial comfort for those who depend on coal for a living.

It was reported the other day that the United States bituminous coal industry had faced a loss of $100,000,000 during 1938, and for that reason there was a movement under way to increase the selling prices. The report from coal mining areas stated that relief expenditure during the same year had amounted to another $100,000,000. So this great natural resource under our present way of making it available to the people who need coal had resulted in a loss of $200,000,000 in one year.

In New Waterford, N.S., miners went to get their pay for work they had done during the week in the coal mines, but at best they drew wages for one day only because that was all they had worked during the week, and the Sydney Post-Record report tells that in some cases all the men had to take home was 34 cents. Whether there were deductions for goods from the company is not stated, but probably that was the explanation for the 34 cents.

The result is that the miners and their families need help, but New Waterford itself can offer no help because the tax money owing to the community is not being paid. The men are working so short a time during the week that they have no money for taxes, and in turn the town has no money for relief.

It probably is a fact that electricity and oil have made large inroads into the market formerly supplied by coal both in United States and Canada. Whatever the reason the people who are depending on this great natural resource for a living are not getting it. The by-products which are today taken from bituminous coal are of far greater value than the coal itself, and we doubt if there will be improvement in the situation of those who depend on the mining of coal and nothing else.

A Pig With Indigestion

There was some reference to a peculiar case which followed an auction sale in Western Ontario a few days ago, and it looked as though a lawyer might be called upon to write at least a letter. Farmer B (so we name him) had attended a sale at the property of Farmer A, and among other things bought seven pigs. When he got them home he was not satisfied because one of the pigs was acting in a strange manner. The pig would not eat and it did not grunt and most times it was running about in a circle.

What under the sun has happened to the farmers of today if they want to get a lawyer to write a letter about a pig like that. Writing a letter will not cure the pig. On the Tenth Concession now and then—not often—a pig would do exactly the same thing. And when that happened there was one of those debating society sessions between grandfather and the hired man. Up in his bedroom the hired man always stacked away literature sent out by the government and all sorts of clippings, and he had a book up there telling what to do with sick stock. Grandfather never took much stock in that bedroom library, holding that the pig would probably be dead before the hired man found the right page or book telling what ailed the pig.

The symptoms were there plain enough for the hired man and grandfather to see. When it came to feeding time most pigs grunt, and most of them will put their feet in the trough if they have a chance. But the ailing pig did not grunt, and what's more he did not eat. He went around in circles pretty much the same as a horse would do when he had the blind staggers. The hired man was all in favor of a spell of research and investigation in his bedroom library, while grandfather said "Fiddlesticks" and went into action. Upon such occasions he was apt to deliver himself of few words, but they were stern. He'd get that pig separated from the rest so it couldn't eat from the common trough if it took a notion to. He would be apt to say it's a wonder any hired man worth his salt could not tell a case of acute indigestion in a pig without running to look in a book. He always held that although a pig might not look overly intelligent it knew more about when to eat and when not to eat than any other animal around the farm. A pig won't eat when he's sick. And that's what's wrong with that pig in Western Ontario that figured in a farm sale. If grandfather were only around now he'd have that pig grunting and eating in a couple of days.

NOTE AND COMMENT

During 1938 Canada's mines paid dividends of $100,148,000—to those who happened to pick the good ones.

Five members of a Toronto family escaped in time when their house burned. And there will be general agreement that such is the proper thing to do.

Germany has a report saying United States will intervene in any European war within six weeks of the time it starts. Said report is not confirmed in Washington.

United States believes 25,000 foreigners were smuggled into that country from Canada in two years. And that in turn will provide employment for immigration officers to smuggle them out again.

One German newspaper of supposedly good standing advises that Jews should be treated as though they were "stinking air." If there is any more dirt to be pitched then it should be scooped up as quickly as possible so the dirt mongers could then get a much needed bath.

Mr. Blackmore, leader of the Social Credit group in the House of Commons, and an Ottawa correspondent records that "he was nicely warming up to his subject when reminded that his 40 minutes were up." And possibly after he sat down he had time to think that only a day or so before he had listened to Mr. Manion speaking for three hours and Mr. King for two hours.

LESSON

(By A.R.K.)

¶ The name John Doe was on the sign, it occupied one single line, and had been there for years; a dozen men worked there; and never did John Doe expand, or take in acres more of land, too modest it appears.

¶ Promoters came to see John Doe, they asked him why he did not grow, he could be rich indeed; the stuff he made was extra fine, his methods though were out of line, and he would go to seed.

¶ They had a merger on the go, and gladly they'd take in John Doe, they'd close his plant they said; he'd get stock in the new affair, then he could rest upon a chair, and see things go ahead.

¶ If John Doe did not join with them, they would not call on him again, they gave a knowing wink; he'd find the going rather tough, and they were rather sure enough, that in six months he'd sink.

¶ The merger plan went through I know, they tried to smoke out old John Doe, their plant was very great; it would not take so very long, for John to find that he was wrong; he'd have to close his gate.

¶ All that took place in twenty-four, and now the merger is no more, a dried and dead affair; the little shop with John Doe's name, is running daily just the same—a dozen still work there.

The Yukon Lady Loves Her Land

Official Parliamentary Reports

Mrs. MARTHA LOUISE BLACK (Yukon): Mr. Speaker.

Perhaps it is unnecessary for me to touch upon the trade agreement. More and more as I came here each session I have a feeling of isolation; I feel more and more that I am alone. It is not that every individual member is not exceedingly kind and courteous; it is because of the fact that my constituency is so isolated and so far away from the rest of Canada. The trade agreement affects us not at all. In that north land we produce only the mediums of exchange, namely, gold and silver. When times are prosperous in Canada—or, as we in the north call it, on the outside—we pay higher prices for the goods we purchase. When depression is rampant throughout the country we are able to get our goods for less. So I think hon. members will understand when I say that from a selfish standpoint the trade agreement affects us not at all.

When coming to the house many members display a spirit of optimism, while many others display a spirit of pessimism. We in the Yukon have been greatly favoured by not having the large numbers of unemployed that you have on the outside. A few drifters came in this summer, one or two of whom did not want work. However, I must say that I believe I could count on the fingers of one hand the men who did not want work. One man came to me and said that he was tired of trying to get work. I asked him if he had tried pick-and-shovel work. When he told me he had not, I asked him what he had come there for. He said, "I heard you say that the Yukon was a place where every man could get a job." I said, "I may have said that, but what I meant was that every man who wanted a job could get a job provided he was willing to do gruelling, back-breaking work." I told him he could not get anything for nothing in that country. He leaned back and looked at me and said that I was a fine member. He told me, "The government has to take care of me or else send me out." It is not often that I lose my temper, but I did then. I used language that he understood. I am sure you would ask me to retract that language, Mr. Speaker, if I used it here. I said to him, "Why don't you walk from here to Skagway?" He said, "How far?" I told him it was only about four hundred miles. He said, "What do you mean by insulting me?" I said, "My husband and my brother have walked that distance and they are much better men than you will be even though you live to be a thousand." He said, "This is no country for a white man to live in." Under the circumstances, I was forced to agree with him.

The Yukon is a good country; it is a cruel country; it is a kind country; it is a wicked country. It is a country that you can love; it is a country that you can hate, depending upon your attitude. I have lived there for forty years; I have travelled from one end of Canada to the other, as well as across the United States; I have travelled overseas; but I have never in my life seen a country that could thrill me as does the Yukon. We have our cruelties; we have our hardships; we have our glories, and we have our magnificent summers. We have our flowers, our vegetables, our gold and silver, but only when we work for them. If we come down here, it is because we have worked, not because we have sat back and folded our hands.

I wish that hon. members were more familiar with that country. Then, instead of smiling when I ask for a favour, instead of thinking that the Yukon wants all and gives nothing, they would remember the many men from that part of the country who have paid off the mortgages on their farms; they would remember the many men who served overseas during the great war. Out of a population of less than 5,000, over 500 men enlisted before conscription was brought in. All of us are ready to serve this country in time of peace and in time of war. We pray for the glory of peace and hope for its beauty.

FEAR OF TAXES.

Alfred E. Smith, four times Governor of New York and Democratic candidate for President of the United States in 1928, celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday recently by declaring:

"Taxation is the one thing that is holding everything back. Business men are not going to venture into anything new until they know just exactly where they stand.

"The industries of this country are not going to pour their money into enterprises that take out most of their money in taxes. Outside of an insane asylum I have never met anyone who would put up $100 to win $10 — and that's what it amounts to now."

Although business is handicapped in other directions, there can be no doubt that existing taxes, and the fear of new punitive and confiscatory taxes, are outstanding obstacles to business expansion.

Congress, if it really wants to give business a lift, should revise the Federal tax laws in order to make them more equitable, and also should seek to reduce the total of taxation by cutting out extravagance and waste in government. —(Detroit Free Press)

DISGUISE.

——Einstein has been bothered a good deal when he comes to New York by people who stop him in the street and say, "Aren't you Professor Einstein?" The Professor finally got the old brain to work and figured out a dodge. He says with great humility, and in broken English, "Pardon me, so sorry! Always I am mistaken for Professor Einstein". People turn away without saying anything more instead of asking him just what that theory is really about, the way they used to. —The New Yorker.

"About two hours, thank you, mummie."

• He Wanted To Get Arrested

JUST ANOTHER CASE of a man who cannot make a go of it any longer. For years he was a workman who followed what are called big jobs all over the country, and was paid what is called big money. His story comes from London, Ont.:—

Once an expert steamfitter who "traveled all over the world on big jobs" 62-year-old Ralph McCabe landed in London broke and sick. He had no place to sleep, no one to see he got medical care and no money to buy food.

So McCabe decided that he would be better in jail where he at least would have a roof over his head and some food. As he shuffled down Dundas street McCabe saw Constable Leslie Brown keeping an official eye out for law breakers.

McCabe walked up to the constable and announced: "I want to be arrested?"

"What have you done?" asked the officer. "Is there any reason you should be arrested?"

"No, but I want to go to jail," explained McCabe.

"I can't arrest you if you have done no wrong," pointed out the constable.

"All right," said McCabe, "I'll break the law."

So the man stood on Dundas street in front of the constable and stopped the first person to come along. He told them he was begging for money. The surprised Londoner walked on.

Broke The Law

"There now, I broke the law," McCabe pointed out to Constable Brown. "It is your duty to arrest me."

But the officer suggested the man try and get help from some charitable organization. McCabe insisted he wanted to be arrested. Once again he tried begging but again the officer wouldn't arrest him.

"Well I'll make you arrest me this time," he announced.

So out in the middle of Dundas street walked McCabe. He lay down on the street car tracks. Traffic quickly came to a halt. People gathered around. Constable Brown gave in and arrested him.

In city court the man pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge.

"I'm sick," McCabe told Magistrate Menzies. "I've no place to go. I can't get in a hospital. Since I was discharged from the army after the war I have had no home.

"Someone's got to take care of me. I'm an old steamfitter. I've been all over the world on big jobs. But now I'm not physically fit to do heavy work."

Magistrate Menzies suggested: "I should think you would have more ambition than to try and get in jail."

"I haven't long to live," replied McCabe.

"Do you get an army pension?" asked the court.

"No," replied McCabe. "Not a cent."

Faced with one of the strangest cases to come before the court in years, Magistrate Menzies temporarily fulfilled McCabe's request. The court sent him to jail on remand until January 26 for medical examination.

• His Suggestions Were Not New

By NORMAN MACLEOD

OTTAWA—The prevailing opinion in impartial circles in the capital, is that The Globe and Mail publisher failed his audience signally. Few addresses so ballyhooed or making comparable claims of an arresting national significance have impressed Parliament Hill as more poorly advised by way of their destructive diagnosis, less helpful by way of concrete suggestion or less logically consistent.

With some of the propositions of Mr. McCullagh, of course, there is a wide measure of agreement in more thoughtful federal circles. His views on the evils of machine politics have many distinguished adherents; his denunciation of a pork-barrel program of public works on the eve of this year's general election likewise strikes a responsive note in responsible circles in both the old line parties; and many on Parliament Hill would be prepared to agree that the present is not the time for spending $12,500,000 upon a new C. N. R. station in Montreal.

The Globe and Mail publisher, however, could claim originality for none of these views. All of them have been urged before and, in every case, in form more convincing than his statement of them. The trouble with the rest of his speech, moreover, was not only that it, too, was lacking in originality, but also that it made a direct appeal to discontent and was unsound and dangerous in the suggestions that it put forward.

Mr. McCullagh's argument was for government by individuals who did not necessarily possess any brilliance, but whose strength lay in their honesty and in their industry. There was also an intimation that they should not be wholly without business training. The ideal candidate for Parliament whom the young publisher cited by way of illustration of his views was the retired hardware merchant who had made a success of the hardware game in his own community, made provision for the security of his old age, and was prepared to enter national politics and render public service.

TRAINING IS REQUIRED

WHAT the publisher of The Globe and Mail failed to realize, as Parliament Hill appraises his speech, is that public life today, if democracy is to hold its own against other forms of government, must be manned by persons who have some knowledge of the science of government. In this highly specialized and highly competitive age the retired hardware merchant would have nothing to offer on Parliament Hill.

In fact, few things can be more dangerous than the doctrine that honest simplicity and well-meaning industry alone are qualifications for public office. Unless they are harnessed to the sort of knowledge that make for competence and efficiency in a field which nationalistic reforms, managed currencies, clearing house agreements and export and import quotas have made ever more technical, they cannot save democracy.

Mr. McCullagh quoted England as an example without appearing to realize that the success of English democracy has been built upon the nation's tradition of public service as a career for careful scientific training is required.

In many quarters on Parliament Hill the belief is held that The Globe and Mail publisher holds Fascist leanings. His speech is not widely regarded, however, as justifying that conclusion. Rather it suggested to the capital that Mr. McCullagh has no idea whatever of the goal to which he is traveling, that he has not thought that far ahead.

In view of the failure of his speech on its constructive side federal circles were a little shocked at its destructive nature.

The general feeling is that Tim Buck could not have made a much better job of appealing to current unrest and discontent. If things are as bad as Mr. McCullagh said they were, some change is certainly demanded. But the change which, in the opinion of Parliament Hill, would be the more logical sequel to the rabble-rousing strain in The Globe and Mail publisher's remarks would not be a government by retired hardware merchants but Communism itself.

At the same time Mr. McCullagh unconsciously paid tribute to the inevitability of the march progress, even while denouncing the times in which we live. His statement of new comforts that the masses of the people have come to enjoy within his own youthful lifetime is regarded in federal circles as proof that democracy, whatever may be the weaknesses from which it has been and is suffering, has yet not failed the people.

HOUSE MECHANIC.

——Superintendent Johnson of the Chicago public schools is replacing the old manual training and domestic science courses with new "home mechanics" classes designed to teach the child how to handle the many time-saving devices that fill the modern home.

Parents generally will applaud this enlightened move and many would like to have the advantage of these courses.

The man of the house, these days, has to be a combination of auto mechanic, radio expert, electrician and plumber to keep the upper hand on the streamlined appliances and gadgets of the home. If he does not know what to do about them when they go wrong he is likely to find them more time-consumers than time-savers — more instruments of inconvenience than of comfort.—Victoria Times.

SIZING US UP.

"The Canadians are a people accustomed to liberty. They are expert in the difficult art of democratic self-government. They enjoy, as a matter of course, their rights to free speech, a free press, liberty of conscience, tolerance, justice.

"Like ourselves, they are unable to conceive of a national life for themselves without these elements. On every moral question in every political situation, their point of view is exactly the same as ours. Therefore—most important at the present time—their reaction to the conditions existing in Europe and Asia today is sure to be the same as ours.

"Finally, that country has in a time of great stress proved its ability to train and arm hundreds of thousands of troops—soldiers who earned their right as shock troops to stand shoulder to shoulder with — or confronting — the finest divisions of the armies of the world.

"So it seems to me that our northern boundry is not unfortified. Let us give thanks for fortifications of this kind; and work for more of the same on what we may call our frontiers in distant parts of the hemisphere." —Letter in the New York Times.

56 MILES PER HOUR.

AN authenticated instance of a British-built warship achieving a speed of more than 56 miles an hour has just occurred. A new Thornycroft motor torpedo-boat, built for a foreign government, on her trials on the long reach in the Thames estuary covered one lap of the measured mile, when being put through a series of mile runs for a mean speed, at 49.18 knots. This is the highest speed ever officially recorded for a British-built warship.

These motorboats, unlike the new m.t.b.s. of the Royal Navy, are not intended for high-sea work. They are developed from the coastal motorboats which did such good work with the Dover patrol, and they are popular with several foreign natives for harbor defence work and inshore patrols at night.

They are fitted with two torpedo tubes and with a small anti-aircraft gun, and when fully loaded can also carry death charges. — Manchester Guardian.

TWO MORE "LINES."

Two more "lives" of the late Ramsay MacDonald will be reaching the bookstalls in due course, but neither, I think, will be so provocative as the recent biography written by MacNeill Weir, M. P., the late Premier's former Parliamentary Private Secretary.

One of the new volumes is being written, in sympathetic vein, by Lord Elton, Ramsay's intimate friend, but this will not be an "offical" record of the statesman's career. Lord Elton is leaving the official version to Ramsay's son, Malcolm MacDonald, Colonial Secretary. — (Pearson's Weekly).

Arrangements were made to have the financial reports printed.

A motion of appreciation was tendered to Rev. and Mrs. Kelly on behalf of the meeting, for their services rendered during the year.

The ladies served refreshments at the close of the meeting and a pleasant social hour was spent.

Books Four Accused Of $1,250,000 Subway Theft

Accused as participants in a gigantic thieving enterprise that allegedly stole $1,250,000 from the nickel fare receipts of a New York subway line, these prisoners, up for booking in a New York court, shield their faces with coat collars and hats from the camera. The prisoners, two at the extreme LEFT and two at the extreme RIGHT, are separated by a detective (reading a paper). Four other suspects are involved in the case. Police indicate that the thefts have been going on for some years and that the gang made daily hauls from the subway line's receipts.

Leni Reifenstahl Sails Home Piqued

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 — (AP). — Piqued at the reception she received in Hollywood, Leni Riefenstahl, German film actress and producer and friend of Chancellor Hitler, was homeward bound to-day.

Before sailing on the German liner Hansa last night, she said:

"It is not a secret that they boycotted me in Hollywood. I was disappointed in Hollywood, because I thought that they were not very kind and they didn't have very good taste."

Her temper flared when a reporter asked whether her Hollywood reception were not comparable to what a Jewish producer might receive in Germany.

"You are a bad man," she retorted. "All you do is put down the things that are not good."

Township School Section Benefit Explained By R. F. Downey

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Jan. 20.—R. F. Downey, of Peterborough, Inspector of Public Schools, appeared before Victoria County Council on Wednesday afternoon and reiterated to the reeves of the different municipalities the advisability of forming township school sections with five trustees instead of the present system of ten or twelve sections in a township with three trustees to each section. He pointed out that the government is prepare dto give a special grant of $100 for each section that is joined with another.

Fair Board Grant.

Claiming that it will never be possible for the Lindsay Central Fair to operate without public grants, three members of the Fair Board appeared before the County Council yesterday asking that body to renew the grant, and, if at all possible, increase the amount to $1,000. If the local Fair is to flourish, Mr. N. Smale pointed out, a fund would have to be established to make certain improvements.

No Trace of Furs.

While the local police have been unable tto date to trace the whereabouts of the furs stolen from J. Houzer's store and later stolen from the Hudson home, they have secured definite information fixing the original theft on two local parties, it was announced. They have, it is understood, a "jimmy" bar in their possession which was used, they claim, in prying open the door in the rear of Houzer store. They have been unable, however, to apprehend the stranger who was at the Hudson home during the brawl, and who, they claim, disappeared with the furs while the fight was in progress.

A Liquor Racket.

The latest in draws or lotteries has been pulled off in Lindsay during the past week. A local young man, prompted by a desire to earn a little money with the least possible effort, had been soliciting throws on a bottle of liquor. Quite a number took a chance on the spirits, and the draw took place on Saturday night. The police got wise to the racket, and the young man will have to seek some other means of gathering in the dimes.

Millwright Passes.

The funeral took place to-day of a well known resident of this district, in the person of Adam Switzer, who passed away suddenly following a stroke. He was a millwright and contractor, and save for a few years' residence in Toronto, lived practically all his life in Lindsay.

Bible Society Canvas Is Being Planned

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19.—Arrangements for the annual collection made by the Bible Society were discussed by members of the Campbellford Ministerial Association at their weekly meeting at which the vice-president, Harold B. Neal, presided. It was announced that the canvass being made by the Upper Canada Bible Society would begin this week and that special cards had been made ready for distribution by the collectors. Other matters discussed were the annual week of prayer and the response made by citizens to the Christmas Cheer Fund. In laying plans for future meetings it was decided that a joint meeting with the Hastings-Norwood Association should be held. Rev. T. S. Gault, newly appointed rector of Christ church, was introduced to the members and warmly welcomed as a member of the association.

Members of the Bemerside Chapter I.O.D.E. passed a vote of thanks to citizens of the town for their splendid cooperation during the past year at their regular meeting held at the home of Mrs. R. A. Connor. Miss Georgie Davidson, the secretary, read the financial report in which it was disclosed that the past year had been a "very satisfactory one.'" During the year approximtaely $100 00 was raised, the majority of which was used in relief work. Several suits of underwear, pairs of shoes, overshoes, socks and flannelette were purchased by the relief committee and distributed to the needy. At Christmas time donations of fruit and canned goods were received both from members of the chapter and from those outside as well. All of this was used in preparing the Christmas basket fund. Following the meeting members played cards for the remainder of the evening.

Interesting Talk On West Africa Treat For Marmora Laymen

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 20. — Swelled with the presence of visitors there was an attendance of forty-six at the regular meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association on Wednesday evening when the guest speaker was the Rev. W. R. Tristram of West Huntingdon.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, after which President H. B. Smith called upon Glen McColl for one of his songs.

Introduced by W. J. Cottrell, the Rev. Mr. Tristram gave a most interesting and instructive address on the life of the west coast of Africa where prior to his ordination, he spent four years in the employ of a British trading company.

Contrasting the size of Africa with the composite size of other large countries, the speaker said that the population was small in comparison with most countries, due to the heavy mortality rate in the equatorial regions. It is estimated that in the Congo territories sixty per cent of the children born die in infancy due to climatic conditions and lack of hygiene.

Mr. Tristram gave a most vivid description of the physical features of the west coast and the palm oil and mahogany industries and the use made of surf boats to get the exports from the swamp lands to the coast. Stories of the insect life of this hot-house atmosphere and the habits and customs of the primitive races which he encountered kept his audience thrilled throughout.

He also exhibited products of the country which made his address the more interesting.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended the speaker on the motion of Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, seconded by C. H. Buskard. Coupled with the motion was an interesting appreciative short speech by W. L. Rigg, who spent some time in earlier years, in South Africa.

After the Benediction had been pronounced by Rev. W. R. Tristram refreshments were served and a pleasing get-together ensued.

Assessments Too High Detroit Urged To Halve Back Taxes

Detroit, Jan. 20 (CP)

PROPOSALS the city cut back taxes 50 per cent to compensate for failures by assessors to keep assessed valuations abreast of depreciating market values were studied today by Detroit city councillors.

The proposal was made by Robert Oakman, Detroit real estate man, who said most delinquent taxes are based on valuations 100 per cent too high and cancellation of half the debt would bring an avalanche of tax payments to the city.

He said this would enhance property values and relieve pressure on the small home owner who suffered the most by the high valuations.

Cap Cod Skipper Mourns His Pet As Sea Serpent Skeleton Beaches

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Jan. 20 (AP). — Cape Cod wits lost no time today taking advantage of the opportunities afforded them by discovery of a 20-foot "sea serpent" skeleton on a beach here.

Serious-minded zoologists hedged when asked to identify it—but not the Cape's old salts.

Captain Manuel Enos, usually described as "a well known waterfront character," was positive the skeleton was that of his long lost pet "Rover." His story was typical.

"Thirty years ago when I was dory fishing on the Grand Banks," he said, he saw a giant serpent approaching the dory.

"I had to do some pretty fast thinking so I picked up a cod fish and flung it to the critter. This stopped him for the time being so I upped and let another one go, then another, until I had emptied the dory.

"By this time the serpent was pretty friendly. He came purring up to the dory and I scratched his ears. From that time on he followed our ship around and generally made himself useful.

Handy In Stormy Weather

"When it blew hard he'd stretch out to windward and make the sea calm. When it was cold he'd blow on our hands to warm them. And when it was foggy he'd purr and warn approaching ships out of our course.

"I haven't seen Rover since I came ashore but I figure that might be part of his skeleton over on the point. Probably he was bound for Provincetown to see me when he ran aground."

Bos'n Addison Ormsby, commander of Wood End coast guard station nearby, said the end of the tail was broken off and four protuberances apparently were joints indicating the beast had legs or flippers. The head, described as "something like a crocodile's," lacked teeth, he said.

LOCAL ACES GRAB DISTRICT PUCK DECISION OVER OMEMEE, 9-2

Strong Attack First Frame Gives Aces Nod

Peterborough Aces copped a 9-2 District Hockey League win over Omemee Blackhawks last night in Omemee. A good-sized crowd of 200 fans saw a fast, scrappy joust on fine ice, with the visitors packing a bit more punch and getting more breaks to win out. They looked two or three goals better than their rivals, but the O's had some poor luck when in scoring position. It was a better game than the score indicates. Next game is Mohday.

Most of last night's action came in the first frame when Aces had a 5-2 edge in sniping. They added three in a tough second heat, and were held to a lone marker in the third. Some good hockey was dished and 11 penalties handed out by Referee Lou LeBarr. The Aces flashed fine combination and some good individual work on the attack, with Ike O'Leary and Pete Vitarelli a strong defence in frotn of Goalie Currie.

Two New Ones

Omemee had two new players out but they hadn't played long enough with the O's for the best of teamwork, and the Hawks expect to start clicking shortly. Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

And here are the lineups of tonight's O.H.A. junior joust at 8.30 in the Brock betwixt Bowmanville and our Monarchs. For Bowmanville: Goal, Crawford; defence, Witheridge and Ward; centre, Bird; wings, Wiseman and March; alternates, Nicholls, Mackey, DePew, Morgan and Dilling. For the Monarchs: Goal, Morrison; defence, Beggs and Giardino; centre, Rochetta; wings, Connelly and Vitarelli; alternates, Cauley, Nichols, DeCarlo, Mortimer and Clarke. That kid March might be worth watching on the B's first line, as he's slated for a pro tryout next year with Chicago Hawks. And the whole Bowmanville bunch will bear watching as they have beef, speed and puck savvy. They'll be tough.

* * * * * *

On the other hand, the young Monarchs feel they were robbed on that 6-4 loss to Bowmanville in Whitby and they think they'll cop tonight's tussle here. The locals have plenty of class and buckets of color—none of it a saffron hue — and fans can figure on a sweet scrap. Juniors turn it on hard from start to finish, and these kids have plenty of rivalry between 'em, the torrid arguments in the last game between 'em not bringing out the highest ideal of pacifism. Itll be a swell, lively battle (redhot all the way) and a tight score, we expect. The game should draw well, too—and the Monarchs deserve support.

Where Balmy Breezes Blow

Rumor hath reached this corner that all is not going any too well in the Florida hockey league. And that it may be disbanded ere long. Which would bring back Jim Ellis and Mick Magee to this cold clime before the expected ending of the schedule around April 2nd. It seems that folks around Miami go more for dog races, hoss events, roller skating, boxing, fishing and swimming in these warm months—it's around 85 degrees in the shade of the palms down there now—than they do for hockey. The sport is unknown to any but the northern tourists who are in Miami and, after all, folks going south want to forget the north for a time. Ice skating is oke for some there, but the puck tilts aren't drawing well — and may fold.

* * * * * *

This doesn't really floor us, as we wondered how long hockey could hang on in a really warm climate. Much as we like the game, we'll be strung up and shot for treason if we'd pass up a swim on a hot day for a puck fray. Especially as the boys are not at their best playing in heavy pads in summer heat, with fog rising in clouds from the ice. And also as the group is pretty much a family matter, all the boys being oranized up in Canada together and moving in a body down there to try to get fans keyed up to rivalry. Our info may be wrong, but we wouldn't be at all surprised to see Mick and Jim looking on at local hockey scraps before the winter does a fadeout around these here parts. North is north and south is south, and never the twain shall meet—not in hockey, anyway.

Still Talking About It

Folks hereabouts are still talking about the Fliers-Petes' game on Wednesday. It was a pip, all right, with a swell ending. Lot of fans felt that the locals were a lot weaker than last year—and some say yet that they are—but at least the Petes look able to take care of the Airmen this season, if they don't crack up badly later. It may be true that both the R.C.A.F. and the local gangs are a bit below the 1938 calibre, but probably not much. We don't think Belleville will be a serious threat to either team — despite pre-season ballyhoo from Belleville—but the Petes and Fliers will stage some lovely battles before 'tis settled. You've gotta give the Petes credit for their condition (and so early, too) and for their refusal to quit so long as they had a snowball's chance.

* * * * * *

Quinte columnist says: "It must have been a typical Fliers-Petes game of old times, being knotted on three occasions and going into overtime. A gala night for the fans who stormed the ice in protest of a decision, and a goal judge removed as the Air Force loudly disouted a decision by him. The homesters went onto win before a big crowd of really biased fans. The Peterborough populace really take their puck sessions seriously, and the result of that game should bring at least 2,000 out to see the Petes play the Fliers in Belleville on Friday." He figures now that the Birdmen, though a better balanced outfit than last year, caught the Redmen on an off-night for that 11-3 score. The Thomasites wanted tonight's game there with the Petes, but the Fliers had first claim and stuck to it.

Locals Scattered About

Three of our O.H.A. teams are playing tonight—as well as our O.J.H.A. gang in Lakefield in their juvenile opener. The Monarchs are here 'gainst Bowmanville, the Petes in Belleville with the Airmen, and our junior Colts have a struggle in Lindsay. Every one of these games sounds like a hot spot for the Peterborough pack. Lindsay arena may be sold out as the big Midgets and peeved Colts—burned up over their last loss here—tangle in a sizzler. Then on Monday night at the Brock, the Colts and Monarchs mix it in an all-local O.H.A. junior fray.

* * * * * *

Local Aces sifted through the Black Hawks in Omemee yester gloaming to cop a 9-2 District Puck Loop decision, and maintain their victory march. Some 200 fans crowded the rink and saw a swell tussle with the O's not looking seven goals worse than their victors—not more than a couple. They had no breaks and the Aces were, well, aces. Takes a lot of luck to beat a fistful of aces, now, doesn't it? Hawks have added a couple and, when the team gets clicking, they say they'll trim the Williams' gang. But the latter are rollin' along like a runaway truck on a down grade. On Monday, Millbrook meets Lindsay in Omemee and, on Thursday, Millbrook and Omemee clash.

Hither and yawn: Ski jumping at Nassau is off tonight, owing to lack of snow; they'll stage it when enough snow falls.... Newmarket plays in Lakefield Saturday—the Newmarket gang took a 6-4 win in Beaverton last eve.... St. Peter's game 'gainst the juvenile team in Lakefield tonight is at eight bells.... We stand corrected, Eddie Starr is 22 years old and not 21.... Rochester hopes to have Hamilton, Ont., as a class 'D' pro ball farm club this year.... Quarterback Ed Barnabe of Montreal Nats has moved up to Ottawa.... Howard Anderson, Indian who was killed recently in a hunting accident, made a pro rasslin appearance here two years ago as Buffalo Joe; he had relatives in this section.... Three senior men's cage contests on tomorrow night in the Y.M.C.A. gym.... Ofuns' gal cagers copped an L.O.B.A. nod over C.G.E. here last twilight.... School hockey tomorrow at All Saints in the morn: Prince of Wales vs Central at nine, Queen Alex vs. King George at 10, and King Edward vs. Queen Mary at 11.... Lotta Church Hockey League dope in tonight.... And so we dash off for the wilds of Bella Villa!

Pastor Gets Decision Over Warrington

BOSTON, Jan. 20—(CP).—Bob Pastor boasted a victory over Terry (Tiger) Warrington, the truculent Negro knuckler from Liverpool, N.S., today but there seemed little doubt the New York heavyweight needed considerable rest after 10 rounds against the Tiger.

The Tiger weathered everything Pastor offered early in the fight without much difficulty but found the going rougher in the late rounds during which Bob piled up the points which earned him the decision last night.

Pastor's short body hooks began to take effect in the sixth round though the Tiger came up with one furious flurry of fists that knocked Pastor through the ropes. Even at that Bob came back fighting.

Southenders Win Midget Game, 3-1

Southenders took a 3-1 edge over King Edward Midgets in a tidy Southend Puck Loop contest last night at the Sacred Heart rink. There was no score in the fast, even first frame, but Ainslie got two for the winners and Cox one in the middle chukker. O'Brien added another tally in the windup chapter of a lively, exciting midget melee. Lawson, Anderson, Cox, Ainslie, O'Brien and Leether shone. Teams:

King Edward: Goal, Welch; defence, Lawson, Dalliday; centre, Anderson; wings, Downer, Hodson; subs, Cox, Close, Rhodes Foster, Morrow, McGregor.

Southenders: Goal, Leether; defence, Willis, O'Brien; centre, LaPlante; wings, Ainslie, Grady; sub, Cooper.

Referee, R. Todd.

St. John's In Tie With Knox Squad

St. John's and Knox Bantams battle to a 2-2 Church Puck Loop draw at All Saints last night, the first tie of the season. Knox got the first and third, with the Saints twice tying it up. St. John's had an edge with Parnell going great to hold them out. The Knox defence drifted out too often. Frank scored both goals for the Anglicans and looked good, as did Clark, Scott and Howard. The Knox first line starred for them, with Darling and Robertson scoring. Teams:

St. John's.—Goal, Moore; defence, Frank, Scott; centre, Bond; wings, Clark, Howard; subs., Farrow, Grey, Mathias, Graham.

Knox.—Goal, Parnell; defence, Bestard, Gertley; centre, Darling; wings, Covert, Robertson; subs., Milburn, Braund, Crowe, Shepherd, Richmond.

Lindsay Rink Wins Preliminary In The Ontario Tankard Group

Up until the 12th end in the final game of the preliminary games here for Ontario Tankard Group No. 3, it was just as nice and as interesting as one could wish to see, but from that time on till the final last night it was just a gamble on how many points Lindsay would be up. A couple of 3's and 2's with the odd 4 thrown in just about settled it.

The Bobcaygeon boys seem to fold up completely and instead of playing the draw game elected to try running shots with the result they missed everything.

The Lindsay rinks will now go to Oshawa to play off with other group winners and the winner of that contest will go to play off in the finals.

In the morning games, Lindsay had no trouble with Lakefield, and Bobcaygeon had little trouble with the Peterborough boys.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—(AP).—Ed Barrow's first official act as president of the Yankees was to receive the press in his shirt sleeves . . . Storm warning: The old Johnny Evers-Rabbit Maranville combination is back together at Albany and the other eastern baseball league clubs had better look out . . . Coach Jock Sutherland of Pittsburgh University moans: "Ten of 11 fine young (football) men will graduate" . . . so what, Doc . . . Youll come up with 10 others just as good . . . Joe Dimaggio is having his picture taken these days with Dorothy Arnold, the actorine, to whom he once was reported engaged.

Umpire George Barr conducts the original school for what some meanies call robbers and blind men. . . . He claims no other school has approached the percentage of success attained by his products and we don't doubt it . . . Last year he graduated a guy named William H. Tuff of Rugby, S.D., and another guy named George Ruff of East St. Louis, Ill. . . . Both found jobs in the northeast Arkansas league where they were paired as a team . . . So, ladies and gents, we give you as today's umpires—Ruff and Tuff . . . And can any of you boys tie that one? . . . . Davis cut entries are lagging badly. . . . . What touched a lot of people at the Ruppert funeral was the presence of catcher Joe Glenn whom the Yanks traded down the river to St. Louis last fall . . . Although no longer a Yank, Joe came up from Dickson City, Pa., for a final tribute.

Those city slickers around Times Square are still taking 'em . . . Four members of the Marquette basketball team entered a barber shop where hair cuts were advertised for two bits . . . The barbers gave them the works and a total bill of $5.35. . . . Ouch! . . .

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

We offer congratulations to Mrs. O. DeGraw and her rink on the occasion of winning the consolation event in the Packard Trophy up in Hamilton yesterday, and the victory is more notable in view of the fact that our ladies have had very little practise; and incidentally it is the first trophy won by our club this season. The personnel of the rink was:

Miss H. Munro, Miss H. Fanning, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. O. DeGraw, skip.

At a meeting of the junior curlers last night the following officers were elected:

President, Ken Mowry; vice-president, Morley Geraghty; treasurer, Paul Lynch; secretary, Charlie Dobbin; committee, Don Eason, Ted Freeman, Robert Cauley, and two more to be selected.

We wish to correct the rumor that was being circulated freely last night. Dave Grant has not lost his voice, although we admit it did seem to die away around about 10 o'clock.

We intend to hold our Saturday 'spiel to-morrow at 1.45 p.m., First come, first in—fee 25 cents.

To Darcy Davis goes the special mention on last night's play. Those two stones of his on the last end were fit for three stars anywhere.

All Saints Take Junior Fracas

All Saints Juniors of the Church Hockey League took a 4-1 win over St. Paul's at All Saints' rink last night. McDougall got one in the first and again early in the third, while Csumrik made it 2-1 with a nice try. Leether beat the Saints' goalie from the blue line and McDougall got his thid tally of the night. The latter starred, with both goalies good and Leether strong on defence for the winners. Csumrik went best for the other side, as J. Easton shone till he tired. The St. Paul's are much the same as the 1937 juvenile champions and '35 bantam winners. The teams:

All Saints': Goal, Lacey; defence, Williamson, Leether; centre, Deering; wings, G. Smith, Carpenter; subs, McDougall, Stinson, Smith, Hotrum, Morley.

HOW TO SKI

By FRITZ LOOSLI
Instructor Toronto Ski Club

SUMMER CARE OF SKIS

Poor care for skis during the summer months is the cause of most of the breakage the following winter.

In the spring skis should be cleaned with steel wool and gasoline. Sandpaper the running surface to get it as smooth as possible. Opinion differs as to what is the best applied to the bottom of the skis. Norwegians put their skis out on hot sunny days and cover the running surface with a heavy layer of pine tar. Gradually the wood will absorb the tar and the operation will be repeated two or three times during the summer.

This is no doubt the best process for summer storage, but few people like to handle pine tar but prefer to use raw linseed oil mixed with a little coal oil. In that case it is not advisable to expose the skis to the sun, because the raw oil will have a tendency to cake up and dry before having a chance to penetrate.

Pine tar will keep the skis more flexible than the linseed oil will.

For Bad Scratches

When the varnish on top of the skis is badly scratched, it is advisable to scrape the whole ski, stain, and then apply two or three coats of varnish, rubbing with fine sandpaper between each coat. Finishing the tops of the skis with raw oil requires more work, but is more satisfactory than varnish.

Once the old varnish has been entirely scraped off, rub raw oil mixed with a little asphalt roofing or creosote on the bare wood by hand. Repeat the rubbing operation as often as you wish during the summer. Wipe off the surplus with a dry cloth. Six hours of rubbing will give the surface a dull lustre finish on which scratches will not show as they do on a varnished surface, because the oil will have penetrated the wood for at least an eighth of an inch. To obtain a better polish surface, repeat the rubbing operation when the ski is dry, using only the hand without oil.

Buying New Skis

Skiers sometimes buy a new pair of skis in the spring, scrape the lacquer base off, and treat them as if they had been used. This is no doubt the wisest way of buying and storing skis. Often skis in a store are kept in an overheated place before their purchase and have a tendency to get dry and brittle.

Sometimes the left and right ski are not quite of the same consistency and resistance. In such a case when blocked together the weaker ski will take more bend than the other. To block them, a piece of straight two by four of common lumber will make a perfect ski press. Skis are tied on each side of the scantling, and two blocks used for keeping the arch in them. The stretcher for the points should be fastened in the centre to the two by four to make certain the points will be kept in an even curve.

Orfuns Cagers Defeat C.G.E. By 29-18 Score

Peterborough Orfuns took a hard-fought 29-18 victory from C.G.E., the other local entry, in a scheduled Ladies' Lakeshore Basketball League game, last night before a crowded gallery at the Collegiate to move a step nearer to the league-leading Belleville team.

The winners took a 17-9 lead at the half and although C.G.E. came back strongly in the third quarter, and had most of the play in the last half, the Levine-coached crew turned it on in the last quarter and were going away at the finish. C.G.E. made a strong bid in the third quarter, led by R. Thompson and M. Hodson, and all but tied it up, but in the last period their shooting was wild and their play disorganized; and the winners intercepted passes and broke away often to score and pile up their lead.

Play was fast and very rough all through and Referee Curly Krug and Umpire Vince Holmes called a total of 38 fouls, 24 on the winners and 14 on C.G.E. Therein lay a splendid opportunity for C.G.E. to win, but they cashed in on only six of these. The winners made five out of their 15 chances.

L. Magee and B. Blade starred for the winners and M. Hodson and R. Thompson were best for C.G.E.

The teams:

Orfuns — A. Livingstone (1), L. Magee (7), G. Mortimer (4), B. Blade (8), M. Snowden, J. Dawson (2), J. Weir, F. Bestard, S. Levine (5), R. Ellis (2).

C.G.E. — M. Hallahan, A. Craig (3), M. Hodson (6), F. Nolan, M. McCarthy, K. Rogow (1), M. Wood (3), R. Thompson (4), G. Mann (1).

Referee—Curly Krug.

Umpire—Vince Holmes.

RED WINGS AND CANADIENS DEFEAT RANGERS AND BRUINS

Detroit Team Breaks Tie To Win Game 4-3

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Consider the story of Montreal Canadiens and the three "Black Cats" and realize it is little wonder that a good many athletes are superstitious.

The first of the three Black Cats was a big China one sent Goalie Willie Cude recently by an admirer; the second was a small fob-sized one received the same day by Johnny Gagnon, little right wingman; and the third is Gagnon himself, known around the National Hockey League circuit as the "Black Cat."

The little token that Gagnon received was chained about the neck of the big China one belonging to Cude, and the slim Welsh net minder refuses to let the charm out of his sight while in the dressing room. In fact, Willie won't even let anyone else touch it.

With all this good luck stored up Canadiens went out last night in Montreal before a crowd of 10,000 and scored a brilliant 1-0 victory over the league-leading Boston Bruins. Thus the Flying Frenchmen, though in the cellar, became the first team this season to blank the Bruins twice. Canadiens turned the trick 2-0 in Montreal earlier in the schedule.

No more than one guess is needed to know who scored the winning goal for the Habitants. Gagnon turned the trick with a blue-line shot in the second period while Bruins were a man short through a penalty for tripping to Bill (Flash) Hollett.

Wings 4—Rangers 3

But Canadiens failed to gain ground by their victory — making the fourth time Bruins have been shut out this season—for the Detroit Red Wings scored a 4-3 decision over New York Rangers in the only other game of the night to draw even with Chicago Black Hawks for fifth place.

The Wings, unbeaten in their last five starts during which they have won three and tied two, topped the second-place Rangers on a goal in the third period by Roy Giesbrecht after leading 3-1 until the seventh minute of play in the final session.

Charlie Conacher, flashing some of the form that made him one of the most feared snipers in the league in his days with Toronto Maple Leafs, sent Wings ahead with a goal in the first period but Rangers tied it up in the last minute of the session on Bryan Hextall's goal.

Syd Howe and Marty Barry scored for the Wings in the second period but the Rangers drew even in the third with two goals in less than a minute. Wilbur Hiller supplied the first and Rookie George Allen the other.

GOING CHORUSY

LONDON — (CP). — Brentford Football Club supporters sang the team's "anthem" for the first time this Christmas. The English League first division team ran a competition for a theme song and "numbers" poured in.

Nearly 100 new omnibuses are plying for fare on the 66 new lines in the Sudetenland.

Jersey Slugger

TONY GALENTO

Jorge Brescia, who lasted three rounds with Joe Louis, fell in one heat before Tony Galento (above), the two-ton New Jersey barkeep. There is some talk of a Farr-Galento bourt, but Tony is more interested in a shot at the heavy title, now held by Louis.

Cup-Tie "Fever" Runs High In Old Country

LONDON, Jan. 20 (CP Cable)—Cup-tie fever is at a high pitch this week from Land's End to John o' Groats. Throughout the United Kingdom league football has been pushed into the background as English teams prepare for fourth-round cup games and north of the border 54 clubs put the finishing touches to their training for the initial stage of the Scottish Cup competition.

The Scottish Cup inaugural at the week-end is likely to be made under weather conditions very different from those that forced postponement of six contests in England's big cup day two weeks ago. Milder weather prevails all over the country and big attendances are expected.

While the competition in England has narrowed down to 32 teams it will be a great scramble up north with all the big clubs and 16 would-be giant-killers participating.

Top-notch league clubs anticipate little difficulty in reaching the second stage of the Scottish tournament. Rangers and Aberdeen are drawn against teams of the same status but they are overwhelming favorites to win. Hearts and Celtic oppose little clubs that have survived earlier qualifying rounds.

Rovers Vs. Rangers

Raith Rovers, struggling near the bottom of the league, entertain the fast-driving Rangers at Kirkcaldy and the match comes in the nature of belated New Years gift. It is probable 25,000 spectators will crowd into Starks Park. Aberdeen should easily defeat Albion Rovers at Pittodrie Park.

Hearts have the little known Penicuik Athletic as visitor in the Scottish capital and the Celts play Burntisland Shipyard amateurs at the Fifeshire seaside resort. East Fife, only Second Division team ever to hold the Scottish Cup, is at home to Montrose of the same group.

Managers of most English clubs are happy over the recovery of star players who will line up in Saturday's cup-ties. Everton, highly favored to win the trophy now held by Preston North End, has a home game with Doncaster Rovers of the Third Division. After a week's special training at Harrogate the toffee-makers are confident of victory.

Although at home, Preston will take no chances against Aston Villa. The Villans are out to avenge a 2-1 defeat inflicted by the Lancashire men in one of last season's semi-finals. A London battle between Chelsea and Fulham is expected to attract the biggest crowd of the day to the former's ground at Stamford Bridge.

Chelmsford City, only minor leaguers left in the competition, may be forced to play at Birmingham without Wass, a rugged defender. The right-back is troubled with a strained knee.

1939 Shows Signs Of Great Year For Boxing Fans

By Edward C. Foster
(Executive Secretary, National Boxing Association.)

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Jan. 20 — (AP). — Boxing during 1938 certainly furnished the fans many thrills and plenty of excitement.

First, might I mention the world's professional boxing congress held at the invitation of the Italian Government at Rome in April. Twenty-one different nations were represented.

Certain rules and regulations for the betterment of boxing were agreed upon, and while, of course, it will take a few years to iron out many small, irritating controversies, I firmly believe a great deal of good will be accomplished by this world congress, and that in a few years the results will be evident to everyone.

Without doubt, of course, the great outstanding feature during 1938 was the remarkable career of Henry Armstrong who won the featherweight title late in 1937, last year defeated Barney Ross for the world welterweight championship, and then defeated the lightweight champion, Lou Ambers, to become the champion of three divisions.

Armstrong has since relinquished his claim to the featherweight title and this division is devoid of a National Boxing Association champion at the present time.

The Hostak Upset.

The middleweight division furnished plenty of excitement. Freddie Steele, the champion, was knocked out by Al Hostak in one round. Then a complete upset occurred when Solly Kreiger of New York met and defeated Hostak in a 15-round bout to become champion.

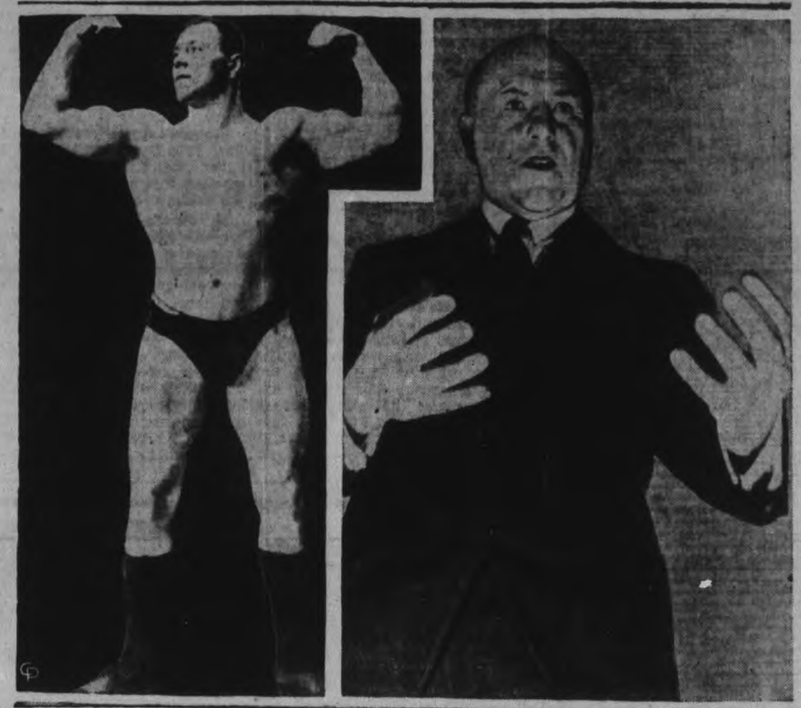
John Henry Lewis, the light-heavyweight champion, defended his title the last time against Al Gainer at New Haven, Conn., on October 28, winning in a very slow, uninteresting contest.

The heavyweight division has been active and brought into the picture a new high-ranking boy, Lou Nova of California. Nova defeated Tommy Farr and showed conclusively that with the experience of a few more bouts he will be a worthy opponent for Joe Louis.

Little can be said about Louis that is not already in the records. He deserves all the credit that goes with the world's heavyweight title.

The year 1939 promises to be one of the best boxing has ever seen.

'Russian Lion' Now Making Lecture Tour



Two pictures of a man whose name is known wherever wrestling is discussed, George Hackenschmidt, seen at the LEFT as he appeared when he was world's wrestling champion from 1905 to 1911, in the days when a world's title embraced more than merely four or five city blocks, as is so frequently the case now. At the RIGHT, the "Russian Lion" is seen as he delivers a speech from the lecture platform, the scene of most of his present-day activities. The mighty man of the mat, who will soon begin a North American lecture tour, looks back on his days in the ring as an "era of distinctive expression," and since he has written a book entitled "Man and Cosmic Antagonisms to Mind and Spirit" you can see that he can juggle words around just as easily as he used to juggle opponents 30 years ago.

Hershey's Bears Nick Indians 3-0

(By the Canadian Press.)

Hershey Bears are clicking again in the form that sent them out to the front in their International-American Hockey League section after the start of the schedule, and before a slump allowed Cleveland Barons to take over temporary possession of the top rung.

The Bears whipped Springfield Indians 3-0 last night at Hershey to maintain their three-point lead over the Barons, who topped Syracuse Stars 2-1.

The Bears scored their victory on a first period goal by Windy Steele and tallies in the third period by Reardon and Kilrea.

In the game at Syracuse the Stars claimed that on the winning goal, which was credited to Patterson, the puck went through the netting at the side to lodge into the cage. The goal judge maintained the puck had not entered the net legally, and Syracuse players showed officials a hole in the side of the net, but Referee Bill Coutu called it a goal.

The disputed score came in the third just a half-minute from the end of the regulation time. In the same period Bummer Doran scored for Syracuse and B. Blake for the Barons.

Helsingfors Shapes Up For Olympics

HELSINGFORS, Jan. 20 — (AP). —Maybe most of the people all around the world aren't thinking very much about the 1940 Olympic Games right now, but a great many in this picturesque Finnish capital are.

Parliament has voted a budget of 200,000,000 finmarks (approximately $5,000,000) for support of the Games and the city itself has subscribed another 100,000,000 finmarks.

Arrangements are being made to accommodate 160,000 guests daily during the spectacle, which is scheduled from July 20 to August 4, 1940. Fully half of the spectators are expected from foreign countries and committees are already busy considering housing problems.

Most of the athletes will be quartered in an "Olympic Village" in a wooded area of the suburb of Kapyla. Contracts for 29 three-storeyed houses providing some 2,500 rooms have been let to a building society, which after the Games will lease the houses out as private dwellings.

Women competitors are to be boarded in a nurses' training college now being built in beautiful natural surroundings.

Lakehurst Wins From Buckhorn

LAKEHURST, Jan. 20. — The Lakehurst junior hockeyists visited Buckhorn early in the week and won by a 4-0 score in a neat tussle. It was a lively exhibition struggle with the winners showing a bit more finish on the attack. Both sides showed lots of speed. Teams:

Lakehurst—Goal, H. Windover; defence, J. Allen, G. Westlake; centre, L. Fawcett; wings, B. Gardiner, S. Northey; subs, M. Hunt, W. Barcroft.

Buckhorn—Goal, W. Spafford; defence, R. Shearer, R. Barr; centre, E. Hall; wings, O Fulton, G. Hall; subs, Armstrong, Ireland, Little.

Referee—W. Northey.

Juniors Tangle Here Tonight

Another good-sized crowd of Peterborough puck followers is expected out tonight (Friday) at the Brock St. rink at 8.30 when the Bowmanville juniors tangle with the local Monarchs in an O.H.A. number. It promises to be a whirlwind of hockey action as these clubs appear very well-matched and with lots of class in junior company. They battled to a torrid 6-4 score in Whitby early in the week, the big Bowmanville bunch winning out—though the Monarchs claim they got a bad deal from the referee and goal-judge. They promise to even it up here tonight and take a firm grip on a good spot to make playoffs.

The flashy, brightly-hued Monarchs are coming along fine now, playing smart, speedy and scrappy hockey. With lots of practice and some good coaching, they look like good playoff prospects, but will be meeting one of the biggest and best teams in the group when Bowmanville mixes with them. Both squads will be at full strength for the struggle and full of fight all the way. Fans have seen several first-rate puck tilts locally in the last week, and tonight's should be another humdinger from start to finish. It deserves a big crowd.

Galento Wipes Out His Past Lapses K.O's Brescia In 1st Round; Snubs Farr For Nova On March 10

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEWARK, N.J., Jan. 20 — (AP) —Round Tony Galento is back in the good graces of practically everybody to-day, his recent lapses forgiven by fans and his services eagerly sought by Promoter Mike Jacobs the man who makes or breaks fighters.

Mike was among the 10,000 awed spectators at the Newark Armoury last night when Tony knocked out Jorge Brescia, the angular Argentine, in 1.41 of the opening heat. He broke all existing records in reaching Tony's side and asking him how he would like to meet Lou Nova next March 10 in Madison Square Garden.

The exultant Tony, between proud proclamations that he hadn't had a single beer all day, told Mike nothing would please him more.

"I'll knock Nova out for you and then get me that Joe Louis," he crowed.

Only one thing stands in the way of Galento-Nova scrap—the little fact that Nova has signed to fight Max Baer on May 25. Jacobs is willing to take a chance on Nova getting licked by Galento if Nova is. The next move is up to the promising young Californian.

Drops Farr Match.

Jacobs had planned on a Galento-Tommy Farr match, but Tony's manager flatly turned him down after the gallant Galento's mighty lefts to the body made Brescia fold up.

"Look at the way we nearly murdered that guy," yelled Joe. "Give us a chance and we'll stop Joe Louis for you before the summer's over."

Whether Tony's that good still is a question. The feeling persists that a man as devoid of a defence as the beer merchant has no business in the ring with a sharp-shooter like the champion.

So far as the naked eye could detect, Brescia did his best to stave of Tony's rushes and to stand up under the blows that smacked into his middle. The finish was a terrific left under the heart that sent the big Argentine to his knees, where he rested and grimaced like a wrestler as he was counted out. Galento's admirers nearly tore the house down.

PATRICK'S BROTHERS

NEW YORK—(CP).—In his long career as a manager Lester Patrick of New York Rangers has had five sets of brothers under his wing, two of them playing now including his two brawny sons, Lynn and Murray Patrick and Mac and Neil Colville.

Mid-Winter Practice

Major league baseball's home run king, Hank Greenberg, of Detroit Tigers, gets in some extra-early practice swings on the sands at Miamia Beach, where he is spending the winter. Ho, for the life of a ball player.

Remember When—

Hans Birkie defeated Jimmy Braddock over 10 rounds at New York six years ago tonight. The bout was a last-minute substitution and attracted less than 5,000 persons. Braddock came back later and dethroned Max Baer as world's heavyweight champion in June, 1935, relinquishing the title to Joe Louis in 1937.

MORE ABOUT—

Gardiner Rejects

the European market from reach of Canadian wheat, Mr. Gardiner said.

The six cent per bushel preference on wheat in the United Kingdom market, relinquished by Canada and Australia to facilitate negotiation of the Anglo-American trade agreement, had not been of any actual benefit, the minister said, nor had its through transit clause benefitted Canadian ports.

There were 220,000,000 bushels more wheat exported through Canadian ports during the five years immediately preceding granting of the preference than during the five years immediately following it.

Mr. Gardiner also, in reply to those who argued there was no direct relation between trade and unemployment, quoted statistics for the last ten years to show that as trade fell off unemployment increased, and as trade improved unemployment diminished. This was true throughout the world.

Gestures and Excuses.

W. Earl Rowe (Con., Dufferin-Simcoe) said the speech from the throne "only reminds people of the uncertainty and instability" surrounding defence ,trade and unemployment problems. For the most part it was 'made up of gestures and excuses before a new election for promises which were made before an old election."

He said he would support the government if it would spend twice as much for national defence as had been spent in the past. He feared, however, that there was still muh uncertainty about Canada's defence policy. The government had not said it would stand "shoulder to shoulder" with the United Kingdom.

The United States trade treaty would likely lead to a loss of jobs among Canadian workmen. This was the case with the former agreement and the new one reduced tariffs still further.

"This whole treaty bristles with danger," he said, "bristles with possibilities of destruction for the major industries of Canada. As I see it, it is a sacrifice of Canada on the altar of economic appeasement."

The major aspect of relief should be a national responsibility, Mr. Rowe declared. No longer could it be left with the municipalities. The federal government should act at once and institute as well a policy of employment assistance. There should be a new outlook in Dominion and provincial relations on these social problems and a new arrangement.

"I regret very much," Mr. Rowe said, "that just now it would be very difficult to have a friendly conference with the provinces, even among the family of Liberal governments."

A centralization of tax-gathering agencies would remove duplication and make for greater efficiency as well as economy, Mr. Rowe believed.

Bicycle Kidnap

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 20—(AP).—Something new in kidnappers—a youth on a bicycle was waiting for George Brickel, 17-year-old drugstore delivery boy, when he finished a delivery last night. "Don't make any funny moves and you'll be all right," he said, motioning with a gun for Brickel to sit on the bicycle crossbar. He rode Brickel three blocks ,then robbed him of $1.10.

Nazi Plan Reply To Lima Meet

Renewed activity by Germany in South America as an answer to the recent Lima conference, was indicated in announcements that the Nazi Reich is planning two powerful radio stations in Lima and Buenos Aires through which to broadcast propaganda. This map shows the section already covered by German wireless broadcasts along with the areas with heavy German populations and the South American nations which are now linked with Europe by blood and trade ties. Propaganda from both Italy and Germany was

Too Much Culture

DETROIT, Jan. 20—(CP).—Delegates at the Michigan Association of Fairs here to-day decided the big trouble with country fairs, especially the big State fair, was "too much culture and not enough agriculture." "Foundation of a successful country fair is a good agricultural exhibit," said Delegate R. O. Buckley, Huron (Mich.) county fair manager.

"Farmers like to see farm machinery displayed, but more than that they want to see what the other fellow has raised on his place during the year and compare their stuff with his."

OBITUARY

MRS. BAPTISTE FOBERT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 20.—The death of Sarah Generoux, wife of Baptiste Fobert, occurred at her late home in the Township of Elzevir, near Actinolite, on Monday. Eighty-two years of age, she was born in the same home in which she died, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Generoux. She had been in ill health for the past two years, but her condition was not serious until late last week.

Sixty-two years ago, she was married to Baptiste Fobert, and her whole life was spent in Elzevir township. The late Mrs. Fobert was a member of the Roman Catholic church at Queensboro.

Remaining, besides her husband, are nine children, John of Eldorado; Louis, Actinolite; Felix of Bogart; Joseph and Fred of Tweed; Mrs. John Generoux, Queensboro; Mrs. A. J. Ashmore, Lindsay; Mrs. Moses Bosley, Eldorado; Mrs. Edward Sexsmith, Queensboro. Three brothers also remain: Felix Generoux, Trenton; Nelson and Duff, Queensboro.

The funeral was held from her late home to Queensboro Roman Catholic church on Wednesday morning, where Rev. Fr. Hyland conducted requiem mass. Interment was at Queensboro. Six grandsons were the bearers: David and Edward Fobert, Frances Bosley, David Generoux, Wilfred Sexsmith and Thomas Fobert.

MRS. THOMAS BRISBIN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 20—One of Manvers most highly respected octogenarians in the person of Mrs. Thomas Brisbin passed away on Sunday morning at her late home at Brisbin's Mill on the Ninth concession of Manvers township. Although Mrs. Brisbin was eighty-two years of age last month she enjoyed good health and maintained the use of all her faculties until a few days previous to her death when she suddenly suffered a severe stroke which proved fatal.

She was a life long resident of Manvers, her maiden name being Elizabeth Ann Miller, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Miller, pioneer Manvers settlers. Fifty-seven years ago she was united in marriage to Thomas Brisbin. To this union were born two children, a daughter Mrs. William Hodgson (Rosemond) of Lindsay and a son Arthur Brisbin of the same town.

Mr. Brisbin predeceased his wife sixteen years ago. He operated the lumber mill on his premises and when he passed on his wife continued to reside at Brisbin's Mill and oversee the work with assistance. She was highly revered by her workmen and had many warm friends in the community in which she lived.

The funeral was held at her late residence on Tuesday afternoon conducted by Rev. C. H. Ferguson, pastor of Yelverton United Church with which Mrs. Brisbin was connected.

The funeral cortege proceeded to Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay where burial took place beside the remains of her late husband. The pall-bearers were two nephews, William Miller, Norman Miller and four neighbors, William Fowler, Herbert Neals, James Shackleton and Willis Whiteside.

MORE ABOUT—

Paying Farmers

from crop failures and the long hours he works in return. When a city man comes home after work he sits on the verandah and waters the lawn while the farmer never takes off his overalls but digs in at the chores right after the evening meal. He went on to show that in every walk of life there are staggering problems and we are all too prone to say that the other fellow has it soft when in reality he is borne down by troubles as great as our own.

The question of fair prices to farmers is a vital one and if fair prices did exist the farmer by virtue of his ability to buy what he needed would start a wave of prosperity that would put every man to work in factories and elsewhere. To-day it takes 300 per cent more than the farmer produces to purchase the things he needs. The speaker expressed regret that the farmers still show little inclination to co-operate and organize themselves as they should in order that their problems may be solved more readily.

Farmers Sick At Heart

For years the farmers have been sick at heart and sick in their pocketbooks. Their buildings and fences are rundown and they have not the money to repair or paint them. There is not a group in the Dominion who could solve the unemployment problem so quickly as the farmers if they were given fair prices for the products they produce.

We can only go forward when we have joint representation, and joint understanding, of all projects and most are interlocking affecting both the urban and rural dwellers.

Mr. Houck said he regarded the brutal slaying of Jimmy Windsor in Toronto as another indication that something must be done at once to give employment to the youth of the country. "Whatever criticism we can make of the dictator countries we must at least admit they are taking care of their youth.

The younger generation are the lifeblood of the country and the leaders of tomorrow and they must be taken care of. The wave of hold-ups and the Windsor murder drove home to many in Toronto that this problem is becoming more acute with each passing day."

Greatest Asset

"Youth is admittedly the country's greatest asset and yet we have no minister of youth in parliament although we have a Minister of Mines and a Minister of Lands and Forests. It is imperative that the boy leaving school must be given a chance to stand on his own feet, must be given responsibility and a job.

We must stand together on all problems instead of seeing one group get help at the expense of another section. Such prospertity as this is only shortlived.

Mayor James Hamilton tendered a vote of thanks to the speaker and lauded those men who have given many years of untiring service to the work of the Exhibition. E. F. Mason seconded the motion.

N. W. Smale of Lindsay who with W. J. Murphy and S. Endicott of the Lindsay Exhibition Board were guests at the banquet said it was the first time such a courtesy had been extended and he brought greetings and best wishes from the president of the Lindsay Fair Board.

The Northrop trio supplied dinner music and solos were given by Mac Gordon and John Fowler while Miss Velma Staples, 13-year-old daughter of S. S. Staples, a director of the Exhibition Board from Ida delighted the gathering with two recitations in French-Canadian dialect entitled the "Quatrains of Callander" and "Jean Baptiste."

Somaliland Sights Italian Plane

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Jan. 20 — (AP). — Fresh reports of an Italian airplane flying deep over French territory reached Djibouti to-day from the border region between Somaliland and Ethiopia.

The plane was said to have circled on Tuesday over the village of Alisabiet, the same place where an Italian plane was reported on a reconnaissance flight on Saturday. Alisabiet is located near the Dekkil mountain range north of the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad.

Britain plans to spend $1,000,000,000 on aircraft this year, compared with $600,000,000 in 1938.

Gunman Gets $3,000 In Montreal Bank

MONTREAL, Jan. 20. — (CP). — More than $3,000 was obtained by a lone gunman who walked into an East Laurier avenue branch of Banque Canadienne Nationale today, stuck a gun through the bars of the teller's cage, forced the youth to push out all available currency, and slipped out the door again. All within a couple of minutes.

The intruder, about 50 years old, was believed to have fled in a waiting motor car. But so rapid was his departure that persons in the bank said they had not been able to see if he fled along the street or jumped into a car which pulled out from the curb immediately after.

JUMP CALLED OFF

Lack of snow and a threatened mild spell today has resulted in the Peterborough Ski club calling off their projected exhibition of jumping by floodlight at Nassau this evening. It will be held at a later date, as soon as snow arrives.

COLLIDE AT INTERSECTION

MILD SPELL ON WAY

White frost early this morning gave promise, despite the intense cold, of a warm spell, according to local weather prophets. Official sources, alleged to be more scientifically inspired, agreed, said a mildspell was on its way.

DRAWS CROWD.

NATIONAL REGISTRATION

Interesting in view of the removal of Hon. R. B. Bennett to England, is the reminiscence of an Examiner employee that it was twenty-one years ago this month that Mr. Bennett, as director-general of national service, called for the "registration for the national purposes of Canada" of every man in the country not serving overseas. This employee

A WINDFALL

Warden Milby complained today of the county council wanting the warden to attend the Good Roads Convention without the county taking membership in the organization. The question was settled and the $15 saved when Miss Batten said she had not sent in the membership money for 1938 until it was asked for late in 1938 and when the receipt arrived it was marked for 1939, so the county was already a member for this year.

REFORESTATION NEEDED

Kiwanians heard Alex L. Elliott, M.P.P., plead for a sane plan of reforestation, at their weekly luncheon meeting today. Mr. Elliott believed a continued policy of public education is necessary if the forests of the north are not to be laid waste as were those of southern Ontario. The lumbering industry forms the largest payroll, employs more workers than any other in Canada, he said, and declared forests must be preserved for future generations. He was introduced by C. S. Browne and Jacob Low moved a vote of thanks. Victor Cruickshanks was guest soloist. Guests at the meeting included Gordon K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls, president of the Ontario Conservative party, and John Turner. The club welcomed back John I. Allen, who has been absent for two months.

County Liable For Costs Of Hospital Cases

Peterborough County Council are liable for the hospital costs of any ward of the Childrens Aid Society who was first a resident of the county, though the child may now be residing in the city in the Shelter or in an adoption home, according to a ruling made by E. A. Peck, K.C., County solicitor at Thursday's session of the council.

"A ward of the shelter does not lose his or her status as a resident of the County even though the child may be living in the city, and I believe the municipality from which the came is liable for hospital costs, should the child become ill," he said. Reeve W. A. Anderson remarked that the county should not have to pay the usual 75 cents per day to the Childrens Aid Society while the child was in the hospital and Mr. Peck in answer said this appeared reasonable.

At the persent time the Council is concerned over three or four bills for hospitalization and have letters from the Peterborough Credit Exchange which ask payment of one bill for $57 for hospitalization of Gerald Johnston, Indian boy from Harvey township who contracted scarlet fever while in the hospital and was sent to the Isolation hospital without the county being notified. They are also asked to pay for the hospitalization of Rita Gray, a domestic who was employed at Lake Chemong in a summer home. This bill was refused by Smith township council and no decision on either case was reached by the Council on Thursday. They are concerned with the ruling re wards of the Shelter because of past experiences and because more cases are certain to crop up in the future.

Compensation Board Demands

Miss Batten, county clerk and treasurer notified the members yesterday that she had a letter from the Compensation Board indicating all salaried employees of the County must be covered by Compensation rules under a ruling which was passed in June of 1938. This move will result in an increase in costs, the exact amount of which is not known.

In the past only laborers employed by the County along with the County Engineer came under this classification, but members of the council stated similar action had been taken in all of the townships.

Howard Quinn, president of the Peterborough County Plowmen's Association addressed the Council seeking financial assistance this year for the plowmen. He said 56 entries were received at the match in 1938, almost double the number in former years and he expressed the opinion the Association was doing a very worthwhile work in the county. Frank Paterson ,secretary of the association said the organization was a truly live, progressive and successful one, deserving of support. Vincent Eastwood, Sr., the other member of the delegation tendered his congratulations to the Warden and members on their re-election and in the plea for a grant said "Farmers are the backbone of civilization and the Plowmen's organization are doing a worthwhile work in this county. "As auditor I can vouch for the proper spending of these monies." We are asking for a grant but it is one that pays dividends to the county."

In committee on finance with Reeve Wallace Shearer in the chair, the Council passed several minor grants which must still be approved before becoming final. Miss Batten read the financial statement for the year which was adopted on motion of Reeve W. A. Anderson and Deputy Reeve Johnston.

The financial statement is as follows:

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 20—(CP).—By a 20-5 vote, Hastings county council filed a grey county council request for support in a move to extend the livestock protection act to include poultry killed by dogs. 'Y' Membership Is Highest In Its History

One of the most successful years in the history of the organization was looked back upon by the executive and members of the Y.M.C.A. at the annual meeting last night. With no liabilities in the statment of current accounts, the financial report showed an operating gain of $2,693-40. Only debt still facing the association now is the building fund. The report showed total receipts of $21,800.99.

The following directors were elected for three years: W. A. Richardson, I, McRae, J. H. Vernor, G. S. Matthews, C. Lacheur and H. L. Garner. C. A. Salmonsen and R. M. Glover were made honorary directors. The names were submitted to the meeting by a nominating committee composed of F. Hills, chairman, C. Shaw, J. L. Gilleespie, H. Tudhope, M. Rishor and G. Batley, and was acepted unanimously. Mr. McRae and Mr. Garner are the new members on the board.

Membership in the Y now stands at 1,151, the highest in the history of the association, G. H. Roper, general secretary, said in his report. "Peterborough is still in first place per capita in Canada," he said. "The remarkable increase in boys' membership from 308 last year to 446 now is an outstanding achievement for which our boys' secreetary, Cameron Gorrie, deserves the highest praise." He said that receipts from the Dormitory department had exceeded the budget expectations by $529.

He paid tribute to the Ladies' Auxiliary who, he said, "have continued to serve in their customary efficient way and have continued to supply all the needs of the dormitories. In addition to this they have supplied new curtains in the auditorium and have constantly sought to improve the building.

"The association faces the year 1939 in a strong position and should continue to make steady progress in all departments."

Boys' Work Report

Reporting on boys' work, Secretary Cameron Gorrie said the division has now the largest membership on record here. He told of a new system of records in his division, instituted this fall, which revealed an attendance of 6,551 for a three-month period.

"Program for Boys' Membership is supervised by the democratically elected Boys' Cabinet composed of leading boys in the membership who represent their clubs and classes," he said.

"By serving the community as well as the immediate boys' membership, the Y.M.C.A. has apparently widen-

The Rambling REPORTERS

RESENTS ACTION

Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee voiced resentment in County Council this morning over action of the Board of Health of Peterborough submitting two accounts for hospital bills to a Peterborough collection agency for collection from the county. "We are not in the habit of defaulting on our bills," he declared and I think it is a rather shabby way of seeking payment." On both accounts the council disclaimed any liability and and refused payment.—McG.

Distemper Prevalent Among Dogs In City

Distemper is prevalent among dogs in this city, according to Dr. Thomas Johnston, Humane Society inspector, in his report to the society yesterday. Dr. Johnston warned that there are a great many cases in the city and that owners should keep a constant watch on their pets for symptoms of the disease.

The past month has been a bad one so far as dogs are concerned, according to his report. Five dogs were struck by cars and all were killed, he said. "In all cases but one the drivers stopped and did what was possible for the animals." He said all dogs must be provided with proper shelter during the winter months, and if kept in outside kennels, bedding must be provided for them.

Henry Coons Is Re-elected Head Lakefield Fair

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 20. — H. D. Coons, of Smith township, will again head the Lakefield Agricultural Society, the members decided when they held their annual election of officers in the Memorial Hall here on Wednesday afternoon. A. E. Higgins was elected first vice-president, Geo. Mullen will be second vice-president, and Howard Beavis will again fill the position of secretary-treasurer. The old board of directors was re-elected, with J. McKerchar's name added.

Howard Beavis, secretary, presented the financial report. The receipts, he stated, amounted to $1,-468.33, made up as follows: Balance from 1937, $121.08; grants, $545.00; fees, $90.30; donations and ads, $235.85; proceeds from concert and dance, $78.95; miscellaneous receipts, $27.00 and gate receipts, concessions and grandstand, $370.15. Expenses amounting to $1,330.34 were for prize money 543.65; printing, advertising and badges, $213.75; insurance, $54.70; horse races, fees and grading track, $162.10; judges, $31.00; miscellaneous, $79.96; salary, $75.00; improvements, $27.18, and entertainment, $123.00. The secretary reported a satisfactory balance of $137.99 on hand.

Retain Calf Club.

The meeting decided to again hold the calf club at the Fair. This permits boys under 20 years to raise pure-bred calves and exhibit them in a class by themselves at the Fair. It was felt that the calf club stimulates the interest of the younger lads who might be discouraged at having to exhibit their work in a larger field of competition.

A. E. Higgins was appointed to represent the local agricultural society at the convention being held in Toronto on Feb. 23 and 24.

There was considerable discussion as to whether the date of Lakefield's 1939 Fair should be set, not during the last week in September but a week or two earlier. The president and the secretary were appointed a committee to work out a suitable date which would not conflict with other fairs in this district.

Arrangements were made for an "old-fashioned farmers' institute meeting" in connection with the Fair Board, to be held in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, on Feb. 7. The meeting will be open to the public and the speaker will be Mr. McKercher of the Department of Agriculture, who is at present conducting a short course at Keene.

Coast Guards Stand By Helpless Vessel

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The United States coast guard cutter Cayuga prepared today, if storm-tossed seas permit, to tow the helpless freighter Black Condor to New York.

The cutter stood by the 5,380-ton Black Diamond Line craft, which lost its propellor in a northerly gale 75 miles southeast of Sable Island, N.S. The freighter, en route from Rotterdam and Antwerp, carried a crew of 45.

Counties Plan To Fight Wooler Board

COBOURG, Jan. 20.—(Special).—Northumberland and Durham counties council decided to "go to bat" on the Wooler Continuation School issue. This decision was arrived at when the council met Thursday afternoon and within the hour the counties solicitor, Col. F. D. Boggs, K.C., was preparing the statement of defence which was later filled in response to the claim of the Wooler school board The board issued a writ claiming the sum of $1,176 covering 1937 and 1938 and representing the charges for transportation of pupils by bus to the Wooler Continuation School. Last December at the session of counties council, the council empowered the clerk to advise the Wooler board that the council was prepared to give them $1,000 but the offer was turned down.

While the amount involved at the present time is not large, the case is regarded important because of the fact that it is primarily a test issue and will set a precedent which will either impel or deter other school boards along similar lines. The counties solicitor, Col. Boggs, expressed misgiving that if the council settled the matter by paying the amount claim it might be the signal for a deluge of similar claims from other school boards.

Offer Refused

"This action was brought after the Wooler board had refused our offer of $1,000," Col. Boggs pointed out. "A writ has been issued and in my opinion there is nothing we can do except to defend it. The claim is for transportation of county pupils to the Continuation School at Wooler but there is no provision in the Continuation School Act which authorizes them to make any such claim.

"The public school board can transport pupils to its own school," continued Col. Boggs, "but it is unusual for a board to go outside its school section. There has been no decision made by the courts on this matter and if we settle it, we may be deluged with claims from all over. I suggest that we leave it up to the judge. To my way of thinking that is the cheapest way in the long run —get a final decision from the judge."

Ex-reeve R. R. Mallory of Percy township, appointee to the special schools committee doubted if Wooler would collect the whole amount. If at all, it would only be for actual attendance, he said.

Fight The Issue

Reeve Leslie Wilson of Cobourg informed the council that Mr. Combes of the department had stated that "C" grade schools were not covered in section 94 of the Act. The more the matter was studied, the more he felt that the counties should fight the issue, stated the reeve of Cobourg.

"I would move then that we go ahead and fight the case," stated Reeve Wilson. Deputy-reeve J. Ewart of Cobourg seconded it and the motion carried.

Details in regard to the next step in the matter were left to the special schools committee along with the warden and the chairman of the finance committee Reeve Wilson recalled that the department had offered to help Wooler by offering to pay a share in the form of a special grant if the various school sections could get together and put up the balance. However the school sections couldn't agree.

Deputy-reeve W. A. Smith of Wooler replied that some people in the school sections felt that it was unfair to have to put up any money.

CALCUTTA — (CP). — India is trying to stimulate the production in ordinance factories of armament for defence purposes. Recently the first three-inch anti-aircraft manufactured in India was produced at Cossipore, near here.

Warden J. Milby Plays Host County Council

Warden James Milby set a precedent in the amenities of municipal life in Peterborough county by entertaining at his home on Park street south Thursday evening the members of the county council and of North Monaghan township council, and also the officials who are associated with them in the administration of both municipalities. It was an exceedingly enjoyable affair, an expression of Warden Milby's appreciation of the honor conferred upon him this week by his colleagues of the county council, and also inspired by his desire to bring the members more closely together at the beginning of his term of office in the harmony and understanding that is cultivated by social contacts.

Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee, dean of the county council, called grateful attention to the fact that the occasion was the first in his experience of 19 years as a member that a Warden had extended the hospitality of his home to his associates and in such pleasing circumstances as those of last night. The dinner and its appointments were delightful and the subsequent informal program rounded out an evening which Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore regretted were too few.

A vote of thanks to the Warden and Mrs. Milby was moved by Reeve Wallace Shearer of Harvey, contestant last Tuesday for the Wardenship, and seconded by Reeve Ernest Seeney. And the singing of "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow" was led by Deputy-reeve Harry Fowler of Smith.

Capable Councillors.

Reeve Anderson said the voting for a candidate for the Wardenship was usually a puzzling duty, because in the election of the 19 Wardens in his time they had been invariably capable and worthy of the office. He had never had any cause for being ashamed of the votes he had cast.

Roy Brown of Apsley, one of the additional guests, extolled the diligence of Warden Milby in the performance of his duties. "He impressed me as having always trying to do his best, and it is a pleasure to see him rewarded for his faithful work by being elected Warden. I feel confident you will say at the end of this year that there has been no better administration that which Warden Milby is now beginning with the help of his council." Mr. Brown

Gains Registered By Insurance Co.

A record of solid growth is indicated by the reports submitted at the sixty-fourth annual meeting of the London Life Insurance Company which was held yesterday. The company has fully maintained its traditions, with substantial gains being registered in all departments during 1938. Increases were reported in new insurance, total of insurance in force, resources and surplus funds for the protection of policyholders.

Summing up the position of the company, Edward E. Reid, vice-president and managing director, said: "The results of the year on all counts indicate in a most emphatic manner that we are following sound principles. Policyholders' interests are fully secured and we are thoroughly justified in viewing the future wit hassurance that the company's progress will continue to afford gratification to all whose interests are involved in its welfare."

The total life insurance in force is $607,621,294, excluding all annuities and re-insurance ceded. On this basis the increase for the year was $36,902,538.

C. S. Lambert Heads Unemployed Group

Chairman, C. S. Lambert; vice chairman, M. Meade; secretary, M. Leal; treasurer, H. Martin; members of the executive, Mrs. V. Harris, Mrs. J. Post, Mrs. L. Wager, A. Leal, B. Reid, D. Wager, D. Leal, H. Hutchison.

The meeting was very well attended, and the election was ably handled by George Harris secretary of the Ontario Federation On Unemployment, from Toronto, who acted in the capacity of chairman. During the course of the meeting many important points were discussed. One point in particular was, "That an element of co-operation should exist between the association and the people they are to come in contact with in the course of the association's duties."

Exhibition Grant Of $500 Is Unchanged As County Council Refuses Increase

omy that has prevailed throughout.

Following a policy of rigid economy all deliberations so far this week, members of the County Council refused to increase the grant to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition for 1939. It was $500 last year and directors had hoped that the council would loosen the purse strings this year and double that grant so that a new barn might be built.

Usually the grants for fall fairs do not get consideration until the June session, but Miss Batten stated it would greatly facilitate her work if they were disposed of at this first sitting.

The deciding motion was that all grants to fall fairs in the county remain the same this year as they were in 1938, and the motion was introduced by Reeve Anderson of Otonabee and Reeve McColl of Asphodel.

Increase Must Be General.

The feeling was paramount among the members that the small fairs in the county had just as difficult a time meeting their obligations and deserved plenty of encouragement and if an increase was made to the Peterborough Exhibition, then the increase would have to be general. This situation was outlined by Reeves Coughlin of Douro and Anderson of Otonabee.

"We should give every encouragement to the small agricultural societies said Reeve Thompson of Norwood. The small exhibitor has no chance of competing at the big exhibition but show plenty of interest in the Lakefield and Norwood fairs.

Reeve Mann of Smith moved that the grant be $1,000 this year and no appropriation be made in 1940, but he got no seconder to the amendment. In a similar vein Warden Milby moved that the Peterborough Exhibition get $750 this year, an increase of $250, which Reeve Gifford endorsed, but the motion was withdrawn in the face of united opposition. Reeve Gifford was evidently fighting alone for an increased grant, although Warden Milby and Reeve Mann were friendly to the idea.

Oddfellows Honor Veteran Member

More than 150 Oddfellows and friends enjoyed a social evening in the Triple Link Temple last night when jewels were presented by Dr. G. C. R. Hall of Little Britain, Grand Master of Ontario.

Edward Kendry, 1015 Water street was given a 50 year jewel while W. H. Young, Harry Carter and George Hall, Charlotte street Barber and all residents of the city received 25 year jewels. Four other jewels will be mailed to lodge members who now reside in other parts of Ontario. A nice gesture was added to the ceremony when the members of Peterborough Lodge No. 111 under whose auspices the affair was held presented Mrs. Hall, wife of the Grand Master with an electric clock. W. Constable, P.DD, G.M., was chairman during the business portion of the program and later the crowd enjoyed dancing, carpet bowling and euchre.

New Era Of Progress Is Forecast In Move Of County To Form Fish And Game Body

A new era of progress and achievement was forecast by Fred R. Marshall, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association yesterday when he appeared before the county council to express his pleasure at the formation of a committee from the county council to further interests of the county in fish and game conservation and propagation of wild life.

He said it was his opinion that the entire question of Fish and Game would get the best consideration if handled entirely by the county council, and he added speaking as president of the city organization that they were very pleased the council had seen fit to form a committee. He extended the utmost co-operation of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association and said there was no reason why the two could not work in harmony to attain great success.

He commended the members on their efforts in setting up a county forest as a reforestation venture, saying both ventures interlocked.

"Fish and game resources are great and valuable enough to warrant the attention of every Canadian," he stated.

Reeve Martin Coughlin of Douro asked what steps the conservation committee might take to determine whether certain waters in the county not stocked with game fish at present, would be suitable for this type of fish, and if so where could stock be obtained.

Mr. Marshall said it would be comparatively easy to have a biologist from the Department of Game and Fisheries come down to Peterborough and examine any waters in which the members were interested. This man would recommend the type of fish which would thrive in certain lakes and streams. He also said fry could be obtained from the Department and placed in the lakes, if application was made to the Department of Game and Fisheries. Reeve Coughlin mentioned Buckley's Lake east and south of Lakefield which had never been restocked but which had some large mouth bass in its at present from natural sources.

MILK PRODUCERS ARE URGED TO STUDY THEIR OWN PROBLEMS

Then When Course Decided Upon Go To Government For Aid Mayberry Tells Holstein Men

Eight years' study of the problems of the farmers of this country and especially of the dairy farmers of this province, has converted R. H. Mayberry, vice-president of the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association, from the opinion that "the government should do something about", he affirmed as guest speaker at the Holstein-Friesian Association's dinner Thursday in the basement of Mark Street United Church.

"Some people are still saying the same thing, let the government do it, but I am satisfied the government can't do anything," Mr. Mayberry said to the audience of two hundred and fifty men and women from a broad area of the county. "You can hardly expect the government to inaugurate any drastic legislation for which there does not seem to be a clear call from the people who elected them. As producers we have to study our problems, figure out what we think should be done, and then we can ask the government to give us the help we need. And I believe the government would do it."

Four rural commodity groups were represented in the large audience. They were the Holstein Breeders' Association, Cheese Patrons' Association, Peterborough Milk Producers' Association, and Concentrated Milk Producers Association. Frank C. Paterson, representative of the Department of Agriculture, was chairman of the dinner, and among those at the head table were Stanley Wood, president of the Holstein-Friesian Association, Mayor Hamilton, Warden Milby, Alex L. Elliott, M.P.P., V. S. Milburn, secretary of the Ontario Dairy Farmers' Federation, George A. Elliott, president of the Peterborough Cheese Patrons' Association, Joseph Tully, Mr. Mayberry, Robert Holtby, field man for the Holstein breeders, Clarence Mann, secretary of the Concentrated Milk Producers, John Houck, former chairman of the Milk Control Board, Wm. Ovens, manager of Campbell's Dairy, and Cliff Hall who directed an interlude of singing, and contributed two songs.

Sketching the Problem.

Introduced by Mr. Milburn, Mr. Mayberry reviewed the farm products marketing problem which he said was of paramount concern to all the people engaged in Canadian agriculture. In the second stage of his address he emphasized what Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and some other countries had done, and finally posed the question, "What are we going to do about it?" Mr. Mayberry's recommendation was that farmers in their commodity groups had to study their problems at first hand, then consult together as groups in such a sound organization as the Canadian Chamber of Agriculture, and finally appeal to the government for assistance in putting into effect the remedies and corrective measures that appear to be practical and offer encouraging promises of success.

Organizations such as the Cheese Patrons, the Milk Producers, the Holstein Breeders and so on were essential to this plan, Mr. Mayberry said, and he complimented the promoters of the dinner and the large number of farmers who attended it.

Excessive Production.

In his introduction Mr. Mayberry reminded his audience of the extent of the increase in the production of farm commodities during the last quarter of a century. Canada has increased her wheat acreage from 10,000,000 acres in 1912 to 25,000,000 acres last year, and the wheat production from two hundred million to four hundred million This expansion has extended to many other countries, and by July of this year there will be sufficient wheat to supply the world for another year if not a kernel were grown this year.

Australia's 142,000,000 pounds of butter in 1929 increased to 310,000,000 pounds in 1937. And in the first three months of the new dairy year beginning last August, the antipodean spring, the exports of butter from Australia were doubled those of the corresponding quarter a year ago.

European countries have been subsidizing the growth of wheat in an effort to build up a domestic supply that would be a protection in the event of war, and a safeguard against starvation if imports were shut off. France pays $1.56 for a bushel of wheat grown in France, Germany's price is $2.20 to its growers, Italy $2, and Great Britain $1.30. The result has been that wheat-purchasing countries reduced their buying last year from 760,000,000 bushels to 520,000,000.

Adjustment To New Ways.

Mr. Mayberry declared that farmers must adjust themselves to modern ways of doing business. He showed that allowing the number 100 for the production of farm implements in this country in 1929, the corresponding number in 1933 at the peak of the depression was down to 20. During the same time farm production had declined only from 100 to 94.

"We kept on producing in the face of restricted markets, thereby aggravating the effects of the depression on our own industry."

Mr. Mayberry recalled that Great Britain for all its reputed conservative attitude towards progressive ideas set up its milk control scheme five years ago. It required every person producing milk to take out a license, and all milk was sold in Britain by contract. The price has increased from 24 shillings a gallon to 32½ shillings for fluid milk delivered to the distributor.

By an advertising campaign, and with the establishment of more than 1,000 milk bars and other sales stimulants the consumption of milk in Britain increased 40,000,000 gallons.

Dairy Control Boards.

Mr. Mayberry recounted the accomplishment of the dairy control boards in Australia and New Zealand.

Australia raised $200,000 by a levy on milk producers and proceeded to make a survey of the British market. Of 100,000 retailers only 8,000 sold Australian butter, but it was only butter without any identification. Now there are 50,000 retailers selling Australian dairy products and selling them as Australian products. Mr. Mayberry cited other examples, all illustrating what other British countries had done in securing and restricting markets, and leading up to his conviction that Candadian farmers have to study their peculiar problems, and endeavor to arrive at their own solutions without necessarily copying methods used in other countries.

Janet Gaynor Evades Queries

When Janet Gaynor, petite film notable, arrived in New York from the Pacific coast she was met at the railway station (so reporters averred) by Gilbert Adrian, Hollywood costume designer. The newshawks also swore that Adrian greeted Miss Gaynor with a hearty kiss. But while the couple agreed to pose for this photo in a New York hotel they wouldn't give any information about a possible romance. "We might be married this year or next year," said Miss Gaynor—with the inference, of course, that they might not be married at all. Not very definite was she?

Hastings United Church Year Shows Progress In All Groups

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 20.—The Hasting United church held their annual congregatonal meeting in the church school room.

At precisely six-thirty the ladies of the church had tables neatly set and dinner was served for the large crowd gathered for the occasion, after which the pastor, Rev. F. W. Newell called the meeting to order to transact business.

Reports of the different organizations were read, and all departments gave interesting and very favorable reports with all current obligations met for the year with a favorable balance.

One year ago this church sustained a very disastrous fire, but determination and co-operation of pastor and people have made it possible for a beautiful temple to be rebuilt.

Officers elected were:

DETROIT, Jan. 20 — (CP). — Detroit City Council suggested to its Traffic Department left turns be prohibited along one street in an effort to reduce traffic congestion. The department surveyed the result and reported motorists in one year would have to travel 2,240,000 extra miles, make 17,500,000 more stops, and be delayed 140,000 hours. The suggestion was dropped.

Geo. Thompson New Warden Hastings County

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 20—Reeve George E. Thompson of Rawdon township was elected to the wardenship of the County of Hastings for the year 1939 defeating Reeve George W. Bush, Sidney Township and Reeve John L. Churcher, Dungannon township on the first ballot, after upwards of two hours debate in council caucus. Reeves G. Campbell, Deseronto and William J. Davis, Bangor township, withdrew their names shortly after the caucus opened.

Election of the warden at the opening meeting of the inaugural session of the 1939 council culminated what was expected to be a stern battle for the highest honor the council fathers can bestow. Although final figures were not given out it is understood that Reeve John Churcher ran second to Warden Thompson after a stern caucus fight.

Following the debate, members retired to the Council Chambers where Warden-elect Thompson received the unanimous acclaim of the entire council. The oath of office was administered by county clerk Erle Denyes, following which the new warden was invested in his robes and insignia of office and escorted to the Warden's Chair by the county clerk, Vociferous applause greeted Warden Thompson as he took his seat as chief executive of the county council for the current year.

The New Warden

Hastings County's new Warden comes to his position particularly well qualified for the job. Scion of a grand old county family, his paternal forebears were long connected with the municipal life of his native township and county. His father, the late Thomas T. Thompson, represented Rawdon township for a number of years, and was long a familiar figure within the austere walls of Shire Hall.

Warden Thompson entered municipal life nine years ago when he was elected to the township council of his native Rawdon. For two years he sat at the council table absorbing knowledge of the many phases of municipal government. Successful in the election for reeve, two years after his elevation to the council, he has held the respect an desteem of his electors since that time, representing them in county council for the past seven years. Possessed of a genial personality; he enjoys not only the respect of his fellow councillors within the council chamber, but their good fellowship and a well-deserved popularity in the social anteroom.

Is A Farmer

An inherent son of the soil he has followed the agricultural occupation of his forebears all his life, and is well known as a prominent successful farmer. Not all his interests however are confined to the tilling of the soil. A natural trend towards the dairying phases of agriculture, especially the cheese industry, and a wholehearted interest in this prominent Hastings County product, brought him the presidency of the Springbrook Cheese Factory, a position he still enjoys.

He is prominent in Masonic, Oddfellow and Orange fraternal circles, and his interest on matters of this kind brought him well-deserved recognition from all parts of the province. He is the father of a fine family, one of which is now attending college.

4-Year-Old Kidnapper

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 20 —(CP). — Grim police combed city streets and the underworld for the kidnapper of an eight-months-old baby here, but chuckled when they captured the kidnapper, a four-year-old boy who had hauled the infant half a block away into a store.

Police said the kidnapping was to get "revenge" on the store owner, who had punished him for stealing candy.

To End Radio Static

Radio programs minus all traces of static will be broadcast from this 400-foot tower located atop the Palisades in New York city when technical plans have been perfected next spring. The tower is equipped with 150-foot cross arms. The broadcasting station will operate on a new type of ultra-short radio wave length which will wipe out tube noises, fading and interference. The station is the first high-powered frequency-modulated broadcasting station in the world.

Shot Mangles Fingers Of Marlbank Man

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 20.—While alone at his home, four miles north of the village of Marlbank, Clayton Allen met with a painful accident when a shotgun accidentally discharged, mangling the fingers of his right hand. Winding a towel about his hand, he ran a mile to a neighbor's house and was then rushed to a nearby physician.

Villiers Man Is Marking 88th Birthday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Jan. 20.—One of this district's oldest citizens, a life-long resident of Peterborough county, is celebarting his 88th birthday today. He is John Walker, of Villiers, who was born in 1851 in Asphodel township.

Of pioneer stock, he is the only surviving member of a family of ten, is widely throughout the district. Mr. Walker received some of his schooling at Westwood. He was born on the farm now owned by Percy Graham and at the age of 12 years moved with his parents, the late John Walker and Hannah Gillespie, to the second concession of Otonabee, on a farm on Rice Lake, now owned by Frank Elmhirst. Living there, he finished his education at Villiers.

In 1879 he helped build the railway from Peterborough to Hastings.

He married Alice Madeline Gillespie in 1893; she predeceased him two years ago. They had two children, both of whom are living. Mrs. William Dickson, of Villiers, is a daughter and Stanley Walker, of Villiers, is a son.

Mr. Walker farmed for more than thirty years on the farm now owned by Mr. Fee of Campbellford. He is retired now, living with his son.

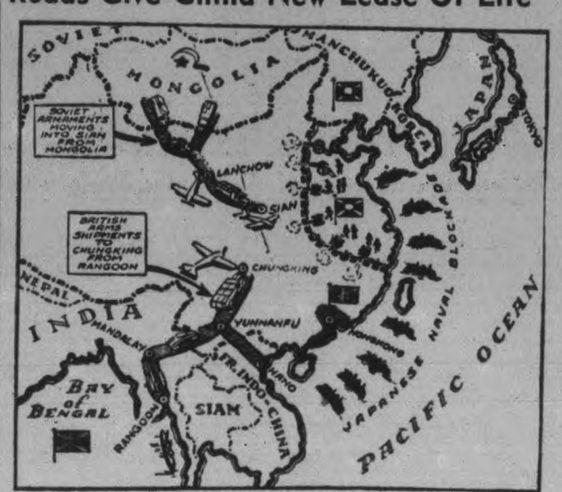
Roads Give China New Lease Of Life



This map shows the herculean efforts which China has made to assure herself adequate supplies of food and munitions to carry on her death battle with Japan. With the Mikado's fleet enforcing a complete blockade of the east coast, China lacked means to import the sinews of war—even if she had money with which to purchase them. Now, thanks to loans from U.S. and Britain totalling over $50,000,000 and two newly completed highways, arms and food are pouring into China again. The map shows China's two vital roads, one a new 100-foot highway from Chunking to Yunannfu and thence to Rangoon, in British India; the other a similar connecting link down which pour the sinews of war from Soviet Russia through Mongolia into Siam.

BOMBSHELL DROPPED BY HAROLD STEVENS INTO ARSON TRIAL

Assistant Manager Of Store Tells Of Receiving Keys From Herman On Night Of Fire

Something in the nature of a bombshell dropped from a clear sky into the proceedings in the arson charge against Robert Nathan Herman before Judge Smoke in county court Thursday afternoon when Harold Stevens, 22-year-old assistant manager of Pattenick's store, and a Crown witness, electrified the court by declaring that when he parted from Herman in front of the latter's residence on London street a few minutes before the fire was discovered on the night of December 12, Herman had handed him a key case and asked him to turn out the lights in the store that night.

Visibly surprised by this unexpected evidence, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., hurled a barrage of questions at the witness and finally asked permission of the court to treat Stevens as an adverse witness.

"You didn't mention this to us before," he said, sternly to Stevens.

"I don't believe I did," replied the witness.

"Why did you not tell Mr. Saville when he examined you under oath and why didn't you say at the police court that Herman had given you the keys? You left the impression then that Herman had possession of the key to the store that night and now you ask us to believe that the truth was that you had it at the time the alarm was turned in."

"I am going to ask to be allowed to treat this witness as an adverse witness," the Crown Attorney continued, addressing Judge Smoke.

"To do that you will first have to set up a foundation," pointed out His Honor.

"Then I ask for an adjournment for fifteen minutes," said Mr. McElderry, "in order that I may have an opportunity to go over the evidence given at the preliminary hearing."

The request was granted.

When court re-opened the Crown Attorney announced that he had been unable to find anything in the evidence to show that Stevens had been asked directly about the keys so far as the night of the fire was concerned.

"There are voluminous questions in regard to the keys, however," he said and proceeded to read a number of them.

Not Ruled Adverse

Judge Smoke then ruled that he had been unable to find from the evidence quoted reason for considering Stevens an adverse witness and examination continued.

Stevens, repeating that Herman had given him the key case in front of the house with the request that he turn out the lights in the store that night, added that as the two ran down the street together when they heard of the fire at the store, he had handed the keys back to Herman.

The key case was produced by the witness who said that he had not opened it on the night in question.

The case and keys were entered as an exhibit although Stevens protested and said that the cash register key was in the case and was needed.

"Mr. Pattenick is in town and I do not think you will need a key tonight," said the Crown Attorney, sharply.

"My learned friend is making a threat to this witness," protested E. F. Singer, K.C., defence counsel.

"The keys are going in as an exhibit and they are going to stay there, Mr. Singer," remarked His Honor.

This unexpected development was the outstandnig feature of the Thursday afternoon session which had been progressing more or less monotonously along the line followed in the preliminary hearing when Stevens' remark about the keys chased the dullness out of the proceedings.

Adjuster Testifies

C. H. Griffith, Toronto, fire insurance adjustor of 17 years' experience, testified that he acted as Mr. Pattenick's adjuster after the fire. A detailed inventory was taken and all the adjusters agreed as to the figures. Herman was there during part of the time the inventory was taken. It had been found there was $2,998.54 worth of goods left in the basement after the fire and the adjusters arrived at an estimate that $600 worth of goods had been burned out of sight.

"What would you say as to the possibility that more goods were destroyed than you estimated."

"I don't think so," was the reply.

Witness sai dthere had been a complete inventory of the stock upstairs and the total arrived at was $17,326.10.

Witness said that Herman had told him he had hidden a sum of over $300 in the basement and he had been unable to find it.

To Mr. Singer witness said that the sum of $600 mentioned as the value of the goods burned in the basement was merely an estimate but he thought it was a fairly accurate one.

Doors Were Locked.

George Gimblett, Jr., city fireman, said both doors were locked when the firemen arrived at the scene of the fire. He said that he and other firemen had broken the glass in two windows at the back but found it impossible to get inside because cordwood was piled up against them.

The witness told of going down into the basement with Herman while the latter looked for the money he said had been hidden there. Herman pointed out a spot; they had spent some time looking without finding any money here. Herman had mentioned something about the money being near the wool, but he himself had seen no wool there.

Virgil Carr, city fireman, told of being in the basement of the store the night after the fire with Herman and Chief Gimblett and Herman pointed to a spot along the north wall as the place where he hid his money. A search was made there and no money as found. There were boxes of merchandise at the spot indicate by Herman. The outside ends of these boxes had been scorched and the contents were not burned. Herman had said there was no use looking in the boxes because he would not put money there.

To Mr. Singer witness said the joists above the place were smoked but not burned.

"Was Herman certain of the place?"

"He didn't hesitate; he walked to the spot, put his hand in and said "right here," replied the witness.

Tells Of Furnace

Before the unexpected turn had developed Harold Stevens, assistant manager of Pattenick's, said he understood Herman's salary was $25 a week. Witness said that he looked after the furnace and on the morning of December 12 he had lit the fire at 9 o'clock. At 1.15 he had visited the furnace and the fire was completely out and he had re-lit it, putting in 4 or 5 sticks of wood. He thought that fire would be pretty well burned out by 2.15 or 2.30 o'clock. Stevens told about going to the basement around 5.45 o'clock when he took the cash receipts for the day down to hide them. Herman had given the money to him and he had not counted it. Witness hid the money in a box between two sweaters. It was recovered after the fire where he had hid it. The front of the boxes were charred.

Witness said that about 5.55 he had carried the sweepings for the store down stairs. There was no evidence of fire or smoke around the basement at that time.

Stevens told of the store being locked up shortly before 6 o'clock and of going home with Herman, and said the town clock struck 6 o'clock as they reached Hunter street.

Then came the surprising new evidence in regard to the keys as already related.

When that exciting episode was completed for the time being Crown Attorney McElderry examined Stevens as to financial matters and the witness repeated his evidence as given in the police court of having deposited sums of money aggregating over $400 to Herman's account in the Bank of Toronto during the period from November 15 to December 12. At that time Herman was earning a solary of $25 a week.

Stevens told of advancing sums to Herman at various times during the past eight months, generally in the form of a check made out to W. Pattenick. These were repaid, except the last one for $23, by Herman out of the till, Stevens said.

"These cheques would mean that Herman had a shortage to be taken care of," asked Mr. McElderry.

"That would be the natural assumption," witness said.

Stevens also told of dealings Ralph Solerow had had with the store and said that sometimes when Solerow had paid for goods by cheque the cheques had come back marked N.S.F. and these had been made good afterward by Herman.

Court adjourned at 5.30 o'clock until 10 o'clock today.

Has World's Safest Pair Of Hands

No "butter fingers" are the 10 digits of Mrs. Louisa Allen, who is shown here dusting an antique vase valued at $1,750 in the shop of Rochelle Thomas, famed London antique dealer. Mrs. Allen's hands are the "safest in the world," according to her employers. In the 20 years she has worked for them a million pieces of rare bric-a-brac have passed through her hands without breakage of a single piece. Mrs. Allen is a 60-year-old war widow.

G.M. Heads Aiming To Spread Work

REGINA, Jan. 20.—(CP).—In an effort to prolong periods of employment for plant workers in General Motors Canadian factories, attempts will be made to shorten the gaps at present existing between production periods, J. B. Highfield, Oshawa, Ont., general plant manager of the G.M.C., said here yesterday. Mr. Highfield is in Regina on a semi-annual inspection trip.

General Motors planned to develop a production scheme that would shorten the customary lay-off of plant workers between production periods, the period used to re-equip the plant for new models, he said. Average lay-off is about three months.

Although Mr. Highfield said he thought the future was bright for the continued operation of Regina plant, he added it was too early to make any forecasts of expansion.

ed its scope and sphere of influence in the community," he said. He pointed to such community projects of the past year as a successful Hobby Show in which more than a thousand entries from three hundred boys had been entered; a city-wide "learn-to-swim" campaign in which 240 non-members were registered and 132 were taught to swim in six 20-minute free lessons, a vacation club for boys of the city who remained in town during summer vacation, and in which 100 boys participated in daily programs; leadership and service to non-Y.M.C.A. boys' clubs in the city; a Soap Box Derby that attracted some two thousand spectators; a Hi-Y club for senior Collegiate students.

"During the past year," he said, "your secretary served as Camp Director for the Boys' Work Board camp; addressed 11 organizations on boys' work; conducted over two hundred interviews on boys' work and personal problems and is conducting a course of music appreciation for the department of agriculture school at Keene.

Physical Department.

In his report on the physical department Walter Ferris told of the recent introduction of a game new to Peterborough, called floor hockey. "The game is popular among young fellows who desire a game with bodily contact. A league is in the offing and it is planned to send a team into the Ontario playoffs in the spring."

He told of establishment of a boxing class under Art Hunter a body-building class under Ira Dundas, and a learn-to-swim class.

A. B. Rhodes presented a report on the Volley Ball association, one of the most active sections of the Y.M.C.A. An average of 62 players participate in league games every Saturday afternoon. Officers elected for 1939 were Albert E. Dryland, president; James Gillespie, vice-president; A. B. Rhodes, secretary-treasurer; C. V. Elliott, Ken Kingston and Cliff Cadd, executive members.

"Several swimmers are showing real promise of holding their own in open competition this winter," Gordon Minty said in his report on swimming activities. He outlined advances made during the year and said the swimmers are now organized into the Peterborough Swimming association with officers as follows: Stan McBride, president; Gerald Corbett, vice-president; Ted Clarke, secretary-treasurer; Tom Macdonald, social secretary; Wally Farr, publicity secretary; Gordon Minty, coach.

Y's Men's Activities.

Jack Nichols, in his report on the Y's Men's club, told of contributions by the organization of $50 to the Y.M.C.A.'s financial campaign; $100 for boys' memberships; and a donation to the Red Cross. "Our special project now is providing boots and shoes for needy children, so that they may attend school regularly." The club also entertained underprivileged children at pre-Christmas supper meeting.

Max Comstock, in his report on the Friday Night club, told outstanding speakers and visitors to the club during the year. W. Perkins Bull, K.C., Adrian MacDonald, and Miss Charlotte Whitton were singled out as speakers and he reported that Sir Joseph Flavelle had been a guest, and was later made a life member. H. L. Garner was named chairman, succeeding Charles Shaw.

Charles Lacheur read the report of the ladies' auviliary, prepared by Mrs. Mary E. Breyfogle, secretary. Total receipts amounted to $279.09.

The annual meeting was under chairmanship of C. H. Cummer, president of the executive. Rev. M. C. Parr pronounced grace and Rev. Dr. A. T. Bar gave the closing prayer.

Rising Costs Of Justice Is Protested

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 20. — Members of the 1939 Hastings County Council laid down a barrage of criticism to auspiciously inaugurate their January session, aiming their verbal guns at the steadily rising costs of the administration of justice in this county, and sharply criticising the methods of the Ontario Farm Loan Board as applied to farms in this and other districts.

Protests against the calling of coroner's juries "if a man dies of a broken finger" were registered by a southern reeve. "There is too much of this going on," he added.

Reeve Linn of Marmora declared that too high a percentage of the county fines were going to the Government and other sources. "If a man is arrested on the highway and fined," he said, "the government gets one hundred per cent. of it. If we pinch a man for being drunk in our village, the Government gets 60 per cent. of the fine and we do all the work."

Reeve Charles Rollins demanded to know how much the cost of administration had increased. "I cannot say offhand," Treasurer James Haggerty declared, "but I do know that it is increasing by leaps and bounds."

Reeve Asks Question.

Reeve Rollins wanted to know if the jail costs were increasing and if it were true an extra man was taken on if the number of prisoners exceeded forty.

"Yes," he was told.

"Hasn't this Council any control over the costs of administration?" Reeve West of Madoc demanded "Some years ago we had a complaint about the jail, yet paid a grand jury to investigate and which found everything OK only to have a jail inspector put in an appearance and verify the complaint."

"It looks as though we can't do anything much about it," he said, "but this Council should see that the new chairman thoroughly investigates these increasing costs and report to this body."

Madoc Had to Pay.

"We had a case in Madoc that was tried in Belleville, yet we had to pay. We have a police court and jail there and pay for their maintenance.

The county pays for the transportation and meals of Provincial Police officers in such cases, Treasurer Haggerty told the Council.

The criticism of the administration arose from the request for concurrence, which was given, of a resolution forwarded by the Elgin County Council, that the Ontario Legislature be requested to amend the Administration of Justice Act regarding levying of costs where a change of venue is allowed so that costs would be borne by the municipality, where the crime has been committed, in both civil and criminal cases.

Ontario Farm Loan Board.

Request for concurrence of a resolution by the Elgin County Council to the effect, that a protest be registered against the Ontario Farm Board's notification to rural municipalities, disclaiming all liabilities of penalties and interest in arrears of taxes against lands held by the Board, brought forth another storm of criticism on the part of rural members.

"Tell them we won't stand for any such nonsense in this county," one reeve suggested, while another stated that too many farmers in this district are already hiding behind these exemptions. "It isn't fair, that one farmer should pay these penalties, while his neighbor can laugh at him and pay nothing," he said.

"It is the ruin of the northern municipalities," a northern reeve declared, "and is very injurious to the young farmers of those districts."

The Ontario Farm Loan Board has been in effect since 1922 and has loaned one hundred million dollars to farmers since that time, Council was told. Now they have a number of farms back on their hands and object to paying the penalties. "They are getting the revenue from rentals and interest, why shouldn't they pay the penalties," the Reeve of Hungerford demanded. Reeve Rollins stated that he had lost sums of money through certain negotiations adding "that if the country was to be run under such conditions, it would soon be ruined."

Council concurred in the resolution.

Committees and Chairmen.

The Nominations Committee appointed by Warden George Thompson at the close of yesterday afternoon's session brought in the following chairmen and personnel of the various committees which received the unanimous approval of Council as a whole:

Finance and Public Property Committee—G. B. Bedford, chairman; S. G. Sherman, G. M. Campbell, George West, George MacDonald, William C. West, George E. Thompson, Warden.

Roads and Bridges Committee — James A. Moore, chairman; J. L. Churcher, James A. Nickle, J. A. Bell, Charles H. Kerr, George E. Thompson, Warden.

House of Refuge Board of Management—William R. Linn, chairman; Thomas E. Fleming, George E. Thompson, Warden.

Warden J. Milby

commended his successor Reeve Norman Lean, returning after an absence from the county council. "Mr. Lean's heart is as big as his stature," he added.

Harold Rye, like Mr. Brown another Warden, was the mentor of Warden Milby when he began his municipal service as a township councillor. "I have always supported him," Mr. Rye said, "because I found him to be a worker. He was sincere in his efforts for the municipality. I am sure he will be this year. He has brought in new ideas which in time will work out to the advantage of the municipality. But, he will probably have to take knocks from those who do not like new ideas because they are new and unfamiliar. It is too bad things go that way, because new ideas should be considered and put into practice if they are found to be feasible." Mr. Rye said he thought too many old rights and privileges were slipping out of the hands of county councils into the authority of the central powers, a trend of reaction toward the conditions which centuries ago had brought the Magna Charta into being as the palladium of British liberties.

Reeve Shearer briefly mentioned the contest for the Wardenship, and declared that it had left no hard feelings with him. "I hope we can carry on all year with the same feelings of harmony we have begun with," he said.

Other speakers were Reeve Norman Lean, Reeve Isaac Anderson of Belmont who entertained with a recitation, Miss Jennie Batten, county clerk and treasurer, the only lady at the two long dinner tables. Reeve Gifford said he could realize from his own experience the feelings of Warden Milby in the midst of his municipal friends, and in his own home. "I feel certain we have as harmonious county council as there is to be found anywhere else in Ontario, and that this spirit will continue throughout the year. I wish to extend my thanks not only to the Warden but also to Mrs. Milby and the other ladies who so splendidly assisted her."

Township's Tribute.

Councillor W. J. Grady, representing North Monaghan council in the mood of encomium, said he was proud of North Monaghan's reeve in reaching the Wardenship this year. "I have followed his career since he entered the council. I have known him since he first came to live in the township, and I know him to be a good citizen, a man who was a good soldier when called to defend his country. Warden Milby is the type of man who has good, broad ideas in general, a fine neighbor and public servant. I feel certain he will prove himself worthy of the honors the county of Peterborough has conferred on him."

Warden Milby's response to the resolution of appreciation and the other tributes paid to him was warmly grateful. He said it was his conviction that men should have the opportunity of knowing each other better, and seeing the good qualities in each other, especially when thrown together in the responsibility of administering the affairs of the people of this county. If it was the first time such an event had been held after the election of the Wardens in the January sessions he hoped it would be reflected through the year in the relations within the council.

Springbrook District Gives Shower For Couple Burned Out

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Jan. 20.— On Tuesday evening a pleasant event took place at Springbrook Orange Hall, when over two hundred friends gathered and tendered Mr. and Mrs. Ross Thompson a shower of useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson lost their home in Stirling last week when it was destroyed by fire of unknown origin. All of their household effects were destroyed and they had a narrow escape from being burned to death, having escaped through a second-storey window.

The Orange Lodge of Springbrook kindly donated the hall free. F. M. Rutherford acted as chairman and after a short program lunch was served, after which the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing to music by Messrs. Porter, Pitman, and Hagerman.

Mr. Thompson thanked all for the lovely array of gifts, also all who so kindly helped to make the evening a decided success.

At present Mr. Thompson has not decided where they will take up residence.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, is on her way to the Manor, the luxurious home of the wealthy Witherspoon family. She has agreed to take the place of her friend, Kitty, for a week, running the private salon of old Mrs. Witherspoon, an eccentric semi-invalid. The Witherspoon chauffeur takes her to the Manor, where she meets the housekeeper and then the parlor maid. Before retiring Elsie is told to change into her uniform to give Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., her nightly facial. She meets her maid, Eliza. Elsie finds her employer is a withered old woman with a sadly misplaced sense of vanity. After bumping into Mrs. Witherspoon, Jr., in the darkness of the salon, Elsie is awakened in the middle of the night by a falling chair in the same room. Next day Elsie meets Daphne, the granddaughter, and Della Craig, an actress, who is a house guest. Both strike her as queer.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER SEVEN

MY NEXT appointment was with Mrs. Horace, Jr., and she arrived before I had finished with Della. In the daylight she was plainer than ever. Clearly she had no use for beauty treatments. Her skin was dry and splotched and her mouse-colored hair straggled forlornly here and there. Beside Della she looked like a dowdy old maid. I think she felt this, too, for she stood uncertainly in the centre of the floor watching the actress and twisting her hands at her sides.

"Letty, darling!" Della gushed all over her. "Fancy seeing you here! I would have sworn you had never in all your life set foot in a beauty parlor!"

"I'm—I'm having a manicure," Mrs. Horace, Jr., stammered, and I never twitched a muscle though I knew she was down in the book for a shampoo and a wave and a facial.

'Tonight is going to be too thrilling! I can scarcely wait!" Della twittered like a bird. "Aren't you just too excited, darling?"

"Yes, yes, of course." Poor Mrs. Horace, Jr., looked more and more ill at ease. I knew that she wanted Della to get through and get out. She wanted her treatments in private, and I did not blame her. When a woman, a middle-aged woman, decided to fix herself up, she always feels embarrassed and sort of ashamed. Funny, too, I have never been able to figure it out. You would think making the best of what God gave you was something wicked and shameful!

"Really, it's marvelous the way Mrs. Witherspoon keeps up! Fancy presiding over a grand ball at her age!"

"Yes, marvelous," Mrs. Horace, Jr., agreed, and her face turned so gray I thought she was going to faint. There was something very peculiar about this particular grand ball, but I could not put my finger on what it was. No one, it appeared, save Della Craig and old lady Witherspoon, was enthused over the prospect. But, as I said before, it was none of my business what went on at the Manor. I put the finishing touches to Della's nails.

"Thank you so much." Ravishingly she smiled upon me and that was all.

"You're welcome," I returned, making it plain that I had not expected a tip. But you could not get under a thick skin like hers. She sailed from the salon like a tragedy queen in the third act. Personally, I was glad to see the last of her.

"All right, Mrs. Witherspoon," I said, and glanced out at the lobby clock. It was three minutes until ten. "I'll have to leave you for a moment, if you don't mind," I added, for it was time to wash her mother-in-law's face.

"No, I don't mind," she said, as if it were a relief to postpone the inevitable.

"Be back in a jiffy," I promised, and hurried to the private entrance of Mrs. Witherspoon's apartment.

"Yes?" Eliza opened the door so quickly that I knew she had been waiting for me. Her sunken eyes were red-rimmed and swollen, as though she had been crying. She did not meet my gaze directly, but looked down at the floor as I passed by her.

"Good morning, Mrs. Witherspoon." I spoke cheerily to the muffled figure in the bed

"Get me out of this thing!" snapped my employer, sitting up. "It's as dry as a Kansas prairie!"

I wet my sponge and wiped away the mask. It fell into stiff pieces at my feet.

"Ah, that's better!" She moved her face from side to side. "Wonderful stuff, but painful!"

"Yes." I said, thinking how ghastly she looked in the morning light. "Will there be anything else?"

"Of course there's something else! Think I'm going to sit around with my face naked? Get my beauty box from the dressing table and make me up!"

I did as instructed. When I had finished she examined her face critically.

"Bah!" she exclaimed in disgust "I look like a ghost! Give me that rouge box!" She snatched it from my hand and daubed her cheeks liberally. "There!" she said, when she had herself looking like a sunburst. "That's something like it! You may go now, but mind my appointment for this evening! Eight o'clock!"

"I'll remember," I said, and I did. The old lady was down in Kitty's black book for everything—shampoo, wave, manicure and facial.

"Eliza will wheel me into the salon. See that you are prompt! Tonight is an important occasion, and I want to look my best!"

"I'll be there." I assured her, and wondered why on earth she could not come in during hours like a civilized person instead of keeping a girl waiting about half the night. But, I decided, perhaps that was why she had built the salon, so that she could come in when she pleased. I returned the makeup box to the dressing table. "Good morning, Mrs. Witherspoon."

"Eh? Oh—er—good morning."

"Mr. Horace to see you." Eliza appeared suddenly from nowhere. "Wants to see me, does he?" Mrs. Witherspoon's thin lips formed a determined scarlet line. "Send him in! I have something to say to that young man!" And as I went away I heard her furiously scolding her only son.

As I re-entered the salon I was startled by the sound of voices. Mrs. Horace, Jr., in the third anteroom, was speaking with someone I could not see. I paused uncertainly in the lobby.

"I know, I know," she was saying, "but what can we do? I've pleaded and pleaded—"

"I tell you I won't go through with it! I won't. I'll do something awful! You'll see!" The second was that of Daphne Witherspoon. I recognized it despite its note of shrill desperation. Daphne had a trick of blurring her syllables that was unique and unforgettable.

"Darling!" cried Mrs. Horace, Jr., and the girl, her face white and oddly distorted, brushed aside the silver curtains and came out into the lobby. "Darling," her mother cried again, and rushed after her. "You must not say such things! You must not!"

"I will! I will!" Daphne was past controlling her anguish. I could see her profile, with nostrils dilated and lips trembling with furious passion. "Long ago I should have said it—long ago! Hasn't she ruined your life and father's? Must I stand by and let her wreck mine also?"

"Hush, oh, hush!" implored her mother. "Miss Ritter will be returning shortly."

"Very well, I'll hush." The fury left Daphne's voice. Something quiet, ominously quiet, disturbingly quiet, took its place. "I'll hush," she said, "but you must remember what I have said. I shan't go through with it. I've warned you." The lack of her bright head disappeared through the outer doorway.

I tiptoed backward. My hand found the knob of the bedroom door. I rattled the knob noisily. I moved briskly toward Mrs. Horace, Jr., who turned quickly to face me.

"Miss Ritter," she said, "I have changed my mind. Please cancel my appointment. I—I have a bad headache." She pressed shaking hands to her forehead.

"I'm so sorry," I murmured. "Would you like an aspirin?"

"An aspirin?" She stared at me as one demented. "An aspirin. No—no—it wouldn't help at all—none at all."

"Perhaps," I suggested, "you can come in later, when you have rested."

"Thank you, you are most kind." She managed a brief smile. "Perhaps—latter." She staggered to the door, swaying drunkenly from side to side.

"Whew!" I sank limply into a chair. I began to tremble violently. All at once I had a premonition of something to come. I wanted to snatch my hat and coat, and to run far, far from the Manor. It was a house of evil. It was—I gave an involuntary cry! The outer door was being slowly opened!

Make New Friends With Gracious Talk

New acquaintances, but already old friends! To think Kate used to dread a twosome—until she learned a few conversational tricks.

Do you find it hard to start a conversation out of thin air? Keep eyes and ears open for new topics. A glance at your newspaper tells of an exciting hockey game. So easy then to start with "Wasn't it great the way the Cougars beat the Wild Cats?"

You hear a clever expression or joke? Remember it, bring it in when the conversation drags. "Such a lot of glitterbugs at Gloria's wedding."

Of course it's rude to be inquisitive, to ask "Were you out with ry last night?" But "Is it really true you were on a dude ranch?" is the kind of question that keeps talk going.

And be gracious! If there's a shy fellow in the group, include him with "Jack says you're a whiz at bridge."

Easy to attract friends once you know the secret of good conversation. Our 32-page booklet tells you what to say when introduced, at dances, on the telephone, applying for a job. How to avoid bad conversational habits, charm with graceful talk.

Modern Youth Too Free And Too Demanding In Payment For Little Obligations; Osculation Is No Longer The Sole Badge Of Love

NOW concerning kissing. No subject is of more burning interest to women than this. For, curiously enough, kissing has passed from its original status of a spontaneous expression of affection and become a moral issue, a payment of debt, and a conjugal duty.

I get hundreds of letters from girls debating whether to kiss, or not to kiss; whether it is better to be an unkissed and dateless maiden, or to make their lips a free lunch counter for every Tom, Dick and Harry who comes along. For it appears that the modern youth is a kissing bug who collects a luxury tax on his attentions. No kiss, no movie, no dance, no nothing is his idea. Kisses are just taken in the way of trade, you might say.

It is not contended that these kisses of obligation belong to the cardiac-respiratory class and are the sort of osculation that takes the breath and increases the heartbeat and raises the blood pressure. On the contrary, they are not even flavored with sentiment. They are the currency of debt, not love. Why germ-conscious men and women who are practical strangers and have no feeling for each other should indulge in such an unhygienic pastime as kissing passes comprehension.

It heads the category of queer things people do for amusement. Nevertheless a common ending of an evening is: "So glad to have met you, Miss Er-rer." Smack. Smack. "Thank you for that gorgeous ice cream soda, Mr. Hum-um." Smack. Smack. Can you beat it for lack of romance, or lack of personal fastidiousness? For lack of everything that should go into a kiss to make it worth while?

But if the kiss that is nothing but the payment of a social obligation is a flop, the kiss of love is TNT that it behooves every girl to handle with care, in fear of her life. A girl can get just as drunk on kisses as she can on hard liquor and be just as little responsible for her conduct.

No young woman makes a mistake when she is chary of her kisses and keeps her lips to herself until after some man had filed a declaration that his intentions are honorable and mean marriage. Nor should girls forget that a kiss is valuable in proportion to its rarity, and being hard to get. Men used to risk their lives to steal a kiss, but you hear of no fatalities along that line now. Or maybe gummy lipstick has something to do with it.

When we come to the conjugal kiss we open up another phase of this subject, namely, the mania that wives seem to have for being kissed by their husbands whether the said husbands desire to kiss them or not. Indeed, so insistent are women on this matter that one of our leading authorities on domestic peace urges every husband to kiss his wife every time, even if he is only going to the corner mailbox to stick in a letter.

Certainly the chief wail that we hear from middle-aged wives is that their husbands have ceased to kiss them. They have no other grievance. Their husbands are kind and faithful and good providers. They are long on all the material things, but they are short on osculation. And so their wives beat upon their breasts and rend the air with their lamentations.

This is all the more strange when our observation of the standardized domestic kiss does not seem to lend it much allure either for either the kisser or the kissee. A man arises from the breakfast table from which there has probably been a spat over Johnny not eating his cereal, or leaving some more market money. With his mouth full of ham and eggs and his mind filled with the necessary of catching the 7.45 train, he bestows a perfunctory peck on his wife who turns the back of her ear to receive it, while she tries to eat with one hand and hold the baby with the other and make out her marketing list in her mind. Why any one should desire to give or receive such a kiss, goodness only knows.

My own idea is that the sacredness of the family kiss should be debunked. It should be recognized for the hollow mockery it is. There should be fewer kisses between husbands and wives and better ones. They shouldn't consider it an obligation to kiss when they are feeling more like biting each other. They should wait until the mood, the tenderness, the sense of dearness and nearness is upon them, and then their kisses would be fire on their lips and a precious memory in their hearts. One such kiss is worth a million duty pecks.

He was following his master all around the house, just as a good little shadow should. Just watch your own shadow sometime—you'll see thaat it follows you all around the house, too.

Knarf went upstairs, and down, downstairs and up. Finally his master decided to go into the big room where Katybelel was dusting. She had a red handkerchief around her head and an apron on, and she was very busy. Knarf's sister stopped to watch her. And, of course, that's just what Knarf did, too. Only while the little boy stood up straight the shadow, lay stretched out behind him on the carpet.

Katy went on dusting for a few minutes longer. Then she said: "Well! if you're going to stay here, you can help me."

"Oh! I'd like to help you, Katy. Want me to dust something?"

Katy shook her head. "No, the dusting's mos' finished by now. Go in the next room. There's the carpet sweeper leaning against the wall. Fetch it for me."

So the little boy hurried into the next room, glad to be able to do a favor for Katybelle, whom he liked very much. When she wasn't dusting she baked very good pies.

Knarf Helped Him.

Sure enough, theer was the carpet sweeper, leaning against the wall. He pulled it right in. Knarf helped him as much as he could. "Here's the carpet sweeper," they both said to Katy together.

"Thank you, chile," she said with a smile. "And now stand back. I'm going to carpet sweep. I'm going to pick up every speck of everything that's lying on this carpet."

If only the little boy had stood back, as Katy asked. But he didn't. And the next minute — whiz-zz-z! the carpet sweeper went rolling and sweeping right over poor Knarf. You can't imagine what it felt like. He had to hold on to the carpet with all his might to keep from being sucked in.

Perhaps he was a little cleaner than he was before it went rolling over him. But I really don't think so. Only carpets get clean that way.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, January 21

Exciting and turbulent events may be looked for, judging by the very lively operations of the actuating planets, which work with whirlwind precipitancy. There may be sudden disruption and upheaval, seemingly of devastating and disintegrating force, but eventually this portent may redound to very positive benefit, with gain in unexpected channels. The outcome depends upon discreet action, sound judgment and clever choice of which road to travel. Romance and adventure, elders and females have significance.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of much turmoil and upheaval, with a devastating trend of events, which while seemingly at first perilous and disintegrating, in the end may swerve to lucrative, happy and gratifying denouements. All depends upon calm action, good judgment and discretion. Drama, romance, adventure loom.

A child born on this day will be talented, studious, ingenious and inventive, creative in novel or unique avenues, possibly leading to great heights of achievement and public acclaim, although all may not be plain sailing on the way.

CUT THIS OUT

EXCELLENT RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of someone who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises, or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used externelvely is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.—(Advt.)

Chest Wheezing Means Bronchitis

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a dry, harsh, hacking cough accompanied with a rapid wheezing and feeling of tightness across the chest.

There is a rising of phlegm, especially in the morning. This phlegm is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses becomes yellowish or greenish, and is sometimes streaked with blood.

You will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy to stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucus, and help nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Looking Back On This Date

The placing of the French language on an equality with English in the debates and journals of the Parliament of the Province of Canada was not the only important feature of the session which began at Montreal 90 years ago. The speech from the throne announced a long legislative program, two items of which fanned political passion to fever heat. The first of these was the introduction of a bill to grant a full and entire amnesty to those who had participated in the armed revolt in 1837-38; the other was a bill to compensate the loyal residents of Lower Canada who had lost during the political troubles.

The amnesty might well have been called a bill for the relief of William Lyon Mackenzie, since he was the only one of the leaders who had not been pardoned and returned to Canada. Papineau, Wolfred Nelson and Cartier had even been elected to the Assembly. This pardon of Mackenzie had been advocated by Lord Elgin for nearly a year, and it was with personal satisfaction that on Jan. 29 he made a special visit to Parliament House to give it the royal assent.

Curiously enough the only opponents of the pardon bill were Papineau, Colonel John Prince of Windsor, and Robert Christie of Gaspe, the colonel because he could never forgive a rebel, the latter because he always opposed any measure proposed by any ministery. Sir Allan MacNab made an endeavor to secure the correspondence between Mackenzie and the ministers both in Canada and London, but Elgin refused his assent to their production, and the motion was voted down, after which the amnesty bill was passed unanimously, not even the three opponents mentioned challenging a division.

The address in reply to the speech from the throne war adopted 48-18, and Canada's first constitutional parliament set about the discussion of the rebellion losses bill, little knowing that within three months their Parliament House would be set on fire and their sittings ended by "Loyalist" mobs. Mackenzie soon returned, but had an unpleasant welcome, in which Col. Prince figured. But that must be told of another day.

We Noticed

....There's no doubt about ti, feminine fashions are becoming decidedly more feminine....the newest bathing suits designed for southern beaches are really tricky —even a bit naughty....one of gleaming white rayon has a flared slit skirt, ruffled corset bodice and short ruffled panties....another of white polka dots on wine rayon and silk surrah has a white frilled edging on the short skirt and bra top.

✧ ✧ ✧

....And....especially designed for milady's open-toed dancing slippers are sheerest evening hose with tiny triangles of flashing colored jewels, rhinestones or sequins on the tips of the toes to twinkle gaily as she trips the light fantastic.

✧ ✧ ✧

....The flares for autographs is invading the jewelry fashions. A chaste and simple bracelet is adorned with your engraved signature—and leather compacts on which you invite your friends to sign their name in ink is one of the new young ideas that is catching hold.

Because Mrs. Roy Penlon dislikes staying home alone she joined her husband in his job of painting flagpoles. They are shown here, 450 feet above the ground, doing a pole atop a San Francisco hotel. Penlon says "It's a swell place to settle arguments...no one can hear you yell."

Small roasters or large frying chickens which you doubt would be tender if fried in the usual manner, will ordinarily respond deliciously if treated this way: Cut up, fry until brown all over, then pour off the fat, leaving only a small amount as a basis for gravy, add a little water and finish cooking covered on top of the stove or in the oven. Use a heavy skillet with a tight-fitting cover.

GLAMOROUS LADIES.

That the career woman is not a product of our generation is shown by the history of Aspasia, glamorous beauty of 440 B.C. She was acknowledged to possess unusual literary gifts and was said to have written part of Pericles' famous funeral oration over the soldiers who fell in the campaign of 431 B.C. The most brilliant and important men in Athens flocked to her house, which was the centre of literary and philosophical society. Her romance with Pericles was the big story of the Greek capital, and it was the influence of Pericles which led to her acquittal of misconduct of which she was accused by the comic poet Hermippus.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

J. A. BATTEN, Treasurer, County of Peterborough

Year Of Progress Is Revealed By Societies Of St. Andrew's

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's church was held on Thursday, Dr. E. W. Young, minister, in the chair.

Dr. Young thanked the members for their co-operation during the year, and said that there had been much encouragement in the work of the church, most of the vital statistics would be given in the session report. He reported in addition that there had been thirty-eight baptisms, seven for adults, three infants. There were nine marriages and eleven deaths.

Mrs. F. E. Johnston reported for the Woman's Association which had rendered splendid service to the church in many and varied activities under Mrs. I. Lillico, Mrs. J. G. Wharry, Mrs. E. R. Shirley, Mrs. E. P. Barber, Mrs. A. Belleghem, Mrs. D. V. Ketcheson, Mrs. A. C. Gray and Mrs. G. H. Roper as group leaders. Special credit was due to Mrs. Paige Rowell, the president, for her inspiring leadership. The sum of $1,033.89 had been raised during the past year.

The session was represented by its clerk, F. E. Kerr, B.A. Four new elders were inducted in June, Dr. C. M. Scott and Messrs. D. T. Crawford, F. E. Johnston and James Johnson. Forty-six new members had been received, twelve by certificate, thirty-four by profession of faith. There had been increased attendance at the evening services. The communicants class had been very successful. A special service and social hour had been held for the nurses in Nicholl's Hospital.

Mrs. A. Pilling spoke on the work of the W.M.S. of which there were forty-three members, the allocation of $500 was raised. Mrs. Clarence Laing said that the Alpha Mission Circle had twenty-six members, the amount raised was $121.66, exceeding the allocation. Miss D. Heffernan told of the C.G.I.T. of which Miss Eleanor Stacey is leader with Ruth Barns and Isabel Weddell assistants. Personal problems had been discussed in the group and $30 raised for missionary work. Miss Roma Williamson represented the Mission Band which is sorry to lose Miss B. King from its leadership. The meeting decided to send a letter of thanks to Miss King for her twelve years of faithful service.

James Johnson spoke of the Sunday school, of which Dr. C. M. Scott is superintendent. Missionary and temperance instruction had been systematically given. An orchestra with Roy Rome as leader had already brightened up the music of the school. $412.74 had been raised for all purposes of which $150 was for missions.

Missionary Committee

The missionary committee report was prepared by R. M. Hardie, who emphasized need of using the red envelope for missions. The congregation had become responsible for $1,500 for Eastivan charge in Southern Saskatchewan. The quarter-million fellowship crusade had resulted in over 100 persons using the prayer calendar, and twenty-three using special envelopes for the last ten weeks of the year.

Miss Iris Whalen, Cub master, told of the father and son banquets held, and the deep interest taken in the pack by the members.

The bowling club had J. W. Morrison, secretary-treasurer, as its spokesman. The club had had monthly social meetings, and a number of tournaments with other churches. The members had helped the White Gift service for needy families at Christmas.

The Ladies' Adult Bible Class report was given by Mrs. B. F. McNeely, the members had prepared the supper for the annual Sunday school entertainment.

F. E. Kerr spoke on the work of the choir. There had been very faithful attendance and interest on the part of the members. George Gillespie emphasized the need of generosity to the church.

The following elections were made:

Messrs. George Gillespie and W. A. Richardson to the Ontario Bible Society.

Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner to Anson House Board.

Messrs. Ed. Humpage and Alex Weddell as auditors for 1939.

E. B. Fowler made an important statement about the desperate need of Nicholl's Hospital for extra accommodation. The Board were now determined to approach the people for a mandate to proceed with the necessary addition.

It was decided to adjourn the meeting until next Thursday, January 26th on which date a social meeting will be held with refreshments to be served by a committee of men, Messrs. James Wharry, Ken Kingston, Alex Donnelly and Hugh Waddell. The only important business at this meeting will be the financial report of the board of managers.

Mark St. Wins Juvenile Tilt

Mark St. Juveniles copped a 5-3 church puck win over All Saints last night, the defending champion again looking strong. They led all the way last night. Don Eason and Scriver were outstanding, with the former netting two counters as Scriver, Baker and Ralph got one each. Curtis of Mark St received a cut over one eye and required stitches to close it. Maudsley got two goals for the other side with Ackford the other. The latter and Lacheur went well for All Saints. The teams:

Mark St.—Goal, Shearer; defence, Scriver, Agnew; centre, Curtis; wings, D. Eason, Baker; subs, Harriss, C. Eason, Moore, Ralph.

All Saints—Goal, Spooner; defence, Lacheur, Abraham; centre, Reid; wings, Hill, Ackford; subs, McAdams, Maudsley, Morley.

Referee—C. Sproat.

All Saints Win Bantam Contest

All Saints' Bantams beat St. Paul's, 5-2, at All Saints' rink last night in a Church League hockey fray. The losers had a good share of play but dropped their third tilt, more experience by their rivals being the difference. N. McNaughton scored first and Doughty got their other one late, Carley assisting. Carpenter starred and scored three goals for the victors, Wheeler and Burns having one apiece. Seels and Edgar were strong on defence. The losers had a good rooting section. Teams:

St. Paul's.—Goal, Board; defence, D. McNaughton, Seels; centre, N. McNaughton; wings, Doughty, Carley; subs, Hendry, D. Forbes, Forbes, Hill, Honour.

All Saints.—Goal, Clapham; defence, Hotrum, Edgar; centre, McDougall; wings, Wheeler, Mason; subs, Carpenter, Hill, Lacy, Burns, Lee.

Referee, D. Charlton.

Gilmour Entertains Peterborough Y.P.U's

(Examiner Correspondence.)

GILMOUR, Jan. 20—Park Street hospitality, restored to by Miss B.Y.P.U. members were royally entertained by the Gilmour members on Tuesday evening when about fifty gathered at the Gilmour Church.

The evening was spent in games, under the leadership of Miss Phyllis Moore and her helpers. For the supper hour there were four tables arranged, each one representing a different season of the year and the guests were asked to sit down at these tables according to their birthdays.

At the close of the evening the presidents of the two visiting unions thanked the Gilmour Union for their hospitality, resonded to by Miss Phyllis Moore.

Southend Games

In recent Southend Hockey League games run off at the Sacred Heart rink—the results coming in late—Canucks copped a decision over Maple Leafs in the intermediate division, while Maroons of the same section took victory over the Clippers. The Canuck Bantams also defeated the Red Aces in a neat number.

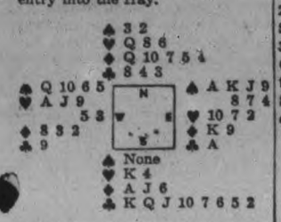
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

BACKING IN LATER

PASSING ON YOUR first turn to overcall and then backing into the bidding later tells your opponents the same thing you tell your partner — that you have a weak hand and are mainly trying to interfere with their affairs. It is likely to get you doubled on a hand which would not be doubled if you had come into the bidding at your earliest opportunity. If you have really quite a formidable array of offensive strength, you may pick up some extra points by postponing your entry into the fray.



♠ None

♣ K Q J 10 7 6 5 2

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

At all tables of a six-table duplicate, bidding of this deal began with 1-Spade by East. In most cases South now took some definite action. It included an informative double and club calls ranging all the way from two to five. In every case the South players wound up as declarers at contracts of 5-Clubs, some of them doubled and some of them not. Of course the best score from these tables was made on the doubled contracts, since a club game is cold, with the loss of a trick each in hearts and trumps.

The player who made surest of his tie for the top score was one who did nothing but pass on the first round, feeling sure the bidding would be kept open, in view of his shortage in the majors. East's 1-Spade then was answered by West's 2-Hearts. East bid 2-Spades, then South came in at 3-Clubs. West bid 3-Spades, East 4-Spades, South 5-Clubs and East doubled. North's two queens and ten-spot were all South needed to make his contract easily.

Nazi Barterers Find Brazil Mexico Open

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP). — Chancellor Hitler would seem to have been promoting his barter business campaign in two of the greatest countries of the western hemisphere —Mexico and Brazil.

A usually well-informed German news service says that an improved and extended system of bartering merchandise between Germany and Brazil is planned.

Also, the sudden return of General Juan Azcarate to his post as Mexican minister to Berlin, after an absence of more than a year, is believed by many observers to be linked with an effort to expand trade relations between the two countries.

General Alcarate said there was no "special significance" in his return.

Mexico recently made a sensational barter transaction for disposing of some $17,000,000 worth of oil, taken mainly from expropriated wells of British and American companies. Most of it wetn to grease wheels of German industry, and some observers think this has encouraged Mexico to expand such oil sales to the Reich.

Under the Nazi barter system, the Reich swaps its products for the products of other countries without any cash changing hands.

The French finance minister Paul Renaud told me the other day in Paris that the Nazi barter scheme was headed for a cropper; it wouldn't work indefinitely.

Won't Work But It Does

Other orthdox experts shudder at the barter idea. They say it won't work, but in the same breath they admit that it is working. And most of them have no immediate answer to that.

Germany has resorted to the barter system because she hasn't sufficient ready cash to trade in any other way. Naturally she has to find countries which are of the same frame of mind—countries wanting German goods and having products that the Reich needs.

Nations like Great Britain and the United States have declined to engage in barter. However, eastern Europe and the Balkans, and several South American countries have come into the Nazi fold. Here is the general idea of the Nazi barter scheme:

Not one copper in cold cash changes normally. What happens in effect is the establishment of credits against which the traders draw. That is:—The farmer takes five dozen eggs to the general store and gets credit for a dollar (if he's lucky); when the farmer wants a pair of suspenders he pays for them out of his dollar credit, and both he and the storekeeper have achieved their aim.

The Aski Mark

The German system varies somewhat in various parts of the world in many of its South American transactions the "credit" has taken the form of employment of a special German mark called the Aski mark. That is used, say in payment for goods bought in Chile, and the Chilean can use it for the purchase of German goods—for nothing else. These Aski marks are always at a heavy discount which gives the Germans an advantage over competitors.

In the case of the Balkans the credit is established after the fashion of the general store and the farmer. Rumania sells wheat to German buyers, and gets a credit in a central bank in Germany. Against that credit Rumanian traders may draft for the purchase of German goods. Or it might be that the trade balance is in favor of Rumania.

Germany is chiefly interested in raw materials and agricultural products. Her dealings with the Balkans are largely for agricultural things. On this side of the world, Mexico has the crude oil which Hitler badly needs. Brazil can furnish cotton and coffee.

Suffered Long Time: Tells Of Relief

Says It Brought Grand Relief From Pains in Muscles and Joints. Gas and Indigestion Overcome, Nerves Are Relaxed and She Sleeps Well Again.

MRS. ANNE LAXTON

Every man or woman in Peterboro and vicinity who suffers from sore, painful joints, disturbed sleep and backache; every person whose stomach rebels and fills with gas and excess acids, should follow the example of other well-known citizens who have taken Syntona and got grand relief. Here is another example of the results Syntona is producing every day as reported recently by Mrs. Anne Laxton, 54 East 34th street, Hamilton:

"For 4 years I was troubled after every meal with bloating and indigestion. Gas pressed around my heart and pain went right back to my shoulder blades and down my arms. My muscles and joints were sore and painful. I slept poorly and felt very nervous.

"With the first bottle of Syntona I got the best night's sleep I had for months previously. I have now taken it for several weeks and I have got great results. My food digests well now without all that gas and indigestion. I am relieved of the aches and pains in my joints and muscles, my nerves are better and I have more energy to do my work."

If you suffer like this, begin taking Syntona to-day. It is now being introduced in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.

Rebel Sweep Is Upset At Igualada

Franco Bogs Down Only 25 Miles From Barcelona

HENDAYE, France, Jan. 21 — (A. P.). — The Spanish insurents, great drive toward Barcelona to-day was reported to have met its first serious setback when a government counter-attack drove General Franco's troops out of the important town of Igualada.

This town, 28 airline miles west of the government capital, was considered a key point in the government's main defence line.

Insurgent despatches both from Burgos and Lerida acknowledged that Igualada, which the insurgents reported last night they had entered, was to-day in the hands of a government garrison.

Abandon Attacks.

Instead of continuing their efforts to storm Igualada, General Franco's columns were reported fanning out to the north and south of the town in efforts to surround it and compel its garrison to surrender.

Meanwhile Franco's air force subjected Barcelona to a series of raids, in two of which a deluge of bombs was loosed on the city and port. Two others were driven off by the government planes.

With battle lines only some 30 miles to the west, government leaders hastily pushed fortifications at the very gates of the city for a last-ditch stand if necessary. Despatches said artillery was being placed at Barcelona's gates and sandbag barriers raised inside the city.

Earlier to-day insurgents had reported capture of both Igualada and Vendrell, the latter 32 miles southwest of Barcelona on the highway near the Mediterranean coast.

See Trade War With Germany

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(CP).—Great Britain to-day saw in the removal of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht as president of the Reichsbank the possibility of an Anglo-German trade war.

In recent weeks government spokesmen have warned Germany to expect ruthless competition in foreign markets unless the Reich returns to orthodox trading methods, and it was in Dr. Schacht, the epitome of finacial soundness and reliability, that Britons saw the possibility of a settlement.

Financial circles wondered whether the financial wizard's successor, Walther Funk, has the banking experience necessary to handle Germany's complicated economic structure. It was feared that $200,000,000 in standstill credits to Great Britain may be defaulted under the new regime.

Press Pessimistic.

Financial newspapers viewed the change pesimistically. The Financial News said "there is every reason to believe Chancellor Hitler has dropped the pilot much too soon." The Financial Times said "no one with any sense of the financial realities in Germany to-day can view Dr. Schacht's dismissal without the greatest misgiving."

"There seems little doubt," said The Daily Telegraph (Conservative), "that the main cause for Dr. Schacht's removal is his tenacious insistence on some degree of moderation in financial policy. If his departure means the defeat of moderation in the conduct of internal affairs, it may also prove to be the signal for a similar defeat in other directions."

The diplomatic correspondent of the Manchester Guardian (Liberal) wrote:

"The resignation of Schacht refutes those who are always asserting that the 'Moderates' will get the upper hand in Germany. His resignation is only another proof that the German 'Extremists' are gaining influence all the time.

"Germany's rearmament program is now putting such economic and financial strain on Germany that Schacht has for some time demanded that the speed of production be reduced. The control of the Nazis over trade and industry grows steadily greater. There is little room left for Schacht."

Where Bancroft Fire Originated

Fire on Friday destroyed the drug store of John Carlisle and the Bank of Nova Scotia in the village of Bancroft. The fire originated in the store of Mr. Carlisle, where several bottles of chemicals were upset, causing an explosion. The picture ABOVE, taken early this morning, shows all that is left of the interior of the drug store room where the explosion occurred.

Fire Follows Explosion In Bancroft Drug Store Destroying Two Apartments, Store And Bank

Radio Fails To Burn Saves Owner's Pay From Blaze

Cornwall, Ont., Jan. 21 (CP)

WITH practically everything they owned destroyed by fire that gutted a north end tenement last night, the tenants probed hopelessly through the debris this morning in the hope of turning up bits of jewelry, purses and other smaller valuables that might have survived the flames.

Paul Bellefeuille, owner of the building, was fortunate enough to find his week's pay. It had been hidden in back of a radio which, while charred and useless, protected the purse in which the money was kept.

James Laframboise, his wife and two children were left with only such clothing as they wore when they made their escape.

(By Staff Reporter)

BANCROFT, Jan. 21.—A drug store, a bank, and two apartments above them were demolished by fire here Friday in a blaze that firemen fought for ten hours. Loss was unofficially estimated at $15,000.

Next door to the frame drug store, where the fire broke out immediately following an explosion, was another frame building, the post office. Its nearest wall only eight feet from the flaming building, it was saved by the town's volunteer fire brigade who kept a water line on its walls for hours. The bank, a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, adjoined the drug store at the other side, and flames swept through it almost instantly. It was completely razed, only the vault remaining intact. The walls of the drug store remained erect in most places, but little vestige of the two apartments remained today. Virtually nothing was saved from either building or apartment.

Chemicals Explode

County Constable G. P. Wells, who assisted the fire fighters, said the fire had started when chemicals in the drug store, owned by John G. Carlisle, exploded. Mr. Carlisle explained that he had been placing a large container of water on one of his shelves when the step-ladder on which he was standing collapsed. The container fell from his hands and knocked down stove pipes directly beneath. They in turn knocked several jars of chemicals from other shelves and as they fell there was a terrific explosion. By-standers said black smoke, followed by flames, had shot out of the street from a transom in the door. Mr. Carlisle rushed from his store to call for help and found that the chemical truck was already arriving. One of the brigade had already heard the explosion and had run to the fire hall.

Nearly the entire town turned out to battle the flames but to no avail. The bank caught almost immediately and Manager D. L. Doyle and his staff had to flee. Upstairs, Mrs.

Bugs Moran Escapes Again From New Law Tangle

Chicago, Jan. 21 (AP)

GEORGE (BUGS) MORAN, one of the top most gangsters spawned during the prohibition era, has emerged unscathed again from another tangle with the law.

The one-time arch enemy of Al Capone was acquitted by a jury last night of charges of conspiracy to counterfeit and pass travellers cheques.

Also acquitted were Frank Parker, known as the "airplane bootlegger," and Frank Hicketts, a former convict. All were accused of being leaders in a plot to cash $62,000 in counterfeit American Express travellers cheques and to issue a total of $500,000.

Trial Predicted For Goebbels

PARIS, Jan. 21 (CP-Havas).—Removal from office of the German Propaganda Minister, Joseph Goebbels, as result of scandal about his private life, was forecast today in a Zurich dispatch to the newspaper Petit Parisien.

"According to trustworth information from Germany," the dispatch said, "Goebbels will have to answer before a court of honor of the National Socialist Party regarding certain facts concerning his private life. In Berlin it is thought that after this hearing Goebbels' disgrace will become a fait accompli and he will no longer be able to keep his post."

(Reports published outside Germany, but never confirmed, said Goebbels was beaten by friends of the Actor Gustav Froelich in the apartment of the Actress Lida Barova, Froelich's wife).

Jobless Stream Upsets Toronto

TORONTO, Jan. 21 — (CP). — The City of Toronto, concerned with a serious transient unemployed situation, sent Welfare Commissioner A. W. Laver to Ottawa to-day to urge upon the Dominion Government that it assume responsibility for a "steady stream" of men coming into the city.

Commissioner Laver will present the city's case to Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, Mayor Ralph C. Day announced last night the commissioner will urge the Federal Government either to provide work for the transient unemployed or to take care of them until employment can be obtained.

Mayor Day estimated jobless men were arriving in Toronto at the rate of 15 a day and that since mid-December 500 have come here from other municipalities. He said he had evidence that the men had been assisted "by other municipalities" to reach Toronto, as 'apparently word has been spread from coast to coast that they would be looked after here."

Meanwhile, arrangements were being made to take care of 65 unemployed men arrested earlier this week on charges of vagrancy and begging after they had sought donations from passers-by on city streets. The attorney-general's department yesterday arranged a week's remand for the men after hearing a delegation of the Canadian Youth Congress yesterday.

Irishman Is Named Flight Captain For Trans-Atlantic Circuit

LONDON, Jan. 21—(CP).—Imperial Airways have appointed Captain J. C. Kelly Rogers, a burly Irishman, to command the flying boat Cabot on her trans-Atlantic flights next summer.

Captain Kelly Rogers, son of County Dublin, was discharged from the merchant marine at the age of 11 after spending a summer aboard his father's troopship, H.M.S. Connaught in 1916.

After the war he completed his education aboard the training ship Conway. Since then he has been at sea or in the air most of the time.

He joined the Royal Air Force in 1927, and remained with it. He was a flying boat instructor at Calshot, until 1935, when he moved to Imperial Airways with a credit of 1,000 flying hours. Latterly he has been flying on the Egypt-India-Australia route.

Captain Kelly Rogers was the first Irishman to receive a first-class air navigator's certificate, and now has a credit of 5,000 flying hours.

The Cabot has been undergoing flight tests with emphasis on refuelling in the air, which lessens the fuel load at the take-off and gets the machine into the air quicker.

Commanders of the other three trans-Atlantic flying boats, Connemara, Caribou and Clyde, have not been appointed yet.

U.S. Racial Set-up Perfect For American Hitler So Rochester Professor Believes

TORONTO, Jan. 21 (CP)—The racial set-up of the United States is "almost perfect for an American Hitler," said Prof. Walden Moore, of the University of Rochester, in an address here last night.

"Our tradition of violence and intolerance shows a sordid record of mob attacks against minorities, he said.

"Father Coughlin—one of your less agreeable exports to us—seems to me to be one authentic Fascist. He resembles Goebbels (German propaganda minister) both in manner and matter. Witch-hunters feverishly hunting down civil liberties with the cry of 'Communist', and Roosevelt-haters are not Fascists, but forerunners of Fascism."

Prof Moore mentioned that Father Charles Coughlin, Royal Oak, Mich., radio priest, came from Chatham, Ont.

Canada was vitally interested in keeping the United States democratic, he said, because it was inconceivable a Fascist United States would permit Canada to remain a democracy.

"Remember in a very few years we will have from 10,000 to 20,000 warplanes. It is almost as much your interest as ours what sort of a government is to control those planes."

Tale Of Duke's Visit Just a Hoax Says Elsa Maxwell

Los Angeles, Jan. 21 (AP)

ELSA MAXWELL, lecturer and entertainer, said yesterday she was the victim of a hoax earlier this week in reports that she had said the Duke and Duchess of Windsor would visit California this spring.

She said she never heard of the "Comte Ambrose Dukotyn-Pacyscyn Du Bek," whom she was quoted as having said was in Los Angeles and advised ner the Duke and Duchess were coming to America.

It was an impersonator who gave the information to the press, she said.

Reeve Gifford Renews Fight For New Bridge

Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore renewed his fight for a permanent roadway across Lake Chemong to replace the existing floating bridge at the Friday afternoon session of the County Council and guaranteed that Ennismore would contribute $10,000 towards the project. He reiterated his statements suggesting that the County Council and the Peterborough Council appropriate substantial sums towards the venture and that Federal and Provincial assistance be sought.

County Councillors while expressing sympathy with the residents of Ennismore who are practically cut off during part of the Winter because of unsafe ice on the lake and an impassable bridge, were rather loathe to make any definite statement on the amount the county might appropriate for the purpose. It was suggested the county might provide $40,000 and this amount seemed reasonable to all of the members but it was not definitely set.

Costs $2,000 a Year.

Reeve Gifford explained that the average annual maintenance cost of the floating bridge to the county was $2,000 and that in the event of a new permanent bridge or roadway being built the county could capitalize this amount over a 20 year period and thus appropriate $40,000 for the new project without spending any more than they are at present. A new bridge would eliminate the inconvenience and hazards which exist at present and would boost the assessment in Ennismore so that the county would actually be getting a greater revenue because of the new structure.

He further stated that estimates given at different times have been ridiculous and that private contracting firms had estimated the cost of a bridge far below the figures made public six months ago. Government engineers had taken soundings at the site of the present bridge and had expressed surprise at the soundness of the bottom which was supposed to be soft mud. He said a fill roadway would be a practical venture and there was plenty of rock for filling purposes within a half mile of the bridge.

Rebels Prepare For Barcelona

LERIDA, Spain, Jan. 21.—The insurgent command, looking forward to the capture of Barcelona, today ordered establishment of governtal machinery to take over the city.

The County of Montseny military camps was named president of a council to govern Barcelona province and it was said the Insurgents probably would name within a day or two the members of a council to rule Barcelona.

The action came immediately after General Franco personally had given his ministers a review of the offensive in all sectors, expressing complete confidence that his armies soon would be victorious

The Insurgent chiefs also approved proposals designed to restore as quickly as possible normal civil life in Barcelona and other areas.

Franco called upon all Spaniards to contribute generously to aid the establishment of normal conditions and the distribution of food, clothing and medical supplies to the needy.

Schacht Outser To Open Inflation Faucets For Nazi Armament Spree; Bank Head To Be Colony Agitator Abroad

Germany's Financial Wizard Fired

DR. SCHACHT — DR. FUNK

Unable to make his economic and financial theories acceptable to Nazi party extremists as Germany faces what amounts to economic crisis, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, world renowned financial expert, was dismissed from his post as president of the Reichsbank reportedly on direct orders from Chancellor Hitler. Dr. Walter Funk, Nazi Minister of Economics, was named to replace him. Dr. Schacht has never been a strong Nazi supporter. He may retain cabinet rank without a portfolio.

Hitler To "Cash In" On Experts' World Influence

BERLIN, Jan. 21 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler extended the reorganization of the Reichsbank directorate today by relieving the vice president, Frederick Dreyse, and Ernst Huelse, another director, of their posts.

The fuehrer simultaneously named Rudolf Brinkmann, righthand man of Walther Funk—economics minister who yesterday succeeded Dr. Hjalmar Schacht as president of the Reichsbank—to the directorate of the bank.

Funk immediately appointed him to be vice president, replacing Dreyse.

Both Dreyse, the board's oldest member, and Huelse were in accord with Schacht in opposing uncontrolled credit expansion.

Brinkmann formerly was one of Schacht's four closest collaborators but parted company with him when Funk was appointed economics minister in Schacht's stead in 1937.

A Colony Agitator

Informed persons predicted that Dr. Schacht would become Chancellor Hitler's confidential man and travelling salesman abroad in quickened Nazi drives for colonies and trade.

As the veteran Nazi financial helmsman cleaned off the Reichsbank desk he used in 1923 to stem post-war inflation, it appeared clearer in financial circles that his dismissal by Hitler yesterday involved Schacht's fear that uncontrolled spending might lead again to inflation.

The assumption of all financial and economic power by less orthodox Nazi leaders than Schacht will mean, in the opinion of competent observers, that credit inflation faucets will be opened wide to enable Nazi spending for armaments, fortifications and public buildings to ahead full speed.

Schacht frequently raised a warning signal on spending, braving clashes with left wing Nazis who hold less rigid ideas about where money comes from.

Empire Essential.

Schacht is credited with having convinced Hitler of the necessity for a colonial empire. Until he came under Schachat's influence in 1933, Hitler centred attention on continental expansion, but the Reichsbank president is said to have persuaded the Chancellor that an empire was essential as a source of raw materials.

Hitler, it is believed, intends to use Schacht's prestige abroad to prepare the way for the return of Germany's pre-war colonial domain and at the same time engage him as trade salesman in the Nazi drive toward the south-east and in South America.

References were made in the press to Schacht as a colonial pioneer, along wth the statement that his new "special duties" undoubtedly would concern trade problems. Schacht is retained as a cabinet minister.

Judgment Reserved Until Friday In Arson Charge Against Herman

Shortly after 6 p.m. on Friday, after Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., and E. F. Singer, K.C., defence counsel, had completed their comparatively brief arguments, His Honor Judge Smoke announced he would reserve judgment in the arson charge against Robert Nathan Herman until 10 o'clock next Friday morning.

No evidence was offered by the defence.

After Crown Attorney McElderry had closed his case for the Crown, Mr. Singer spoke briefly.

"I am not calling any evidence," he said, "my contention being that the Crown has not proved its case."

The greater part of Friday afternoon's session was devoted to testimony in regard to the business methods followed in the Patteniek store and as to the alleged defalcations on the part of Herman and much of the evidence involved bookkeeping and banking details.

The first witness at the afetrnoon, Herb. E. Stenson, shoe merchant, who said his store was two stores south of Patteniek's store, swore that around 6.10 o'clock on the evening of the fire he was standing inside the door of his store when he saw Herman pass by walking south. After locking his store he had walked out Simcoe Street and had reached Aylmer Street when he heard the fire reels.

Would it be possible that Herman looked into the window of your store to pick out a Christmas box for his wife? asked Mr. Singer in cross-examination.

"I don't know."

UAW To Impeach Homer Martin

DETROIT, Jan. 21 — (A.P.). — The notes of discord in the United Automobile Workers' Union crescendoed to a new high to-day, with the suspended leaders of one faction suspending and preparing to impeach their chief opponent— who suspended them in the first place.

The now dis-united auto workers became in effect, a dual union with this lineup:

No president but one claimant to the office; two secretary-treasurers; two executive boards holding forth in separte hotels while the international headquarters were closed; rival bosses for a single weekly union paper, and two conventions to elect officers to be held in different cities in March.

Some observers predicted that only the courts could straighten out

Millionaire Over Night, Chorus Girl Still Gasping At Ruppert Gift

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP).—A 37-year-old former chorus girl who did what everyone would like to do—woke up and found heiself a millionaire—hasn't decided what to do with the vast fortune left her by Colonel Jacob Ruppert.

"Some good, I hope," smiled Helen Winthrope Weyant, a chestnut-haired woman with a pert face and trim figure. However, she has no plans for the future—because she hasn't had a chance to catch her breath yet. But she has no thought of matrimony.

Her blue eyes were still bewildered at yesterday's news that she had been bequeathed one-third of the $30,000,000 to $70,000,000 estate of the 71-year-old bachelor sportsman, whom she described as a "very old friend."

Neither the actress nor her attorneys know exactly how much she will receive—but she is one-third owner of the wealthy world champion New York Yankee baseball club, and has an equal interest in one of the world's largest breweries and in an accumulation of Manhattan real estate greater than anyone else has piled up except the Astor family.

The other two-thirds of the estate go equally to two nieces of Ruppert—Mrs. Joseph Holleran and Mrs. J. Basil Maguire, both of Greenwich, Conn.

Germany shipped $3,500,000 worth of hats to other countries last year.

Recruits to the British Royal Air Force totaled 25,000 in 1938.

House To House Canvass Of Aylmer For Food Only Thing Keeping 700 From Starving

AYLMER, Que., Jan. 21 (CP)—Food and money collected in a house-to-house canvass is being used to keep between 700 and 800 residents here "from starvation," Mayor W. J. Lavigne said last night in an appeal for outside aid. Aylmer is six miles west of Ottawa.

"These people would be starving if the ratepayers were not giving generously of food and money they need themselves," the mayor said of relief recipients who have been given no aid from authorities since work on relief projects was stopped by the Quebec government last month.

He said 148 heads of families who had been on relief for many months lost their only means of buying food for their families when the work was stopped. He had been informed by Quebec government authorities that no more work would be provided until the Dominion government provided more funds.

Mr. Lavigne said it would cost the town $1,500 to provide relief and the money was not available,

Might Of Money To Play No Part In CBC

OTTAWA, Jan. 21—(CP). — An outline of Government policy on unemployment relief and a reply to criticism by Opposition speakers of the administration's efforts to care for workless is expected from Labor Minister Rogers when he speaks in the address debate in the House of Commons Monday.

Mr. Rogers adjourned the debate yesterday after four speakers, headed by Transport Minister Howe, canvassed all questions in the Throne Speech from Liberal, Conservative and Social Credit angles. In conformity with custom, the house sat only in the afternoon on the Friday of the first full week of the session.

Mr. Howe devoted most of his speech to the controversy over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's refusal to permit C. George McCullagh, publisher of The Toronto Globe and Mail, to broadcast a series of five speeches over a national network.

The corporation would resist "any attempt to place the free air under the domination of the power of wealth." Free interchange of public opinion was one of the safeguards of democracy, he said, 'and the C.B.C. believes it would be false to its trust as custodian of an increasingly part of the public domain if it did not resist external control."

No Ottawa Matter.

The minister emphasized that the government was not involved in the matter, which was one between Mr. McCullagh and the C.B.C. The functions of the Government stopped when it had approved the by-laws of the C.B.C. It had not authority over the regulations which the corporation drafted. His own relations were that of the channel of communication between the corporation and and parliament, since he was the minister under whose department the C.B.C. had been placed.

He detailed the circumstances under which Mr. McCullagh had applied to Gladstone Murray, general manager of the C.B.C., for permission to use the national network. Mr. McCullagh had been informed of the corporation's regulation which denied to an individual the right to purchase time on the network for the purpose of broadcasting his own opinions.

As an alternative Mr. McCullagh had been offered a 14-minute broadcast during the open forum hour of the corporation. Mr. McCullagh had also been informed of the ban against private individuals establishing a network over privately-owned stations.

To conform with the regulations Mr. McCullagh had purchased time over a number of stations, and, by means of recordings, had been able to broadcast over these simultaneously.

Combination System.

Mr. Howe denied that freedom of speech was involved. The Canadian system was a combination of those prevailing in both the United

George Allport, the victim's husband, saw the accident. He said the driver jumped out of his car, looked at Mrs. Allport underneath the car, yelled 'I've killed a woman,' 'and then leaped into his car and drove away, running over Mrs. Allport again.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Allport had multiple injuries and her condition was "just fair."

the intricacies in which groups led by and opposing Homer Martin, who retained his claim to the presidency, found themselves involved. Neither side gave any inkling, though, that it was contemplating legal action.

The intramural squabble which has smoldered and borken into a conflagration repeatedly since the big automotive strikes of 1937 reached a new peak yesterday.

First Martin, former minister who had headed the U.A.W. since it parted from the American Federation of Labor in 1936, announced the suspension of 15 of the executive board's 24 members after they had reduced his authority until he was only a figurehead.

Then last night the suspended 15 board members and two others unanimously adopted a resolution suspending Martin as president and calling an impeachment on eight charges.

Canadian Backing?

DETROIT, Jan. 21—(CP).—Possibility an important battle in the current international United Automobile Workers war would be fought in St. Catharines, Ont., became evident today as president Homer Martin said he was considering attending a Canadian regional board meeting at St. Catharines to explain why he suspended 15 members of the international executive board.

Charles Millard of Oshawa was among the suspended officers. He is Canadian regional director and until two months ago was listed among Martin supporters. Martin aides said no new regional director would be named pending a Martin-called convention.

Both sides in the dispute said today the support of the Canadian branches would be important in the forthcoming contest because of the moral effect. There are roughly 7,000 Canadian members of the union.

Martin said in a statement to The Canadian Press he was sure Canadian members of the union would support him.

"I feel the members of the United Automobile Workers Union in Canada will support my struggle for a stable and responsible union, free from careerists and irresponsible elements," Martin said.

'I believe they will support me in my determination the union will not be dominated by the communist party and its allies. I am proposing that we shall have a convention in which all members of the union will have the opportunity to be represented, so that the people to whom this union properly belongs will be able to settle the controversy in the union.

Nazi "Keep Fit" Drive Widened

BERLIN, Jan. 21 (AP). — Chancellor Hitler issued a decree today broadening the military preparedness basis of the nation through a "keep fit" program.

The Fuehrer raised the brown-shirt Sa (storm troop) sport badge, heretofore a Nazi party honor, to the standard of a badge of military fitness and made its acquisition the "basis for pre and post-military training."

The decree has the effect of virtually forcing every German male, with the exception of Jews and criminals, more than 17 years of age, into Nazi political formations.

"Every German man has the moral duty to win the Sa badge of military fitness in preparation for army service," the order said.

"Those soldiers honorably discharged from active duty and capable of service must maintain their spiritual and physical strength by enrolling in army groups attached to the So, insofar as they are not already assigned for special training to other formations such as the SS (black-uniformed Elite guards), NSKK (National Socialist motor corps) or K.S.F.K. (National Socialist flying corps), in which they will receive their military training on the basis of the Sa military fitness badge.

"The requirements of the armed forces must be considered in the formation and training."

A good supply of water was available during all ten hours the hoses were operating, the source being a nearby river. So much water was poured into the buildings that the main street was a sheet of ice last night.

Town Constable L. Young and Councillors T. W. Tryon and F. A. Towle paid lavish tribute to the work of Fire Chief Dorman Hawley and his volunteers, said that the fire would undoubtedly spread further had it not been for their efforts.

The fire broke out at about two o'clock in the afternoon and it was not until after midnight that hoses were turned off and residents of the town began to go home. Lights were still lit in most of Bancroft's homes until after one o'clock.

New supplies were rushed from Peterborough and the bank prepared to open as usual this morning, in the council chamber.

Jobless In Canada Bar Refugees

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—(CP)— So long as Canada has its unemployment problem, there will be no open door for political refugees in the Dominion, State Secretary Rinfret said last night before the St. James Young Liberals Association.

The minister said the government had decided to date that restrictions on immigration from foreign countries are to be maintained. There was no intention of diminishing these restrictions, despite all sentiments of humanity.

"That is not only my personal opinion but the policy of the government to which I belong," Mr. Rinfret declared.

He added, however, individual cases were examined carefully, where members of the prospective entrant's family were in Canada or where the person had capital to establish himself. But since 1935 the government had shown severity for all classes of immigration, in view of the country's unemployed.

Speaking of defence, he declared there would not be a cent in this year's defence estimates not "entirely and exclusively for the defence of Canada." In no way could any of the money be used for an exterior expedition or exterior defence.

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21 — (C.P.). — Export sales of Canadian wheat estimated around 1,750,000 bushels and continued absence of pressure from the new Argentine crop gave wheat future a firm tone on the Winnipeg market this week.

Prices fluctuated within a narrow range in a series of dull sessions which found Friday's close ⅛ cent higher to unchanged for the week, with May at 62⅝, July 62⅞, and October 63¼ cents.

With the exception of improvement in United States winter wheat belt moisture situation, market news throughout the week was of a bullish character. The unsettled European political situation, sales of Australian wheat and flour to the Orient and reports the Argentine Wheat Board might be holding new crop grain for higher prices aided in giving the market a steady trend.

The new Argentine wheat crop, if it comes up to the estimate of the Ministry of Agriculture of 315,991,000 bushels, will be the largest in the history of the South American Republic with the exception of the 1928-29 season which yielded 349,049,000 bushels.

Major Campaign Near In South China

SHANGHAI, Jan. 21 (CP)—After a long deadlock marked only by sporadic fighting, Chinese and Japanese reports indicated today that a renewal of warfare on a major scale was near.

From Chungking, Chinese military authorities admitted they expected increasing activities in the West River sector, near Canton, to develop into an offensive against Shiuhing, important military base 40 miles west of the south China metropolis.

From there the Japanese would be in a position to carry out their long-threatened invasion of Kwangsi province.

Thirty miles northeast of Canton, fighting was becoming more intense near Tsungfa where the Japanese were trying to advance northward along the Canton-Hankhow Railway.

The Chinese were reported moving heavy reinforcements to the vicinity of Pakhoi, on the southwestern coast of Kwantung province near French Indo-China, anticipating a Japanese attempt to land troops.

Radio Entertainers Vote To Strike

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Nearly 2,000 of the United States' professional radio entertainers were ready today to strike for higher wages.

The Chicago local of the American Federation of Radio Artists voted unanimously last night to strike upon orders from the National Executive board.

Like action was taken earlier this week by the New York local, and balloting was scheduled for today in Los Angeles and tomorrow in San Francisco.

A rejection by the American Association of Advertising Agencies of demands for an increased wage scale and pay for rehearsals was the basis for the threatened strike.

Peter Denies His Lord

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 22 is Luke 22: 31-34; 54, 62, the Golden Text being 1 Corinthians 10: 12, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.")

(By NEWMAN CAMPBELL)

THE LESSON today tells the sad story of how Simon Peter, the "beloved disciple," was disloyal to his Master.

It was like this: Jesus knew, of course, that eventually His enemies would arrest and put Him to death. The high priests were always trying to trip Him so that they would have an excuse to arrest Him. But Jesus, always preaching what He knew to be the right, was clever in giving them just the right answers so that the priests had no excuse for taking Him into custody.

However, Jesus knew that sooner or later He would be taken, and He often referred to it in His talks with His disciples. Now He knew Peter very much better than Peter knew himself. He knew that Peter was a fine man, but that temptation might overcome him. And so He told him that Satan was trying to snare him, but that He, Christ, was praying for him.

But Peter, very sure of himself and of his love and loyalty to Christ, answered, "Lord, I am ready to go with Thee, both into prison, and to death."

Jesus probably smiled sadly as he answered: "I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before they shalt thrice deny that you knowest me."

Then Jesus was arrested and taken to the high priest's house, and Peter followed them. The men took Him into the hall and they built a fire in the middle, hereof, and sat down and talked. Peter sat with the rest. A young girl looked at him and said, "This man also was with Him." Fearful of being taken, Peter, without thinking, answered hastily, "Woman, I know Him not."

Then a man accused him of being one of Jesus' followers, and again he said he was not; and yet a third person said, "Of a truth this fellow was with Him: for he is a Galilean." Again Peter denied it, and just at tha moment a cock crew. That sound brought to Peter's mind what Jesus had told him, and as he glanced up he saw Christ looking sadly at him, and he went out and wept. It must have been a bitter moment to him.

It is so easy to talk of our love and faithfulness, but when we grow afraid of our safety or our lives, we turn cowards. This is the only time that Peter failed, and he suffered from it, probably all his life.

But you must remember, too, that Peter had fought for his Lord when the soldiers came to arrest Him. St. Luke tells it, and says that when the soldiers came Peter took a sword and sliced off the ear of one. But Jesus rebuked him for his violence and healed the man who was hurt.

Peter, too, was forgiven for this sin and lived to do a great deal of good in the world. But Judas, who betrayed his Master to the Roman soldiers, destroyed himself when he realized what he had done.

It was this same evening, earlier, that the disciples had eaten the Feast of the Passover with their Master, and Jesus had told them that "the hand of him who betrayeth Me is with Me on the table." He had sent His disciples ahead to prepare the feast, and when all were seated at the table, He had taken bread and broken it and given it to them and said, "This is my body which is given for you. This do in remembrance of me." And taking the cup of wine ,He said, "This cup is the testament in my blood, which is shed for you."

How can we lay such strong foundations for our characters that we do not fail in crises, as Peter had failed? Well, we obey the laws of bodily health to make our bodies strong and resistant to disease. And we can obey moral laws to make our souls strong. We can do as Jesus said when He told the parable of the man who built his house on the rock, digging its foundations deep, so that when the flood rose it could not be shaken.

PETER DECLARES HIS LOVE.
Lesson for Sunday, January 29. (Highlights on the Sunday School Lesson.)

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for January 29 is John 21: 11-19, the Golden Text being John 14: 15—"If ye love me, keep my commandments.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

In last week's lesson Peter, faced with the possibility of arrest for being with Jesus, denied three times that he knew the Lord, and when the cock crew, he remembered that Jesus had told him that he would act thus. He was filled with anguish for his faithlessness.

In to-day's lesson he is with the other disciples, walking sadly along the road three days after the crucifixion. Jesus joins the group, but none of the disciples knows Him. They ask Him to stay and dine with them, and He tells them where to cast their nets to get a good catch of fish. They follow His direction and land many large fishes, and when they eat, Jesus breaks bread and gives it to them—and then they know the Christ.

Peter feels he is forgiven for his denials, and Jesus asks him if he loves Him. Peter answers fervently, "Ye, Lord, thou knowest that I love Thee." Then Jesus answers, "Feed my lambs." Three times is the question put, three times Peter answers, 'Yet," and three times is he told to "Feed my lambs" or "Feed my sheep." It is not earthly food that is meant, but spiritual—the preaching of the Gospel. Peter understands.

The disciples are now convinced that Christ has really risen from the dead. Before this they were inclined to be doubtful. The two Marys had first told the story of finding the tomb empty and the body of Jesus gone, but the men put that down to "women's talk." Now they know that the talk was true.

Now we go back a bit, to before the crucifixion, and recall the story of the woman who was a sinner and who anointed the Savior's feet with precious ointment. It was one time when a Parisee asked Jesus to eat with him, and He did so. While they were at the meal this woman, who was known to be a sinner, came in, and stood behind Him weeping. Then, kneeling before Jesus, she bathed His feet with her tears, wiped them with her long hair, and finally anointed them with the precious ointment which was in an alabaster box.

Of course, the self-righteous Pharisee was horrified, and said to himself that if Jesus really was a prophet, He would know what type of woman this was and shrink from her. But Jesus, reading his thoughts said, "Simon, I have something to say to thee." Simon said, "Master, say on."

Then Jesus told the parable of the man who had two debtors, one of whom owed him only a little money, and the other who owed him much. He forgave them both. "Which of them will love him most?" Jesus asked. "I suppose he to whom he forgave most," answered Simon.

Then He turned to the woman saying that when He entered Simon's house He was given no water to wash His feet and received no kiss of welcome, but the woman had given Him both.

"Wherefore I say unto thee, her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much." And to her He said, "Thy sins are forgiven. Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace."

The last part of the lesson is one which you should read for yourselves, for it is too long to copy here and it is so beautiful it should be memorized. It is from I. Corinthians, chapter 13, beginning, "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity (love), I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.

"And though I have the gift of prophecy and understand all mystery and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing."

A National Message

A Lost Document.

The next provision is a vital one—"and it shall come to pass that in the place where it was said unto them, ye are not my people, there it shall be said unto them, ye are the sons of the living God."

Here comes in the glory of the Reformation, and of the revival called the Wesleyan revival, which swept the people in multitudes to the footstool of divine mercy; each seeking for himself, and multitudes very consciously finding, the experience indicated in the Bill of Divorcement as a part of their own lives. This is so defintely in line with the plain, unvarnished, matter-of-fact statements of Holy Writ that we take space to quote from St. John's writings as follows:

He came unto His own, and His own received him not.

But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name.

Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed upon us that we should be called the sons of God; therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew Him not.

Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see him as he is.

And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as He is pure.

So the clause of the "Bill of Divorcement" is also effectively in operation at the present time in the eyes of all men who have the knowledge and wisdom to identify Israel.

Belmont Institute Plans Another Play

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 21. — Belmont Branch Women's Institute met Thursday afternoon at the Belmont township hall, sixteen members being present with the president, Miss Iva Smith in the chair. Mrs. W. Smith acted as secretary during the meeting, in the absence of Mrs. H. L. Scott.

The Institute members are going to sell tickets on a motor rug, and distributed them among the members. They are also planning to organize another play, for presentation in the near future.

It was decided to refill the first aid kit at Preneveau school, S. S. No. 2.

Mrs. A. S. Thompson, of Havelock, who was to have given a talk on "Table setting" at this meeting was unable to be present, but sent a very interesting paper on this subject, which was read to the members by the acting secretary.

Several lovely old songs were contributed by Mrs. M. Rylott at the piano, who also sang a selection, "On the Banks of the Clyde." Community singing concluded the afternoon's program.

Refreshments were served by the lunch committee composed of Mrs. Jason Roe, Mrs. Theron McMullen, Mrs. R. F. Dunlop, and Miss Hattie Sexsmith.

Travels In India To Be Described

On Sunday night W. F. Moffatt, a prominent layman from Weston will give a movie picture lecture on his travels in India and China, in St. Andrew's United Church. Mr. Moffatt whose daughter Dr. Agnes Moffatt is a practicing physician in this city made an eight months tour around the world last year, and has an interesting story to tell of his travels in far off lands.

Whilst abroad he used his camera to good effect, and has a large stock of modern colored movie pictures which he has shown to large audiences throughout Ontario. He has given his lecture this week to the Winter School at Lindsay where his visit proved of great interest to the young people.

On Sunday night he will show pictures of Mandleshwar, India, where the missionaries work among the Hindoos and Mohammedans, and thus face the issue with organized non Christian religions.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

A FALSE IDEA OF GOD

The servants of the King of Syria said unto him: Their God is a God of the hills.—1 King 20:23.

The contemptible army of the Israelites had defeated the highly trained Syrian troops. Naturally their Headquarter Staff appeared before King Benhadad and gave as the reason for their defeat: "Their God is a God of the hills." The great Syrian War Lords of the mightiest nation of that age recognized that a spiritual power had helped Israel in the day of battle. "Jehovah," they said, "is a God of the hills." How different from the German theory of "a stab in the back." The German War Lords are far advanced in every way from their contemporaries of three thousand years ago for they do not believe in any supernatural power. God as a spiritual power is not taken into consideration by them.

Perhaps you may smile at the Syrian Generals' excuse. But are they behind the times? Their explanation was that Jehovah was a partial God, mightly only in certain places and departments of life.

On Sundays you are a regular church attendant. It is respectable; it brings business. You God is a Sunday God; good enough for Sunday but on six days of the week you have your own gods; your business ability, foresight, energy and the worldy maxim: "Business is business." You do not want or wish God to enter into your business, your pleasures, your politics. Strange how modern this old statement is.

Once more. "Their God is a God of the hills." The hills mean the great crises of life, the turning points. War was very near at hand last September. Multitudes filled the churches for prayer and supplication to God to avert the horror to this generation. God heard the prayers. Peace was preserved. Have you gone regularly to church to give thanks for all His goodness to you and yours? Or do you believe that He is just a God of the hills; a God Who is to be called upon in times of crises and difficulties? A modern spiritual thinker has suggested that we should have a spirtual re-armament; that the spiritual life of our people should be deepened and strengthened so that in the day of battle, if it comes, we may under God's grace conquer and prove to the world that God is still active and powerful.

Such a spiritual re-armament means that you individually should do your part. You are to put on the whole armour of God and be more earnest in prayer, reading of God's Word and above all to bear outward witness of your belief in God by your public worship. God is a spiritual power. God has done mighty things in the past. He has been gracious unto this nation. Surely this is the opportunity to prove to yourself and to your neighbors that God is not a partial God but a God who enters into every department of life.

Such re-armament will affect your business; your treatment of those who work for you; your attitude towards the man or woman for whom you work.

God became Man through Jesus Christ that He might enter into every detail and experience of human life. His purpose is by His Spirit to make your life richer and fuller. The Lord Christ put His whole trust and confidence in the Father and went down into the valley of humiliation and tasted death for every man that no man could say that God could not understand or sympathise with his particular distress or problem. Through His Incarnation He is more willing and able to keep his ancient promise: "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee; and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee. I will take thee by the right hand and hold three up. Fear not. Lo, I am with thee all the days."

ALMIGHTY and EVERLASTING GOD, mercifully look upon our infirmities, and in all our dangers and necessities stretch forth Thy right Hand to help and defend us; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Cathedral Musings

Many have written of the loneliness of the individual, the terrible isolation of the heart, and that from birth to death, the crucial experiences of life have to be faced alone, that in sorrow, suffering and death, all the love, all the sympathy, is powerless to bridge the gap between the sufferer and those who can but stand by in dumb sorrow, powerless to help snare the burden and so lighten the load. On the face of it, all this seems very true, but nothing is further from the fact, for this isolation, which makes each one of us an enigma to his fellows, is not of the real self, it is but a part of the illusion of the veil of matter in which we are incarnated. This veil which conditions our lives here, hides from us not only the spiritual world which surrounds us on every hand, but also keeps most of us in ignorance of our real selves. We said, the "spiritual world around us", but how many of us realise that this is so and that 'heaven' and 'hell' are not localised in time or space, but are the conditions we make for ourselves both here and elsewhere. But to resume, the spiritual world does surround us, all unaware as we are, for there are sounds we cannot hear, things we cannot see, glories we cannot realise, for our bodily senses are very limited in their scope, in many cases, mercifully limited. And just as we are limited in our cognizance of our surroundings, unless we have opened the interior vision as St Paul did, so are we also in ignorance of our selves and even more so of our fellows. As Emerson pointed out, the individual has three aspects, as known to others, as known to himself and as known to his God and the last is the only true aspect. That the Master could so infallibly read the hearts of others was because He disregarded the outer man and penetrated straight through to the real, inner man. And this inner man is never alone, for being a spiritual being, he is at one with the spiritual world, or, as St Paul puts it, he is accompanied by a cloud of witnesses. On the higher plane upon which he functions there is nothing hidden of his nature, for he knows as he is known. One may perhaps liken the higher world to a myriad of tuned strings, one gives forth a note and all the others vibrate in sympathy. So in the spiritual realm, one gives forth a thought and the whole universe registers it and responds. We appear exactly as we are in our hearts.

Peter Denies His Lord — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 22:31-34, 54-62.

Jesus tells Peter that before the cock shall crow this day, three times will he deny that he knows his Lord.

The soldiers take Jesus and lead Him to the high priest's house, while Peter follows and watches from far off.

Questioned on being a disciple of Jesus, three times does Peter deny it, and even while he speaks, the cock crows.

Peter goes out weeping bitterly, and prays for strength to resist temptation. (GOLDEN TEXT—1 Corinthians 10:12.)

Honesty And Industry

Norman MacLeod of Ottawa listened to the radio address delivered by George McCullagh and proceeded to take it to pieces. The publisher of the Globe and Mail contended that we needed men of honesty and industry rather than brilliance in our governing bodies. Mr. MacLeod believes men need to be trained for public life, and the man with honesty and industry alone might have little to offer if he were returned to Ottawa.

If one desires a fair object lesson in good government we turn to many of our county councils, composed largely of farmers and men from villages. There are seven of our counties which have now no debenture debt; as counties they owe nothing at all. Peterborough is not yet in that charmed circle but it is moving in that direction.

We always have the feeling that the county council has a more thorough knowledge of its mission than has the Dominion parliament. The people in the county council live close to the problems with which they have to deal, and if there is something which they do not know then they can go and find out. They do not have to appoint a commission or hold an investigation. As far as honesty and industry are concerned they bring to their task a fairly full measure of each and it is seldom they attempt a display of brilliance. In fact they are typical of the men whom Mr. McCullagh believes should be in our parliament.

Whether brilliance is a great asset we do not know. Since parliament came into existence in this country we have had a number of men who could exhibit a fair degree of brilliance on the floor of the House. They could speak well and some of them have been adepts at turning to one side any shafts aimed at them by political opponents. The trouble is to transfer this brilliance into something useful; to turn it into sound judgment; to fashion it into a mind which always sees the spending of public money as something akin to putting the hand into the individual purses of all the people in the country.

There are men in what we call our lesser governing bodies who abhor debt We have, as previously noted, a number of counties which are debt free. But while the councillors there have been exhibiting industry and honesty in their efforts our other governments, provincial and federal, have been incurring debts, and when these debts are regarded on a per capita basis we find that people in counties which as such are debt free have been burdened with a debt which they can never pay. That is why we prefer to think Mr. MacLeod is wrong and Mr. McCullagh is right in contending that we would do better with men of industry and plain honesty in charge of our public affairs. Brilliance is too fickle a quantity on which to place much reliance.

We Can't Afford It

In the days of Sir Henry Thornton there were plans for a new C.N.R. terminal in Montreal which was going to cost something like $60,000,000. Work was halted after $16,000,000 had been spent and the result is that Montreal has had a great hole in the ground. That's all. The C.N.R. has continued to use the old Bonaventure station.

The suggestion now is that work be completed and the C.N.R. shall build its new station at a cost of $12,500,000, and that of course means a continuation of dual terminals in that city. Much of the passenger business to and from Montreal is now carried on by pool trains which honor both C.P.R. and C.N.R. tickets and that is in line with the policy approved by the government of co-operation between roads. The carrying out of that policy leads to the conclusion that there should be a union terminal in Montreal. That's common sense.

Building that new C.N.R. station is about the same as creating a new problem before we have settled our present ones. The people and not the C.N.R. will have to pay for it and the people can't afford it.

Dropping Out Of Politics

The United Farmers of Alberta have decided they will have nothing more to do with political action. It was 20 years ago when a convention in Edmonton decided to push off into politics, and two years later the U.F.A. found themselves in power in their province, and there they stayed until swept out by the Social Credit idea of William Aberhart in 1935.

Nor did their experiment stop with provincial matters; in 1921 they sent members to Ottawa and at times had as many as a dozen there, but they have none today. So the political power which they possessed is theirs no more, and that may account for the decision to go out of politics. As far as Federal matters go the U.F.A. is allied with the C.C.F.

Possibly the farmers in Alberta found political action was not leading them to any better land They may have decided that if they are going to act at all it would be better for them to work on business lines, and that we believe is the solution for farm organization. Back of that though was the hard fact that their political venture in provincial and federal fields had entirely folded up on them.

Sending a Man To Jail

Albert Debenham, 54, father of four children, lives in Toronto, and he has been there or in the suburbs for 30 years. Now it looks as though he were going to jail.

Debenham is described as being a carpenter by trade and an odd-job man by necessity. Apparently in the doing of some of his odd jobs there was some report which he should have filled out and returned to the Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. When the form was received Debenham was just getting out of a home where the mortgage had been closed on him; his wife was sick, and he was trying to find a place to go and still pick up the odd job to keep the family going. Result was, according to his explanation, he lost the blank form.

In court he was fined $20, a sum of money which he does not possess, and if he cannot pay it he goes to jail for 30 days.

The Examiner does not know what this particular official form was which Albert Debenham should have filled out and returned to Ottawa, but we are inclined to doubt that its importance ranked so high that failure to send it back should be sufficient to put a man in jail for 30 days who has never been there before.

It Was Done Long Ago

Those who are bent on having more examinations and probes have been suggesting that the sale of stock in the John Inglis Co. of Toronto, the plant where it was planned to manufacture the Bren gun, should be investigated.

Acting Premier Hon. H. C. Nixon is responsible for the statement that the Ontario Securities Commission attended to that and approved of the stock set-up before any of it was ever offered for sale.

We take it that such investigation was carefully made and that the Securities Commissioner was satisfied there was nothing irregular, otherwise he would not have sanctioned the move or allowed the sale of stock.

The Bren gun report is now for parliament to deal with, and as we see it the real decision is whether munitions should be manufactured privately or under government control. Already it has been intimated that a purchasing commission outside parliament will be set up for that purpose. That sounds right enough, and it looks as though the time had arrived to pass on to the next order of business.

They Trusted The Tariff

Hon. J. G. Gardiner is rather a good debater when he addresses himself to any subject in the House of Commons. Particularly so when he starts to discuss wheat. While several members have been lamenting the loss of the British preference of six cents per bushel, Mr. Gardiner says he is certain it has been of small benefit. If Canada and Australia were selling all their wheat to Britain it would be an advantage, but when we have to see much of our wheat elsewhere at world prices there is no advantage. His information was that the preference had not helped our shipping ports because there was more wheat sent out from Canadian ports before the preference came into existence.

His tracing of what a protective policy on wheat had done in United States was interesting. The republic placed a duty of 42 cents per bushel against wheat coming from Canada, although their mills could buy it in bond and ship it out again as flour. With that much protection farmers started enlarging their wheat ground and the increase amounted to 15,000,000 acres. They were going to produce all they needed at home; the influence of the tariff had the effect of causing them to believe there were virtually no limits to the home market. In 1938 there were rains at the right time and United States harvested a crop which was 300,000,000 bushels greater than the home market could consume. So to the extent of that 300 million bushels the United States stands in line with other nations having so much wheat they do not know what to do with it. Mr. Gardiner did not say so in as many words, but in the back of his mind there must have been a close connection between that 42 cents U.S. tariff against Canadian wheat and the present overproduction of 300,000,000 bushels in one year.

Asking The Government

It seems to make no difference which way one looks he finds the same thing—people demanding that their government shall do something about it.

It has been the British farmers before and this time it is British farmers again. They are going to have a great procession to London and bring their case before parliament.

What's the trouble. Too much competition from the outside world, and that includes Canada and other nations in the Empire. Wages have risen higher and other costs of doing business are on the upward scale and there is not enough left for the farmer to pay the bills. We learn that many of the farmers who used to employ 30 farm workers are now getting along with two or three. On that account there will be no difficulty in getting farm laborers off to join the procession because they are already off.

The expectation is that the government will cure the trouble, and probably the government would be pleased to do so if it knew how. But it doesn't.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Owen Sound Sun-Times breaks step with the complainers and declares "Last year was good—this year will be better."

There are eight vacancies in the Canadian Senate, and that in itself is sufficient to make certain that few will break away from the Liberal party just now.

There are plenty of young farmers attending the Agricultural College but there seems to be a feeling that a good many of them graduate from college and farming at the same time.

Plans at Ottawa are for people there to be trained in how to take air raid precautions, but that old gun they fire off there to tell the time of day ought to be able to handle any such situation.

France would like to do a number of things to Italy but keeps looking back over the official shoulder to see what Britain is likely to do in the way of help.

One regrettable feature is that those who make wars do not go out in the front lines and fight them. If it were done that way the chances for a long and enduring term of peace would be bright.

Hastings reports the trapping of a six-foot wolf for which the trapper will receive a bounty of $15. It would be well if that sort of bounty were more often claimed for the wolf is one form of animal life which we could very well do without.

St. Thomas Times-Journal refers to a truck with trailers which was wrecked near London. Its load was 22 tons and it carried oil, etc., highly inflammable. The question of the St. Thomas paper is whether such loads should be permitted on the highways. If we furnish the answer it will be in one word—NO.

One shop in Toronto had been robbed several times and an officer from the police department was stationed and hidden there. Result was he caught and arrested the next hold-up man who arriver. And that seems much better than chasing the man down the street and around the corner after the robbery takes place.

One man came out of our county jail in the morning after completing a term for being drunk, and later in the same day he was arrested and sentenced again on a second and similar charge. But we do not desire to have that old saying about a satisfied customer being the best recommendation applied too frequently to our county hoosegow.

The Canadian Almanac for 1939 is in its 92nd year of publication, and it has grown to be a book of 670 pages. There are few—if any works of reference in this country which cover the ground contained in the Canadian Almanac. Complete tariff information including the new trade agreements; every post office and station in the Dominion; all organized municipalities together with clerks and treasurers. As a book of reference the Copp Clark Co. of Toronto have brought their Canadian Almanac well to the front and kept it there.

COMPANY

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My Aunt Lucile she likes to work, no one could say she'd ever shirk, she rises early too; no matter if the chores are great, and if she has to labor late, she stays till all is through.

¶ She hums a lot when she's alone, just working there around her home, some simple tune you'll hear; her little songs she won't begin, if some one else is listening in, or if some folk are near.

¶ And folks drop in quite often there, they always find an easy chair, and then there's nothing done; for when Lucile sits down to chat, she likes to just attend to that, for she likes them to come.

¶ And often they will stay for tea, quite like the custom ought to be, at that Lucile is good; for she can lay the victuals down, as well as any one in town, and dish them like she should.

¶ She does not like the ones who run, as soon as they get supper done, that way she thinks absurd; she kind of stiffens at the chin, and mumbles all her thoughts within, but never says a word.

¶ She likes if they will stop and sit, and gossip with her for a bit, then ask what they can do; if they will carry out some stuff, and then if that's not quite enough—they'll dry the dishes too.

HAS A GOOD CASE.

The Minister of Highways is on the best of ground when he points out that a three cent increase in a levey that is already too steep would defeat its own purpose. LESS, instead of MORE, money would be raised. Thousands of people would curtail their driving to the last notch. The tourist industry would be endangered. And certainly the manufacture and sale of motor cars, one of Canada's leading industries, would be injuriously affected.

As we remarked when the report of the Chevrier Commission was made public, the people these days are looking for LOWER, not HIGHER, taxes. The politicians must keep this in mind if they expect to stay in business.—Windsor Star.

CHANGED HIS MIND

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—After four days "on the road" I find myself in Peterborough again, a wiser if not richer man. There were a lot of things that I didn't know before, that I know now, and I feel something like a school boy who has just had a scolding.

I found that I was much less welcome in any other town than I am in Peterborough, and so, before I got too far away, I did a little heavy thinking (something I had not done much of before) and then decided to make a bee-line back again.

I had a little talk with my land lady, and she agreed to hold me over until my next job turned up. As simple as that. So from now on I shall concentrate more on getting work, and less on grumbling. Well, it's nice and warm in her tonight, and there is a good program on the radio, and that is much better than sleeping on the cement floor of a police station. One of them was so crowded that there was nowhere else to sleep, and there were five others on the floor with me, two of them drunk.

I used to think there was no one worse off than myself but now I have discovered my mistake, and can see that I haven't used my head very much lately.

Very truly,
"PUZZLED."

HE CANNOT AGREE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I read with some interest the report of an address given by H. B. Cowan to the Business Men's Association in which he was advocating a change in our system of taxation. He had found this other plan of taxing land values in operation in New Zealand and Australia and liked it. I have in other times read rather broadly of various taxation plans and have come to the conclusion there are inequalities in all of them. One point we know for sure: a city needs a given amount of money for its operation and no plan can change that.

Mr. Cowan referred to the "Peterborough system of municipal taxation" and that is something which does not exist, as we follow just the same system as is used all over Ontario. It is the same when we consider Mr. Cowan's criticism of our method of assessment. The local assessor does not make the system. He accepts office and goes by the rules as they are placed before him and he must work that way and no other.

I gathered from reading the report that Mr. Cowan considered our taxation high in this city, but a comparison with the records of other cities does not show that, and our municipal statistics make it plain that taxation in this city has actually decreased within recent years.

The plea that we have a number of lots for sale which the city owns by taking them in for unpaid taxes, and Mr. Cowan believes this is an example of our system of taxation. A good many of these lots were secured in the first place by people who desired to do a little speculating, but when people started to build on the street where these lots were located it became necessary to put in sewers and sidewalks and the assessment against the vacant lots went up and so did the taxes. The owners did not want to keep on holding this property for fear they would lose money so they just quit and allowed the lots to slide. I cannot see where putting a tax on land only and not on buildings would have prevented that because we have these hundreds of lots on which no person so far has desired to build a house.

Nor can I quite make out the justice or equality of the method he advocates when it is applied to that apartment house of which he spoke. I recall the one to which he refers and the reason the gentleman did not go ahead was that he was not sure that this city was quite ready for an apartment on a fairly large scale.

What would have happened under this new plan to tax land only in the case of this apartment house which was to have cost $80,000. The builder would have a lot say 150 feet frontage and the assessment is placed on land alone might be two thousand dollars, and on that he would put premises from which he would collect a good income. Next door might be a house which would be worth $2 000 on a lot assessed for $500. The man with the $80,000 profit-producing property would be paying only four times the taxes taken from the man with the $2,000 place. That would not be fair. Under our present methods the assessor would probably assess that apartment house at $65,000 and on that amount taxes would be paid and they should be paid because the man would be collecting plenty of revenue from which to pay taxation.

I believe Mr. Cowan would have been nearer the mark if he had suggested that taxation be levied on income or on the amount of rent which a house is producing on the basis of rental. I commend him for bringing the matter to the attention of the people but I can hardly agree with the method he suggests.

• Depends On Who's Being Hurt

SOME PEOPLE have been very excited and passionate this week over freedom of speech on the radio. It is perhaps worth noting that the same people haven't been at all excited or passionate over a much more real assault on free speech under Quebec's Padlock law.

In the city of Montreal provincial police, notes the Ottawa Journal, with the technique of the Gestapo, are warning landlords to evict tenants suspected of believing in "communism". The idea is to make people suspected of believing in communism, or in anything that Quebec's Attorney General is pleased to call "communism", homeless wanderers.

Under Quebec's Padlock law the principle of free speech, about which we have been hearing so much this week, has been trampled and spat upon as it is in Russia and Germany. Men have been arrested without warrant, taken to police headquarters, searched, finger-printed, photographed, questioned. Sometimes they have had their property seized—and not returned to them. They have been subjected to such outrages without a charge being laid against them—subjected to them at the whim of the Attorney General and his police.

Judging by the absurdly exaggerated squeal that has come over a radio incident this week, certain people in Canada only believe in freedom when it is their own freedom that is gored. Their concern for liberty, apparently, is for their own liberty—the liberty of their own ideas and of their own class.

• Those Highway Freight Trains

APPLICATION by an Ontario concern for a license to transport motor cars on a tractor-trailer to Quebec has been opposed before the Quebec Public Service Commission by counsel for the railway systems, which contend that the winding nature of the highway leading into the Province of Quebec from Ontario makes such trailercarriers, from 42 to 45 feet long, a danger to other traffic.

It may be doubtful, suggests Brockville Recorder and Times, if that is the real reason for the opposition presented by the railways but it is, nevertheless, a very good one. There has been a steady increase in the length of the commercial vehicles which are permitted to travel over the highways until today many of them bear a resemblance to miniature trains.

Many a private motorist holds his breath when he sees one of these monsters approaching because there is no doubt whatever that their introduction has added to the dangers of the roads, many of which, moreover, were never built for their accommodation and are ill-adapted to their use.

The huge, lumbering carriers which roll over the highways were not foreseen when most of our highways were built. The effect of their introduction has been to delay traffic, thus adding to the perils of the road, and especially at curves to force private passenger vehicles into positions of insecurity.

We suppose that, in spite of arguments that have been presented in opposition to the issue of the license in question, the application will be granted, because provinces, greedy for additional revenue from the roads, show little disposition to place this class of traffic under control or to limit the size of the vehicles in use on the highways.

The time must come, however, when something will have to be done in this respect to the end that roads primarily built for light passenger traffic shall not be converted into heavy freight routes and, incidentally, pounded to pieces in the process.

HAZARDS OF A CITY.

THE ACCIDENT TOLL in a city the size of New York is staggering. Accidents cost this community $150,000,000 a year. The home is supposed to be a refuge from hazards, but 1,500 persons were accidentally killed in their homes here last year and 225,000 more were seriously injured. In addition are all the hazards of traffic, industry, business and play, which triples these figures. Most accidents are needless and can be prevented provided the public conscience is touched and the public consciousness aroused.—New York Times.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God: which made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that therein is: which keepeth truth for ever. . . . The Lord openeth the eyes of the blind: the Lord raiseth them that are bowed down: the Lord loveth the righteous.—Ps. cxlvi, 5, 6, 8.

Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O Lord: let thy lovingkindness and thy truth continually preserve me.—Ps. xl, 6, 10, 11.

EASY TO BORROW.

IT is easy to borrow and spend. It is hard to economize and amortize. A debt, as everyone knows, is something that sooner or later has to be paid off. When Mr. Roosevelt took office, in 1933, the national debt stood at about $21,000,000,000. In 1941, when he leaves office, it will stand—by his own estimate, and not even including $5,047,000,000 of contingent liabilities—at more than $44,458,000,000.

He may feel able to talk that off with words about capital outlays and self-liquidating projects. But what about the rest of us, who have to earn the money not only to support ourselves and our families and to pay our own debts but also to support federal and local government and to pay the public debt?

What are we going to use for money, on the reckoning day?—Chicago Daily News.

Now after ten years Mrs. Stotesbury is in the tragic position of having given too much away at one time, and had too much taken away at another.—(New York Post).

LINDSAY MIDGETS BLANK COLTS, 2-0 IN CLOSE-CHECKING TILT

Listless Game By Rivals; Checking Close

LINDSAY, Jan. 21.—1,377 partisan fans saw Lindsay Midgets administer their second defeat on the big Colts of Peterborough, this time by a score of 2-0 in the arena here last night. In a listless game which saw close checking by both teams, Lindsay had an edge in play although Peterborough threatened in the second period and again halfway through the third with ganging plays which tested Turner in the Lindsay nets.

The Petes presented a changed lineup in this game. They had a new goaler, Baker, who took top honors for the victors; their defence appeared stronger than on previous occasions.

One In First.

Lindsay scored one in each of the first and second periods. The opening goal came from the stick of Dart when the Midgets turned on a power play to mark the absence of Berwick who was given a penalty. Baker rose to great heights during this period when he robbed the Midgets of goals consistently. Cook scored the other Lindsay goal in the second period, also on a ganging play while Berwick was offside.

Both teams refused to open up the play with the result the fans were given little excitement.

In the last period body checking became lusty and high sticks were the order. Fights threatened but Referee Clary Rice kept the game reasonably clean. Lindsay played a man short for 4 minutes of the third period but the visitors were unable to engineer a scoring play.

Baker Shines

Baker starred for Peterborough with Parnell and Craig turning in creditable efforts. They found a stiff back-checking Lindsay team and a defence that was willing to trade body checks. On the other hand, the Colts' defence was more than ready to hand out stiff checks when Midget forwards ventured over the line. It was a tidy tussle between two well-made squads. Brennan and Cook starred for Lindsay.

Baker for Colts, Brennan and Cook of Lindsay were presented with prizes following the game by a Lindsay merchant as the three stars picked by a Lindsay sports writer.

The teams:

Peterborough—Goal, Baker; defence, Curtin and Berwick; centre, Parnell; wings, Craig and Pammett; alternates, Wade, Foster, Stewart, McDonald, Howden and Cournyea.

Lindsay—Goal, Turner; defence, Elliot and Fergusoq; centre, Cook; wings, Brennan and English; alternates, Jackson, Dart, Angiers, Leahy and Betts.

Summary:

Penalties—Berwick, Foster.

Second Period

Lindsay—Cook (Brennan) 5.50
Penalties—Berwick, English and Elliott.

Third Period

Penalties—Curtin, English, Ferguson.
Referee—Clary Rice, Whitby.

Suspend Canadians In A.W.A.

C. W. MILLARD HOMER MARTIN

Bringing to a head factional strife that has been raging within the executive board of the union, President Homer Martin of the United Automobile Workers of America, suspended 15 members of the union's executive board of 24, including Charles W. Millard, of Oshawa, Ont., only Canadian representative on the board. The action came after the board had stripped Martin of much of his authority and had called a convention to iron out inter-union problems. The board sought to dismiss several prominent Martin lieutenants.

Spain Paying Fares, 500 Canadians Home

TORONTO, Jan. 21—(CP).—Hhe Spanish Government is paying the fares to Canada of more than 500 Canadians, the last group of men who enlisted from Canada on the Loyalist side in the civil war, according to cabled advices received today by the Friends of the Mackenzie-Papineau Battalion here.

The men are either ready to sail, or have already sailed from France. Many are in need of medical or hospital care. Most need money to pay railway fares in Canada, and the Friends' Association is launching an appeal for several thousands of dollars.

A. A. MacLeod, chairman of the Canadian League for Peace and Democracy, who went to Spain on behalf of the Friends, cables as follows from Barcelona:

"Arrangements complete (for returning Canadians). All men being evacuated. Ship sails probably Wednesday. Returning to France tomorrow. Confident Barcelona has arms to hold on."

England produced only about five per cent of the timber it used last year.

Game Wardens Nab 3 Lunge Poachers

LINDSAY, Jan. 21.—Game Overseers A. Hodson of Lindsay and W. Scott, Kinmount, and S. J. Lyons of Peterborough patrolled all the lakes and streams of the district for evidence of illicit fishing, etc., and placed under arrest three Bobcaygeon men, who will be tried at Peterborough for having three maskinonge in their possession. The fish weighed thirteen, ten and eight pounds respectively. The accused, it is understood, have signed a plea of guilty. The officers had found no holes in the ice until they reached the dam on Nogie's creek in Harvey township.

Overseer Hodgson stated that in company with Overseer Lyons he had found that the men chopped holes in the ice and spread brush and their coats around the hole. They had a little wooden fish on a string and weighted so that it would sink. They bob the fish up and down and this attracts the lunge. When the fish comes up the poachers hook a snare around its body and pull it to the surface. There were marks of the snares on the bodies of the fish seized.

T. H. Stinson, K.C., chairman of the Ross Hospital Board, made a plea before the county council Friday that the annual grant to the institution be increased to $3,000. The hospital had written off accounts to indigent patients totalling $8,500, and the grant was necessary in order that the board might meet its obligations.

Healer Committed

SHERBROOKE, Que., Jan. 21—(CP).—Known throughout the eastern townships district as a "healer", 35-year-old J. A. Desfosses of Sherbrooke was committed Friday to stand trial at the next court of criminal assizes on a charge of having practised witchcraft, magic and fortune telling. Committal for trial was ordered by Judge J. S. Couture after he listened to the evidence of Mrs. Charles Leon Davignon and Mrs. Roch Caron of Montreal who collapsed in the witness box.

Tweed Beaten By Score 8-4 In Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 21. — Playing their best game of the season Campbellford won their third home game by defeating Tweed 8 to 4 in one of the fastest games of the season. The locals were seriously threatened by the Tweed team early in the first period when Prevost, Leal and Cournyea pressed the attack into Campbellford territory, taking an early three to two lead. Robinson, tricky centre player for the winners, opened the scoring early in the initial frame on a solo effort, figuring in three of the four counters during the first twenty minutes. Couch combined with Robinson on the second goal; Phillips got credit for the assist on the third. Blake and Phillips united to give the locals their fourth goal which ended the period 4 to 3. For Tweed Prevost starred, figuring in both of their initial counters, getting one on a pass from Leal and the second following a Campbellford attack in which he coasted in on Turner alone to plant one in the corner. Wager scored on a pass from Cournyea in a nice passing play which gave the victors their third goal.

Better Organized.

During the opening period the visitors seemed better organized than the locals and pressed their attack, testing Turner from every angle. Eight penalties were handed out by Referees Bob Wood and Russel Ayrhart, with Tweed getting six during the final frame as sticks were being carried high. The patrons got their money's worth as a couple of arguments threatened to take violent form. Phillips and Blake, ace forwards of the Campbellford line, twice combined in the second frame to beat Reeves with their combination play. Robinson's tally in the same period put the game on ice with the score at 7 to 3, Tweed being bottled up in their own area unable to score.

J. Cournyea netted the final goal for the visitors on a pass from Leal that completely fooled Turner. The locals were playing a man short at the time as Robinson had been given the gate at the end of the second period for tripping.

Half way through the period Blake and Phillips again tallied to bring the final score 8 to 4, and for the rest of the period wide open hockey was played as Tweed forced the play, but were unable to score. Just as the final bell sounded Phillips planted one in the twine but the goal was disallowed and the game was called at 8 to 4.

Summary:,

First Period.

Campbellford—Robinson 1.40
Campbellford—Robinson, Couch 7.17
Tweed—Prevost, Leal 8.13
Tweed—Prevost 9.25

Mystery Gas Nearly Kills Three Chinese

TORONTO, Jan. 21 (CP).—Police and firemen continued their search today for source of a mysterious gas which filtered into the apartment of a Chinese woman and her two children yesterday and left them near death.

Although an inhalator squad managed to revive them partially, the three, Mrs. Harry Lee, her daughter, May, 18, and her son Grant 14, were still unconscious today at the hospital.

The firemen listed the source of the fumes as unknown. Investigators worked on the theory that they came either from chemicals in a battery factory under the Lee apartment, from a furnace in the cellar or a range.

With the rapid increase of motor vehicles in Bihar, motor accidents are mounting, and the authorities plan special safety measures, including educating the road sense of pedestrians.

Social Services Cost $56,310 United Counties

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 21—Three phases of social service in Northumberland and Durham cost the government in 1938 the total amount of $330,427.38, and their assumption by the province several years ago saved the united counties $6,310.33 last year, according to the report of the counties' Old Age Pensions' Board presented by its secretary, P. Stinson of Millbrook, to the council yesterday.

The cost of old age pensions in Northumberland and Durham last year was $268,069.15 of which the counties' payment would have been $26,806.91 under the former plan of municipal contribution. Pensions for the blind were $4,189.23 and the saving in that branch was $418.90; and Mothers' Allowances cost $58,169 of which the counties would have had to pay 50 per cent or $29,084.50 if the government was still requiring the municipalities to contribute.

Mr. Stinson reported that the Board received 251 applicaons for old age pensions in 1938 and 40 applications for mothers' allowances. There are now between 1300 and 1350 old age pensioners and 22 receiving the blind pension in the united counties. The complete list will not be available until the December pay roll is received from the provincial commission.

Of the old age pensions applications last year 156 were from Northumberland and 95 from Durham.

Some of the details were as follows: Cobourg 21, Campbellford 20, Alnwick 4, Seymour 6, Millbrook 8, Hastings 4, Bowmanville 19, Percy 8, South Monaghan 1, Cavan 8, Manvers 6, Port Hope 19, Cramahe 16, Haldimand 11. And mothers' allowances: Alnwick 1, Cavan 3, Hastings 1, Cobourg 8, Campbellford 3, Port Hope 5, Percy 1. Most of them were from urban municipalities.

$100,000 For Roads

At the concluding session Friday afternoon the council accepted the roads and bridges committee report approving the county road estimated for 1939 involving an expenditure of $110,000, as suggested by R. S. Miller, road superintendent. On the other hand the finance committee cut the total of $100,000, and that was the figure inserted in the bylaw authorizing the expenditure of which $23,200 is for construction and $76,800 for maintenance.

County Roads Commission

The new county roads commission is composed of four members instead of three. They were named yesterday as follows: Reeve C. Calver, Campbellford, three years; Reeve J. C. Cummiskey, Manvers, two years; Reeve R. Innes, Seymour, one year, with Warden Reid a member exofficio.

Reeve Wesley Pacey of Alnwick was Warden Reid's choice for the special property committee, the one appointment that is a prerogative of the Warden.

Reeve P. Gooding was assigned to the reforestation committee as the Northumberland representative, and Deputy-reeve H. G. Woodley of Hope township was named from the Durham members.

The Conservative majority was apparently intact even in this minor appointment. Deputy-reeve H. R. S. Ryan proposed Reeve J. N. Greenaway of Port Hope as the Durham member of the reforestation committee, but Mr. Woodley was elected by the council's division of 25-13. This wasn't precisely a political line up to the last man, because Mr. Ryan as a Port Hope Conservative was reported to be a member of the Tory faction of the council in action Tuesday.

Agricultural Grants

Grants recommended by the agricultural committee were approved as follows: $100 to the Durham Plowmen's Association; $100 to the Northumberland Cheesemakers' Association; $30 to the Quinte Seed Fair. It was decided to join the Ontario Agricultural Council for which the fee is $25, and the chairman, Reeve Herman Morrow, was appointed delegate.

The council is also lining up with the Good Roads Association, and its representatives to the provincial convention are Reeve J. C. Cummiskey, chairman, Warden Reid, and S. R. Miller, road superintendent.

Agricultural Societies

Reeve Chas. Carruthers, chairman, read the report of the finance committee which was adopted without amendment. It granted $50 to the Teachers' Institute in each of three inspectorates in the united counties; also $500 each to the general hospitals in Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville.

Grants to agricultural societies in the twin counties were: Cartwright, $111.49; Durham (Orono) $222.25; Millbrook. $155.65; Port Hope, $132.48; Brighton, $89.77; Percy (Warkworth)) $204.15; Roseneath, neath, $253.38; Seymour (Campbellford), $272.19; Wooler, $57.91.

Sessional Cost $1,013.90

The usual five days' sessional allowance was passed by the council, the aggregate of mileage and daily indemnity for all the members for the week amounting to $1,013.90.

Hastings and Campbellford each received a grant of $100 for the lighting of their bridges over the Trent River. The allowance is $50 a year, and the grants passed yesterday were for 1938 and 1939.

South Monaghan and Hamilton township road proposals were left over until June, and also a needed wig-wag at Burketon.

Miss Helena McMahon of the county road engineer's office was given an increase in salary from $1,000 to $1,200 a year.

$200 For the Blind

The finance committee recommended that the council renew its membership in the Ontario Municipal Association, and Warden Reid and Major E. L. Mac..achtan, clerk and treasurer, were named delegates.

The council granted $200 to the Canadian Institute for the Blind, and $25 each to the Northumberland and Durham Trustees' Associations.

Support Protest

Deputy-reeve H. R. S. Ryans of Port Hope, a new member, and chairman of the legislation and bylaws committee, presented his first report yesterdy. He is a young lawyer in Port Hope and gives every evidence of becoming a valuable member of the council. His committee advised endorsement of an Essex county resolution protesting against the attitude of the Commissioner of Agricultural Loans. The Commissioner contends that in any case of tax arrears on any property on which he holds a loan or that has been taken over for the mortgage he is not to pay any penalties. The Ryan committee demands that the commissioner should be placed in the same position as any other property owner.

The committee went beyond the Essex resolution and asked that clerks of all minor municipalities be notified by the Commissioner of all loans outstanding in those municipalities. Also that the Farm Loan Board notify local clerks of any loans granted in these municipalities instead of sending the notices to the county clerk.

Wally Hammond Is Luckiest Of Captains Has Won Toss Eight Consecutive Times

DURBAN, South Africa, Jan. 21 (CP Cable)—Wally Hammond is one of the luckiest captains—if not the luckiest—in the history of first-class cricket. Yesterday he won the toss for the eighth consecutive time in international cricket to give England first knock in the third test match with South Africa.

The famous Gloucestershire player was appointed England's skipper prior to the five-game test series against Australia in England last summer. In each match he proved a better guesser than Don Bradman and he has beaten Alan Melville on the call in the first three tests of the current campaign in South Africa.

Winning the toss in cricket possibly means more to a team than in any other sports. With several days' play ahead the winning skipper gets the jump by batting first if the wicket is in good condition. If it is favorable to his brand of bowling he sends the other fellow to the wickets. But a great many other factors have to be considered. The winning captain has to think of the weather, the nature of the pitch and the attacking power of his opponents.

But if Hammond has been lucky his English colleagues have not been so fortunate. Of the seven matches played under his captaincy five have been drawn, Australia won one and England one. In fact a stalemate all round.

Women Approve Ontario's Plea

WINNIPEG, Jan. 21 (CP)—Edith McKenzie of Winnipeg, president of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, announced last night approval by mail vote of an Ontario resolution for branch voting strength in proportion to branch registration in the federation.

The resolution was placed before the annual meeting in Winnipeg last November and the mail vote taken. Two weeks ago Irene Wall of Montreal, national secretary announced the vote resulted in a tie and that the next move was in the hands of Ontario.

Miss McKenzie said the deadlock was broken by Saskatchewan's vote recorded by Edith Lewis of Saskatoon, secretary of the Saskatchewan branch. The president said although Saskatchewan had been in arrears in fees the fees were waived at the last annual meeting and she ruled them eligible to vote.

"In any event when a tie exists according to parliamentary procedure the casting vote is in the hands of the president," Miss McKenzie said.

Previously each branch had three votes. Now each branch will have three votes for the first 300 athletes registered with it, one vote for the next 200, one for the next 400 and one for the succeeding 400 with a maximum of six votes. Registration will be on the basis of a 25-cent fee for each card.

Canoe Company Games Are Hard-Fought

The Peterborough Canoe Co. shop hockey league swung into action the other night at All Saints' rink with two fast, clean tilts on tap. The Hurons lost to the Snow boys by a 4-2 score and the Speeders copped a 3-2 nod over the Prospectors. Hurons went good but lacked the punch to score much on Hunter. Snow Boys' heavy checking held their rivals. Richardson, Ego, Butler and Jones were the Snow Boys' scorers, with Thompson getting the Huron goals.

The fast Prospectors were not as likely as a week ago, but Johnson and Boulter played standout games. Both scored a goal. The Speeders played heads-up hockey throughout to earn the nod. G. Stenner, Willshaw, and Clancy doing their counting. It was a fast, clean scrap with nice backchecking shown. The teams:

Snow Boys.—Goal, Hunter; defence, Richardson, McCabe; centre, Ego; wings, Jones, Butler; subs, O'Connor.

Hurons.—Goal, Bullied; defence, Miller, Doughty; centre, M. Hunter; wings, Thompson, Reader; subs., Miller, Mongraw.

MONARCHS DROP A 6-5 JUNIOR PUCK JOUST TO BOWMANVILLE

Local Juniors Fight Hard In Lively Tilt

Monarchs, Peterborough's junior C entry, were nosed out 6 to 5 in a game packed full of excitement at Brock street rink Friday night, falling before the Bowmanville Combines, but the game was closer than a night in the tropics.

Down two goals at the end of the first period, the battling Monarchs climbed up on even terms in the second session only to slip two notches back in the last couple of minutes of the period. Bowmanville got the first goal of the last chapter to go three up but the Peterborough youngsters staged a fighting finish and were only a counter behind and roaring round the Bowmanville net when the final bell rang.

The Petes lost mainly because of their inability to stop Depew the visitors first string centre man who scored four of his team's six goals. Bowmanville were better opportunists than the Monarchs and while they had fewer scoring chances, cashed in on them better. It was a game however that could easily have gone a goal or two the other way and the losers earned brackets by the fight they threw into their play.

Outstanding Star

Depew was of course the outstanding Bowmanville star with Bird, Witheridge and March always useful. Hooper, who finished the game in the nets after Crawford ,the starting goalie, pulled a ligament in his knee early in the second period, rose to great heights in the last period when the Monarchs outplayed the visitors by a large margin. Hooper was clumsy-looking but he made stop after stop. Jack Morrison, the Monarchs' goalie, also was one of the stars of the night, turning back Bowmanville attack time after time, especially in the second session. Rochetta, Connolly, Nicholls and Beggs looked the best of the rest.

Visitors Score First

Bowmanville got the only two goals of the first period. Bird started them on their way to victory when he blazed a nice shot past Morrison from the side after taking a pass from Wiseman. Depew got the first of his four goals shortly after, scoring on a rebound from March's shot. It looked as if Referee Johnnie Sabatino might have got an assist on the play too because Depew apparently beat the puck carrier over the blue line. From then on the Monarchs pressed and did everything but score, hitting the post twice.

Early in the second period Crawford twisted his knee in dropping to make a stop and he had to retire in favor of Hooper, the game being held up for 15 minutes. When play was resumed Connolly scored the Monarchs' first goal when he split the B's defence and waltzed in to beat Hooper at close range. Rochetta went in alone and tied up the score by tapping a shot past Hooper on the short side.

Monarchs continued to carry the play but Hooper held them out and it was finally Bowmanville who scored, Depew getting his second goal when he slapped home a March pass from behind the net. Witheridge scored the visitors' fourth counter from a face-off near the Monarch's net just ten second before the period ended.

A Hectic Period

Depew scored for Bowmanville early in the last period on a pass from March but the Monarchs kept fighting back and were finally rewarded when Nicholls scored after Cauley had made the play for the goal. When Rochetta took Connolly's pass and went in close to hoist a shot over Hooper's shoulder the Monarchs were only a goal down and coming strong. However Depew broke away for his fourth goal and saved the day for his team. The Petes did come back with another counter, enabling Rochetta to do the hat trick but there was only a matter of seconds left and the fighting Monarchs could not collect the equalizer. There were a flock of penalties in the final period, Giardino and McMullen twice getting the gate for fighting.

The teams and summary:

Bowmanville: Goal, Crawford, Hooper; defence, Ashton, Nicholls; centre, Depew; wings, March, Witheridge; subs, Ward, Mackey, Bird, Wiseman, McMullen.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Puck fans might see a good scrap up in Lakefield tonight when the Legionnaires mix it with Newmarket. It is an O.H.A. intermediate "B" fixture and these clubs appear pretty well matched. Hockey fans crowded the Lakefield arena last game and will no doubt fill the place again this eve. Coach Mucker Legros' gang play a pleasing brand of hockey and keep punching as long as they're on the frozen aqua. Since most of the guys—like Whitton, Chittick, Jewell, Blewett, Burton, O'Leary, etc.—have performed in Peterborough plenty of times, there is much local interest in the team, too. Probably Lou LeBarr, who has been handing out the penalties in the District Puck Loop around Omemee this winter, will handle the fray tonight.

* * * * * *

And just as a reminder, there will be an O.H.A. junior joust here Monday night at 8.30 in the Brock, an all-local affair. Yep, the Monarchs and Colts tear into each other—and that ought to result in plenty of fun and fury for the folks who pay the freight. Dunno at this writing how the junior teams did last night—we'll check it shortly—but regardless of those games, Pete Vitarelli's bunch of battlers and Bill Jackson's husky crew will dish up a real tussle here Monday. And puck fans should keep the date open for this game.

* * * * * *

Fans Like These Tilts

Over 1,700 excited customers in the Belleville arena last e'en saw the Trenton Fliers nudge out a 5-4 decision over the senior "B" Petes in another thriller. These two teams seem to have it rehearsed the last three seasons, the way they dish up dandies every time they collide. And the fans here and in Belleville know this, and come out in hordes for their games. It was another redhot number, oodles of speed and blood-tinkling moments, with the Petes earning the win—but they payoff on results. A tough one to lose, and it gives the Airmen a narrow lead for first place with the Petes tucked in the place position and the Redmen running to show—as race parlance hath it. The Petes go to Belleville again Monday —and the missus won't see much of us these days!—to play the Redmen, with the Thomas team back here next Friday.

* * * * * *

The Petes outplayed the Fliers by a good margin in the first and third periods, but penalties and poor clearing by the locals gave 'em two soft ones on breakaways in the second. Even at that, the Petes should have won on their chances and their margin on shots on goal, but they had no luck and not enough finish in close. They worked like Trojans, goodness knows, and we can't criticize them much. It was a tight fit for the Fliers. The latter played a careful game, waiting for breaks, and being lucky to gain the nod at the end. Gibson had to play a five-star game in the cord cage to come through on top. He and Lecompte, who was brilliant.

Boys All Work Hard

McNabb did a noble job in the Buckland tepee, and had little or no chance on those that beat him. He got a bang on the back of his head once and was hors de combat for a time. Gray didn't make the trip, having a cracked rib. The defence looked pretty fair—and someone remarked that a defence can't do much these days what with streamlined speedy hockey and forward passes. Not much chance to hit 'em on a large surface. The first line looked best but muffed quite a few chances, too, and all the front line fellows turned in a neat chore. Their ganging attack, though, isn't the best in the business—at least so far. However, the season is barely half over and all they have to do is eliminate Belleville and they'll be an even-stephen choice in group playoffs. We think they can trim the Trentons almost every game, yessir!

* * * * * *

Our Colts bowed in Lindsay to the Midgets by a 2-0 count last p.m. before 1,377 bored customers—the pace being slow and the checking closer than Friday to Thursday. The big Midgets, who are rated "C" in the O.H.A. and should be about a "B¼" squad, earned their second straight win over the Colts—and we gotta hand it to 'em. They play good hockey. But the Colts played a better game, we are told, than their last attempt—quite a bit better—with a smarter display of puckery. And they'll come along okey-doke about the time they're tossed in against Oshawa in playdowns. It rather looks like Baker earned all the acclaim for the Jackson gang last eve, being eight degrees above brilliant at times. Penalties for the Petes gave their rivals both goals. Lindsay will be harder to stop on the "C" championship trail than an unsavory rumor—just watch 'em.

Monarchs Nosed Out

To continue Peterborough's perfect puck average, in reverse, for last night, our Monarchs were nosed out in a junior jamboree by the big Bowmanville boys, 6 to 5, at the Brock. A good game, too, we hear, before a slim crowd. Monarchs spotted their opponents an early lead and fought back bitterly, but with futile results, to the very end. A rousing attack in the late stages nearly sewed it up for 'em, but "nearly" doesn't count. The winners cashed in better on fewer chances than the flashy locals, with DePew scoring four of their goals. Morrison went oke in the cord cottage, with Rochetta, Connelly, Beggs and Nicholls good. A flock of penalties and a pair of scraps by Giardino and McMullen as a hangover from the previous clash by these battling rivals.

* * * * * *

As a clean sweep for local losses on the p.m., our St. Peter's Juveniles opened their O.J.H.A. season in Lakefield last night by grabbing the slimmer side of an 8-7 count. But it was a nifty overtime match, and the Saints did all right for their starting tussle. Lakefield played a good game of hockey to earn the duke, and this young loop ought to provide some neat ice frays ere playoff time. Two juvenile jousts are billed for Monday, Lakefield being at Campbellford while Lindsay tackles St. Peter's squad in the Lakefield rink.

Dave Trottier Going To Pittsburgh Hornets To Replace Giesebrecht Who Joins Wings

DETROIT, Jan. 21 (CP)—Dave Trottier will be sent to the Detroit Red Wings farm team, the Pittsburgh Hornets in the International American League for a while, Manager Jack Adams of the National Hockey League club said today. Gus Giesebrecht will play tonight in Pittsburgh, but will be back Sunday night for the Wings game with Boston Bruins.

Trottier volunteered to join the minor league club as Giesebrecht has been the scoring hero of the last two Wings victories and the Wings needed a centre player more than a winger, since Alex Motter, a centre, still is limping.

Adams said Trottier, a former Montreal Maroon player who joined the Wings in mid-season, would rejoin the club later in the season.

Stewart Line Leads League With 25 Goals

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Jan. 21—Time has a habit of dulling the effectiveness of athletes, but it seems to have reached a stalemate as far as the most prodigious gum-chewer of them all—big Nels Stewart—is concerned. The man with as many nicknames as a cat has lives just seems to go on and on.

It was 15 years ago that a hefty young chap reported to Montreal Maroons, then in their second season in the National Hockey league. The big fellow didn't skate very fast, did about as much backchecking as the stick boy, but he led the league in scoring that season as the Maroons won the world championship.

Maroons are no longer in the league, for they disbanded after last season due to financial difficulties, but Big Sam, one of the favorite names by which Stewart is known, still is. Still shuffling about at the same slow gait, still content to regard backchecking as a chore to be overlooked, Sam has been up among the scoring leaders every year.

15 Seasons of Play

Those 15 seasons, during which he saw service first with Maroons, then Boston Bruins and finally to New York Americans, he has compiled the highest goal total ever recorded by anyone in the N.H.L. His lifetime total now stands at 311 goals.

So it's not surprising to report today, with the present N.H.L. a little more than half over and with Americans in third place, that Stewart and his linemates, little Eddie Wiseman and Tommy (Cowboy) Anderson, form one of the most potent strings in the league.

In fact, the 57 scoring points they have compiled so far place them in a first place tie with the crack New York Rangers line of Wilbur Hiller Phil Watson and Bryan Hextall. But to keep the records straight it must be note dthat Stewart and company have scored 25 goals, to lead the league in this respect as a line, while the Ranger trio has 24.

At this stage only five players in the league have ten goals or better, and Stewart is one of them with an even 10. Johnny Gottselig of Chicago, Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens and Alex Shibicky of Rangers have 11, while Hextall is tied with Stewart.

But the tie between these lines is liable to be broken this weekend, as the Americans swing into action tonight against Toronto Maple Leafs in the only Saturday game and tomorrow night against Chicago Black Hawks. The Rangers play Montreal Canadiens, while in the remaining contest Boston Bruins engage Detroit Red Wings.

Colts To Play Monarchs Here

An all-local O.H.A. junior hockey game is listed for here on Monday evening at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink when the local Monarchs and Peterborough Colts clash in a scheduled fixture. It will be the second meeting of these teams this season, and considerable rivalry is apparent between the under-age outfits. It promises to be a typical junior slambang session, and should draw a good crowd of fans—followers of both local teams.

The last meeting of these teams saw the Colts cop the duke, but the Monarchs have improved since then and claim they can now hold their own with the heavier Colts on a good sheet of ice. Some idea of how the teams are going may be had from reading the results of last night's O.H.A. tilts, the Bowmanville-Monarchs' joust here and the Colts-Midgets fray in Lindsay. But regardless of past performances, the belt will be off when the two Peterborough crews mix it in the Brock on Monday night.

Red Aces Win 1-0 In Bantam Tussle

Red Aces nosed out a 1-0 bantam victory over St. Peter's in a nifty South-end Puck Loop tilt on Thursday at the Sacred Heart Rink. The only counter of the contest came in the middle chukker, when White bulged the hemp on a neat effort, and Freeman all turned in a good performance in the tight tilt. The teams:

Red Aces — Goal, Caravaggie; defence, Williams, Downer; centre, Dafoe; wings, White Darrel; subs, Goodman, Styles, Moscrop, Carson.

St. Peter's. — Goal, Kennedy; defence, Freeman, Murphy; centre, Quigley; wings, Jones, Fallan; subs, Ryans, Slaughter, Monahan, O'Hearn.

Referee—E. Joba.

Goodyears Held To 6-4 Score On Toronto Ice

TORONTO, Jan. 21 (CP)—It's not likely the pack will catch Toronto Goodyears, league leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association's senior "A" division, before the end of the schedule Feb. 7, but Goodyears, league champions last season, are going to have some tough old battles in the circuit playoffs.

Prophecy of critics that the opposition would improve more than Goodyears as the season progressed appeared today to be well founded. The withering Toronto pace has been slowed up of late by determined opposition, although the titlists yet have to lose a game this winter.

Up to the middle of last month Goodyears won all their tilts by sizeable margins. They since have been tied four times and several other games have been mighty close.

Last night St. Catharines, fifth-place occupants of the six-team league, stepped into Goodyears on Toronto ice and, although they lost 6-4, made things plenty tough for their haughty opposition.

A crowd of 2,500 cheered the Chiefs as they swept through the Toronto rearguard for two goals in the last three minutes of play. It might have been a St. Kitts' victory had they started their drive just a bit sooner.

Meanwhile, at Niagara Falls, ancient rivals failed to reach a decision when the home-town Brights and Port Colborne Sailors battled to a 3-3 overtime draw. Referee Happy Day waved eight Sailors and nine Brights to the penalty box to preserve order in the rough going.

Results increased Toronto's lead to nine points over the 2nd-place Oshawa club who have a total of 19. Two points behind are the Sailors with Niagara Falls in the fourth slot.

St. Catharines and Toronto battled without a score in the opening frame but Goodyears unsheathed their scoring sticks in the second to run up a 4-1 advantage. The losers outscored Toronto 3-1 in the final frame.

Toronto scorers were Peanuts O'Flaherty, Eddie King and Hank Goldup, each with two tallies. Bobbie Pinder, Jack Boyd, Chuck Millman and Billy Cooper scored for St. Kitts.

The Sailors and the Brights were tied 2-2 at the end of the first period and 3-3 at the finish of the second. There was no score in the third and the extra session.

Veterans accounted for the Port goals with Doug Runions punching in two and George Wade the other. Young Mason, former Guelph junior, shot two Niagara scores and C. Morrison the other.

Maroons Swamp Maple Leafs

Maroons swamped Maple Leafs by a 9-1 score on Thursday in an Intermediate South-end Hockey League game at the Sacred Heart Rink. The winners had far too much punch for their rivals at. looked better in every heat. Johnston and Adamson scored in the first stanza, but Maroons had an edge. They got four next time out with Johnston getting two, Padgett one, and Hawks one. Padgett got two more in the third and Adamson one. Jobe counted for the losers. The two Johnstons, Rennie and M. Jobe were outstanding, while Padgett also packed a punch. The teams:

Maroons — Goal, McNabb; defence, Rennie, Adamson; centre, Johnston; wings, Padgett, Watkins; subs., Hawks, Leggitt.

Leafs — Goal, Neary; defence, Todd, Riel; centre, Shea; wings, Johnston, M. Jobe; subs, E. Jobe, Norris, O'Brien.

Referee—C. Rivard.

HOW TO SKI

By FRITZ LOOSLI
Instructor Toronto Ski Club

Testing the down-pull binding. This position is too exaggerated for downhill running, but a good position to assist in gaining confidence in forward lean.

COMPETITIVE SKIING

Many skiers taking up competitive skiing do not realize what it takes to compete successfully. Downhill and slalom racing, seemingly effortless, require physical as well as mental ability, having reached such a high technical standard that it is useless for a daring skier to think it is unnecessary to have good form to win. The best runners in Europe, and on this continent, are coached by experts to keep in form and improve their technique wherever possible.

Here are a few common faults found in many skiers who take up competitive sking: poor knowledge of the basic principles of the elementary turns, snowplows, stem and christiania turns; lack of control when reaching a certain speed, and a desire to learn high speed running and tempo turns without first mastering the ABC's.

Get the Right Attitude

Good racing tactics are as necessary as good running technique and stamina. Once a skier has started the race, his mental attitude should be "desire of speed" and not "fear of a fall", and with this in mind his thoughts should be in advance of his running.

In a long radius turn keep skis as parallel as possible, avoiding side friction and skidding. If the skis start bouncing, relax edging, keeping most weight on the outer ski during the full turn. This will oblige you to keep the body leaning outward, and riding the skis without side pressure, therefore increasing the speed during the turn. When the turn is half completed, set your mind on the next move, visualize the next turn to avoid costly hesitation.

There is a whisper that the Orange men are out to squeeze the Lemon.

No reports extraordinary have been received this week, but we believed that the Easy Aces will be heavy contenders for the prize list, and we wish them al lthe luck. The Fighting Macs just don't seem to be able to get going, although they promised to make good at the start

The Unlucky Thirteen has not kept its bad name so far, as it looks like that team will be in among the first six at the end of the trail.

The pace-setters, 4, 14 and 8, are sure going it neck and neck.

Up to the present No. 4 has only lost one single game at home and split six games away, but has not played one drawn game; No. 8 has two games, one at home and one away, where they only garnished one point to their credit.

No. 14 lost only two double headers, that being to the ring-leading No. 4 and their near rivals No. 8; whilst they played two drawn games with 9 and 10.

In all, they seem just a little weaker than No. 4 and 8, but may return the compliments in the second meeting.

The following games will be scheduled for the week of January 30.—1, 13; 2, 10; 4, 5; 7, 3; 8, 5; 9, 14; 10, 6; 11, 12; 15, 8; 16, 17.

P.C.I. Squads Cop Two Wins Over Port Hopers

P.C.I. Senior Girls and Junior Boys took twin victories over hard-fighting Port Hope Squads last night in the Lakeshore town, before a small gallery of fans. The Senior Girls squad made it two straight, to move into first place in their group, beating out the home team 22-16, while the Craig-coached Junior Boys ran wild to swamp Port Hope's junior lads 49-10 in their league opener.

The Senior Girls fought on almost even terms with the Port Hope entry, a six point lead that they gained in the opening half being the winning margin, but the Junior Boys made it a run-away and swamped the Blue and White, coasting home to an easy victory.

The Garnet and Grey Senior Girls got away to a slow start and the teams were dead-locked at the quarter mark 6-all, but P.C.I. out-scored the losers 5-0 in the second quarter and this five points proved to be enough to win. P.C.I. cashed in on their free throws making three out of five, while not commiting a single foul themselves and that three points alone was half the margin of victory. P.H.S. had as many or more scoring chances as the winners but their shooting was ineffective under the basket and P.C.I., once more lead by Elfie Saunders with 16 points were more dangerous offensively and checked hard. Elfie Saunders, Joan Ottewell and Marion Juby starred for P.C.I. and Marjory Keeler and Ruth Trott were best for the losers.

The teams:

Port Hope H.S.—R. Allison (2), R. Trott (4), B. Cotter (4), M. Keller (6) F. Hogson, C. Statler, A. Smith, M. Donet.

Peterborough C.V.S.—E. Saunders (16), R. Dalliday, J. Ottewell, J. Coleman, M. Juby (4), E. Craig (2), D. Glover, A. Richardson, R. Linden.

Referee—A. Armstrong.

Juniors Win.

Port Hope's Junior Boys scored the opening basket but that's all the scoring the home team did in the first 15 minutes and at the quarter mark it was P.C.I. 18, P.H.S. 2, and from that point on the visitors merely coasted being in no danger at any time. They had little or no trouble beating the faltering Port Hope defense and checked hard enough and close enough to keep the losers from catching up.

At the half it was 27-4 and though for a few moments again at the start of the second half it looked as if the home team was making a come-back P.C.I. once again began to run it up and finally won going away 49-10. P.C.I. made five out of 16 foul shots and only had three fouls called against them to have a big margin in this department. Gillespie and Scott and Rogow starred for P.C.I. and Cotter and Brown were best for the losers.

The teams.

P.C.I.—Centre, Moore (12), forwards, Amys (9), Gillespie (14), guards, Rogow (4), Scott (4), subs, Kay, Dundas (4), Hall (2).

P.H.H.S.—Centre, Brown (4), forwards, Thompson, Dayman (2), guards, Austin (2), Smith, subs, Gould, Newton, Cotter (2), Hodgson, Warburton, Staples.

Referee, E. E. Eastman, Port Hope, Umpire, E. Tedford, Port Hope.

Heclas Win 25-17 Over P.C.I. Team

Heclas of the Senior City League took a 25-17 win over P.C.I.'s Senior Lakeshore Boys' squad in an exhibition fray before a fair crowd of fans last night in the school gym.

It was a good game with play fast and hard and checking fairly close although only 11 fouls were called, but two of which were on the winners. Hecla however only cashed in on three of their chances with the losers counting once. Cutting and Johnson led P.C.I. while Turner and Sedgewick were best for the City League squad.

The teams:

Hecla—Ascott, Turner (5), Sedgewick (9), Dougherty (9), West (2), Dyer.

P.C.I.—Johnston, Gillespie (1), B. Ferguson, Cutting (8), Moorhead (4), W. Ferguson, Taylor (2), Harle (2).

Referee—Doctor Worton.

TRENTON FLIERS NOSE OUT PETES, 5-4 IN A SENIOR PUCK FRAY

Locals Outplay The Airmen Over Most Of The Route But Muff Chances To Score

Senior "B" group standing:

Team	P	W	L
Fliers	3	2	1
Petes	4	2	2
Belleville	3	1	2

Trenton Fliers yanked out a 5-4 verdict over the Petes before 1700 roaring fans last evening in Belleville. It gave the Airmen top position in the group, and revenge for their 7-5 defeat here last Wednesday night. Belleville Redmen are at home to the Petes Monday and here Friday.

Last night's tilt was as thrilling as the overtime senior scrap here, both clubs turning on the heat all the goal. Each eam had a o of .... way—with the Fliers outlucking the locals to cop the nod by the odd goal. Each team had a lot of supporters in the stand, and the game was exciting but quite clean all the way through.

The Petes outplayed Trenton by a good margin, having far more shots on net and hemming the homesters in their own area for minutes at a time. But the Petes muffed many chances through poor luck and also through lack of finish at close range, whereas the R.C.A.F. gang played a canny style, waiting for the breaks and pouncing fast when they had the chance. The score was 1-1 in the first period and 4-2 for the Fliers going into the third stanza. It was a fast, rousing tussle throughout.

Little Chance

McNabb had no chance to save on the goals that beat him, all being right in on him. The defence of Crowe, McNulty and Weir turned in a good performance over most of the route, and the two forward lines for the Buckland crew worked hard. They were somewhat disorganized in spots and muffed many nice chances when in good scoring position, and their ganging attacks lacked power. Kingdon looked good up front, with Starr effective at times, and Tompkins showing a lot of speed, while Gratton was probably the most consistent of the second line. Lecompte shone all night for the Fliers, with Gibson almost unbeatable, and McNeeley also one of the main factors in the Airmen's win.

The Petes looked somewhat better in the first part of the fast first frame, with Nicholls scoring early on Creighton's pass around defence. Weir came close a minute later and then a Kingdon-Starr try almost netted the disc. Play swept from end to end on fast passing rushes as the fans yelled. Kingdon hit the post on a try and an argument arose, with the Fliers' goal-judge being changed, some of the Petes claiming it was a score. McNabb made a neat save and a Creighton-McNulty try was dangerous. Coughlin was chased for a trip and the Fliers pressed but did no damage. Lecompe made McNabb dive to save and then Weir got the air for boarding. They ganged up hotly but all were back when Lecompe tallied at close range on assists from Cook and Legris. McNabb was hurt on the play at the bell.

Hold Their Own

The Petes held their own in the second on play but were outscored 3-1 with the Fliers proving better opportunists, and the Petes practically giving them two on breakaways. Brackenbury earned one early on Baldwin's pass at the goal's threshold, and Creighton was robbed by Gibson a bit later. Todd went off for tripping and five forwards for the visitors came out. Starr tried a penalty shot but it was picked off. Then McNeeley broke away on poor clearing and scored. Todd got the gate again for tripping and the Petes pressed hotly once more. But again McNeeley broke loose from a local forward and scored in close. Gratton got that one back a half-minute later on an assist from Nicholls. The Petes had an edge at the gong but couldn't score.

Kingdon made Gibson hot in the third and Weir also pulled a fine rush. McNeeley was waved away for hooking and five Petes pressed. Lecompte got it for tripping and they were short two men for a minute but the Petes couldn't click on a power play, Gibson going good. Lecompte returned to score in close with Johnston and Brackenbury doing a checker-board move for him. Creighton's shot outside defence beat Gibson right after. Todd got the thumb for tripping and McNeeley made McNabb turn inside out to save on a breakaway. The Petes ganged up hard and Starr scored on a neat forward pass from Coughlin. Later, with the Fliers back, they had to shoot down the ice as the Petes tore in hard on dangerous thrusts, but Gibson booted them out the last few minutes.

Madcap Maxie Next

Brightest new star on the heavyweight boxing horizon at the moment is Lou Nova, ABOVE, young Californian, whose victory over Tommy Farr not so long ago moved him to the forefront in the somewhat mediocre challenging class. His next obstacle will be Max Baer, former champ, and a fellow member of the "Tommy Farr Conquerors club." Baer and Nova have signed to meet in Yankee Stadium, N.Y., on May 25.

The teams:

Petes: Goal, McNabb; defence, Crowe and McNulty; centre, Kingdon; wings, Starr and Tompkins; alternates, Creighton, Nicholls, Gratton, Coughlin and Weir.

Fliers: Goal, Gibson; defence, Todd and Cook; centre, Brackenbiry; wings, Baldwin and Johnston; alternates, Legris, Lecompte, McNeeley, Albert and Richardson.

Lakefield Team Wins 8-7 From St. Peter's

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 21.—Lakefield's O.J.HA.. team wrung an 8 to 7 victory from St. Peter's Juvenile O.H.A. squad (of Peterborough) in a close battle fought out in the Lakefield rink on Friday evening. It took 10 minutes of overtime to settle the dispute with the score at the end of the third period standing at seven all. It was the first game of the season for both teams.

The local lads took the first period without any trouble when they scored three times to blank the visitors. E. Jewell on Lakefield's left wing counted first on an assist from Bullock at centre. Then Bob Shearer scored on a pass from Clark and Jewell assisted by Bullock, passed in a third counter. Windsor (Lakefield goalie) made a nice save in this period when Allan Mason, St. Peter's right wing man made a fast shot from just over the blue line. Windsor caught the puck in mid-air to prevent a score.

Petes Score Four In Second.

In the second, the Petes rallied to push in four counters in rapid succession. Henwood made three of these and Scriver was responsible for the fourth. Then Birch scored for Lakefield and a long shot by Jewell from just over the blue line found the net to end the period with Lakefield leading for the second time. Each team got one penalty in this period, Birch being put off first for boarding.

St. Peter's started the scoring in the third with a quick goal in the first five minutes to tie the count; a second counter immediately afterwards gave the Petes the large end of a 6-5 score. At this point a fight, involving both teams earned a penalty apiece, with Birch taking the rap for Lakefield. St. Peter's broke the draw to make it 7-6 and Jewell staved off a St. Peter's victory when he tallied just before the bell rang. The goals in this period were made for St. Peter's by Lewis, Macknas, and Scriver.

Two five-minute periods of overtime were played with the winning goal coming in the second period. Mark Bullock who played a hard game all evening got credit for the winning counter—his second goal of the evening. He is credited also with two assists. Jewell who netted four counters played a consistent game as did Pearson on right wing and Chas. Birch on defence. B. Arthurs made a couple of nice plays for the Lakefielders.

For St. Peters, Hemwood and Scriver stood out.

The line-up:

St. Peter's—Elliott, goal; Scriver and Crary, defence; Henwood, center; Corkery, left wing; Garvey, right wing; Mason, Lewis, Easson, Macknas and O'Heron, subs.

Lakefield—C. Windsor, goal; C. Johnston and C. Birch, defence; M. Mullock, E. Jewell and C. Pearson, forwards; B. Arthurs, B. McFadden, B. Clark and B. Shearer, subs.

Referee, Jarry Connoly.

Havelock Drops School Tilt To Norwood 5-4

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 21.—Norwood High School's hockey squad squeezed out a win last night over the Havelock High School team at the Norwood arena, defeating the latter by the close score of 5-4. This is the local's second straight loss in the interscholastic schedule, both only by a one-goal margin.

"Mickey" Puffer, high-scoring Norwood defenseman, again starred for his team with four goals to his credit. Gill, Stevenson, Morris and Goalie Bongard also turned in a good chore for the Norwood boys.

"Joe" Peters in the Havelock nets played a marvellous game, having no chance however on the one's that got past. Sloppy clearing by his teammates was responsible for most of these. McMullen, McCutcheon, Pollock and Jamieson were most effective with Haggerty doing well on defense.

Buchanan notched the first goal of the game, putting Havelock into an early lead, when he drove home McMullen's rebound, on a nice play by the latter. McCutcheon put Havelock two goals ahead, notching a nice one on Pollock's pass-out. With a minute left in the period, Puffer broke through to get Norwood's initial counter.

Shortly after the start of the second, Puffer tallied unassisted to end this stanza with the score tied 2-2.

The locals went into the lead for the second time on McMullen's solo, six minutes in the third, Pollock notching their fourth and last of the evening, on McCutcheon's pass. In a comfortable two-goal lead, Haggerty spoiled Havelock's chances drawing a penalty for boarding Morris, with ten minutes to go in the final frame. Applying the pressure with the one-man advantage, Puffer scored first, Gill assisting, and then Gill tied it up, scoring with a sizzling shot, right from the face-off.

Disallowing a goal by McCutcheon on an offside, Pollock chose to argue the point with Referee Ennis, and drew a ten-minute misconduct, depriving the team of his services for the rest of the game. Fighting hard for the winning tally, Puffer with less than a minute to go, picked up the puck in the Havelock defense area, and drove it past Peters through a maze of player's sticks and legs.

The teams:

Norwood: Goal, Bongard; defense, Puffer, Morris; centre, Stevenson; wings, Sargent, Buck alternates, Gill, Petticrew, Heffernan, Lobb, Warr.

Havelock: Goal, Peters; defense, Haggerty, Williams; centre, Pollock; wings, Jamieson, McCutcheon; alternates, Griffith, McMullen, Buchanan, McLauchlin.

Referee—R. Ennis, Norwood.

First Period

Havelock—Buchanan (McMullen) 8.11
Havelock—McCutcheon (Pollock) 8.25
Norwood—Puffer 8.27
Penalties—McLauchlin.

Second Period

Norwood—Puffer 8.54
Penalties—Warr, Haggerty.

Third Period

Havelock—McMullen 9.16
Havelock—Pollock (McCutcheon) 9.19
Norwood—Puffer (Gill) 9.22

No Manager Predicting Knockout For Louis When He Meets Champ Of Light Heavies

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (AP) — Shrewd old-timers of the boxing clan are nearly unanimous in predicting John Henry Lewis will give Champion Joe Louis a real run for his money next Wednesday night and still be throwing leather at the end of 15 rounds.

Not a single manager or former manager has come out flat-footed and predicted a knockout for the champion. They admit the possibility, of course, but their best guess is that John Henry, the finest boxer among the big men, will go the route and make a more even thing of it than Tommy Farr did summer before last.

Even John Roxborough, co-manager of Joe, has not gone out on a limb this time. He is confident Joe will keep his title, but gives the impression he would be glad to settle for a decision victory.

Albions Smash Losing Streak Beat Donegal 3-2

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 21.—Going into overtime, the Havelock "Albions" broke their losing streak last night at the local rink, when they defeated the Donegal hockey squad, in a regular East Peterborough Rural League feature, by a 3-2 score. The game was rather slow due to the condition of the ice, and the players had difficulty controlling the puck. Five penalties were handed out during the game, all of them to the visitors.

Havelock's first line of E. Ellis, Gordon, and F. Ellis, went best for the locals, with Hamilton on defense and Hill in goal turning in a good game. Goalie O'Brien, Starke, Stevenson and McGee went best for the vistiors.

Donegal scored first, McGee tallying early in the initial period. E. Ellis notched one for the Albions to even it up before the end of this frame. There was no scoring in the second and the teams began the third stanza with the score stil ltied 1-1. Stevenson again placed Donegal in the lead only to have Hamilton retaliate for the Albions, the teams being deadlocked at the end of regulation time. Gordon scored the winning goal in the first overtime session with Hamilton getting the assist honors.

The teams:

Donegal: Goal, O'Brien; defense, Buchanan, Baker; centre, Starke; wings, E. Stevenson, McGee; alternates, Lochhead, Bedore, Pearce, Buck.

Students Given Course In Co-operation

DOURO, Jan. 21.— New ground was broken in this county when the U.F.O. branch, with Peterborough city as centre, made it possible for two young farmers to take the course in co-operation taught at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, during the Christmas vacation period.

One of the lucky youths was Clare Leahy who has won honours for himself and his county in judging competitions in recent years. Clare knows stock, but he owns up that he knew nothing of co-operation before he went to Guelph. Of the 800 students who were at the school for various short courses, some eighty were registered for the new course in co-operation. Two were Protestant ministers, one was a Catholic priest, three or four were girls, but mostly they were farm youths, whose inspiration and finances came from U.F.O. groups, women's institutes, young people's societies, etc. Many of those in attendance had already been students of public affairs, economics, etc., gaining their knowledge wherever they could. Those welcomed a chance to get more scientific knowledge and all enrolled were keen and anxious to learn.

Consideration of Subject.

In the course the general subject of co-operation was considered under the following sub-sections and in the order indicated below: 1, The special needs of present-day farmers; 2, What co-operation can do to meet these needs as shown by its record of performance; 3, Possible ways of satisfying these needs other than through co-operative action. 4, The meaning of co-operation; 5, How to make effective use of co-operation. 6, Producer co-operation under marketing legislation. 7, General summary of the Ontario co-operative movement, its problems and possibilities.

Among the lecturers were: Professors Drummond and Riley, Dr. E. A. Corbett, Leonard Harman, Donald McLean, Joe McCulley, Dr. Innis, Alex Stewart, R. J. Scott, Dr. J. B. Reynolds, Hon. Eric Cross, Mr. Gibbons, T. Shield, W. C. Good, Professor Leitch, H. H. Hannam, Mr. Wilson, Harvey McDougall, Hugh Bailey, R. C. Swerdfeger, R. Cudney, George Keen and Mr. Perkin. Donald McLean had been in Nova Scotia and described in detail the working out of the successful co-operatives in that province. Joe McCulley described how co-operation has helped Sweden.

After each lecture time was allowed for lengthy discussion. With the numbers of well-informed lecturers and in the keen discussion much ground was covered and yet a begining was only made. Too much credit canot be given to Agriculture Minister P. M. Dewan, who has been instrumental in starting these courses.

Teacher From Madoc Badly Bitten By Dog

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 21—(CP)—When Miss Margaret Stewart, school teacher at Wolfe Island, was bitten by a dog, not only was the school closed for three weeks, but Miss Stewart had to be rushed to Kingston in an airplane where she is being attended byDr. K. J. Regan.

Miss Stewart was on the way to school yesterday morning when attacked by a dog which bit her on ankle. She was able to return to her home on the island and a call was sent to Dr. Regan of Kingston. Crossing was unsafe and there was no doctor living on the island, Dr. Regan advised that the patient be flown to the city. A plane was summoned from Kingston airport and Miss Stewart was brought to the city. To-day her condition was fairly good and she left for her home in Madoc.

Rubber On Plow Blade Proves Boon In City Snow War

Detroit, Jan. 21 (CP).

PUBLIC WORKS department officials said today their new experiment in clearing streets of snow and slush promised to save thousands of dollars a year. The invention, suggested by Works Commissioner Beyster, consists of a hard rubber strip hung from the blade of a snow plow.

City snow plows previously were not used to remove slush or light snow because the blades were two inches from the pavements, as blades which touched the pavements dislodged manhole covers.

The rubber strips, half the width of a city street, were attached to the plows and tried on slush-filled streets. Within a few minutes a plow cleaned a street that would have taken a crew of men several hours to clear.

Percy Institute Hears P. Ewing

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Jan. 21. — The January meeting of the Percy W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. George Palmateer on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of over thirty members and a few visitors. The president, Mrs. G. Helson, opened the meeting in the usual manner by singing the Institute Ode and repeating the Lord's Prayer. The roll call, "One thing I would like to accomplish this year," was heartily responded to.

The motto, "Reflect upon your present blessings, not upon your past misfortunes" was beautifully illustrated in the paper given by Mrs. Peterson.

Letters of appreciation from members and friends who had received sunshine boxes and Christmas cards were read by the convener, Mrs. Gummer.

Mrs. Joe Greenly and Mrs. G. Partridge were conveners for the program. Community singing was enjoyed. This was followed by a reading by Mrs. Will Shaw and a vocal solo by Miss Plant.

Mrs. Peter Ewing was guest speaker and gave a very instructive address on "Old Age Pensions, Mothers' Allowance and Making of Wills." A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Ewing, and the singing of "God Save the King" brought the meeting to a close. Tea was served by Mrs. Palmateer and her committee.

Oyster Supper

The members of Institute are planning on entertaining their husbands and families to an oyster supper, a committee was appointed to look after the same. The date will be announced later.

MILLBROOK

Mrs. L. H. Winslow Is Re-elected Guild Head

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 21.—Mrs. G. C. Ellsworth entertained the Women's Guild of St. Thomas' church for its annual meeting held at her home, King street centre, on Tuesday at 3 p.m., with the president, Mrs. L. H. Winslow, occupying the chair.

The report of the treasurer showed that a number of activities had netted a good income for 1938, and after all expenses had been met, a fair balance remains in the bank. Mrs. Winslow also gave a resume of the year's work, and expressed gratification at the harmony and co-operation which had prevailed, also mentioning that financially and socially the twelve months had been both successful and enjoyable, ad that three new names had been added to the roll.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. John Allen, senior; hon. vice-president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott; president, Mrs. Louis H. Winslow; secretary, Miss M. L. Collins; treasurer, Miss Ada Attwood. Executive committee: Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Miss Margaret Wood, and Mrs. L. M. Bonneville.

After some discussion regarding activities for 1939, and a vote of thanks to the hostess for the hospitality of her home, the meeting adjourned.

Twenty-eight American aircraft were imported into the Netherlands Indies in the first six months of 1938.

Hastings County Criticizes Cost Of Justice

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 21—Continuing their criticism on what was termed "an alarming yearly increase in the costs of county administration of justice," members of the county council Thursday afternoon supported a suggestion by Reeve Charles Rollins of Coe Hill, newly appointed chairman of administration of justice, that the finance committee of the county throughly investigate the yearly increase in expenditure.

Figures were produced to show that costs of administration had increased "by leaps and bounds" since 1936, and unless something was done to remedy the situation, would continue to increase.

Reeve Charles Rollins also strongly recommended that a committee be appointed to investigate the Pedlers' Bylaw of the county and have it brought up to date.

"The County Peddlers' Bylaw is no good," county clerk Erle Denyes told council, "inasmuch as it has no effect where rural municipalities are concerned. Municipalities themselves have special bylaws made for this purpose," he said, "and the county law is thereby rendered null and void."

Discussion brought out the fact that several peddlers in the county have produced licenses purported to have been issued by the Province of Ontario, but closer investigation revealed the fact that the companies behind the peddlers issued the papers which stated that their products have been grown or produced in Ontario. The question closed with the resolution that the finance committee investigate the Hawkers and Peddlers' bylaw with a view to remedying the situation that exists in Hastings County.

Road Insurance

The year just passed was one of the most successful ones insofar as road insurance and liability are concerned, a representative of Lloyds Limited, told council in a brief address, in which he informed members that in view of the successful year, his company had granted a twenty per cent decrease in the premium rate.

"The premium this year," he said would amount to some $1120 as against fourteen hundred dollars a year ago. Claims against the county roads system in 1938 amounted to $278.90.

Township School Areas

Correction of a statement made to council in an address given to them during the December session regarding the inauguration of township school areas was made in a brief address yesterday by Inspector H. J. Clarke.

"The initiative does not rest with the school section as I stated in December," he said, "but with the township council itself. They should contact a few of the influential people of the section and secure their advice then go ahead with their plans instead of calling a public meeting."

"The council has the power to act for these areas which may consist of preferably five schools in a section, but these areas must be formed before July 1st of this year," he added.

The purpose of the township school areas, the speaker pointed out, was to establish a uniform levy, or in other words an equalization of levy within the township. A board of five trustees, one from each section, would be appointed to govern the area, to which a government grant of one hundred dollars per section would be allowed.

"This grant, however, is not a silver spoon," Inspector Clarke stated, "but an inducement to amalgamate sections with high and low levies. The latter would in all likelihood object as they would not feel like using their money to pay for the higher levies. However the board would have the money from these grants, which would equalize the levy."

Regarding the matter of union schools, Inspector Clarke advised reeves to wait until a proposed amendment of the Act is made before any action takes place.

Worth Fighting For

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 21 — (CP). —Competition for the tourist dollar is growing keener every year, C. William Otts, secretary-manager of the Lansing, Mich., Chamber of Commerce, told Sarnia Chamber of Commerce members at the annual meeting here last night. He advised concerted efforts by Sarnia and district organizations if they desired to retain their share of the tourist business. William J. Batten was elected president of the Chamber.

$1,872,000 To Be Spent On Defence Of London's Great Dock System

LONDON, Jan. 21—(CP).—Elaborate schemes for the defence of London's dock system—a vitally important source of supplies—are taking place.

Representatives of the government and the Port of London authority are studying means of protecting the 45 miles of docks and quays and 80 miles of waterways from wartime damage or destruction.

The schemes, estimated to cost about £400,000 ($1,872,000), include provision of an air raid precautions "armada," a floating ambulance service and a mile of underground shelters.

A.R.P. trenches have been dug capable of housing an emergency staff of between 5,000 and 6,000 who, in the event of war, would keep the key services of the port in operation.

The "armada" will be provided by boat owners who have placed more than 100 craft at the disposal of the authorities. Some will be manned by the owners, others by trained recruits.

Protect 50,000 Workers.

The shelters will be in 40 sections, 6½ feet below ground. They will be connected by gangways so rescue work can proceed in the event of a direct hit smashing through. They are intended to protect a population of 50,000.

The floating ambulance service will carry wounded or refugees from ships to shore and from shore to safer zones further up the Thames. There will be a messenger service to maintain communications. Other launches will form a fire-fighting service.

Of paramount importance to all Britain, the Port of London is a main source of food and other necessities to about 20,000,000 people living within a radius of 100 miles of the Thames' banks. Its daytime population is 60,000 workers with about 20,000 more on the

Here is Canada's No. 1 iceman receiving an award that recognizes his standing as the ace block and cube dispenser in the Dominion. He is William Turner, who plies his trade in Toronto. J. A. Neilson, director of the Canadian Association of Ice Industries, is making the presentation after Turner won the award in competition with ice men from every part of Canada at the association's annual convention in Ottawa. The winner is selected on his knowledge of freezing technique and chemistry, his deportment, and all-round ability as well as on his qualifications as a tosser of ice blocks.

Waterman Heir Gets $100 From Mother

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 — (AP). — Elisha Waterman, who was cut off with $100 in the will of his wealthy father, but later found himself heir to a fountain pen fortune and business, learned to-day what his late mother bequeathed him. It was $100.

The will of Mrs. Helen H. Waterman, filed in Surrogate's Court, added another chapter to the 15-year story of romance and estrangement that divided the fountain pen family.

Last May Elisha, who lived in poverty for 15 years because he married against his father's wishes, became—by his father's death—eligible to the income from a $5,000,000 trust fund set up by his grand uncle, Lewis Edson Waterman, fountain pen inventor.

In June, Elisha, 39, who earned his living for awhile after incurring his father's displeasure as a cook, a dishwasher and later as a pulp fiction writer, went to work as executive vice-president of the family fountain pen business.

Elisha's mother, who died Jan. 11, left her residuary estate to another son, Frank D. Waterman, Jr., of Summit, N.J., and named him an executor of her will. Size of the estate was not disclosed.

Elisha's daughter, Aubrey, now 13, reared by the wealthy grandparents after the death of his Canadian-born wife in 1928, is to receive at 21 half of a trust fund established for Mrs. Helen Waterman. The other half, under Frank D. Waterman's will, went to Frank D. Waterman, Jr., at his mother's death.

Truck's Brakes Fail Crash Gives Factory Holiday

Sherbrooke, Que., Jan. 21 (CP).

BRAKES on a milkman's truck failed — and a fountain was knocked down, a street partly flooded, a manufacturing plant closed and the employees given a holiday.

Charles-Emile Morin parked his car at the top of a hill yesterday while he delivered milk. He returned, found the car at the foot of the hill beside a broken fountain in front of the Gilmore manufacturing firm.

Panama Guards To Be Doubled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—(AP)—The United States army proposes to double its present force of about 13,000 men in the Panama Canal zone to provide the "adequate peace garrison" which President Roosevelt urged in his $552,000,000 defence recommendations.

This authoritative disclosure was made today after army officers privately outlined to the House Military Committee the War Department's plans to reinforce the vital waterway.

The present garrison is insufficient to man existing anti-aircraft and coast defence guns, the committee was told by Brigadier-Generals George Marshall, deputy chief of staff, and George Strong, head of the general staff's war plans division.

Officials contended new weapons of this kind, more war planes, a highway that would extend the scope of the canal's defence far into the adjoining Republic of Panama—all provided for in the administration's arms program—call for a force of at least 26,000 officers and men.

President Roosevelt said today he favored the bill authorizing $5,000,000 for defence improvements on the Island of Guam but contended this did not necessarily mean fortification.

After laying a perfect egg nine inches long a hen owned by Mrs. Z. Fourie of Sunland, South Africa, dropped dead.

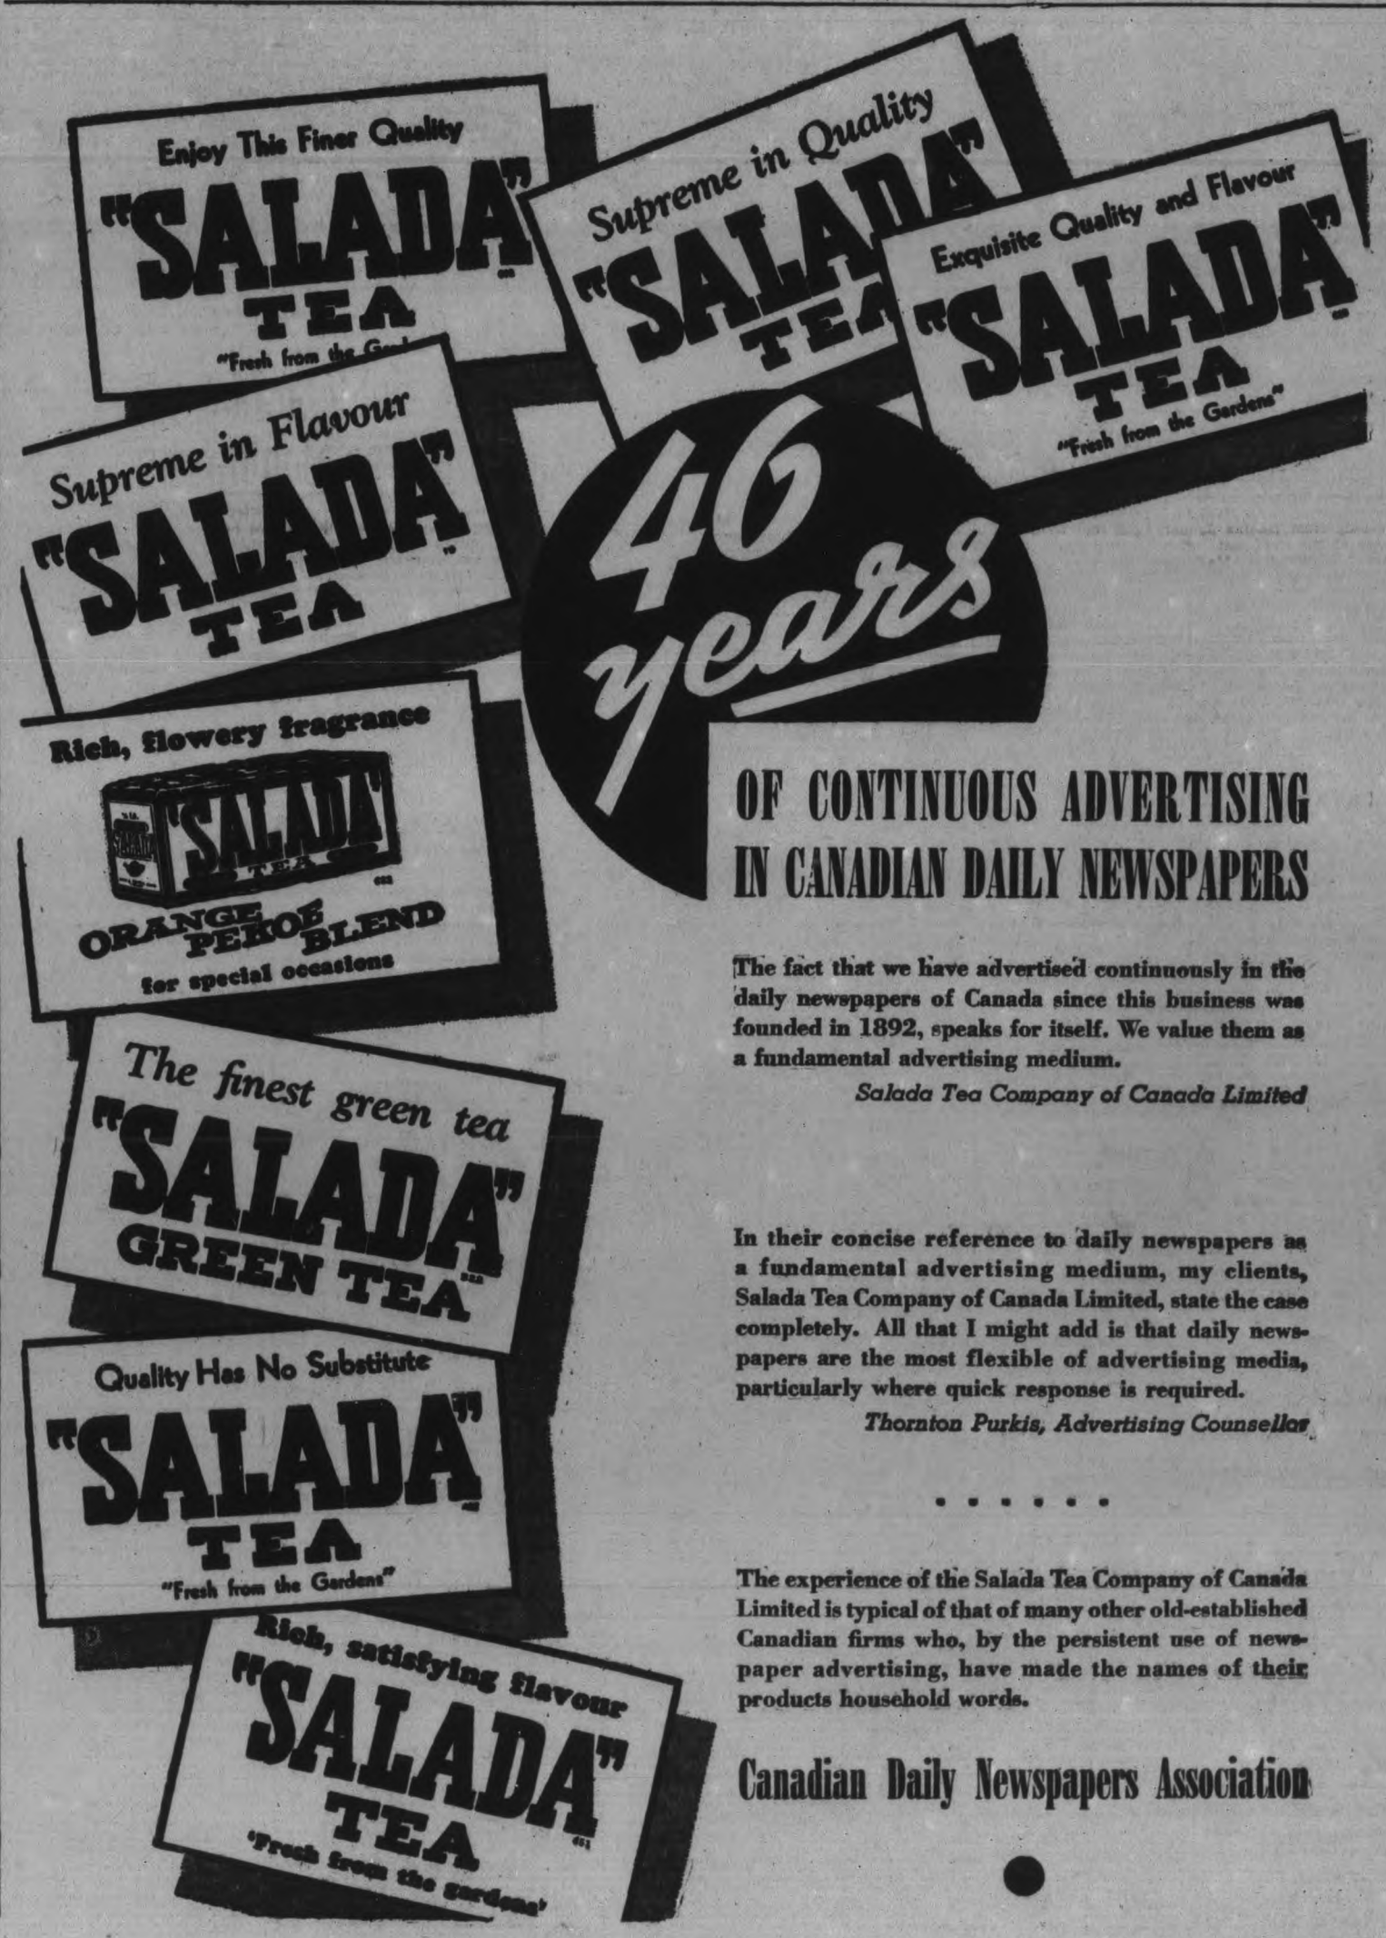
Trent River W.I. Stages Third Euchre

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 21. — The third series of progressive euchre parties under the auspices of the Women's Institute was held Wednesday night at "Glendower," cottage of Mr. and Mrs. James Cook, with an attendance of over 30.

Seven tables were played, with the winners as follows: Ladies' first (score 91), Mrs. George Alley, who received a fancy china cream and sugar set; ladies' consolation, Mrs. Francis Ruttan (pair of ear-rings); gents' high score (88), Mr. Jack Garneau (key case); gents' consolation, Mr. Alex Brown (fancy pencil); lucky chair, ladies, Mrs. George Brooks (large box face powder), and Mr. Malcolm Brown won the gents' lucky chair prize. Mrs. Earl Greenly and Mr. Alex Brown each won a cake on a lucky draw.

Members of the Institute provided lunch. The door receipts amounted to $4.75.

A dainty lunch was served, consisting of various kinds of sandwiches, tea, cake and fancy jellies.



OF CONTINUOUS ADVERTISING IN CANADIAN DAILY NEWSPAPERS

The fact that we have advertised continuously in the daily newspapers of Canada since this business was founded in 1892, speaks for itself. We value them as a fundamental advertising medium.

Salada Tea Company of Canada Limited

In their concise reference to daily newspapers as a fundamental advertising medium, my clients, Salada Tea Company of Canada Limited, state the case completely. All that I might add is that daily newspapers are the most flexible of advertising media, particularly where quick response is required.

Thornton Purkis, Advertising Counsellor

The experience of the Salada Tea Company of Canada Limited is typical of that of many other old-established Canadian firms who, by the persistent use of newspaper advertising, have made the names of their products household words.

Guard Closely Trotsky In His Retreat

Picture for yourself a squat man with massive head and tremendous intellect; whose startlingly blue eyes pierce through you from behind thick, thick glasses; a man with a thin, pointed beard that looks straggly and pucked. That is Leon Trotsky, famed revolutionary chieftain, as seen by Eric de Pendleton, one of the few men to interview the exiled Russian in his heavily-guarded Mexican palace.

Pendleton, who recently completed a 19,000-mile tour by motorcycle, succeeded in getting himself appointed special correspondent for a Toronto newspaper and armed with credentials, asked for an interview with Trotsky. When the door to the palace was flung open he found himself staring down the barrel of a revolver, was later allowed to reach Trotsky.

Most newsworthy thing he learned was not from the lips of the revolutionist himself, but from his aides. Observing that most of those aides were Englishmen, Americans, or Canadians, he asked one of them the reason and was told that they were all studying revolution at the feet of Trotsky, in preparation for a gigantic revolt that would overthrow the governments of both the United States and Canada before sweeping to England and on into a world revolution—the Fourth Internationale.

In Constant Danger

Guarded day and night against assassins, the great Russian is in constant danger, but appears to be under no strain, according to Mr. de Pendleton. Powerful searchlights play on the grounds surrounding his palace, police patrol the place, special ways of ringing are required before a person is admitted. But while all this impresset dhe Canadian, it was Trotsky's astute mind, his evident sincerity that were most impressive. "Much as I disagree with his theories, I must admit that he appears to be deeply sincere, and that his is a great intellect," he said.

Trotsky told him that headquarters for the new Internationale are planned for Toronto in the near future, that war is going to cloud the world soon, that Great Britain will lose all her imperial power, that Italy and Germany will be stripped of power.

Denounced "Isms"

Last night Mr. de Pendleton denounced fascism, naziism and communism in an address at the Paragon Hall, sponsored by the British-Israel World Federation. He said that totalitarian states threatened the peace and safety of the world, and that in practically every country in the world secret agents are at work, fomenting strife and aiming at the overthrow of constitutional government. This war, he said, is being actively carried on in the economic, political and religious realms, and their avowed plan and purpose is to destroy the Christian faith.

He related his experiences in Mexico to show that the whole country is in a state of unrest bordering on revolution. According to Mr. de Pendleton conditions in the United States are in an awful way; revolution in many places is freely discussed. In Los Angeles the ex-mayor is in goal for embezzeling city funds for a long period of time. A certain man threatened to expose the mayor, and because of this he had a bomb placed in this gentleman's automobile which wrecked the car. In Salt Lake City the ex-mayor, the chief of police and others are in jail for bringing in white slavery and making a fortune out of houses of ill fame. In Twin Falls, Idaho, the ex-mayor is in goal on a charge of murder.

Our Lord stated that at the time of the end, violence, and wickedness and corruption would fill the whole earth. In the Seattle public library, a map of the world was exhibited. During the past 20 years 45 countries had been engaged in wars and revolutions. Two-thirds of the earth was in black, and the Israel countries of the commonwealth of nations, the United States and Scandinavia were the only ones in white, for they are charged by Almighty God to establish on earth the conditions of the Kingdom of God.

Mr. de Pendleton said that the Bible was the only unshakeable authority in the world to-day, and that it presented a solution for all our difficulties, economic, financial and political, provided that it is followed by the nation, and its teachings put into practical operation. In spite of its betrayal of outwardly professing Christians it still presents a message of hope and a remedy for the world's ills.

Second Offender Is Fined $50

Dan McAllister who only Friday morning got out of jail after serving a sentence on a drunk charge took on board another overload of intoxicants and fell into the hands of the police again.

This morning he appeared before Magistrate Langley, K.C., in police court as a second offender and pleaded guilty to being drunk yesterday and admitted his previous conviction eleven days ago.

"Give me a chance, your Worship," McAllister said. "I am a mechanic and I don't want to spend all my time in jail.

"The law does not allow me to give you a chance" replied the Magistarte. "There is no suspended sentence."

McAllister was fined $50 and costs or a month in jail. "The penalty for a third ofence is imprisonment for from three to six months" the Magistrate reminded him.

"You're not going to get me a third time," accused declared as he departed for the cells.

Bird's Creek Moonshiner, Poacher Is Given Three-Month Term

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Jan. 21.—Stanley Sutherland, Bird's Creek, farmer and hunter was convicted of being found in the illegal possession of venison out of season, and also of shooting deer out of season, when he appeared before Magistrate J. L.L. Lloyd of Northbrook, in county police court at Bancroft.

Failing to pay the assessed fine imposed of $20 and costs, Sutherland was sentenced to serve 25 days in the common jail in default thereof. The sentence will run currently with that of a previous term given the accused after he had been convicted of the violation of the Excise Act.

Sutherland was charged with being found in the possession of a quantity of mash, suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor. A fine of $100.00 and costs was imposed on this charge, Sutherland being sentenced to serve three months in the common jail upon default of payment of the assessed fine.

Both cases were investigated and presented by the R.C.M.P. who later confiscated the illicit liquor mash and the venison, both which were said to have been found in the accused man's home at Bird's Creek.

Gets Twenty Days For Church Theft

Orville McCall pleaded guilty in police court this morning to the theft of a sum of money from St. Peter's Cathedral and was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to twenty days in gaol.

"This semes to be the most despicable form of theft," said the Magistarte, "robbing God's poor."

It was explained that the box McCall had taken was not the poor box but another receptacle for offerings.

"That is only a degree removed," remarked Magistrate Langley.

McCall said there was only ten cents in the box, including the nickel he had put in himself.

"I don't understand your case," commented the magistrate, and McCall added that he could not himself understand why he had taken the box.

Peterboro' Man Admits Fraud

SUDBURY, Ont., Jan. 21 (CP)—Facing sentence on five fraud charges in Sudbury, Howard Hunter, 26, surprised Sudbury city police court Friday by admitting he was connected with other frauds in Kirkland Lake.

The former Peterborough man announced he was willing to face the Kirkland Lake charges in Sudbury, thus eliminating the expense of taking him to Kirkland Lake for trial. Deputy-Chief Ed. Pyle of the Sudbury city police said he would get in touch with Kirkland Lake and arrange for other charges to be brought up here. Hunter was remanded until Monday when he will be sentenced on the five Sudbury charges.

Hunter was arrested after police alleged he tried to cash a forged cheque for $50 at the Nickel Range Hotel where he was a guest.

Describes Romance Of Canned Milk

The Romance of the Canned Milk Industry was told in iteresting form at the Friday Night Club by J. P. Coyle, vice-president of the Carnation Milk Co. of Toronto. Mr. Coyle gave the general history of the canning industry, with its first start 128 years ago when Nicholas Apparpart preserved fruits and meats in air tight glass containers.

Mr. Stewart, chairman of the board and founder of the company and still one of the hard workers, founded the business in 1899. At this time he was already 42 years old. He manufactured and peddled his product to the grocers himself, leaving it on approval when the grocers refused to take a chance on selling it.

The company now has a farm and raises its own cattle, and one of the best herds of Holstein in the world. The process removes 60 p.c. of the water present in milk and also homogenizes and irradiates it.

E. F. Mason introduced the speaker and Jack Couper moved a vote of thanks on behalf of the members. Bill Garner gave a three minute talk on Admiral Richard Byrd. H. L. Garner presided at the meeting.

STIRED OLD ECHOES.

The week's top note in local music was, probably, Cliff Hall's singing of "Take Me Up With You, Dearie," at the Holstein Club dinner. It was perhaps pre-war vintage, but Mr. Hall put it over in swing style, more or less, and its pleasant refrain is still going round and round.

The officers of Branch No. 52 wish to apologize to the members and friends who patronized the social evening on Wednesday and the euchre party on Thursday for the coldness of the hall which was due to a stoppage in the pipes, and to promise that the matter will be rectified before the next social evening on Wednesday of next week.

The members' cribbage tournament is hanging fire very badly and we would like the affair settled as soon as possible. Comrades Long and Bridger please take notice.

The carpet bowlers are about as usual and the poor old Legion rooster is beginning to have a very bedraggled appearance with the loss of so many tail feathers, but before long he will be perking up and crowing as loud as ever especially as the bowling floor has been levelled and sanded and now looks like a billiard table.

The billiard players have been much more active lately and the tables have been more in use than in some time especially for Russian pool. That is what the officers want to see, more use being made of the recreational facilities of the hall. The equipment is there for the members pleasure, so why not make use of them.

Howe Promises To Probe Radio Trouble

Replying to Alderman Dutton's complain about local radio reception, J. J. Duffus, M.P., write "I am requesting the minister to send a test car to Peterborough for an indefinite period, which I hope will result in very decided improvements.

The minister, Hon. C. D. Howe, also acknowledged the letter of protest, a copy of which was sent to Mr. Duffus. "As you are aware," he answered, "this department maintains special services which have for their purpose the elimination of interference. A permanent officer of this branch is located in Toronto and I have asked that he or one of his subordinates communicate with you."

In his letter Ald. Dutton complained that Hon. R. B. Bennett's speech last Monday night was made unintelligible here by some Mexican broadcast on the same wave length. "On every occasion when there is anything special the same condition prevails ,and in my opinion the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation ought to be relegated to oblivion... I feel that I am voicing the opinion of a great many people when I say it is a rank injustice to collect or even to charge a license fee for the type of reception we get. You have good programs, and they are spoiled. It is like getting milk from a good cow and then having the cow kick the pail over. Surely in a country like this and with the radio department costing what it does to operate, the Canadian public are entitled to more consideration than they are getting."

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, taking the place of her friend, Kitty, for a week in the private salon of Mrs. Horace Witherspoon, Sr., is disturbed by queer things she finds and odd people she meets at the Manor, the luxurious Witherspoon home. She finds her employer is an eccentric old woman with sadly misplaced vanity. She meets her granddaughter, Daphne; her daughter-in-law; Della Craig, an actress, who is a house guest, and the various servants of the household. Elsie overhears a violent argument between Daphne and her mother, during which the girl criticizes her grandmother.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER EIGHT

"DID I STARTLE you?" A young man in riding breeches stuck his head inside the salon.

"Ye-es." I was shaking like a leaf. I inquired, idiotically, "Did you have an appointment?"

"What?" Then, getting the sense of my question, he threw back his head and roared with laughter.

His laughter did me good, it was so whole hearted and so healthy. "I haven't come to the beautifying stage—yet," he said. "I'm looking for Daffy Witherspoon. Is she hidden away in one of your little cages?" He cocked an inquiring eye toward the curtained booths.

I shook my head. "She left some time ago."

"Oh!" He was disappointed; he frowned. "Did she happen to say where she was going?"

"Sorry, she didn't say."

"Thanks." He smiled like a friendly puppy and withdrew. I was myself again. The strange young man had restored my good sense and my humor. I was a silly girl to let my fancy run away with me! This good mood lasted through my next appointment, which was well, for Glad, as Miss Gladys Westcott called herself, was the type to drive an operator crazy. She was the confiding type—why, oh, why, does this sort of female insist upon making a confessional of a beauty parlor—and she confided plenty! One of these days I think I will go into the blackmailing business just to teach a few of her kind to keep their mouths shut. Operators are human beings, with eyes and ears and a tongue that can wag, though you would think we were all deaf and dumb to hear some of our customers rave. What I have heard in my time would, if repeated, cause a bit of grief in more than one well-regulated family, believe you me.

Glad, it seemed, was from Georgia. Just a sweet southern miss with a lazy drawl and big brown eyes and a pink, pouting mouth. She was crazy about Daffy and about Rich and about Jeff Todington, who used to be Daffy's sweetheart until a count something-or-other came along.

I did not pay a whole lot of attention to her chatter until she touched upon something that solved a part of the morning's mystery.

"I'm just dying of excitement!" she said, making eyes at herself in the mirror. "You know, I'm practically Daffy's best friend, and I'm sure to be maid of honor at the wedding, don't you think?"

"The wedding?"

"Oh, didn't you know? Well, I guess it is supposed to be a secret, but everybody knows about the engagement being announced at the ball tonight. It's just too thrilling!"

"Miss Daphne's engagement?" Curiosity, my besetting sin, got the better of me.

"Uh-huh! To Count Orsini, you know. Simply too divine! I nearly passed right out of the picture when he kissed my hand! I mean I really did!"

So that was the meaning of all the excitement. That was the reason why old Mrs. Witherspoon wished to look so grand. And that was why—but surely the conversation I had overheard between Daphne and her mother had nothing to do with her engagement! Unless—unless—and it did not bear thinking about—unless Daphne did not want to marry her count!

"Is he a tall, tanned man with gray eyes?" I demanded.

"Gracious me, no! That's Jeff Todington. The count is just about the most romantic looking man I ever did see! Dark—and, well, just too romantic!"

✧ ✧ ✧

All during luncheon, which I ate from a tray in my room, I could not get that engagement business off my mind. I was so preoccupied trying to figure the whole thing out that when I left my room to return to the salon—I went the long way to stretch my legs—I bumped smack into someone passing in the opposite direction.

"So sorry," I gasped and looked into the face of a man who had a monocle dangling from one eye. "I was thinking of something else—" I stammered and laughed nervously. The man was ogling me in a maner that I particularly dislike.

"But eet ees I who am sorry!" His lips parted in a flashing smile. He was the sort of man I detest, smooth and oily and ever willing to flirt with a pretty girl. "I hurt your head, no?" He raised his fingers to my forehead and I wriggled uncomfortably.

"You didn't hurt me at all," I said rudely and side-stepped around him.

"No need to hurry away, my leetle one!" He caught my arm and pulled me toward him. "I—"

But I did not wait to hear the rest of his flowery speech. I wrenched my arm from his grasp and fled on down the corridor. If that were Daphne's count, and I very much feared it was, I did not blame her for being desperate.

The afternoon passed quickly. At two-thirty I gave Miss Tericia (Toots) Lemoine a shampoo and a golden-glint rinse and a rose-leaf facial. She was a hard-eyed baby, with a knowing look in her pale blue eyes, and her yellow hair was the color of plated gold. I could not place her as a member of the Manor house party. She looked as if she would be more at home in a night club or the front row of a Broadway girl show. She did not talk much, which was a relief, and she tipped me fifty cents when she left.

At four o'clock, Miss Henrietta Willoughston, Mrs. Witherspoon's maiden sister, came in for a manicure. She so closely resembled the caricature of an old-fashioned lady being an old-fashioned lady that it was all I could do to keep my face straight. She was little and skinny and wore a long black dress that hugged her neck above and swept the ground below. She must have been a year or two younger than her sister, but she had the same beady, black eyes and restless air.

Right away she started to talk a blue streak. From the things she said I gathered she was not all there in the upper story. She would start a sentence and never finish it. After awhile she got off on religion, so I just let her rave while I trimmed and filed. Poor soul, maybe she did not often have an audience!

"This house is cursed!" she croaked, "cursed!" She leaned far across the table, and her eyes looked so wild I began to get scared. "The Lord will strike! He will be avenged!"

"Natural polish?" I quavered, moving as far from her as possible.

"They shall all perish from the earth!" She ignored my query. Her voice died to a hoarse whisper. "Doomed!" she said. "Doomed!"

"My sister is a sinner!" She jerked her hand from mine and waved a bony forefinger beneath my nose. "Her face is white and her heart is black! She is doomed! Wait—wait, and you shall see!"

Well, just as I was beginning to feel the hair on my arms standing on end, the old girl jumped to her feet and made for the door.

"Vanity, vanity!" she shrieked. "Death and destruction! They are doomed!"

I sat rooted to my chair. Miss Henrietta, with partially manicured hands out-thrust, dashed madly into the lobby and out the front door.

Perspiration bathed my body, and great beads of sweat dropped from my forehead and splashed upon the table. It was some minutes before I found the strength to move.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—The pioneer wife drove a wagon through a wilderness, felled trees, hewed timber, plowed oxen and did other other work side by side with her man before there were office jobs for women. That was her way of being a helpmate to her husband. The modern wife's way of being a helpmate is to hold a position and aid her husband financially. Cold cash instead of hard physical labor is her contribution to the family upkeep. Or it should be. So why should a girl who has a job before she marries expect to give it up after marriage? If I were rearing a daughter in this day, I would teach her that her modern husband will expect as much assistance from her in the modern way as the pioneer husband did from his wife in pioneer times. This would save much friction in marriage.

MIDDLE-AGED.

ANSWER:

Virtually every woman who gets married does so with a heartfelt desire to be a helpmate to her husband, but how best to do it is a question that is not solved by the simple expedient of her contributing her share of the bacon.

The problem is complicated by the fact that when men marry they do not marry to get a business partner but a homemaker. There are mighty few women who can hold down both jobs; who have the health, strength and the energy to work all day in a store or office and then clean up a house and get dinner. To say nothing of having babies and rearing a family as a sideline.

Unfortunately, in marriage it is conditions and not theories that confront a couple. And, still more unfortunately, husbands and wives are both human beings, with human limitations and weaknesses, instead of being pinfeathered angels. It happens that comfortable homes and good meals are not conjured out of the air, but made by long, hard labor. So a wife's contribution to the family exchequer doesn't compensate a man for being set down to can-opener dinners and for her always being nervous and tired and with a temper that is set on a hair-trigger.

And how else can a woman be who is always overworked; who has to jump up at the first jingle of the alarm clock and rush through getting a tasty and nourishing breakfast in order to punch the time clock at her office; who has to work under pressure all day and then hustle home by way of the butcher and the grocer to buy the food for dinner and then stew over the stove while she cooks the evening meal when she is so tired she feels like dropping; who comes to the end of a perfect day mopping up the bathroom after she has cleaned up the balance of the house?

Of course, necessity knows no law, and when a man cannot earn enough to support his family, why, then the wife must put her shoulder to the wheels, too, and go back to her old job if she can. But, as a general thing, the best way a woman can help her husband is by making him a pleasant and happy home and bucking him up to do the best that is in him to do.

• • • • • • •

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—We have just moved from a part of the city in which I have lived for fifteen years to a furnished apartment downtown so my husband can be near his business. I hate this part of the town and cannot get used to it. I work in a lawyer's office and get home forty-five minutes before my husband. Have dinner ready for him and I do the housework and the washing, and I am perfectly willing to do this humble job, but I must have a home that I enjoy doing things in. I want my own things. I cannot take the interest in some one else's furniture that I would in my own. Don't you think my husband should see my point of view? Which is the more important, his saving twenty-five minutes' difference in a street car or a pleasant apartment and neighborhood for me? MRS. J. A. W.

ANSWER:

Inasmuch as a woman is in the home so much more than a man is, and because the little things are more important to her than to a man, I think that she should have the say-so about the home, the decorations and the furniture—within reason, of course.

A man is foolish when he does not yield to his wife in these matters, because a contented wife is so much easier to get along with than a discontented one, and because he can save himself such an endless amount of nagging if he will let her pick out the house she wants to live in and the kind of wallpaper she prefers for the living room. So I think your husband will sidestep a lot of trouble if he will just shrug his shoulders and go back to the place that you have picked out.

But, my dear young bride, you are making a very great mistake in beginning your married life in not trying to adapt yourself to your husband, and by being so wedded to one particular spot that you cannot be happy away from it. Thousands of women wreck their husbands' careers by refusing to leave Mother and the girls, or Squedunk, where they were brought up and know everybody, to go with them where their fortune calls.

• • • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a married man with a family, but for five years I have had an affair with my secretary. She has been a good and loyal helpmate to me in my business and very discreet about our relations, but she has lost her health and I have lost my taste for her and now wish to be rid of her and live for my children, who are now grown up. But here is my trouble: She wants me to give her enough money to go away and try to regain her health and perhaps marry. She lost her boy friend on account of me. She threatens to tell my family about me if I don't give it to her. She says that if I will give her the money she will not bother me any more, and I know she will keep her word. I could well afford to pay her, but isn't there some law to prevent her from hurting me and my family? There should be. Please advise me and give me your opinion on all of this. MAN IN TROUBLE.

ANSWER:

Well, I'll nominate you for the meanest man's medal. You betray your wife and then your mistress and you feel that you should go scot free.

You take a young girl's life and break it. You smirch her so that the man she is engaged to marry will not have her for a wife. You accept the love and loyalty and the labor of a woman who serves you faithfully, and then when through work and heartbreak and anxiety her health breaks down, although you are rich, you want to kick her out without a penny. How can you bear to look yourself in the face? DOROTHY DIX.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, January 22.

Sunday's horoscope is not a particularly auspicious one, holding forebodings of rather unhappy and regrettable circumstances, which may have immediate effect on the private life as well as the physical condition. There may be excitement, irritable or tempestuous conduct, followed by a break in an intimate relation, unless there is determination to sidetrack eccentric indulgences.

Those whose birthday it is are at the brink of a year of unhappiness, disruption and disturbance unless they exercise sound judgment and tact and refrain from erratic or peculiar actions in their most cherished relationships. This might have serious reaction on the nervous or physical wellbeing.

A child born on this day may be personality contributory to fulfill-tempestuous as well as violent and self-indulgent. However, it may enjoy some of "the eccentricities of genius."

For Monday, January 23.

Monday's astrological forecast is a very propitious one, with much promise of expanding business and financial conditions, enhanced personal and social popularity and prestige. It is a time for reaching for high goals, with assurance of attainment, with the recognition and friendly aid from superiors or those in high station.

Those whose birthday it is may feel assured of a prosperous and progressive year, with superiors, employers, or those in high places ready to assist with generosity and friendly interest. It is a time for reaching out for well-planned objectives and high personal aspirations.

A child born on this day will be well endowed for success and advanced position, having a fine mind, worthy aspirations and the winning personality contributory to fulfillment of advanced ideals in life.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Mr. Punch, are you very smart?" Hanid and Knarf asked their old friend the other night. He was sitting on the steps of the little Show-House (for Mr. Punch was really an actor, you know, and appeared in puppet-shows for the amusement of the children whenever they pulled the strings attached to his arms and legs) where he lived with his wife Judy.

Mr. Punch smiled. "Am I smart? Of course! Everyone knows I am. I don't want to boast," he added, glancing sidewise at Judy who was knitting quietly on the steps near him, "but folks say I can answer any question in the world."

Mr. Punch couldn't answer.

"Humph!" said Judy. But she went right on knitting.

"There are a lot of questions we'd like you to answer," said Hanid.

"They're very hard questions, too," said Knarf.

"The harder the better," answered Mr. Punch. "Let me have them. I'll answer them in one-two-three."

"Well," said Hanid. "We'd like to know what happens to the light of a candle when it goes out?"

"It—ha-ha — it just goes out. That's simple, isn't it?"

"But where does it go out to?" asked Knarf.

"It—er, I mean—let's come back to that question a little later. It's too simple to bother about now. Ask me a harder one."

"Humph!" said Judy again.

"All right," said Knarf. "Answer this question: Why can't we see the wind?"

"Because — because — oh! that's much too simple for me," he suddenly said. "Everyone knows why the wind can't be seen. I don't think I ought to bother answering such simple questions. Ask me something really, really hard."

"Humph!" said Judy, all at once putting down her knitting and looking Mr. Punch square in the eye. "I'll ask you a really hard question."

"Why—please do—my dear," Mr. Punch said nervously.

"Why do you think you can answer any question in the world when it's as plain as the nose on your face that you can't? Answer me that!"

And I'm sorry to say that Mr. Punch couldn't answer that one either. Isn't that a shame?

Betty Raps Coogan's Many Errors But Will Return—If He Asks Her

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 21—(AP).—Actress Betty Grable took time out today from her business of looking fetching to deny that her separation from Jackie Coogan was her idea and to cite him for several little "errors."

In the first place, she said with emphasis, "Jackie suggested the separation 'until we get things ironed out.' I didn't. I'd go back to him in a minute—if he'd ask me."

People have been saying, Betty said, that she left Jack because he didnt have any money and that she wouldn't live with him until (and if) he gets the money he believes his mother and stepfather, Arthur Bernstein owe him. Jackie is suing the Bernsteins for an accounting of the fortune he earned as a child star of the silent films.

"Such silly talk!" exclaimed Betty. "The lease expired on our house. I thought we ought to move to a smaller place, or live with my mother. The first thing I knew, Jackie was selling the furniture. And all my stuff was moved out. Then he said he was going to San Francisco to see about an act. But he didn't ask me to go with him.

The Lawyer's Idea?

"I don't understand why Jackie hasn't said something to defend me. I still love him and he knows it. Maybe he moved out to get sympathy. Maybe it was his lawyers idea."

Even though the shapely Miss Grable insists she still loves her husband who moved out early this month, she couldn't resist mentioning his shortcomings.

She thought it was terrible for him to stay in bed all morning when he should have been looking for some kind of job.

Nor did she like the way he used the money from sale of her furniture to buy a new car.

"I still love him and I'll go back to him whenever he asks me. But I won't chase him."

"The Kid" wanted to go dancing with his wife last night. But Betty couldnt stay up late because she has to be up so early for a picture she is making with Jack Benny.

"If I don't have to work Saturday," Betty promised, "maybe Ill give him a date tonight."

Bonner—Clarke

FRASERVILLE, Jan. 21.—A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Toronto on January 11 when Bonna Bell Patricia, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Clarke, Fraserville, became the bride of Arnold Bonner, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bonner of Millbrook.

The bride was becomingly attired in blue velvet dress and hat with navy accessories. The bride also wore the gift of the bridegroom, a beautiful wrist watch.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bonner spent a short honeymoon in Toronto and points west. They will reside near Millbrook.

We Noticed

....And now we are told that the brushed-up high "Swanky Scrubwoman" type of coiffure will become extinct, and freakish or extreme hair styles will not be popular after this Winter. Instead, and I'm sure you'll greet the news with cheers, there will be a classically simple variation of the page-boy bob type with embellishment of brushed-up curls in front.

✧ ✧ ✧

...However, if this wimple business becomes as popular as style news would indicate, it looks as if we maidens needn't worry about our hair at all—during the reign of King Henry the Second, when wimples were first being worn, the glory of the hair was completely hidden underneath.

✧ ✧ ✧

....To dress a lady's hair for this period, history books tell us, the hair had to be brushed out and then divided into two parts, which were plaited and then brought round the crown of the head and fastened in front above the forehead, and the front pieces of hair neatly pushed back from the forehead to show a high brow. This was truly a very serious process, and the finished job left nary a wisp of hair to be seen.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Judging from the jaunty little hat models to which today's version of the wimple is attached, though, it would appear that hair will continue to be recognized as woman's crowning glory, and shining tresses are allowed to peep out beguilingly from the delicately colored scarfs with which the newest hats are draped.

Smart Ensembles for Outdoor Activities

Typical of the smart outfits the well-dressed girl is wearing at outdoor activities, such as skating and skiing, are those modelled ABOVE for you by Sonja Henie, the skating star of the films; Jo Ann Sayres, a screen newcomer, and an unidentified young lady snapped at the Rockefeller Plaza skating pond in New York. Miss Henie's ski suit has the military motif. The jacket is made of white fur trimmed with shining brass buttons. Prussian blue wool is used as a trim. The skating outfit is a two-piece mixed tweed with a gray background, a wider plaid of blue with flecks of various colors. The skirt is short and gored. The fitted jacket buttons to the throat. Miss Sayres' ski suit consists of gray gabardine pants and navy blue cotton coat with a warm inner lining of fleece. The lining proper is a gray blue and white checked gingham.

Mount Pleasant Couple Are 54 Years Married Today

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 21.—One of the most active men for his age in this entire district is Josiah Best, 82, who drives every day to his son's residence a half a mile away and assumes general oversight of the farm work. His son, Chester Best, is ill, and Josiah Best is helping him out, has only missed two days in the past two months.

Today Mr. and Mrs. Best are celebrating their 54th wedding anniversary. They have lived all their married life on the same farm, on Lot 13, Concession 1, Emily township. They are members of the United church—earlier of the Presbyterian—and are seldom absent from their pew during Sunday service. Their eldest son, Rev. Cecil A. Best, B.A., is pastor of the New United church

Mrs. Best, formerly Euphemia Ann Shield, is the daughter of the late Thomas Shield and Elizabeth Rutherford and is the only surving member of a family of five. Mr. Best is the son of the late Hamilton Best and Elizabeth Feir. He and his youngest brother, William Best of Omemee, are the only surviving members of a family of nine.

Mrs. Best, 78, is an active woman too, although she says her memory has not been the best since she became ill with measles three years ago and lay in a semi-conscious state for close to three weeks. However, she still has all her faculties, knits, crochets, makes shirts for her husband, and does all her own housework.

Both retain a keen memory of their younger days and can recount many an interesting story of the pioneer life of Emily and Cavan townships and the village of Mount Pleasant. Mr. Best remembers attending the dedication service held on the opening of the Methodist church in 1864, destroyed last Sunday by fire. Mrs. Best remembers hearing her parents say many times that her brother, the late Herbert Shield, was the first child to be baptised in the church.

Both claim that they have lived in the best age. They look on today and point to thousands on relief and say that in their day there was no such thing as relief, that every man had a job to do. They think this age is fast, reckless, and prefer to have lived in the quiet age that was theirs, having been able to build security and happiness for themselves.

Ladies' Auxiliary Y.M.C.A. Elect Officers for 1939

Election of officers was the outstanding business at the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., held Friday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. Board Room.

Mrs. G. H. Roper read the report of the nominating committee, and Mrs. F. E. Johnston took the chair for the election of officers as follows: Honorary President, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge; president, Mrs. F. L. Robinson; first vice-president, Mrs. G. A. Borland; second vice-president, Mrs. W.R. Breyfogle; treasurer, Mrs. D. A. Loomis; house committee convener, Mrs. L. L. Ferguson; convener social committee, Mrs. G. H. Roper, convener flower committee, Mrs. G. Borland

An excellent report of the activities and expenditures of the Auxiliary during the year was given by Mrs D. A. Loomis, treasurer, and a report by the house committee convener, Mrs. J. R. Marshall, showed that a total of $154.65 had been used for linen room supplies and window drapes.

In her annual report, Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle, secretary, said that during the year of 1938 the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. held eight regular meetings with an average attendance of twelve, as well as two executive meetings, held at the home of the president. She reported the death of a faithful member, Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, who for many years served on the house committee. The flower committee, with Mrs. Borland as convener, had sent flowers to sick or bereaved members. The linen room was kept supplied and rooms renovated under the supervision of the house committee, as reported by the convener, Mrs. Marshall.

Twenty-five dollars was given to the boys' work commitee. This work had been explained very clearly by the boys' secertary, Mr. Cameron Gorrie. In March Rev. G. A. Easton gave the Auxiliary members an inspirational address, and in November Rev. M. C. Parr was heard.

To augment funds to carry on the the work, an afternoon bridge was held in March, a garden party at the home of Mrs. Barrie in June; a dinner bridge in October, and a fee tea at the home of Mrs. Charles Shaw.

The meeting was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. S. D. Carver. Mrs. F. L. Robinson, president, presided. A vote of appreciation to the president and officers for the excellent work accomplished during the year in the interests of the Y.M.C.A. auxiliary was moved by Mrs. H. Stenton.

$100,000 Gem Loss Laid to 2 Playboys

RIVERHEAD, N.Y., Jan. 21 — (A. P.). — An answer to thefts of $100,000 in gems was sought to-day by police as they questioned two young Manhattan men-about-town who were charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of a $600 diamond bracelet from Mrs. Richard Berlin.

The two, arrested in New York and booked as Foster Joseph Blakeley-Brazeley, 27, who said he was a magazine writer and son of the wife of a wealthy steel man, and Edward Lawforth, 26, a broker, were brought here last night.

New York detectives said Blakeley Brazeley admitted taking the bracelet, owned by the former Muriel (Honey) Johnson, at a house party in 1934 at Southampton, Long Island.

The series of thefts about which police said they would question the pair included the loss in 1938 of $15,000 in jewels from the Southampton bathhouse locker of former Governor Alfred E. Smith; loss of $50,000 in jewellery last July from the home of Mrs. Orson Munn, a New York society leader, and disappearance of $35,000 in jewellery from the home of Luella Gear, actress, in 1937.

The detectives said Blakeley-Brazeley signed a statement admitting the theft of the bracelet and declaring he gave it to Lawforth, who pawned it for $300, splitting the proceeds with him.

Northern Ireland shipped over $6,000,000 worth of linen to the United States last year.

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Remedy at Home

Quick Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them a much more dependable remedy for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its effect on throat membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough remedy, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

That's what it amounts to when a woman tries to save money by buying a home washing machine.

The cost of the machine over a couple of years will give her laundry free.

What sense does it make to slave two years for nothing and have only a second hand washing machine for a reward?

The Old Razor Strap

VANCOUVER, Jan. 21 — (CP.).—A good hiding is in store for a couple of 13-year-old boys who did their coasting on automobiles. Police said they had caught the pair breaking into automobiles, releasing the brakes, and rolling down hills. Parents were asked to punish them.

Japan plans the creation of 24 air-defence parks in six large cities.

Jap Opposition To Be Wiped Out

TOKYO, Jan. 21 — (AP).—Premier Kiichiro Hiranuma warned today that extermination awaits persistent opponents of Japan.

"As for those who fail to understand to the end and hereafter persist in the opposition to Japan," he cried in a speech before Parliament, "we have no other alternative than to exterminate them."

To a question whether the reference was to China, a foreign office official replied merely, "The translation is correct as it stands."

Baron Hiranuma, who formed a cabinet on January 5 to guide Japan toward a "new order in Asia," gave his maiden speech before the opening Diet session just after Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita outlined Japanese Pan-Asia ambitions as seeking a "new East Asia upon an ethical foundation wherein Japan, China, and Manchoukuo . . will stand united and linked together for active collaboration...."

The Premier emphasized the necessity for Pan-Asianism and measures for strengthening national resources and national morale would be instituted as soon as possible.

"The creation of a strong armament....constitutes our most essential objective," he said, adding that wartime control measures would be placed on a permanent basis.

Hachiro Arita's exposition of Japan's Pan-Asia ambitions was considered by some to be the most important statement of Japanese foreign policy in her history.

Bancroft Laborer Jailed As "Squatter"

TWEED, Jan. 12.— Refusing to leave his squarter's abode and support his wife unless certain concessions were granted his family, ultimately resulted in the arrest of Joseph Hall, Bancroft laborer on Thursday. Hall was apprehended on a charge of vagrancy and remanded to the custody of the county gaol. In the meantime county officials had to take care of the family.

The Hall family recently took up residence with a Bancroft family, who agreed to assist them, while Hall sought employment, Provincial Constable S. Palmateer reported to Inspector Gardner, when he took the accused to the county gaol on Friday. After establishing himself in the home, it is alleged Hall refused to work and was sitting nonchalantly in the house when the officer arrived with orders to eject the family. Hall refused to leave and was subsequently arrested.

The Hall family accompanied Constable Palmateer to the county seat, Mrs. Hall being taken to the County House of Refuge while the two children were given into the custody of the Children's Aid Society Inspector.

"I won't work until the village of Bancroft provides a home for me and my family to live in," Hall shouted to Constable Palmateer when he was arrested. He has a temporary home in the county gaol now.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

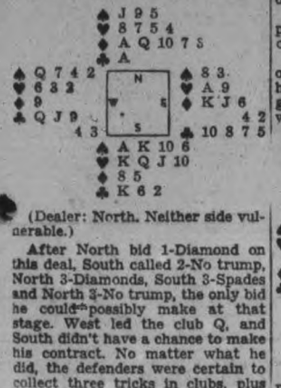
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOW ONE SUIT FIRST

WHENEVER YOU HAVE two suits worth showing to your partner, it is usually sound tactics to tell him about one of them first. If you don't, you may never get a chance to tell him about the other one and give him a chance to choose the one which fits his hand the better. Jumping to 2-No trump after his opening suit bid is a poor way to show your strength if you have two good four-card majors. It may result in your never having an opportunity to disclose the suit which is the best contract for your side.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

After North bid 1-Diamond on this deal, South called 2-No trump, North 3-Diamonds, South 3-Spades and North 3-No trump, the only bid he could possibly make at that stage. West led the club Q, and South didn't have a chance to make his contract. No matter what he did, the defenders were certain to collect three tricks in clubs, plus one in each major suit.

"Why didn't you show your fine hand with a bid of 2-Spades?" asked North. "Then after my 3-Diamonds, you could have bid 3-Hearts and I would have taken you to four."

"I don't like to bid that way unless my suits are of five cards," responded South. "If I have only four-card suits, I like to bid the 2-No trump first, after which you will know that any suit I name is only a four-carder."

North conceded that this was perhaps a fair idea if there was only one suit to show, but if there were two, especially both of them majors, one should be shown first.

"But isn't that likely to fool my partner into thinking I have five-carders?" asked South.

"Not if, when he hears that second suit, he realizes you may have had a pair of four-carders and governs himself accordingly." North was convinced.

County Council Refuses Grant To Plowmen's Association; Can See Little Benefit In Match

Declaring that plowing matches are a stunt for advertisers of farm machinery to get their products before the farmers and of no real benefit to agriculture, members of the County Council Friday turned thumbs down on a grant to the Peterborough County Plowmen's Association. Last year the grant was $100.

The opinion was that frequently farmers developed the idea that fancy plowing was the only kind worth while, and as a result neglected their farm work to attend matches, and did not do sufficient plowing on his own farm. It was also said that in several instances farms which had been used for plowing matches suffered because the plowing was done too deep, and for several years after the fields were nothing but ridges and hollows.

Which Plowing Better?

Reeve W. A. Anderson said it was an unsettled question at the present time as to the actual value of deep or shallow plowing. He told of one case where a man had harvested forty bushels of oats to the acre from land broken only with a cultivator to the depth of four inches. "No person can tell us whether we get the best results from shallow plowing or deep plowing, nor can they advise on how many times a year a field should be plowed."

"The competition is between the advertisers of farm machinery and not between the plowmen," said Reeve Coughlin of Douro. If they would restrict the plowing match to straight plowing in which the contestants would not be allowed to touch furrows with their hands, they would be getting somewhere, because it could be plain, sensible work but when they start the fancy variety, it's of little value even though it attracts praise from spectators who are mostly from urban centres." I realize this would reduce the number of classes considerably, he added.

"I feel plowing matches are of little benefit to farmers and there are many other ways in which agriculture may be assisted," Reeve Gifford of Ennismore remarked.

Feeders for Big Match.

We should not cut them off entirely. The provincial match is the biggest thing in the country, and all of these county matches are feeders to the big match, Reeve Allan Mann declared.

He was supported by Deputy-Reeve Harry Read of Otonabee, who said the plowing matches were interesting and beneficial to the young farmers and encouragement should be given. "Last year there were 56 entries, almost twice the number as in 1937, which shows considerable interest and a healthy growth," he said. Reeve Wallace Shearer of Harvey, who was in the chair, agreed also with this.

Reeve McColl of Asphodel shared the opinion of others that often plowing matches did more harm than good to farms where they were held.

The final decision, on motion of Reeves Coughlin and Gifford, was that no action be taken on the question.

Insure With Lloyds.

Insurance for public liability on roads, bridges, and county buildings was placed with Lloyds of London, England, through local agents of A. E. Wilson & Co., Ltd., Toronto, the premium being $1,593.00, a substantial increase over the 1938 premium of $975. There were no other tenders.

The insurance on the county machinery was also placed with the same company at a premium of $143.85.

Reeve Gifford pointed to the fact that every year the premium for this type of insurance is increasing, and he felt the Council should give serious consideration to building up a fund of their own to take care of any claims. Reeve Anderson said: 'I think our policy should be to get rid of all dangerous places in the county road system. It is our duty to see that there are no death traps on the roads, rather than to make a section of road more level so that cars might go faster.

Tourist Association Grant.

Reeve Gordon Scriver of Lakefield moved that the Kawartha District and Haliburton Highlands Tourist Association be given the same grant as last year, $150, and Reeve Lean of Burleigh seconded the motion. It carried unanimously.

Considerable discussion resulted over a hospital bill exceeding $900 for Gerald Johnston, Indian boy at present in Nicholls Hospital, and who is likely to stay there for some time. The question of responsibility for the cost could not be given by the solicitor at once, and he asked for time to go into the entire situation thoroughly.

The question was left in the hands of committee, composed of Reeve Wallace Shearer, chairman, Reeve Lean and Warden Milby with the county solicitor, E. A. Peck, K.C.

On advice of the solicitor, the Council refused to pay a bill of $57 for hospitalization of Gerald Johnston while he was confined to the Isolation Hospital with scarlet fever, and they also decided to refuse payment of a hospital bill for Rita Gray, a domestic employed in a summer home at Chemong.

The final decision on motion of Reeve Coughlin of Douro seconded by Reeve Shearer of Harvey was that the County Road Committee, along with Reeves Anderson and Gifford who are members of the Bridge Committee be authorized to act for the county in obtaining a permanent roadway across the lake. The committee will obtain all data required at once and if necessary a special meeting of the council will be called to determine the course to be followed.

Set Load Limits

A by-law was read which set the load limits for several bridges in the county and the two floating bridges at Chemong and Gannon's Narrows will be carrying the lightest loads. It was suggested that the gross weight of any vehicle crossing these structures would be three ton. This would permit empty trucks and the stage to cross and if the Department of Highways approves the by-law signs to this effect will be posted. Reeve Mann and Reeve Seeney moved the by-law but Reeve Gifford was of the opinion the floating bridge would carry four tons without the bridge suffering any damage.

The Department of Highways will be asked to assume a part of the road leading north from No. 7 highway towards the Peterborough County Forest, as a county road. This road is two miles east of the village of Norwood.

The road rate for 1939 was set at 2.7 mills the same as in 1938 on motion of Reeve W. A. Anderson and Reeve Mann, and on motion of Reeve W. Anderson and Warden Milby the sum of $5500 was placed in the estimates for bridges. The City of Peterborough will be asked to set aside $10,000 for Suburban Road purposes.

Take Over 6th Line

On motion of Reeve Anderson of Otonabee seconded by Reeve Coughlin the Suburban Road Commission will be asked to take over the 6th line from the village of Keene north to No. 7 highway. Reeve Coughlin and Deputy Reeve Read of Otonabee moved that the mile of road from the Douro church north to the Warsaw road be taken over also, and Reeve Mann of Smith with Reeve Scriver of Lakefield is seeking to have the Commission assume the middle line of Smith leading north from Highway 28 to Chemong.

Give Judgment

Herman was just walking naturally past your store? "Yes."

Was it possible that he walked by your store to look into Payne's window?

"I don't know about that."

Witness said it took him 5 or 6 minutes to walk to Simcoe and Aylmer Streets.

Miss V. M. Walsh, saleslady in the Stenson store, corroborated Mr. Stenson's evidence as to seeing Herman pass the Stenson store on the evening of the fire about 6.10 o'clock. She and Mr. Stenson were waiting for the 6.10 bus to arrive.

To Mr. Singer the witness said she could not recall seeing anybody but Herman pass that evening.

Identifies Deposit Slip.

Mrs. Inga Roy, employee at the Pattenick store, said she was in the store from 2 to 5 o'clock on the afternoon of the fire. She didn't remember being in the basement that afternoon.

"Did you ever make a deposit in the Bank of Toronto for Mr. Herman?"

"I did."

Witness identified a deposit slip dated November 26, 1938, and showing a deposit of $10. Herman had given her the cash while standing near the cash register.

Miss J. Cohen, another Pattenick employee, said she was in the basement of the store at 5.15 o'clock on the afternoon of the fire, taking some empty boxes downstairs. They were piled in the centre aisle 10 or 12 feet from the furnace.

In the late afternoon witness said she noticed the store was getting cold and she had spoken to Mr. Stevens about it. She had left the store that evening between 5.45 and 5.50 o'clock with Herman, Stevens, and Miss Walsh. It was around 6 o'clock when she reached her home on Water Street.

Miss Cohen said that on November 24 she had made a deposit for Mr. Herman in the Bank of Toronto. The $21 had been deposited to Mr. Herman's personal account.

Witness identified the deposit slip.

Mr. Herman had given her the money, taking it out of the till in the store.

To Mr. Singer Miss Cohen said she thought she got home just around 6 o'clock, possibly 2 minutes before or a minute afterward.

"Might it not have been five minutes after?"

"I don't think so."

Miss Eileen Walsh, another employee, placed the time Herman, Stevens, Miss Cohen, and herself had left the store on the evening of the fire at 10 or 15 minutes to 6 o'clock.

Miss Walsh said she did not handle any of the money taken in at the store. Her duty was to make out a profit and loss slip.

To Mr. Singer, witness said that she fixed the time of leaving at 10 or 15 minutes to 6 o'clock because that was the usual time for leaving.

"Threw a Bombshell."

Virgil Carr, recalled, said that during the recess in Thursday's session Harold Stevens had said to him "I guess I threw a bombshell into them then."

"Did you think it was a bombshell yourself," asked Mr. Singer.

"I certainly did," replied the witness.

Orville Moore told of a conversation he had with Herman on November 30 when the accused had asked him for a loan of $35 stating he was overdrawn at the bank and needed the money.

"No questions" said Mr. Singer when the witness was through.

Hector McKillop, accountant at the Bank of Toronto, said Herman had an account at that bank and that the average balance shown was in the neighborhood of $10.

In cross-examination Mr. Singer pressed him on the point as to whether or not the account was an accommodation account. "In other word Herman was merely "kiting" cheques, "wasn't he," asked defence counsel.

"I wouldn't like to say that," replied the witness.

Maurice Colley, accountant at the Dominion Bank, said that the Pattenick store had its account there. He identified a statement of the Pattenick account and it was put in as an exhibit.

Statement Produced.

Inspector D. H. Saville, of the Fire Marshal's Department, told of taking two statements under oath from Herman after the fire and explained the circumstances under which they were taken. The two statements, the first of which dealt with Herman's financial circumstances and the latter with his movements around the time of the fire were put in as exhibits, after being read aloud by Crown Attorney McElderry. In the second statement Herman had said that he had gone home with Stevens on the evening of the fire and his intention was to fix the furnace and get cleaned up for the night. The statement also told of his looking for the money he said he had put into the cellar and of his inability to find it.

"My honest opinion is that the furnace had nothing to do with it," said the Inspector when asked as to whether he thought the fire in the Pattenick store could have started from the furnace.

"Have you had much experience in studying fires?" asked Mr. McElderry.

"I have done nothing else for 20 years" replied the witness.

"Have you inspected many fires?" "Hundreds of them."

Inspector Saville said that in his opinion the electric wiring did not start the fire because there were no signs of a short circuit."

Might Be Hedging.

"Wasn't Mr. Herman perfectly frank when you were obtaining the statements from him?" asked Mr. Singer in cross-examination.

"I want to be perfectly fair," said the witness slowly. "There were times when I thought he might be hedging. That was my impression."

In Suit To Break Will Of Malted Milk Heiress

Prominent figures in the Racine, Wisconsin, trial through which William Horlick Sidley, 26-year-old son of the late malted milk heiress is contesting the will left by his mother, are shown here during progress of the trial. At TOP LEFT are William P. Sidley, and William Horlick, brother-in-law and brother respectively of the late heiress. At RIGHT, is William Horlick Sidley who contests the will on the grounds that his mother was of unsound mind and was unduly influenced by W. Perkins Bull, Toronto barrister, in whose home she died. Bull shared equally with young Sidley in the $9,000,000 estate. Dr. George A. Campbell, CIRCLE, of Ottawa, called as a witness, declared that Mrs. Sidley was capable of understanding what she was doing when she made the will.

W. Pattenick, head of the Pattenick stores said they had 10 stores through Ontario. He said there were four keys to the local store that had been handed to him by Thomas Ephgrave. One had been handed over to the manager and he kept three himself. When the first manager left and Herman took his place that key had been handed over to him. There were no other keys to the door of the store so far as he knew.

Mr. Pattenick told of a conversation he had with Herman after the fire in which as accused had said that he had the Saturday receipts hidden in the basement and couldn't find them after the fire.

The instructions given to Herman had been to bank each day's receipts on the following day and there was no reason why that practice could not have been followed.

The witness said that the inventory taken after the fire showed a total of $20,924.64 and according to the perpetual inventory there should has been $22,029.33 there.

A Hard Worker.

"Mr. Herman has been in your employ for some time and you will agree that he has worked hard in your interest", asked Mr. Singer.

"Yes, he has been a hard worker."

"Do you think he would be the type of man that would burn your property up"?

"That's hard to answer", said the witness hesitatingly.

"There was no motive to burn your store, was there? The books were there; wouldn't a man who wanted to commit arson have taken care to burn the books too"?

"It wouldn't have made any difference in regard to the books because we have duplicates", replied Mr. Pattenick.

"You know the financial circumstances of the Hermans. You know that Mrs. Herman has been living in one room and that her children are being taken care of. You yourself in the kindness of your heart sent her $5 last week to keep her from starving, didn't you"?

Pattenick admitted that such was the case.

"Then if Herman stole, as is alleged where did the money go" asked Mr. Singer? Witness shook his head.

The defence counsel examined the witness as to a shortage last year in Herman's stock which had been adjusted. Mr. Pattenick said that to make up that shortage Herman was not being paid the commission of half of one per cent paid him last year.

Mr. Pattenick said that he had seen Stevens smoking around the store.

"Is Stevens in your opinion a trustworthy employee"?

"I didn't hire him; Herman did" was the reply.

Financial Detail.

Gerald Butler, accountant for the Pattenick stores was the last witness called and he gave a mass of figures in regard to Herman's financial transactions. He declared that the figures indicated that there was always a shortage of cash and it was being covered up by holding back deposits. He said that the receipts for Thursday and Friday before the fire were not deposited until Monday and that it would have been impossible for Herman to have had $308, representing Saturday's receipts on the Monday unless that amount included a cheque for $65 which Mr. Pattenick had cashed. Witness said there was a cash shortage of $302.95 in addition to Saturday's receipts and placed the shortage of goods at $1,047.45.

Mr. Singer tangled vigorously with the witness in regard to some of his statements and drew from him the admission that Herman could have had the money he claimed to have on Saturday but he could not have had it Monday, in view of the story told by the deposits.

Butler was the last crown witness.

In his argument Mr. McElderry said there was strong circumstantial evidence as to Herman's guilt, particularly the testimony of his being seen walking down street and in the vicinity of the store at a time just after he had apparently gone home for the night, and that there was ample evidence of a shortage of money and goods, thus supplying a motive for arson.

Mr. Singer declared that the onus was on the crown to do more than merely produce evidence indicating the possibility that Herman might be guilty. He declared the crown evidence to be flimsy and so unreliable that some of the crown witnesses had been attacked by the Crown itself.

Kingdom and the United States. And in neither of these countries were individuals permitted to national networks on which to broadcast private views.

The minister declared that at the present session of parliament a House committee would be constituted and this question would be laid before them.

Mr. Howe said he had left Ottawa Christmas Day for a two-week holiday in the south and all the correspondence between Mr. McCullagh and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation took place "while I was on a cruise ship in the Gulf stream, my mind completely at ease."

Three days after his return from the south the correspondence was sent him by Mr. Murray, who suggested it might become controversial. "I can give him full marks for the accuracy of his prognostication," Mr. Howe said.

Strange sidelights were interjected in both the press and the House. Dr. Manion (Conservative leader) had referred to freedom of speech and press and the iron heel of the Prussian.

"I never mentioned that," interjected Dr. Manion, "It isn't mine."

Several other members had raised the question during the debate. Mr. Howe said.

Even Bennett Speaks Out

"Even Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett came from his retirement and issued a long manifesto in favor of free speech," the minister said amid laughter.

He read the regulations of the C.B.C. These disclosed no individual may purchase any network to publish his opinion. Constituted societies, however, were permitted that facility. Under conditions which emphasized their responsibility therefor.

The rulings did not apply to individual privately owned stations. The Canadian broadcasting system were a combination of British and United States systems. The private station had a place all its own in serving the needs of a single community.

The C.B.C. was an autonomous body set up by parliament in 1936. In granting the act authorizing it every effort was made to divorce the C.B.C. from political or governmental interference. The government's functions were to nominate the directors and approve the by-laws. The only way any minister had anything to do with the board was that the broadcasting act named the transport minister as the channel of administrative communication.

Had he been disposed to interfere he would have been as ready to accept the directors' opinion as his own in view of the time and thought the directors gave to the business.

He had never had anything to do with staff appointments or the selection of broadcasting features. The funds that have built the C.B.C. were not contributed by parliament but by the listeners, whose interests must be regarded as paramount.

Now, it appeared, all that was going to be changed. Denton Massey had apparently wished that the affairs of the C.B.C. be taken out of the minister's hands and placed under the government, said Mr. Howe. This was protested by Mr. Massey.

The C.B.C. regulations permitted, during an election, the leaders of the political parties to broadcast their views to the electors over a national network.

Money Necessary

"If they have the money," interjected a member.

In the United States it was possible to lease a number of privately-owned stations and joining them by wire to form a net work. But the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia System maintained regulations similar to those operating in Canada, designed to prevent any person, because of wealth, and for their own private purposes, having use of the net works which would be out of reach of one without means.

Free speech gave every person the right to express themselves so long as they were not seditious, libellous or profane. "But the speaker must provide his own audience," Mr. Howe said

Editors of newspapers had the right to select or reject matter submitted to them. The right of free speech did not give persons a large free entry to the columns of newspapers. "It is a strange commentary that complain of denial of free speech should come from the editor and publisher of a daily newspaper who is in an unusually favorable position to bring his views before the people."

The C.B.C., Mr. Howe said, would "resist any attempt to regiment opinion." It would be false to its trust if it did not "resist any attempt to put use of the air under domination of wealth."

Deplores Disunity

Dr. A. B. Hyndman (Con. Carleton) deplored the disunity which he said, was manifest in Canada today. This was likely to be aggravated unless the sponsors of two resolutions already on the order paper withdrew them. One asked for a national flag for Canada, while the other sought to have the dominion's name changed to "The Kingdom of Canada," with the governor general replaced by a "viceroy" who should be a Canadian.

He complained the solution of the unemployment problem appeared as far off as ever, notwithstanding that it had been mentioned regularly in the speech from the throne at each session in the past four years.

Complaint against duplication in departmental activities was voiced by Joseph Needham (S.C. The Battlefords). The work of the agriculture department overlapped that of the provincial deparments and he was of the opinion savings could be effected if the Dominion department were abolished.

Canada suffered from too much government, Mr. Needham said, not on the part of the provinces but on the part of the federal authority.

Vital Mallette (Lib. Jacques Cartier) approved the government's defence measures. He regretted that more enthusiasm was not shown with regard to recruiting for the militia and suggested something be done to stimulate this.

FOUR CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH IN BEDS

Three Drown; Airliner Sinks At Sea

Tanker Picks Up Ten One a Canadian, Clinging To Lifebelts

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. —(AP).—Safe after one of the most dramatic rescues in the annals of transoceanic air travel, five men and five women survivors of the sunken flying boat Cavalier approached New York to-day aboard the tanker Esso Baytown.

The survivors, including one Canadian woman, were expected to arrive about 10 a.m. E.S.T.

Gale-swept seas which slowed the sturdy rescue vessel to eight knots, revived anew for the 10 who lived the memory of nearly 10 terror-stricken hours they spent clinging to rubber lifebelts until the tanker, skippered by a Nova Scotia-trained seaman, hove into the darkness, drawn by their cries.

Joy over their own miraculous rescue was tempered with sorrow at the fate of three other persons—two men passengers and a plane steward—who slipped beneath icy waves, apparently too weak from injuries for the long struggle against tempest winds and battering water.

Eight coast guard vessels gave the three up for lost last night after a thorough search of the seas where motor trouble forced the giant Bermuda-bound Imperial Airways craft to pancake into the Atlatnic ocean 30 miles south-east of Cape May, N.J., during a gale Saturday.

It sank in 10 minutes, forcing the 13 persons aboard to leap into the water before they could don life-safing equipment.

Wives See Husbands Sink

Among the survivors were the wives of the two missing passengers. They were recuperating from hysterical horror engenderd when, helpless to aid, they saw their weakened husbands slip from hastily grabbed lifebelts to certain death.

All survivors were reported in "fair condition," however, except Capt. M. R. Alderson, pilot of the 19-ton, $200,000 flying boat, who sufferd more from shock and exposure than the others. Several were believed cut and bruised.

Among them was Mrs. Edna Watson, one-time resident of Montreal, who was returning to her home in Bermuda from a holiday visit to her former Canadian home.

Ruins Of Home Where Four Children Died

A tragic search among the embers by Provincial Constable Hatch of Marmora is seen here at the fire at Cordova Mines on Sunday night that claimed lives of four children. Some idea of the intense heat generated in the fire can be gleaned from the twisted appearance of the bed in which two of the youngsters died, seen in background.

Mother And Boy Aged Five All That Escape From Cordova Mines Home

Rescuers Unable To Reach Four Children Trapped Upstairs Asleep In Beds Mother And Child Escape Through Window

(By Peter McGillen)

CORDOVA MINES, Jan. 23.—Four children ranging in age from 8 to 14 years were burned to death as they slept in the upstairs of their two-storey frame home in the village of Cordova Mines, forty miles east of Peterborough, on Sunday night. Their mother, Mrs. David Johnston, who was sleeping with the baby, Donald, aged 5, on a studio couch in the living room downstairs, was awakened by the child's screams, and fought through smoke and fire to the nearest window, which she smashed and escaped carrying the child with her. She was badly burned about the hands and neck. The temperature was sixteen below zero when the fire broke out. Another dwelling directly west of the Johnston home was also burned to the ground, and the only occupant at the time of the fire, Mrs. G. W. Steenburgh, escaped without difficulty. Neighbors saved all the furniture in the Steenburgh home.

The dead are:

Melbourne Johnston, age 14 — Jackie Johnston, age 10
Dorothy Johnston, age 12 — Wallace Johnston, age 8

Father At Work At Plant Of Smelters

The father, David Johnston, compressor operator for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, had gone to work at four o'clock on Sunday afternoon in the mine, working on the four to midnight shift. He was brought home by Jack Peacock, grocery store clerk, fifteen minutes after the alarm had been sounded and three neighbors had to restrain the grief-stricken man as he attempted to enter the house which was an inferno from top to bottom.

The screams of the mother was the first inkling the village had of the tragedy. Two men, Lorne Bowen and James Barrons, who were in Bowen's home directly across the street, rushed out and saw Mrs. Johnston standing at the front of the house in night attire, and five-year-old Donald standing in bare feet. Clad only in flannel pyjamas on the verandah of the house next door where the mother had placed him before she started back to attempt saving the other children.

Attempt At Rescue Made Through Upstairs Window

The men placed a ladder against the west side of the dwelling, smashing the upstairs window, and as Jim Barron climbed the ladder, Mrs. Johnston ran to the downstairs window with the five-year-old child following her screaming in terror. Mrs. Johnston attempted to climb the ladder but two other men, Gerry Ward and John Quinlan, took her by the arms and assisted her across the road to the home of L. Bowen. The distracted mother was in hysterics and Mrs. L. Bowen and her sister-in-law, Mrs. B. Lincoln, found her night dress scorched and her hands and neck badly burned. They put vaseline on her hands and soda on her throat and neck, and wrapped her in warm clothes. It was very cold and the woman had been walking around in her bare feet. A few minutes later Bren Lincoln carried five-year-old Donald into the house. The child was chilled through and through.

Flames Block Attempts To Rescue Children

"When I reached the window I felt around with my hands, hoping to find a bed but a billow flames and smoke bust out in my face and drove me back. I called loudly and thought once I heard someone answer but the inside was like a furnace and I couldn't get in," Lorne Bowen said. Jim Barrons and Ross Barrons both climbed the ladder, the latter taking a five gallon can of chemicals with him, but found it impossible to get inside.

The Johnston house was on the north side of the main street in the village and was a two-storey frame house. The fire is believed to have started from overheated stove pipes, and Mrs. Johnston told neighbors she too would have perished if the smoke and flames had not awakened the baby. The room was in flames as she battled her way to the west window and clambered through after smashing the glass, carrying the child in her arms. By this time the whole interior of the house was ablaze and neighbors who attempted rescue work said flames gushed out through the front door and the upstairs windows simultaneously, leaving absolutely no chance for the men to rescue the four children.

House Next Door Is Also Destroyed

Directly west of the Johnston home and separated only by a ten-foot lane was a double house of frame construction owned by Arthur Steenburgh, who occupied the house with his mother, Mrs. G. W. Steenburgh, his brother, Carmen Steenburgh, and the school teacher, Cameron Vance. Mrs. Steenburgh was alone at the time and had no difficulty getting out when the flames spread to her home. Neighbors immediately carried all the furniture from the Steenburgh home, while others attempted to slow up the fire with buckets of water. The water froze almost as fast as it was doused in the walls. It was the finest dwelling in the village and the loss is estimated at $3,000. The Johnston home was owned by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company.

Volunteer fire fighters had some trouble saving a large frame tenement house directly across from the fire on the south side of the street and occupied by three families. Another building east of this house and in the direct path of the flames because the wind was blowing strong from the northwest caught fire and the firefighters tore away the sheeting at one corner before they were able to extinguish the fire. This building housed a barber shop and pool room operated by Harry Bowen.

A chemical pumper from Marmora answered the call for assistance, but was of little value because the fire had made too much progress and the intense cold interfered with operation of the pump.

Three Bodies Recovered By Searchers

Both Mr. and Mrs. Johnston were taken to the home of Terry Fitzpatrick, a short distance down the road, where

40,000-Foot Altitude For Bombers Seen In New War

Montreal, Jan. 23 (CP)

DEVELOPMENT of bombing planes capable of flying at altitudes of more thanf 40,000 feet, probably would be carried forward rapidly if another war broke out, Wing Commander J. A. Sully of the Royal Canadian Air Force here, said in a luncheon address Saturday. Aircraft flying at that height would practically be immune from attack by present-day anti-aircraft armaments which were efficient only up to 25,000 or 30,000 feet. Sub-stratosphere ships could be constructed along conventional designs provided certain necessary adaptions were made, Wing Commander Sully believed.

Jubilee Point Hotel Is Totally Burned

An old landmark passed out of existence on Saturay afternoon when the Jubilee Point hotel, at the mouth of the Otonabee river, once one of the most popular summer hotels in this part of Ontario, was totally destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin.

Most of the rambling wooden structure, built many years ago, has been unoccupied for years. Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Harris had been living in a rear wing of the building and it was in Mr. Harris' workshop that the blaze broke out on Saturday while Harris and another man were away hunting rabbits. Mrs. Harris and several women friends were in the house but the fire had got a good start before they noticed it and they were unable to save any of the contents, the radio and washing machine being the principal articles salvaged.

Harris lost many valuable tools, two canoes upon which he had been working and an outboard motor.

The fire was noticed from a number of points on Rice Lake and in a few minutes cars were speeding across the frozen surface of the lake, with the result that some 50 people were on the scene in a short time, but they were helpless to check the progress of the flames which soon licked up the main portion of the old hotel and the wings at the side and rear.

The building, long in the possession of the Calcutts, in the old days when steam-boating was at its peak, was owned by the Harris brothers of Gore's Landing in recent years and Lorne Harris, who has made quite a reputation for himself as a hunter of snapping turtles for the American market, has been living in part of the structure.

Favorite Picnic Resort.

Jubilee Point, on which the hotel stood, is virtually an island situated on the South Monaghan side of the mouth of the Otonabee and is cut off from the main land by a marsh at the rear. In the old days when several lines of steamers were plying up and down the river, it was a favorite picnic ground and older citizens will have no difficulty in recalling many happy hours spent there, for Jubilee Point was one of the most popular spots in the whole district for the Sunday school, fraternal society and factory picnics that were a daily feature of the

Carrying Revolver Costs 2 Months

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Noble Thornhill admitted in court today he was carrying a useless revolver when arrested last night on an uptown street.

"It wasn't loaded and it won't work," the constable who made the arrest said.

Thornhill said it was given to him by a man who left for the lumber camps. "I was taking it to the police," he said.

"Asserting that carrying a revolver was a serious offence the magistrate sentenced the accused to two months in jail.

8 S.O.S. Calls Flash On Atlantic

Scores Of Lives Lost In Gale, Sub Zero On Eastern Seaboard

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP). —A bitter cold wave, accompanied by disastrous gale-force winds, plummeted the mercury to sub-freezing points to-day as ocean storms brought a series of "SOS" calls from pimperilled ships on the North Atlantic.

Storm fatalities reached into the scores.

Mountainous waves lashed the eastern seaboard from Cape Hatteras to the Canadian Maritime provinces, causing widespread distress, and delayed the arrival of the rescue tanker Esso Baytown en route to New York with the 10 survivors of the Bermuda-bound Imperial Airways flying boat Cavalier, which sank with a loss of three lives Saturday

"SOS" signals cracked from eight ships tossed on the Atlantic, and nearby craft turned to their aid. The lives of more than 300 passengers and seamen were in jeopardy.

Upstate New York counted five dead, including a Syracuse man and his woman companion, whose bodies were found frozen on Oneida Lake near Bridgeport, N.Y., where they had been fishing through the ice. They were identified as Martin Newell, 22, and Miss Catherine Burns, 20.

Chilly In New York.

In New York city, the temperature dropped to 10 degrees above zero—the coldest this winter—and during the night gales with a velocity of 48 miles an hour were registered.

The cold wave swept into New York State after travelling 1,100 miles in 24 hours. Temperatures of 30 below were reported in the Adirondack mountain hamlet of Mountain View, 28 below at Owl's Head, 19 below at Malone, 5.7 above at Buffalo, 7 above at Rochester, and 10 below at Watertown and Saranac Lake, where three inches of snow fell in 20 minutes yesterday.

Sub-zero temperatures prevailed over much of New England in the wake of a furious and freakish "line squall" which was accompanied by a 60-mile wind and lightning displays.

Three deaths were attributed to hazards of the storm.

All shipping arriving at Boston was sheathed in heavy armor of ice.

Infected Brushes Sent To Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Japanese shaving brushes possibly infected with anthrax germs have been traced to four western Canada towns from their St. Paul, Minn., distributor, Dr. J. J. Haggerty, chief executive assistant in the health branch of the Department of Pensions and National Health, announced today

An intense check-up of other outlest in Western Canada as well as possible distributors in Eastern Canada is being pushed by public health authorities across the country in an effort to prevent any outbreak of deadly anthrax from the shaving brush source, already responsible for one death in North Dakota.

From the St. Paul distributor shipments of the brushes wents to stores in the Flin Flon, Man., Estevan, Sask., Ponoka, Alta., and Kelowna, B.C., Dr. Haggerty said. Only one store in each town received shipments.

It was believed the St. Paul agency obtained their supplies from a New York merchandising firm which imported the brushes from Japan. The New York company is being checked as to whether any of its distributors might have sold some of the brushes in Eastern Canada or elsewhere in the west. The St. Paul agency itself sells to 1,000 variety stores in the United States and Canada.

Moderating Winters Just Part Of Weather Cycle

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)

THE present generation is getting winter in light doses, J. B. Kincer of the United States weather bureau said today.

This winter, he said, is following the general pattern of the last 20 years—milder weather, less snow and year-around temperatures above normal.

Of the last 20 years, he said, only 1929 has been appreciably cooler than normal for the United States as a whole.

Cold spells of the last few years have been much shorter than before the turn of the century. The reason for the change, he said, is just a part of the "weather cycle."

5 British Vessels Bombed, 1 Sinks

BARCELONA, Jan. 23 (AP).—Insurgent air raiders today bombed five British ships, sinking one and killing two officers, in attacks apparently intended to choke off Barcelona's food supplies.

The five vessels were the freighters Dover Abbey, Stanbrook, African Mariner, Thorpe Bay and Huntress. The African Mariner, which had been hit in an earlier air raid, sank. The Stanbrook was attacked seven miles off shore, the others in Barcelona's harbor.

William McClellan, second mate of the African Mariner, and the second mate of the Thorpe Bay, whose name was not given, were killed.

Irish Republicans Deny Bombings

DUBLIN, Jan. 23 (CP-Havas). Spokesmen for the outlawed Irish Republican army organization today disclaimed responsibility for last week's bomb explosion at Tralee, County Kerry, near the hotel where Frank Neville Chamberlain, son of the British Prime Minister, was a guest.

The move was interpreted as an attempt to forestall legislation for drastic government measures against the I.R.A.

Anthony Mulvey and Patrick Cunningham, Nationalist members of the Northern Ireland Parliament, in a statement published here, meanwhile criticized the government at Dublin, Belfast and London for the attitude they have adopted on the partition question.

Co-operative Creamery Favored By Peterboro' County Council; Committee Is Ordered To Proceed

Establishment of a co-operative creamery in Peterborough county is the objective of a resolution passed by the county council Saturday morning, bringing to a climax a week of co-operative thought and speech and a broad sentiment of approval of an idea that has been translated into successful practice elsewhere.

The resolution by Reeve W. A. Anderson, seconded by Reeve John McColl gives the agriculture committee of which Reeve Jas. Gifford is chairman a definite commission to "proceed with the preliminary organization of the butter and cream industry into a co-operative enterprise." The method of approach to the undertaking is left entirely to the discretion of the commitee.

Presumably, it will proceed to arouse public opinion throughout the county in favor of co-operation and recruit farmers to the proposed new co-operative creamery, to investigate the needs and possibilities of financing it, and to undertake anything else that may be comprehended in the phrase "preliminary organization."

Text Of Resolution

The text of the resolution was: "That the agricultural committee be authorized to proceed with the preliminary organization of the butter and cream industry of Peterborough county into a co-operative enterprise for the following purposes:

(1) to retain ownership of the butter and cream manufactured in Peterborough county in the control of producers until it is ready to be marketed;

(2) to provide a permanent, stable financial structure to support the industry;

(3) to reduce the cost of manufacture by confining the operation of trucks for the collection of cream to areas, and only using such manufacturing plants as are required to handle the output;

(4) to market the product in such a manner as to limit the spread in

Windsor Settles Down In Paris

PARIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor returned by train from the Riviera today and settled down in their new Paris home—a comparatively modest but comfortable house in the fashionable west end of Paris.

They have rented the house for two years. It overlooks the Bois de Boulogne and is owned by the Comtesse de Sabini. It has three stories, with four main rooms on the first floor, three on the second and servants' quarters on the third.

Having taken the house unfurnished, the Duke ordered much of his furniture to be sent from Fort Belvedere, his favorite home near Windsor Castle when he was Prince of Wales and King.

Italians Test Out Bullet-Proof Planes In Spain

London, Jan. 23.

THE appearance of new Italian "bullet-proof" planes in the Spanish fighting is reported this morning by the Daily Telegraph's Barcelona correspondent.

These planes, the correspondent says, flew low over the government line on a sector near the coast, but machine guns and rifle bullets had no effect, as the "bullets appeared to glance off the surface."

Writ Is Issued To Oust Red

MONTREAL, Jan. 23 (CP)—Superior Court issued a writ today ordering Muni Taub to evacuate his Laval street tenement home as ordered by Provincial Police under provisions of the anti-Communist padlock law. But the paid Communist secretary, surrounded by more than a score of supporters who thronged his little living room, retorted "They'll never get me out of here without force."

The writ—legally described as a faisie gagerie—ordered the slightly-built dressscutter to quit the upper tenement flat where he lives with his wife and child and his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fineberg. It was delivered this morning to the Fineberg-owned home where supporters and sympathizers had gathered to receive provincial police officers, expected to padlock the place.

At provincial headquarters, however, it was announced two officers had visited the home, learned that Taub had received the writ, that his father-in-law had received a letter ordering him to eject his son-in-law on the grounds he was an active Communist. Then they reported back to headquarters officials who will send on their report to Quebec's attorney-general, Premier Maurice Duplessis.

Wife Balks Also.

No mention in the original letter was made of Taube's wife and child. But she associated herself with the case by decloring "we're not getting out of this house." And she emphasized her reluctance to leave when reporteds revealed the temperature had dropped to 12 degrees below zero.

Police officials said the house was being kept under surveillance, pending word from the Attorney-General's Department. The time limit for Fineberg to oust his own expired to-day—four legal days after police authorities advised the unemployed tailor he must evict his son-in-law. But the threat to padlock the house could not be carried out without special orders from Quebec, they said. Further than that, police refused to discuss their plans.

All morning, friends and supporters visited the Fineberg flat, and always more than a score remained in the place.

Germany shipped $3,500,000 worth of hats to other countries last year.
